JIMMY WALKER--ACTOR

Booze Price-Cutting War Is Mpls.' Best Free Show, Killing Amus. Biz

Minneapolis, April 30.

Theatres here have been suffering from opposition created by the hottest liquor price war in the city's history. With all the loop booze establishments trying to undersell one another and with many brands being sold at considerably less than cost, the populace has been on a whiskey and wine spending spree, and much money that otherwise might be going for entertainment has been used to stock up on booze. Moreover, huge crowds have lined the pavements in front of the liquor stores to watch the fun, getting this free show instead of patronizing the theatres.

Sidewalks in front of the stores took on the atmosphere of stock brokers' ticker rooms, with prices in and on windows dropping as they do on the ticker tape during a stock market crash. The war has spread throughout the entire loop as rival establishments try to meet the competition.

David Arundell, state liquor commissioner, is prohibiting the stores from displaying prices on or in windows or mentioning prices in any way on the outside. This follows a ban on newspaper price advertising. He states that the dealers' 'disgraceful' activities have stimulated liquor buying unduly and helping to create drunkenness.

MRS. F.D.R. TO OPPOSE SOBBIES IN SPELLING

Washington, April 30.

Mrs. Roosevelt will head imposing list of unannounced celebrities in spelling bee scheduled on CBS at 9:30 tomorrow night (Tuesday). Team, which will oppose local newspaper gals, also includes Rep. Florence Kahn and Rep. Virginia Jencks. Alice Longworth, Mrs. Eugene Myer and Mrs. Homer Cummings set as judges, with Sen. Bennet Clark as chief pronouncer.

Stunt expected to run full hour from National Press Club for benefit of milk fund and femme-reporter fellowship foundation.

Beer Garden with Films

Portland, Ore., April 30.

Combination of films with lunch and beer is soon to become a reality in Portland, at the Columbia Gardens.

Through the facilities of the 'daylight screen', now being installed, it will be possible to show the flickers while the auditorium is fully lighted, thus making it possible to serve beer and food while films are projected.

Stage show, a nine piece orchestra, direction of Harry Linden, to round out the scheduled all-shorts program.

Horse With Memory

London, April 30.

White horse used in 'Three Sisters,' current Hammerstein-Kern Drury Lane musical, seemed familiar to Jerry Kern. On investigating he found it was same horse used in 'Sunny,' produced at the Hippodrome in 1926.

To test the animal Kern had some one hum a few bars from 'Who.' Horse immediately pricked up its ears and almost stood on its hind legs.

'RED' IA. TOWN SHUNS FILMS, OKES RADIO

Amana, Ia., April 30.

A year ago a radio was unknown in the Amana colonies, a Communistic old world society whose members worked for a common purpose and a single society treasury. Town itself has a population of 600.

Turning to a semi-capitalistic form of government with a corporation, the thousands of members who now receive wages have gone modern. Autos, the home unit, rather than the community kitchen, and 24 radios within the confines of the five villages are now revealed.

Corporation and membership is one of the wealthiest in these parts. None of the woolen mills having been shut down during the depression, most working on an overtime schedule, with work for all.

Motion pictures have yet to invade the confines of the villages.

Sam H. Ducks to Bermuda To Dodge Those Touches

Although having spent all winter on the Coast, Sam H. Harris went to Bermuda a few days after the Jewish Theatrical Guild dinner in his and George M. Cohan's honor, at which function it was declared from the dais that neither could say 'No.'

Bermuda fadeout was to duck the rain of touches that followed publication of the event. But Cohan had to stick on the boards for 'Ah Wilderness,' and his touch mail materially picked up. So did Harris', and he'll find that out when he returns.

EX-N.Y. MAYOR'S THREE-WAY BID

Is Considering American Acting Propositions—Deal for Films, Stage and Radio Commercial

GOOD WILL ANGLE

James J. Walker, New York's former mayor, now residing in a London suburb, Dorking, may return to the United States next fall for professional personal appearances.

Should current negotiations materialize and the terms prove acceptable to both sides, Walker may be involved in a three-way booking embracing pictures, radio and the stage. The total money mentioned in the negotiations is in the neighborhood of $500,000.

At present Walker is concerned with a corporate matter, representing an American industrial company in a European legal case. He expects it will occupy him for the summer, at the end of which time he would be free to talk show business.

Charlie Morrison, agent, went to London last month with several New York theatrical propositions for the former mayor, for the purpose of determining Walker's attitude toward possible stage and screen appearances. Walker was reported as amenable.

Since his return a little over a week ago Morrison has been negotiating by cable with Walker on

Pulitzer Winners

Several dark horses will be announced as winners of the Pulitzer prizes, when the awards are made this week. Biggest surprises will be in the awards for the best play and best novel, in both cases being works that were not, at first, considered favorites, but which won out after detailed discussion by the award committee.

Best play—'Men in White' by Sidney Kingsley, published by Covici-Friede and produced by Harmon & Ullman in association with the Group Theatre;

Best novel—'The Lamb in His Bosom' by Carolyn Miller (Harper).

Best history — 'The People's Choice' by Herbert Agar (Houghton-Mifflin).

Best foreign correspondent of American newspaper—Frederick T. Birchall, New York Times, for his stories on Nazi Germany.

Five-Day NRA Week Gives Legits Unprecedented Spring Fri.-Sat. Biz

Week-end strength of Broadway legits is a surprising feature this spring. Heretofore, there was a distinct tapering off in attendance, while, as summer approached with the out-of-doors season, Mondays were better than Saturdays. Reverse is true now.

Reason lies in the increase in leisure time provided by the five-day week under the impetus of the NRA. Improvement has been noticed on Friday and Saturday.

Two shows listed as prize winners figure to gather fresh trade from the attendant publicity, 'Men in White' apparently walking off with the Pulitzer prize, while 'She Loves Me Not' copped the comedy award of the Dramatists Guild last week. Both shows are aimed for summer continuance.

Added to the summer holdover list as lined up at this time is the 'Follies,' first reported as due to fold. Revue, under reduced operating costs, should make the summer grade, especially with few new musicals in sight and the metropolis due for an unusual visitor influx.

Two run shows are due off next week—'The Pursuit of Happiness,' Avon, and 'Big Hearted Herbert,' Biltmore. Latter entered into a cut-rate deal that may keep it going a while longer. Former is slated for London. That goes, too, for 'The Shining Hour,' Booth, with its British cast intact. Final weeks are announced, but no definite departure dates set.

Three musical revivals are on the spring list. 'Bitter Sweet' starts at the 44th Street next week. 'The Chocolate Soldier' is the first of a series which starts at the St. James this week. Gilbert and Sul-

CAMOUFLAGING GERMAN PIX FOR U. S.

In order to avoid the sales stigma against German film product, Ufa is hiding its identity on a number of films and shipping them around as though manufactured by someone else.

Several French language films have been brought into the country by Ufa. These are, for the most part, French versions of German talkers, made by Ufa with part French and German casts. First of them is 'Adieux Les Beaux Jours,' current at the 55th St. Playhouse, N. Y.

No mention of Ufa anywhere, however, and the producer is screen-credited as being Alliance Cinematographique Europene. That's the name of the French office of Ufa. Also in the credit sheet German names have been dropped and French names played up. Query about who is distributing the film brings the answer that 'distributor is not yet set' and that the film is on view merely on consignment from the 'French producing company' while deals for distribution are pending. It's handled by the Ufa office in New York.

Ufa's regular German product is being played in only half a dozen or so German nabe houses through the country, although even at the 79th St., New York, in the heart of Yorkville (German nabe), the Ufa trademark is covered over on poster displays and advertising matter or avoided altogether.

MPLS. GALS GET EVEN WITH EVA LE GALLIENNE

Minneapolis, April 30.

By making her the target of its spring frolic burlesque, the Woman's Club, town's leading feminine organization, got back at Eva Le Gallienne for her recent bawling out of local residents.

Mrs. Arthur Jewett, one of the city's '400,' impersonated Eva, and did not spare the actress in words or gestures. 'The President's Bawl Out' stood out in large lettering on a many-tiered cake which Mrs. Jewett auctioned off in imitation of the occurrence which caused Miss Le Gallienne's trouble.

'Louder, louder,' came the voice of Mrs. Robert Weiskopf, another member, from the balcony.

'My voice has been heard on better stages than this, but never in a more lousy auditorium,' was the answer from the stage in 'imitation' of Miss Le Gallienne. 'Good taste does not permit me to use the words I should—fools, idiots, morons.'

Block Booking on the Spot?—Film Biz Ready to Enlighten Public

Block booking is on the spot. The public knows just enough about it, it is conceded in industry circles, to make fans feel that it is responsible for their theatres not showing box office hits all of the time. Organized citizenry, it is believed, now feels that this is the cause of inferior pictures reaching the screen. In the industry itself there are trade associations which have their own reasons for opposing it, but to these is being added, according to check- a number of prominent exhibitors who see in the end of block selling an opportunity to resurrect the biggest independent front ever mustered, which was routed in confusion because no one in Washington could define its slogan, 'the right to buy.'

Although the block has always been attacked by some factions in the trade, the fact that forces against it, outside the business, are admittedly getting stronger daily is causing concern to block-booking proponents. They are not unmindful of how prohibition was swept in on the same wave that is mounting behind block.

Scully Coastbound For Fox with 10 Reasons, One Good

Frank Scully, a VARIETY mugg who used to write his European Runaround from a villa in Nice, has been signed by Fox to put commas in their comic strips, and wants a by-line on it. The desk nixed the idea, so he's lifted one out of the pied type in the composing room of the Times office, which adjoins the Hotel Times Square, where he's parked in the royal suite. The Times uses his suite for its overset. Scully's overset. Stet.

Scully thinks he has 10 good reasons for going to Hollywood, though the last one makes the other nine look like a phoney build-up. He lists them as:

VARIETY doesn't carry any chatter column from Woodstock, N. Y., where he's been hiding all winter.

Neither does the rag carry one from Westchester, where he planned to spend the summer.

Life Begins at Forty, says Pitkin.

And Writers Fold at Fifty, says Scully.

For years his secret ambish has been to be the first guy to sign a short term contract.

And take the longest route to work. By the Panama Canal, no less.

As chief backer of the Friendly Flaps of Norway, where his wife Alice came from, he hopes to get her billed as 'The Greater Garbo.'

His son, Skippy, keeps saying 'Sex, Sex, Sex,' and he thinks by getting him to the Coast he'll get it out of his system before he's three years old.

He's signed a contract to write his Life and Laughs for Simon and Schuster, and is stuck for a happy ending.

He took the late Otto Kahn to lunch in Nice last spring and has been money minded ever since.

Our Scandinavian editor says 'Sex' is really Norwegian for 'Six,' and that the kid is only practicing how to count his old man out.

Lou Brock's Option

NEW SCHOOL FILM IDEA

Better for Films to Be Limited by Discretion Than Law, Declares Mayo

The motion picture producer is in the same position as the newspaper publisher. Like the newspaper publisher he wields a power that affects the public good, he's an influence for the common weal. The producer is also in a business that caters to the masses—he asks everybody, men, women and children, to see his pictures. Therefore he has a moral responsibility to his audience. He must use discretion as to the type of material he puts out. Though the necessity for discretion may limit him, it is better to be limited by discretion than by law. So says Archie Mayo who believes there can be ethics and principle in entertainment as well.

Children should be able to see all pictures, says Mayo. He doesn't mean that pictures should be juvenile in conception or subject matter, not at all, but that the handling of situations beyond a child's experience should be such that his parents can explain it to him without embarrassment. Situations in pictures should be capable of interpretation to fit the age of their audience.

It is not necessary, nor intelligent, to banish sex from pictures in order

Blow Cold

Hollywood, April 30.

Complaints of realistic-minded fans that vapor of players' breath didn't show in the snow scenes of 'As the Earth Turns' has stirred Warners to developing a chemical device.

Invented by Dr. Frank Nolan, gadget is shaped like a plate of false teeth and contains dry ice. Ice melting as players talk brings the vapor effect. Chief trouble is to get the device to fit the player's mouth so he can talk properly.

COAST PLAN FOR HOLLYWOOD IDLE

Entertainment in Educational Stories Derived from Juvenile Classics—Would Use Unemployed as Full Production Units—Films to Be Shown Within School Hours

GOV'T SUBSIDY?

Hollywood, April 30.

There's a plan out here to inaugurate a new form of educational film for school children via Hollywood's unemployed. While it may only be an idea at the moment, just a little puff may blow the thought into a 'movement.'

The intent is entertainment combined with a background of visual education by bringing to the screen semi-historic, or period, stories which rate as juvenile classics. Inasmuch as the first holler against any such undertaking is expected to

Mayer Leading Prod. Fight on Dickstein Bill

Hollywood, April 30.

Major producers have launched a campaign to fight further efforts to pass the Dickstein bill, which would curtail the number of foreign players that could be used in American-made pictures.

Producers plan to present a petition against passage of the bill, signed by native Americans now employed in Hollywood.

First gun in the campaign was fired when Louis B. Mayer called all the Metro contract players into his office and after putting the proposed bill on the griddle asked for signatures to the petition. All signed it.

Mayer's argument was that only about 5% of the players used in Hollywood are foreign born and that to pass a bill denying right of foreigners to play in American pictures would be inviting legislation abroad against American actors and against Hollywood-made films.

Publix Would Extend On Daniels and Lyon

Writ of mandamus to compel the California State Labor Bureau to okay agent-artist contracts under the new regulations, without inclusion of the much-disputed arbitration clause, is in prospect.

Action is contemplated by Attorneys Samuel S. Zagon, Harold E. Aaron and David Tannenbaum, representing motion picture agencies were instructed not to include in contracts the disputed clause requiring submission all controversies between players and agents to the state bureau before they could have standing in court. These contracts, in consequence, were nixed by the regulatory body.

Final decision in the matter of court test was to be reached today (Monday) at a conference between the protesting attorneys and Attorney Charles F. Lowrey, of the Labor Bureau, in an effort to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement.

Attorneys argue that the Labor Bureau has no legal right to include a compulsory arbitration article in the regulations. They say it is an attempt of a non-judicial body to exercise a judicial and unconstitutional function. The State Employment Agency Act, under which the agency rules and regulations recently amended are operated, does not prescribe arbitration, and recent court tests on this score have been in favor of agencies which have refused to submit their controversies with film players to the state commission before going to court.

Difficult Collections

Once included in the contract, however, as the Labor Bureau is demanding, the arbitration clause would be valid and enforcible, rebellious attorneys and agencies admit. Chief objection is that collection of commissions from recalcitrant artists would be practically impossible under the submission procedure because the artists would have time to make themselves judgment proof.

Writ of mandamus, if granted, would compel the Labor Bureau as an administrative agency to perform a purely administrative act where the other regulatory requirements had been complied with. State's position is that its regulations are well supported by law and that the arbitration rule was incorporated to prevent numerous legal bickerings and lawsuits between agents and players now current.

Par Trustees Request Roxy Cancel Detroit; New Salary $2,000

L. Rothafel (Roxy) and 'His Gang' are laying off this week instead of playing the Michigan, Detroit, as originally booked. Show goes to the Chicago, Chicago, next week (4), and follows with a week in Minneapolis, which winds up the tour.

Rothafel was originally booked by Paramount for seven weeks, but the Detroit cancellation cuts it down to six. Detroit was called off by mutual agreement between the Par bankruptcy trustees and Rothafel.

For the final three weeks of his trip, Rothafel's revised salary is $2,000 a week, single. Original figure, received the first three weeks, was $5,000. So far Rothafel has played Boston, New York, Brooklyn and Buffalo.

Par Trustees' Proposed Suit for $12,237,000 Against 19 Par Execs Is Replete with Legal Ifs and Buts

Following an order of Referee Henry K. Davis giving the Paramount trustees the right to bring plenary suit against Par directors of 1931 and 1932, plus others, for recovery of $12,237,071 on stock repurchase agreements, attorneys are reparing to serve papers on 19 individuals inside and out of Par but will not file the suit itself right way, it is understood.

Possibility of opposition to the referee's order, permitting the trustees to take action, may come forward by way of motions in the federal courts, which have jurisdiction over bankruptcy. Such action could delay indefinitely the filing of the suit in the Supreme Court, where the trustees want to bring it.

Before the trustees could proceed for judgment in the state courts, any opposition in the courts of bankruptcy (the Federal branch) would have to be cleared up. As a result, it is quite likely the suit itself may not be tried for a long time. The Supreme Court recesses for the summer in June and if not reached then, it would go over until the fall term by which time reorganization of Par may have come to a point.

Before it is over, if the suit is ever tried in the state courts, others not mentioned in the present petition for right to sue may become involved because of the part they played in the stock repurchase deals which are under fire.

These deals were the repurchase of Par's own stock by Par in the Great States theatre deal in September, 1931; the William Morris Agency deal in December, 1931 and the Columbia Broadcasting Co. deal in March, 1932.

$80-85 Share Guarantees

In all of these deals Par bought back its stock, guaranteed at from $80 to $85, when the original purchase agreements were made. On the stock exchange it was listed at much less than that when it had to be redeemed for interests in

Mascot Goes for Name Scribblers To Buck Majors

Hollywood, April 30.

Going on the theory that chief discrepancy between indie and major pictures has been in quality of stories, Mascot is going to put more than the usual percentage of an indie budget into the scripts of its 12 action pictures.

From $1,500 to $5,000 will be spent on stories, and Mascot is engaging name writers from major lots to do the jobs. This is almost unheard of in Hollywood for indie action lms.

Some of the new scribblers are Thompson Burtis, John Bright, Maurice Hanline, George Sayre, Douglas Doty and Bumet Hershey, latter working in New York. Mascot offered one writer $2,000 for a two weeks' job, which is about tops for indie producers, but scribbler didn't accept.

Mascot figures a good story will make up for weakness in cast, direction or production. In story more than any other element, thinks Mascot, can an indie approach the quality of major company pictures.

Burtis was hired to polish up 'Crimson Romance,' which Bright scripted. It will be Mascot's first in the series, starting May 15. Sayre and Doty are adapting 'Barbecue,' and Hanline is on 'Water Front Lady.' Hershey, in the east, is on 'Confidential.'

Lon Young assumes charge of west coast publicity for Monogram, in association with Al Sherman, director of advertising and publicity. Young most recently was in charge of coast publicity for Columbia.

MG'S $105,000 LOSS

Hays and Fear of Censorial Wrath Curbs 'Corespondent'

Culver City, April 30.

Increasing number of campaigns by national organizations against over-sexing of pictures is making Hollywood take more than the usual notice. , together with pressure from the Hays office, has caused studios to look closely at all film material with view of cutting out the type of scenes over which the censorial storm is brewing.

At request of the Hays office, Metro last week called off production on 'Professional Corespondent,' which was ready to start in a few days. Investment in story preparation and cast contracts cost the studio approximately $105,000.

Metro figured the Beth Brown story would not stand up under pressure from the various campaigns.

EDUCATIONAL PRODUCT 100% IN THE EAST

Educational is turning its back on Hollywood altogether this year, giving up the plant it has operated there for a long time, to try its luck in the east. With a program of 52 two-reelers and 52 one-reel subjects, Educational is planning to turn out the whole schedule at Astoria, using the Paramount- studio.

Financing is not yet set. E. W. Hammons is sailing for Europe shortly and, it is inferred, may attempt to interest some foreign capital in his organization.

Organization is reduced considerably, not only on the production side, but in distribution, with the Fox sales system now handling the Educational product.

Fox Conv. May 30 in N. Y.

Fox has set May 30 and New York for its annual sales convention this year at the St. Moritz hotel, N. Y.

U's 500G 'Gold'

Hollywood, April 30.

PRIME SAENGER REORG.; E. V. TO OPERATE

Originally wrestled with five months ago by the S. A. Lynch reorganization board, the Saenger circuit difficulties are now in the hands of the Paramount trustee attorneys, who are formulating a plan which it is hoped will be acceptable all around.

Saenger reorganization is a knotty one in view of the heavy indebtedness of the circuit, largely because of the several bond issues. Bonded indebtedness runs around $2,500,000 and the hardest hurdle is reaching a plan that will be acceptable to these bondholders.

Proposal of the Par trustee attorneys just now is to form a new company to acquire the assets of the Saenger Circuit and the Saenger subisidiaries. New stock in an amount not yet stipulated would be issued and turned over to creditors, including Paramount Publix, which is in Saenger for a reported $7,500,000.

Although certain factions in Par were known to be opposed to E. V. Richards when original reorganization plans were begun, it is understood that Richards will not only figure in the new company proposed, but will operate the houses for Par, which has controlling interest.

Chas. Rogers Hurries Final Trio Before Giving New Plans

Hollywood, April 30.

Charles R. Rogers has three more pictures to complete before he ends his current production deal with Paramount which will be about July 1. At that time Rogers will announce his future plans and his new production staff.

Pictures to be delivered are 'The Great Flirtation' formerly called 'I Love An Actress'; 'Here Comes The Groom' and 'The Woman That God Forgave.'

Windup of RKO-Par's Bankruptcy And Rcvrship in Southern Houses

Dallas, April 30.

Windup of the RKO Southern bankruptcy and receivership of the Paramount's Texas houses, all under Karl Hoblitzelle and Bob O'Donnell operation, is imminent. When this is accomplished, the Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell operation will encompass a homogeneous setup of around 100 theatres covering all of Texas.

It is learned that all the claims against the Hoblitzello operated theatres, which have arisen via bankruptcy or receivership prior to their going under the present management, have been cleared. These claims amounted roughly to around $600,000.

John Moroney, counsel for Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell is presently in New York, cleaning up last details to a general clearance of encumbrances, legal and financial, that may still exist before the windup of reorganization plans.

The Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell people among other things have managed to achieve more than $1,000,000 savings in the operation of the theatres. Much of this saving has come through adjustments on leases and rent reductions.

Paramount considers the improvement made here as the best comparative score achieved by any of its partners.

As it looks now, a new financial setup is in the wind, under which Par will acquire a stock interest in the Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell group of theatres, the latter putting up a certain amount of cash as their part of the deal. The setup will be a partnership in which Par may control all the preferred stock, with the common being divvied 50-50 and Par also sharing in the profits. Not known what cash is involved in the Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell end.

Sen. Dill's A. T. & T. Probe May Take Place This Summer With Special Emphasis on ERPI Angle

Washington, April 30.

A sweeping probe of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., particularly of inter-company relations and alleged suppression of independent competitors in sound picture, radio and telephone fields, was proposed in Congress last week. All signs point to speedy approval of the investigation resolution and launching of the inquiry during the summer.

Promoted Senator Dill of Washington, the contemplated investigation will be managed by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee which Dill chairmans, and which would have full power to summon and swear witnesses. Inquiry is backed by Senate progressives and substantial number of both Democrats and Republicans.

Terms of resolution give committee broad authority to quiz officials of what Dill terms "the telephone monopoly" on practically every phase of the corporation's business. Independent makers of radio and sound film equipment are expected to provide plenty of ammunition for committee use, and company activities in these fields will be a major line of inquiry.

Specific matters committee woul be authorized to probe are:

Financial structure and relationship between parent company and subsidiaries and affiliates; particularly contracts with Western Electric.

Possible savings to subscribers and lessees of phone company equipment through changes in purchase contracts and other activities.

Invasion of other fields than wire communication; particularly tele-

Layoffs' Delight

If it weren't that some of the Times Sq. layoffs were recognized among the sidewalk argumentizers, the milling around the Mayfair theatre at Broadway and 47th street, New York, might have smacked of another of those Walter Reade ballyhoos. Picture is the indie, 'Hitler's Reign of Terror'.

As expected some of the Yorkvilleites (German nabe) came to the midtown sector to do the usual pro and con on the Hitler situation.

A police sergeant, with a personality front and specially designated to good naturedly break things up, did so every time matters threatened to get out of control. Theatre has special tapes up designed for purposes of keeping matters smooth around the lobby. Picture opened yesterday (Monday).

WOULD ENJOIN HITLER PIC ON B'WAY

Several attempts are being made to stop the screening of 'Hitler's Reign of Terror,' anti-Nazi picture, which opened yesterday (30) at the Mayfair, N. Y. Mayor F. H. La Guardia has been requested from several sources to take action, but producers and distributors of the film served injunctions on all possible city and state officials restraining them from action prior to opening.

Among the most embittered pleas against the picture is one from the Steuben Society of America, composed of Americans of German origin. Plea of this organization is that films like this foment hatred and do more harm than good.

Picture was not licensed by the New York censor board. This may bring a fight. After getting a delay twice on issuance of a license, producers withdrew the request and notified the State censor board that they are releasing the picture as a current event item, and that, since no censorship exists in New York State for newsreels, they would screen it as is.

State Board of Censors took no action, waiting for the film to actually open before doing anything, if any action is to be taken.

In Chicago the picture met with trouble. It opened calmly enough, but was immediately stopped by the censor board. After one day's delay the title was clipped to 'Hitler's Reign,' and 14 cuts were taken out of it, picture then reopening.

Phoney Jack Warner Given 6 Mos. Sentence

2 BIG PAR THEATRE CLAIMS KO'D BY REF.

Efforts to make both Paramount Publix and Publix Enterprises responsible under leases on the Denver and Paramount theatres, Denver, has failed. During the past week, following severe opposition and presentation of briefs by all sides, Referee Henry K. Davis wiped out a total of four separate claims altogether.

In one order he knocked out the claims of $1,000,000 and $250,000 against Publix Enterprises under length of leases on the Denver and Paramount.

The other order relieved Paramount of responsibility for having guaranteed both leases. Claims against Par were for $150,000 and $75,000, brought respectively by the 16th Street Realty Co. and the 15th Street Investment Co., landlords of the Denver and Par theatres.

Emanuel Cohen Back To Coast, Zukor Later

Emanuel Cohen, overstaying his scheduled trip east on 1934-'35 product, will probably get away in a week, but Adolph Zukor will not accompany him, as at first expected. Zukor will reach the Coast in time for the annual sales convention, scheduled for June 18, in Los Angeles.

Trying to set the coming year's program, Cohen has been in New York more than a month. Feature schedule will be around 65; shorts lineup yet to be worked out. Very likely Par will make fewer shorts during 1934-'35 than this year when the company scheduled 299.

Christie Joins Camera Co.

Hollywood, April 30.

Charles H. Christie has become associated with Stanley S. Anderson as v. p. of the Mitchell Camera Corp., builders of picture cameras.

Christie leaves earry in May for a world trip to cultivate foreign markets for the Mitchell machine, especially in the Orient.

CLEAN PIX'S FAN KICKBACK

Altho Majors Announce Bigger Programs for 1935 the Opposite May Obtain as a Curb to Duals

Major filmdom is stepping into the 1934-35 production year in an admitted state of flux. The big companies down the line announce 10 to 30% more features than a year ago, but others are warning not to make so many or there will be an excess of product.

There are other angles back of some of the announcements. If the majors knew how the double feature tide will swing, official pronouncements probably would be geared nearer to the normal level.

Right now the opposite of a bloated production year is being privately advocated. A total of 265 features from all the major companies and 100 from independent and foreign sources, it is figured, would make a far more prosperous new year for all concerned, than jacking up longies to the neighborhood of 700 for U.S. consumption.

The same money could be invested in this picture-a-day policy, the difference being that each picture then would give the producer twice as much budget money and time to play with as now.

Encourage Duals?

By allowing magnified announcements to go out majors are being criticised within their own ranks as abetting and feeding the double feature market of the future. If all the programs are stepped up as threatened, although the companies are certain they won't, film savants hold that instead of the present 50%, closer to 90% of all the theatres in the U.S. will be dualling before the new season is matured.

New legal aspects are also cropping up concerning doublism. Those in the business who figure the NRA can solve this problem will find out shortly, according to the barrister viewpoint, they are mistaken. From the Eagle perspective doublism, without a complete reopening of the film code which is generally regarded as improbable until at least late in the summer, couldn't just be satisfied with a single test case in each of the 31 picture zones. Lawyers hold that every exhibitor would have to be heard individually and that duallism would have to come up in the form of an unfair trade practise. This would mean that some 13,000 cases would have to be listened to by 31 grievance boards. And each case would likely have to be passed upon individually by the Code Authority. The industry would be another decade older before any impression for an offensive of this kind against two-for-one could be made.

The answer from picture headquarters is that the only way really to curb giveaway pictures is to make fewer and better pictures; that, after all, the only reason now for a second picture is that the average feature is too weak to stand unsupported. And they go to the record to prove that yearly from 17 to 18 features are the lone big money makers in the U.S.; that with more attention to quality and less to quantity this number could easily be doubled and the market cleared of half the filler product now described as wasting time and imposing upon a surfeited public.

PAR MAY JOIN METRO, COL. ON 5-DAY SKED

Paramount office staff in New York may go on a five-day week of its own volition, juggling hours around a little on weekdays so that the entire force will have Saturdays and Sundays off. Plan would call for a half hour or so longer each day.

Both Metro and Columbia have been on a five-day week for some time.

Fox Makes 58

Hollywood, April 30.

Fox feature lineup for the 1934 season will comprise 50 domestic features and eight Spanish versions.

Of this slate 36 are to be made at the Westwood studio and 14 domestics and the Spanishers at the Western Avenue plant.

RECORD BKPTCY CLAIM OF 178 MILLIONS

An amended claim against Paramount Publix for $178,543,653, said to be the largest individual claim ever filed in any bankruptcy, will probably be saved until the last by the trustees and all forces united in an effort to oppose it. Advance is that a singularly extensive battle will be waged when the Par trustees and their attorneys get around to this particular item.

Claim is brought by the Paramount Broadway Corp., owner of the Paramount building, N. Y., on which a $10,000,000 bond issue was declared in 1926, the year the building opened.

Gilbert Yates, treasurer of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., as trustees under the bond issue, has filed the monumental claim against Par, a lengthy document setting forth his contentions to proof of such a claim. Original claim was for $64,708,923.

Yates declares that on Jan. 5, 1926, Paramount Broadway agreed to sell to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. a $10,000,000 issue of principal amount 5½% 25-year sinking fund gold loan certificates and that under the agreement P-P was to pay sinking fund interest requirements on the bonds, as well as all operating and maintenance expenses of building, plus all other charges, including taxes, through agreement that P-P would lease the entire building for a period of 25 years from Jan. 1, 1926. It was also agreed that Par would pay in semi-annual installments an annual net rental of a sum equal to the largest amount required in any year for interest and sinking fund on the loan.

Par agreed to pay an aggregate

WB-ERPI SETTLEMENT DELAY; DEFOREST ALSO

Indications are that formal ratification of the Warner-Erpi settlement agreement by the Warner and Stanley theatres boards has been held up at the suggestion of Harry M. Warner. There are certain phases of the settlement agreement on which the Warner legal forces are stated to be still at odds.

Although the Erpi people are known to have broached settlement with General Talking Pictures (DeForest) also, no settlement has been reached.

Settlement with both groups by Erpi would end a 6-year patent struggle among other disputes between Erpi and DeForest.

GRAINGER BACK TO N.Y.

Hollywood, April 30.

James R. Grainger, after five weeks of observation and product conferences at Universal, left for New York on Sunday (29).

SEE COMPROMISE WITH CHURCHMEN

Hollywood Will Agree to Church's 75-25 O.K. on New Product—Now the Major Worry Is to Assure the Buying Public That the New Season's Product Will Not Be Wishy-Washy or Denatured

TO WOO FANS ANEW

For the first time in the vigorous morals campaign—concededly the strongest ever directed at Hollywood—the major film leaders are confident they have their morals' ship sufficiently well in hand to offer a truce and obtain a partial stopgap to the crusades. But the unprecedented publicity given this warfare is feared to boomerang harmfully during 1934-'35 unless the business can convince the fans that the Hays moral machine will not make the future screen entertainment wishy-washy.

Plans are being rushed in political parts to offset the largest of

PAR'S EASTERN PROD. RESUMES IN SPANISH

Eastern production this year for Paramount will start off with three Spanish originals, according to plans. First will probably get under cameras in a couple of weeks with Louis Gasnier directing. Gasnier gets in from Paris tomorrow (Wednesday).

Carlos Gardel, biggest money star in the Spanish market, who came over here recently to broadcast for NBC, will star in the three Spanish features. He once made pictures abroad for Par. Gardel is reported getting $15,000 a picture, plus 20% of net distribution return.

Plans of Par at Astoria other than the trio of Spanish talkers are not fully consummated, but under consideration over and above what Par itself may directly do in the way of features is a deal with Capt. Baynes of Erpi to turn out a group of pictures which Par would distribute.

Atlas Investment Trust and British Fleming Trust Loom As Entering Film Business

If Chase Bank and A. T. & T. are beginning to ease out of the film business, new financial mentors are ready to replace both. The new group seems to be led by the Atlas Investment Trust, biggest of its kind in the world. Allied with Atlas is the British Fleming Trust.

Purchase of 200,000 Fox Film shares at $15 by Balfour & Boardman, a British firm, is reported to be only the beginning of Atlas' trek into show biz. Company is also said to own some Loew stock. The Fleming Trust is stated to be close to the Ostrers, who control Gaumont-British and in which firm Fox Film owns a substantial interest.

Dixon Boardman is Fox's rep on the G-B Board. He formerly represented Chase Securities in London, as head of that London branch. Oswald Balfour is a member of the Lord Balfour clan.

Boardman is now on his way back to London. Negotiations with him have been going on for around a month and are stated to have been carried out directly by Chase Bank. The Atlas group, through Balfour & Boardman, also has options on 400,000 shares additional of Fox stock.

Recently, through John Hammond, Atlas concluded a deal for the purchase of the Madison Square Garden Corp. Control of this outfit from the present owners, Hayden-Stone, is slated to pass this week. Atlas also has been mentioned as a likely purchaser of an interest in Erpi, A.T.&T. subsid, besides General Theatres Equipment.

For the present, at least, the purchase of the Fox stock by Balfour & Boardman has no effect on the Fox Film management or control. Stock control continues with Chase. Eventually, however, this stock control may be shed by Chase, at which time new controlling interests, related to Atlas Trust, may come into Fox.

Chase held around 1,750,000 shares of Fox stock, out of a total outstanding of around 2,420,000 shares, before the sale of the 200,000 shares to Balfour & Boardman.

Sheehan's Annual Trip

Hollywood, April 30.

Winfield R. Sheehan will leave here early in July for his annual European jaunt. He'll be away about nine weeks.

Before going he will have personally supervised 11 pictures since last August.

While in Europe, he will negotiate for several stories, tentatively set for the new year's schedule.

LYNCH MAY OP. PARAMOUNT'S THEATRES

S. Lynch may be appointed to the operating helm of Paramount theatres. If so he will replace Ralph A. Kohn. Par trustees were slated to decide this matter yesterday (Monday), according to downtown talk. However, nothing official was forthcoming up until late yesterday evening.

Lynch has been handling the reorganization of the Par theatres for the trustees in bankruptcy. His definite return to active show biz operation, after some years away from it, is not unexpected.

No further change in the company personnel is expected.

Reorganization of P-P houses, which has been going under Lynch's supervision, is practically completed. The last group to be straightened is the Netoco and Olympia combo in New England. This is expected to be finished within a couple of weeks.

Veteran showman and theatre operator, Lynch is known for his ability and frankness. He was the first theatre operator to sell his circuit to a major company, selling his Southern Enterprises to Par. Under that deal Lynch was to get a yearly income from his holdings. Bankruptcy of Paramount, however, impelled Lynch back into show business. He became chairman of the advisory committee on reorganization of Par theatres and also is a large creditor of the company.

While in the midst of his reorganization work at Paramount, Lynch was offered a high operating post in one of the other major companies but declined in favor of finishing his job at Par.

WB Intent on 3 Indie Chains; Would Give It 164 N.Y. B.O.'s

Warners is aspiring to supreme box-office power in Greater New York. Before the week is out WB may have a total of 164 metropolitan N. Y. show windows. The deal can be swung with an initial cash outlay of $4,000,000.

Three circuits figure in the new WB theatre picture in N. Y. These are 52 houses now operated by the Skourases, approximately 45 houses of the Ranforce Amusement Corp., operated by Frisch & Rinzler, and 19 Manhattan Playhouse box offices.

The significance of the consummation of such a corralling of houses was apparent in independent circles. Independent power in Greater New York, which is greater because of strength and numbers than any other metropolitan theatre sector in the world, would be reduced to a minimum. Aside from the great scope it would give the Warners, independent leaders are aware of the bulwark it would be to the entire major circuit cause in the N. Y. territory.

That Warners has its eyes directed toward independent property is further alarming to the indies. Heretofore Warners and RKO had been mentioned for a metropolitan N. Y. theatre merger.

Joseph Bernhard, Warner theatre head, has repeatedly stated that WB will fortify its circuit. Unlike other theatre executives, he has as steadily maintained that the WB theatre policy of expansion has always been elastic. Bernhard was out of town yesterday (Monday) and could not be reached for comment.

GTE Reorg. Calls For a $5,000,000 Debt Reduction

Wilmington, April 30.

Setup of the General Theatres Equipment reorganization which is to be argued here tomorrow (Tuesday) in Chancery Court includes reduction by $5,000,000 of the GTE debt to Chase National Bank, which has filed claims totaling $20,000,000 in the receivership.

The reduction is forced by decrease in the value of Film Securities Corp. shares pledged as collateral by GTE for $9,700,000 of the total Chase debt.

The reorganization plan submitted to the court by U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings (Del.), GTE receiver, explains that the preferred stock of Film Securities is being rendered practically worthless by the sale at auction of the assets of Film Securities Corp., consisting of 660,900 shares of Loew's, Inc., pledged to secure notes of Film Securities now in default.

For participation in the GTE reorganization Chase National is willing to write the GTE obligation down to $15,310,832.19, which GTE will allow. GTE must confirm the pledge with the bank of securities now held as collateral for the debt, and also must release from all claims Chase National Bank, Chase

Despite 3 New Highs During Week, Amusement Shares Follow Down Trend

Market continued to drop off yesterday (Monday) with two selling drives against higher priced issues on big board. Volume picked up on each sell-off, one just before noon and another in final 30 minutes. Result was stocks closed generally 1 to 3 points lower and at bottom prices of day. U. S. Steel hit 46⅝ and closed off 2½ points. Motors were hard pressed, and Chrysler dropped 2⅛ points net.

Amusement group suffered, with others, but most losses were less than point. Eastman Kodak closed on bottom off 2 points, while Westinghouse dropped 1⅛ points to 37½, less than two points from 1934 low. Radio Preferred B was under pressure all day and closed on bottom at 23, where it was down 2⅜ points.

With the stock market following declining tendencies of commodities, list as a whole dropped back on every day of past week. Saturday marked the seventh consecutive session in which prices fell off. Although amusement group showed some vigor earlier in week, and despite recording of three new 1934 highs for better known amusement issues, group was affected by trend during last few days in the week. Dow-Jones industrial averages closed at 102.90 Saturday, slightly

$15,000,000 SUIT VS. AT&T, W.E. AND ERPI

Biophone Corporation filed suit last week for $15,000,000 against American Telephone & Telegraph, Western Electric and ERPI, alleging violations of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws and charging the defendants with monpolizing the talking motion picture industry both in the making of sound pictures and the reproducing of them in theatres.

Suit actually is for $5,000,000, but under the Sherman Law a conviction calls for treble damages. Also carries the threat of revocation of any federal, state and city franchises the defendants may hold. David Garrison Berger and Ralph Vatner are counsel for Alfred Weiss, president of Biophone, manufacturing company of sound equipment.

In the affidavit filed last Wednesday (24), Weiss claims that in four months Biophone sold $500,000 of equipment and received an offer of $750,000 for 49% of its business from a Wall Street banker. This was just previous to the suit filed against him in 1929 by the defendants for patent infringement, which, Weiss alleges, was never prosecuted. Charges further that A. T. & T., W. E. and ERPI notified exhibitors that if purchasing Biophone equipment they (exhibitors) would be sued for infringement. As a result, Weiss charges that his sales dropped considerably and exhibitors refused to meet Biophone installment notes.

The lengthy affidavit charges that the defendants, together with General Electric, Westinghouse and Radio Corporation, pooled patents in 1919, cross-licensed each other, and allocated certain fields to themselves to the exclusion of all others; that the licenses given Vitaphone Corp., Paramount, Fox and other major production companies were predicated on the fact that the defendants would have sole supervision of equipment, and that pictures recorded defendants' equipment would be rented only to those exhibitors having the equipment of A. T. & T., Western Electric and ERPI. At that time, the affidavit continues, the major company licensees controlled 25% of the motion picture theatres in the U. S., or one-third of the nation's seating capacity.

Biophone, a New Jersey corporation, charges the three defendants with lessening Interstate commerce in leaving theatre owners no alternative but to take their equipment.

Again Postpone Proposed Strike Of N. Y. Ushers

Proposed strike of the Theatre Amusement Employees Union, Local 118, postponed from April 21 to Saturday (28), is being delayed further to enable a Government representative to complete listing of ushers, janitors, doormen, et al, in RKO and Loew theatres.

Work has not yet been completed in the Greater New York RKO houses and the Loew checkup is yet to be started. When this list is in, it will be cross-checked with the membership rolls of Local 118 to determine whether enough of the latter's members are at work in RKO and Loew theatres to justify recognition.

When the listing is finished, there will be a conference to decide this point and question of labor negotiations.

If failing, Local 118 declares it will then order its strike, picketing all Greater New York theatres.

PAR CLOSING B'KLYN PARAMOUNT MAY 17

Paramount is closing the Par, Brooklyn, on May 17, with 'We're Not Dressing,' the Bing Crosby picture current at the N. Y. Rivoli.

This is the date on which the three-way deal between Allied Owners Corp., Paramount and M. A. Shea, is up. When it was entered into last summer Shea was the operator under an arrangement between himself and Par, but latter a few months ago, on mutual agreement with Shea, took over that function entirely. Shea got out readily; he had been in on a percentage of the profits, if any.

According to Sam Dembow, Jr., a new deal will be worked out during the summer for resumption of operation in the fall by Par.

House is one of seven built for Par by the Allied Owners Corp., on which there is considerable back rent due. Deal ending May 17 was made up after Par had gone into bankruptcy with Allied as a large creditor. Allied, also, is in bankruptcy.

Wash.'s Variety Club

Washington, April 30.

Local Variety Club, organized two weeks ago, will headquarter in the Willard hotel.

John J. Payette, local Warner exchange manager, heads the new unit.

L.A. PAR CHARGES NITE PRICES SUNDAY AFTS

Los Angeles, April 30.

Taking advantage of the heavy Sunday afternoon trade, the Paramount at three o'clock put in the night scale instead of waiting until six, when other houses make the change.

Expected that next Sunday the Paramount will make the switch at one o'clock to the night scale, which other downtown houses will also likely do.

BLUE EAGLE BLUES

Easy on the Producer and Too Tough on the Exhib?

The Code Authority whip is now being likened to a toothless lion as far as the producer is concerned, but a studded lash for the exhibitor. And trouble is stirring. Even before it has a chance to be invoked some questions are liable to be popped at the session of the Code Authority this week for a definition of the resolution which was adopted by that body two weeks ago.

Now lawyers in major circles are holding that the spanker, which even indie codists believed was strong enough to run a persistent Blue Eagle violator out of the business, is totally without legal significance.

The producer is described as being subject to no penalty under it other than losing the right to the Eagle insignia for his pictures. He can, however, continue to sell these pictures and, lawyers stress, any absence of the Eagle on his goods does not invalidate his contracts with exhibitors.

Picture men who have made a study of the code for the past year also insist that the exhibitor who is adjudged a delinquent in dues or an NRA transgressor is, under the latest C.A. enforcement regulation, faced with this situation: he must pay for the picture for which he has contracted but he cannot show these pictures in his theatre so long as he is in the ill graces of the Eagle.

So far as such spokesmen are concerned the C.A. method of enforcement penalizes the producer only from the slant of public opinion.

Pique increased in theatre owner quarters over the week-end as the result of the description of an Eagle which would claw only the box office and not scratch the producer.

Indie codists, challenging the interpretation, added their own. This is that if a distributor violates the code in flagrant fashion, or sufficient to lose his NRA insignia, a movement will be made through the Code Authority to oust all members of the grievance and zoning boards who are employees of the offending company.

JUSTICE DEPT. CALLED IN ON PTSBG BOMBINGS

Pittsburgh, April 30.

Aid of U. S. Department of Justice will be enlisted here in an effort to stop recent wave of smoke bombing in independent houses. In last month, more than a dozen theatres have been bombed, in some cases resulting in serious injury to a number of patrons.

Circuits, as well as indies, are anxious to get to the source of trouble as business in terrorized sectors has fallen off to almost nothing. Moment a newspaper carries report of a bombing, theatre involved can't drag 'em in day after and takings of chain houses in immediate neighborhood likewise drops in half.

Local police investigators have been assigned to each case but so far unable to nab any of the culprits.

Most recent bombing was at New Oakland theatre, in Oakland district, where eight patrons were burned when bomb went off, two so seriously that they had to be rushed to a nearby hospital.

Allen Snyder Outbids WB for 3 Big St. Louis Houses, F&M to Operate

St. Louis, April 30.

Despite Warners' opposition against Allan Snyder's bid on the three bankrupt theatre properties, the Ambassador, Missouri and the Grand Central, the courts last week refused to permit Warners to intervene on Snyder's deal with the bondholders. On the foreclosure of these properties, therefore, the houses will be turned over to Snyder. Fanchon & Marco will operate.

Warners are thus left ith the two small houses only recently bought by that picture firm in an apparent attempt to close up this key spot for themselves. That's for the first-run, downtown situation. Warners still has a minority interest in the outlying neighborhood circuit of around 40 houses.

Warners bought up the Paramount and Radio picture product and now has only the two small capacity spots in which to use same.

The whole situation is a complete reversal of what the big firm expected. As it stands St. Louis goes definitely Fanchon & Marco the coming season under the Snyder deal and for a good many years. F. & M. already operates the St. Louis and the Fox theatres. With the Ambassador, Missouri and the Grand Central added, F. & M. will control the downtown theatre situation, with the exception of Warners' two small houses and the Loew's State.

For F. & M. it means that this firm is now a definite major factor in the theatre industry. The F. & M. operation also means the departure of the Skouras boys from the theatre picture in this town.

The Skourases who went as guarantors on the nearly $7,000,000 bonds on the properties in question, besides the Ambassador office building, are understood to be sitting okay otherwise, getting a new deal via this route on reorganization of the situation. They will have nothing to do, however, with the operation.

Originally both Skouras and Warners had bids in on the properties. Inside angle had it that Skouras would turn over operation to Warners if the former were successful in landing the spots.

THEATRE TAX IS BEHIND TOTAL FOR 1933

Washington, April 30.

Theatre admission taxes boomed in February, latest Treasury report shows, but collections for fiscal year are still running behind 1933 due primarily to last summer's slump.

Treasury collections during March, representing actual February take, amounted to $1,267,375, as compared with $996,861 for January admissions. This is a gain of about $19,000 over February of 1933.

Collections for three-quarters of the fiscal year, ended March 31, amounted to $10,832,367 as compared with $12,4?9,967 during same period 1932-33. Finance experts expect collections for full year will run ahead of 1933 total.

FOX-W.C. TO OPERATE PAR, S.F., FOR 10 YRS.

Los Angeles, April 30.

Paramount in San Francisco will be operated by Fox-West Coast for the next 10 years, with the coast circuit assuming all operation responsibility, and Paramount Enterprises sharing in any profits.

Deal has been in the making in New York for a number of months, with final details just worked out.

Par houses in Seattle, Portland and Oakland, also operated by F-WC, will not come under the new setup, as F-WC, since going into bankruptcy more than a year ago, has been operating these three houses on direct deals with landlords.

F-WC Has Special Rep In Par Home Office

Fox-West Coast has a representative headquartered at the Paramount home office in behalf of F-WC on a reorganization of Pacific Coast theatres leased by Par four years ago to Fox Film Corp. He is Willia... T. Powers, a former attorney for Par, who joined F-WC about two years ago.

Under the Par-F-WC reorganization, leases and bond issues are readjusted on theatres in San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Oakland and other spots. In most cases bond issues are reduced and the maturities extended.

Cut, Title Change Okay Anti-Nazi Pic For Chi Reopening

Chicago, April 30.

After being yanked on its first show when the Mayor rescinded the police okay the anti-Nazi picture, 'Hitler's Reign of Terror,' was permitted to reopen at the Majestic on the following day after certain changes has been made.

Picture cut about 50 feet and its tag curtailed to 'Hitler's Reign.'

EVICTON TEST CASE OVER GT. LAKES, BUFF.

Buffalo, April 30.

An eviction order against the Great Lakes theatre, which went dark last Thursday (26), was obtained in City Court here this week. The proceedings was brought by the landlords against the Chippewa Theatre Corp., New York, and the Shea Theatre Corp., Buffalo. The order was granted without opposition, the papers showing that with the exception of $6,000, no rent has been paid since January, 1934.

The original lease to Chippewa, made in April, 1927, for 20 years, was for a monthly rent of $11,500. Chippewa Corp. subleased to Shea in January, 1933.

Following granting of the order, it is announced by representatives of interested parties that there had been no eviction, but proceedings were brought to determine the liability of the tenant and subtenants, all of whom disclaimed responsibility for payment of the rent. There have been several sub-leases to various Shea corporations since 1931.

Although the attorneys have claimed that the rent had been paid to date and the matter amicably adjusted, no date for reopening of the theatre has yet been announced.

Flinn Starts L. A. Boards, May Return To Coast From K. C. Before Going East

Los Angeles, April 30.

With three exhibitor complaints ready for airing, Los Angeles NRA grievance board meets today (Monday) for its ini This is simultaneously with the first meeting of the zoning grievance board which will begin the task of setting up a comprehensive zoning for the southern California territory.

First cases to be heard by the grievance board include:

Complaint of Pacific National Theatres against Ben and Harry Goldfarb for alleged lowering of admission prices; Simon M. Lazarus (Lazarus & Vinnicof) against Fox West Coast Theatres and Principal Theatres, charging overbuy of product in Alhambra, thereby affecting Lazarus' Garfield there; J. T. Rennie, complaining against Feldstein and Deitrich over leasing by the latter of the San Fernando, in San Fernando, suburb.

John C. Flinn, Code Authority sec, met with the local boards last Wednesday (25) and instructed the personnel to start functioning without further delay. On Friday (27) Flinn met with the board secretaries of all Coast exchange centers, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles secretaries attending. Plans for functioning of the several zoning - clearance and grievance boards were outlined by Flinn, quarters approved and general routine details mapped out.

Flinn expects to leave here tonight (Monday) for Kansas City and other midwest exchange centres.

John C. Flinn is not expected back in Code Authority headquarters in New York until Thursday (3), and he may be delayed until next week. He must be back in time for the next s sion of the Code Authority on Friday (11).

C. A. will likely hold its first open meeting. The Saxe-Ash Milwaukee case appeal is then slated for hearing.

CHI MAYOR RESCINDS NEWSREEL RIOT BAN

Chicago, April 30.

Meeting between Mayor Kelly and Henry Herbel, Universal exchange manager and head of the local Film Board, has resulted in a revision of the Mayor's ban on all riot scenes in newsreels. Mayor agreed to rescind his edict against newsreels and will allow all clips to go through with the exception of those scenes which show policemen beating up citizens or policemen being rousted around by the public.

C. C. Pettijohn due in town next Monday (7) for a parley with the Mayor and Herbel regarding possible reduction in censorship fees on prints.

K. C. BOARD GOES UP AGAINST 1ST PROBLEM

Kansas City, April 30.

Kansas City's newly-ordained Film Code Board had hardly settled in its new offices when a messenger brought in a protest from a small group of independent theatres in the residential sections of the city issued against the first-run deluxers. It's on the number of days allowed them for clearance of pictures.

Claimed that while the clearance question was the subject of the protest, the real grievance of the independents is the price being charged by the first-runs. All are now showing for a quarter, with the Mainstreet and Uptown charging 40c for lower floor seats at night.

If the protection should be withdrawn from the first-runs new policies may be announced, and Loew's Midland possibly would return to the exclusive policy it used for a number of months last year.

Creel and Dist, Atty. Mull L. A. Code Wails

Los Angeles, April 30.

George Creel, California State NRA Authority, arrived here Friday (27) from San Francisco for three days' conferences with Charles H. Cunningham, local NRA executive, relative to code violation complaints being submitted to U. S. District Attorney Peirson Hall for Blue Eagle prosecution.

First of these cases was placed before the Federal Grand Jury last week, and while initial action did not include any of the numerous picture squawks on file with Cunningham's office, they are understood to preclude lodging of latter type of cases with the U. S. prosecutor.

Rearrangement Of Protect. May Kill Off 10c Pix

Inability to dictate prices in filmdom under the NRA makes it impossible for the Blue Eagle to rule out 10c. admissions in the business. But the Code Authority, according to its spokesmen Monday (30), is expecting action from its zoning lieutenants which will make things tougher for the cheapest ticket exhibs.

Dimesters before the summer is over are liable to find themseives virtually in a class with non-theatricals. Codists figure that in the re-arrangement of protection, all-dime houses will be further stalled.

RKO'S 50 FOR 1934-35; CONV. IN CHI JUNE 18

Radio will schedule a program of 50 features for 1934-'35, the same as this year, although the company does not intend to make full delivery of the current season's program. Sales convention will be in Chicago June 18.

Present indications are that delivery will be short four or five pictures.

Film Boards' Future

Final and official word on future status of surviving Film Boards of Trade, of which there are about seven, will not be determined until Will Hays returns from the Coast next week.

Fact that some 15 secretaries are now on the NRA payroll as grievance and zoning board execs is admitted in major spots to have eased the demise of what had been the scout posts of the main industry.

The seven girls who weren't taken over by the Eagle will continue to draw FB money until the decision.

Until the meeting, however, the future of remaining remnants of the boards is up in the air.

FLEXIBLE RENT

Hoblitzelle Attorney Invited to Explain Theatre Gross Expectancy

Dallas, April 30.

John Moroney has been invited to explain the flexible rent plan of Karl Hoblitzelle once again before former Federal Judge Thatcher by both sides at a hearing on the claims of the Jesse Jones interests against RKO involving the Hollywood theatre, Ft. Worth. The Hoblitzelle plan fixes the rent on a theatre according to the gross expectancy of the theatre's particular policy, the rent being figured on percentage and differing on straight films as against stage shows.

Moroney is counsel for the Hoblitzelle theatre interests in Texas, and to have been asked by both sides in a case to render expert testimony is unusual.

Flinn and Agents

Hollywood, April 30.

John C. Flinn, executive secretary of the Code Authority, is meeting today (Monday) with members of the agents' committee, under the code, which comprises five producer members, and one each of agents, writers, directors, actors and technicians.

Conference is preparatory on organization to handle various complaints expected of violations of the code in matters relative to agents and their contacts with the studios. Flinn will explain the code provisions and methods of procedure.

Chi Code Boards Meet; Public Zoning System, Pix Corraling Grief

Chicago, April 30.

First of the code board meetings held last Thursday (26) with a get-together of the zoning board. It It was really an organizational meeting, with Henry Herbel (U), Film Board of Trade president, in as chairman. First order of the board was to set up a zoning system for Chicago and the publicizing of the system for the filing of protests. Chicago already has a zoning system, but it will be published this week for the purpose of filing protests, a rule established by the national code authority.

Grievance board will meet tomorrow (1). Each board will meet weekly, the grievance group on Tuesdays and the zoning board on Thursdays.

Most of the complaints already listed for grievance board are those squawks pertaining to competitive corralling of product. Two cases are already set for hearing. First is the complaint of the Annette theatre against circuit overbuying, as is the squawk of the Lincoln theatre, Goshen (Ind.).

Meetings will be held in the offices formerly occupied by the Film Board of Trade. Code groups have taken over these quarters and will enlarge them.

ZEIDMAN'S INDIE WHALER

Universal City, April 30.

Although under contract to produce for Universal, Benny Zeidman is taking an independent flyer in a four reel whaling picture. He has no release.

Action footage was filmed by Stacy Woodward in New Zealand. Helene Barclay is the femme topper.

MARIN'S FIRST AT M-G

Hollywood, April 30.

First directorial assignment for Eddie Marin at Metro will be 'Four Walls,' which Lucien Hubbard produces.

Picture is being adapted by Marin from play of same title by Dana Burnett and George Abbott.

All Sides Deprecate Reports That Code Costs Will Burden Exhibs

Settle Extra Squawks

Hollywood, April 30.

First complaints of extras under code clauses were settled last week when studios, under direction of the Extra Committee, paid off salary claims of some minor players. Other complaints were finally decided in favor of the studios.

Resignation of A. H. Giannini from the Extra Committee has been accepted by the CA. J. P. Normaly, who represented Giannini at most meetings, has been appointed in his place.

Only 1 Kick on Code Financing, From Ohio Indies

Washington, April 30.

Only one kick against the film code financing plan has reached NRA so far. Signs are that little trouble will be experienced in collecting assessments in view of rigid handling of budget items.

Predicting that the assessment plan for producers and distributors will be worked out this week, Divisional Administrator Sol Rosenblatt revealed the sole protest reaching his office has come from Ohio indie theatre owners who feel dues should be determined on basis of theatre's earning capacity rather than method chosen. Alternative suggested does not click with Rosy who feels C.A. plan is fair to all exhibitors.

Fact that major producers will be hit coming and going, being assessed heaviest amounts of exhibitor group because their houses generally are largest and mostly enjoy first runs, will be used as reply to whatever complaints are made in report of Darrow board on code authority composition. Report on financing is expected to serve as powerful answer to Darrow outfit's expected complaint that indie exhibitors have only little voice in code administration.

Meanwhile, delay in submission of Darrow report remained unexplained. Although Chairman Darrow visited the White House early last week to talk about 'the work of the organization,' officials insisted Saturday (28) that findings still haven't been handed to the President. Darrow failed to show up at executive offices for second scheduled appointment later in the week.

Sporadic office charges that producers and distributors are going to take code costs out of the exhib's hide by jacking rentals percentages to unprecedented levels are ridiculed in independent as well as major circles.

Salesmen, it is generally admitted, are going out with orders to get whatever they can. Distribs are not entering the new season with any more fancy price ideas than they have every spring.

As for excessive code costs for some theatre owners, codists declare the Code Authority is ready to make any adjustment when the facts prove a condition merits such. They said the first batch of bills and assessments, generally, had to be made in a rush, but that any proven injustices will meet with prompt refunds.

Suggestions as to any change in the structure of the assessment table, which would shift taxes from a flat fee to a percentage of the individual box office gross is officially signalled out of the question. Codists hold that this method would be too costly and would inflict a far heavier burden on the theatre owner since it would necessitate recruiting an army of checkers.

Each spring the record shows some exhib organization beats the gong for a mass session of owners recording high rental protest. One of the strongest indie leaders who received the latest tom-tom call declared:

'Let the theatre owner place an embargo against the distributor who is really unreasonable. There is enough product to enable him to do this and he doesn't have to be organized on a national scale, either.'

DUALS' TABOO IN WIS. RELEASES 30 FILMS

Milwaukee, April 30.

Plenty of product for all houses in state is forseen in the decision of the film theatre code committee ordering the Ashley Theatre Corp. of Madison to turn over its surplus product, about 30 pictures, to Saxe Amusements which operates the Capitol.

The Ashley chain had been double featuring until the code committee ruled against duals. Company must now release its extra pictures. Saxe has been left with a few United Artists and independents in that spot but now cuts in on Metro, Paramount, Fox and Columbia.

Par's Chi Sales Huddle

Delayed due to production conferences at the home office, a group of Par distribution officials left Friday night (27) for Chicago, where a district managers' meeting on sales was held at the Edgewater Beach hotel over Saturday and Sunday (28-29). New York group was due back by today (Tuesday) at the latest.

George J. Schaefer, Joe Unger, Stanley Waite and G. B. J. Frawley, home office distributor chieftains, went out, district managers coming from all parts of the country.

Meeting was to review sales of the past year and to discuss policies for 1934-'35.

MORE HAYS SPACE

When Will Hays gets back from Hollywood next week he will find that spot where his directors hold their sessions large enough to accommodate representatives from the indie production companies as well.

Entire Hays camp is being made over. Walls have been broken through and offices moved around.

Idea of the change is mainly to make more space for the directors and for Hays files.

Hollywood, April 30.

Will Hays returns to New York middle of this week.

Organization matters held him on the Coast. He came west, accompanied by O. O. McIntyre, to attend the MPTOA convention.

Under N. Y.'s New Tax Proposals Exhibs Face an Extra $1,500,000 in Fees

If Mayor La Guardia has his way, with the new city tax, exhibitors in New York by the end of 1934 will be paying approximately $1,500,000 more in city taxes per annum than in the previous year. Strategists for the business who make the estimate figure that the Manhattan exhibs' tax plight is worse than it has been in 16 years.

The taxes are in two classes. Last Friday there was an aldermanic hearing at which representatives of filmdom were interspersed with spokesmen for all other local industries affected by the proposed tax of one-twentieth of 1% of the gross. Theatre men with the figures are certain if this measure is approved by the city it will represent in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 from film theatres.

Some $400,000 would be collected by the city in additional moneys if the proposed license increases are approved by the aldermen.

The industry contends that the city can't expect to tax properties and also gross incomes and expect theatre owners to have anything left to meet interest on mortgages.

Under the license proposal the Loew circuit would pay New York $59,250 more per year than it is now paying. Other circuits and their respective increase follow: Century, $11,400; Consolidated, $11,250; Elite, $1,500; Isle Amusement, $6,650; Manhattan Playhouses, $8,400; Lee Ochs' circuit, $2,250; Paramount, $5,550; Prudential, $2,200; RKO, $31,700; Ranforce, $29,700; Rugarth & Becker, $2,800; Skouras, $20,800; Springer-Cocalis, $13,400; Yost, $2,600.

The total license increase for circuits alone is around $218,000, not to mention the original tax, while that for independents is figured close to another $200,000.

Plus money worries, exhibitor leaders also report the city is toughening up on all laws regarding the theatre. Last week several exhibs in Brooklyn were arrested. They were charged with violating an ordinance permitting standees in their theatres.

'Gambling' $13,700 in 2 WB Spots; 'Bed' and O&J $18,000, Quiet L.A. Wk.

Los Angeles,

They are waiting for the summer tourists to perk trade around town. All the other excuses have been used. Meantime, the Chinese, with 'Rothschild,' continues as the leader in its fourth week, and the Paramount will hit couple of grand above the previous week through having Olsen and Johnson on stage.

State is not too happy with 'Men Are Enemies,' while 'Spitfire' is not setting the cinders aglow at the RKO. Warner houses stimulated considerably with 'Gambling Lady' and 'We're Not Dressing,' in second week at United Artists, is off, while the Los Angeles, with its double billing of 'City Limits' and 'Let's Be Ritzy,' put house on the grade.

Estimates for This Week

Chinese (Grauman) (2,028; 55-$1.65)—'Rothschild' (Century) and stage show (4th week). Beginning of normal drop and will come through around $16,500 currently. neat profit. Last week, $20,900.

Downtown (WB) (1,800; 25-35-40-55)—'Gambling Lady' (WB). Looks like Stanwyck in good graces here again. Will wind up with an easy $6,500. Last week, 'As Earth Turns' (WB) had terrific struggle to hit close to $4,000.

Hollywood (WB) (2,756; 25-35-40-55)—'Gambling Lady' (WB). Will bring house back into smile column at around $7,200. Last week, 'As Earth Turns' (WB), plenty tough, $4,400.

Los Angeles (Wm. Fox) (2,800; 15-25)—'City Limits' (Mono) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) split. Biz climbing a little here and looks like sure $4,300. Last week, 'Voice in the Night' (Mono) and 'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U), $4,000.

Orpheum (Bdwy.) (2,270; 25-35-40) — 'I Believed in You' (Fox), 'Show-Off' (MG) split and vaude. Flock of show biz money and customers not turned over enough in busy periods to mean heavy grosses. Current $4,500 will be satisfactory. Last week, 'Ever Since Eve' (Fox) and 'Palooka' (UA), $4,900.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-40)—'Half A Sinner' (U) and 'Whirlpool' (Col) split. Just a long pull to no results, possibly $2,000. Last week, 'The Ghoul' (Gaumont) and 'Uncertain Lady' (U), $1,750.

Paramount (Partmar) (3,595; 30-40-55)—'She Made Her Bed' (Par) and stage show. Olsen and Johnson stage outfit depended upon to draw most of fine $18,000 house will get. Last week, 'Witching Hour' (Par), with Century Progress unit, could not make much headway. Had stage unit been sold instead of being kept secret house could have come home with $5,000 over the $12,800 it got.

RKO (2,950; 25-35-40)—'Spitfire' (Radio). Spurting and maybe $6,000. Leader, and house lucky to top weak $4,500. Last week, 'Glamour' (U), only $3,300.

State (Loew-Fox) (2,024; 30-40-55)—'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox). Will see a blah $2,000 on five days. 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) opens Thursday (3). Last week, 'Tarzan' (MG) $11,200.

United Artists (Grauman) (2,100; 30-40-55) — 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) (2d week). Stalking along nicely, and on final eight days will march in with around $7,600. Last week, $12,600.

Xmas Weather in B'ham, Grosses Likewise Chilly

Birmingham, April 30.

Christmas weather in the last week of April! As long as this holds out box-office grosses will be uncertain.

Rain Saturday put a crimp into business and cold weather made a fire comfortable.

Estimates for Week

Alabama (Wilby) (2,800; 30-35-40) —'You're Telling Me' (Par) and Ray Teal stage show four days, followed by 'Trumpet Blows' (Par). Moderately good $6,500. Last week 'David Harum' (Fox) $8,500.

Ritz (Wilby) (1,600; 25)—'Death Takes a Holiday' (Par). Nice bally has plenty of talk, about $2,500. Last week $2,800 for 'Melody in Spring' (Par).

Empire (ETAC) (1,100; 25)—'Easy to Love' (WB). So-so $2,000. Last week 'Ever in My Heart' (WB) $2,300.

Strand (Wilby) (800; 25)—'Massacre' (FN). Dix as an Indian subject will stagger a fair $1,000. Last week 'Devil Tiger' (Fox) same.

Bonita Granville Set

Hollywood, April 30.

Bonita Granville, 9, has been set by RKO to play the part of Ann Harding's daughter in 'Vergie Winters.'

Youngster had similar part in 'Westward Passage.'

'CHEER' AND '20 MILLION' DET.'S OUTSTANDERS

Detroit, April 30.

Both the Fox and the Michigan are expecting musical pictures to tur the trick this week. The Fox has 'Stand Up and Cheer' with Rae Samuels unit on stage while the Michigan has '20 Million Sweethearts' and 'King's Scandals Revue' on stage.

The United Artists holds 'Men in White' over for a second week while the Downtown holds 'No Greater Glory' for a second week as well. The Fisher has 'Harold Teen' while the State duals again with 'Sing and Like It' 'Keep 'Em Rolling.'

Last week the Michigan was plenty hacha with George Olsen's band and Ethel Shutta in person and accounting for plenty of business, coupled with 'Melody in Spring,' for a nice $31,600. The Fox was just so-so with 'Wild Cargo' attracting too many men and not enough women, especially with Olsen snaring the femmes at the Michigan. The Fox wound up with a comparatively mild $20,000.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Inde) (5,100; 15-25-35-40-55) 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and stage show. Will lead town at $22,000. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) fair $20,000.

Michigan (Par) (4,045; 15-25-35-40-55) '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) and stage show. Okay $20,000 in sight. Last week 'Melody in Spring' (Par) and Olsen band with Ethel Shutta in person big $31,600.

United Artists (Par) (2,018; 15-25-35-40-55) 'Men in White' (MG) (2nd week). Better than average $9,000. Last week got a nice enough $8,000.

Downtown (RKO) (2,665; 15-25-35-40) 'No Greater Glory' (Col). Looks to $4,000, average. Last week nice $2,500 on 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox).

Fisher (Par) (2,750; 15-25-35-40) 'Harold Teen' (Par). Only $4,000 indicated, poor. Last week 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and stage, mild $7,500.

State (Par) (3,000; 15-25-35-40) 'Sing and Like It' (U) and 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (RKO) mild $3,000 suggested. Last week 'Lazy River' (MG) and 'One Is Guilty' (Col) same.

'Rothschild' Blasts Balto. for $23,000; 'Sweethearts' $11,000

Baltimore, April 30.

'Rothschild,' at the Century, is principally pumping the pesos currently. Rest of town just jogging along at an unspectacular gait, though 'Sweethearts,' at Stanley, looks good.

Host of sports allurements detracting from pic houses and the balmy weather is offering the call o' the wild.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew-UA) (3,000; 25-35-40-55-66)—'Rothschild' (UA) and 'Melody Mad Parade' unit. Stage flash well liked but pic is snatching the customers. Lobby lookouts and packed mats. A cinch for smashing $23,000. Last week 'Tarzan' (M-G) and vaude under expectations. Turnaways mounting into what is gauged at nearly a $1,000 loss up to fourth day, then biz slanted sharply. But ended up at good $20,000.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,500; 25-35-40-55-66)—'Finishing School' (Radio) and 'Bottoms Up' unit. Just fair and house has already started plugging next week's line-up; maybe $13,000. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) and 'Sweet And Lowdown' unit. Nice enough, $15,000.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,500; 25-30-35-40-50)—'Wharf Angel' (Par). Will grab oke $4,500. Last week, nine days, 'Melody in Spring' (Par) $6,000.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 25-30-35-40-50)—'Such Women Are Dangerous' (Fox). Warner Baxter has enough following to file $4,000. Last week, 'Coming—Out—Party' (Fox) jerked after three days, under $1,000.

Stanley (WB) (3,450; 15-25-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN). Heavy advance bally and $11,000 looks pretty good. Last week 'Registered Nurse' (FN), six days, couldn't budge red-veined $7,200.

Valencia (Loew-UA) (1,000; 25-35) — 'Damaged Lives' (indie). Holding over for a second helping after $6,000 on initial heat. And the $3,500 in view will make for nice fortnight.

B'KLYN OFF

Fox, $14,500 — Best — Paramount Folding in Three Weeks

Brooklyn, April 30.

With competition so bitter in the downtown area, the sedate little Strand has decided to lower its price scale. Effective Thursday, the Warner house will have a top of 40c and a low of two bits for afternoons. Strand is surrounded by grind houses like Orpheum across the street; Majestic, formerly legit, next door, and now Werba's Brooklyn, two blocks away.

The ailing Paramount, handsome downtown deluxer, will close its doors May 17. Notice has gone up on the bulletin board.

Biz in general not so hot, but Fox won't holler a bit. Stage fare this week is tolerable.

Estimates for This Week

Paramount (Par) (4,000; 25-35-50-65)—'Witching Hour' (Par) and stage show featuring Block and Sully and Gertrude Niesen. May not get more than $15,000, blah. Last week, 'Wharf Angel' (Par) and Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon on stage for mild $19,000.

Fox (Conco) (4,000; 25-35-50)—'I'll Tell the World' (Fox) and stage show featuring Olga Baclanova. Picture is a help. Around $14,500, nice. Last week, 'Sing and Like It' (Fox), $12,000.

Albee (RKO) (3,500; 25-35-50)—'As the Earth Turns' (WB) and vaude, featuring Ed Sullivan revue. Uninteresting $14,000. Last week, 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio), $15,000.

Loew's Metropolitan (Loew) — 'Looking for Trouble' (UA) and vaude, featuring Will Osborne's orchestra and James Barton. Mild $14,000. Last week, 'Tarzan' (MG), ditto.

Strand (WB) (2,000; 25-35-40)—'Modern Hero' (WB). Under $6,000, poor. Last week, 'Gambling Lady' (WB), $7,000.

'20 Million' 21G, 'Bottoms Up'-Tab, 22G; Wash. Big

Washington, April 30.

Only one possibility of breaking a record this week and that's on a repeat. But everybody is doing nicely. '20 Million Sweethearts' is only new ace attraction in town, so reason seems to be that, with the Cherry Blossom Festival over, the public is getting back to indoor amusements.

Keith's is building when critics received 'This Man Is Mine' better than expected in face of pre-conceived notions that it was mediocre. House also has four-reel version of Pathe's 'Mad Age,' billed as 'This Is America,' which also came in with public rather dubious, but is getting swell word of mouth.

Estimates for This Week

Earle (WB) (3,424; 25-40-60)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) and vaude. Ramona on stage, but big spread on radio names in pic plus Dick Powell are responsible for house heading for big $21,000. Last week, 'Registered Nurse' (FN), fair $15,000.

Fox (Loew) (3,434; 25-30-60)—'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and vaude. John Boles plus gal bally on '50 Million Frenchmen' tab started week off nice; maybe good $22,000. Last week, 'Good Dame' (Par) and 'Spices of 1934' built to nice $23,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,830; 25-35-60)—'This Man Is Mine' (Radio). Word of mouth on four-reeler of Pathe's 'This Is America' helping toward unexpectedly satisfactory $9,000. Last week, 'Spitfire' (Radio) slid slightly to turn in o.k. but not big $11,000.

Rialto (U) (1,853; 25-35-40-50)—'I'll Tell the World' (U). Nice cooperation from local UP sheet, although nothing like World-Telly short subject stunt. Looks like o.k. $5,000. Last week, 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) suffered from opposition to take light $3,000.

Met (WB) (1,583; 25-40)—'Come On, Marines' (Par). Better than expected, looking like o.k. $5,000. Last week, 'It Happened One Night' (Col), back after five weeks up stairs and run around neighborhood, took good $4,000.

Columbia (Loew) (1,263; 25-40)—'Man in White' (MG). Only played week at Fox and was building steadily when quit. Result is shooting at house record with probability of beautiful $6,500. Last week, 'Riptide' MG), also repeat after two weeks, nice $5,000.

MG's 'Baggage' Remake

Hollywood, April 30.

Metro will remake the stage play 'Excess Baggage,' which the company made silently seven years ago.

John Larkin is on the lot to write the script.

Stage Show Houses Lead Weak Prov.; 'Sorrel,' $9,000, Confuses Public

'ROTHSCHILD'S' $11,500 IN 2D WK. TOPS FIRST

Portland, Ore., April 30.

With opening of baseball, dollar opera, dog races at Vancouver, Wash., and Al Pearce here last week, the headaches were more plentiful than usual.

Big weeks are becoming common at Parker's United Artists; 'Rothschild' will do more biz than any picture since 'Tugboat Annie.'

Music Box is trying out the first stage show since that house reopened. Jay C. Flippen's 'World Fair Follies' has the spot and if all goes well there may be others to follow.

'No Greater Glory,' at the Paramount, was given all the encouragement possible by the critics, but failed to hold a week. Lasted only five days, replaced by 'We're Not Dressing.'

Pantages has Ben Turpin heading the vaude bill, but won't raise the ante.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (2,000; 25-40) —'Death Takes a Holiday' (Par). Won't break any record, but will get its share, which is average $6,000. Last week 'Cat and the Fiddle' (MG) closed for $4,100.

United Artists (Parker) (1,000; 25-40) — 'Rothschild' (UA) (2nd week). Looks like a k.o. for the second lap. Every night attendance reminds of the good old days; a big $11,500. First week a good $7,500.

Paramount (FWC) (3,000; 25-40) —'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox), dual. Not too many interested and if it does $4,000 will be more than expected. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col) and 'Coming Out Party' (Fox) proved short-winded, jerked in five days; had every possible help from press, but only $3,200.

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,400; 25-35)—'Gambling Lady' (WB) and stage show. First stage show this house has had and, with film, liked a nice $8,000. Last week 'Bolero' (Par), $4,000.

Pantages (S. & M.) (1,800; 15-25) 'One Year Later' (Maj) and vaude. Stage show getting better right along. It's what's doing the turn, maybe $2,300. Last week 'Beggars in Ermine' (Mono) and vaude the same old story as far as the picture is concerned, but Fay Courtney and Ben Turpin spread, $2,100.

Oriental (Hamrick) (2,500; 25-35) —'Wharf Angel' (Par) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) combo. Might be $2,500, oke. Last week 'Hips, Hooray' (Radio) for continued run and 'Cosby Case' (U) plugged along at even gait and registered $2,200.

Seattle Stage-Minded Again; 'Cath' $4,500; 'Bottoms Up' $7,000

Seattle, April 30.

Plenty of opposition for the showshops these days, but vote of people at recent election wiped out the 'daylight saving' scare. Windup of 'dollar opera' (San Carlo) at Civic aude cut into the first run houses, while the same Civic aude also houses coupla wrestling matches and boxing bouts weekly.

Looks like quite a revival of vaude and stage shows, with success of Paramount thus far looking up and up. May 10 Jay C. Flippen's 'World's Fair Follies' augments the Levy show at Paramount; opening May 11, Al Pearce comes back to Seattle for second time. Coliseum has KOL 'Carnival Hour' daily during week days, noon to 1 p.m., which uses small stage at this house and helps bring out early mat crowd, at 15 cents.

Estimates for This Week

Blue House (Hamrick) (1,000; 25-35)—'Finishing School' (Radio) and 'Heat Lightning' (WB), dual. Anticipated $3,000 is big. Last week 'Upper World' (WB) and 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (Radio) fair, $2,000, starting dual policy for this house.

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,800; 15-25)—'Going Hollywood' (MGM) and 'Six of a Kind' (Par), dual. Six days, should get $3,500, good. KOL stage presentation, 'Carnival Hour,' moved over from dark Orpheum, helping eighy matinee b. o. Last week 'Gallant Lady' (UA) and 'Hi, Nellie' (FN) dual, four days $1,900, good; 'Lazy River' (MG) and 'I Am Suzanne' (Fox) dual, four days, fair, $1,500 for $3,400 total for week.

Fifth Avenue (Evergreen) (2,400; 25-40) — 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MGM) playing up the thrills. Around $5,500, a floppo. Last week 'Men in White' (MGM) went for strong finish, okay at $9,200.

Liberty (JvH) (1,900; 15-35)—'It Happened One Night' (Col) (10th week). Now around $4,000. Last week, same film, $4,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (950; 25-35)—'Catherine the Great' (UA). Looks set for two weeks. Look for $4,500, big. Last week 'This Man Is Mine' (Rubio) only fair, $3,200.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,106; 25-35). 'Bottoms Up' (Fox). Big bally, indicated, with stage show a help at b. o. Excellent $7,000 is sighted. Last week 'Death Takes a Holiday' (Par) only fair, $6,300.

Providence, April 30.

Entertainment exceptionally weak this stanza, few spots boasting of drawing bills. Starts are just as tepid as the theatre fare. Although there's not as much emphasis on stage entertainment as there was a few months back, the two spots with combo bills are holding their own, and maintaining a lead over the straight picture houses.

Comparatively, Fay's is expected to do the biz this week with 'Murder in Trinidad' on the screen and all-colored revue on the stage. There's strength in both features of the program, and unless there's a sudden switch gross should stay in the neighborhood of $6,800.

Loew's State must once more depend upon its stage show to pull through this week, 'Sorrell and Son,' the screen attraction, causing no end of confusion among the natives.

Estimates for This Week

Fay's (2,200; 15-25-40)—'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox) and vaudeville. Stage show exceptionally good; picture passable, and with the all-colored revue as the principal bait there's no reason why this stand can't keep the figure around $6,800 without any difficulty. Last week 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox) started off well, but took unexpected slide with the others; $6,100 okay, however.

Loew's State (3,200; 15-25-40)—'Sorrell and Son' (UA) and vaudeville. Present picture doesn't augur well, but there's no telling what the natives will do in the last rushes. Confusion with the old silent film of the same name caused a tepid opening, and based on that gross doesn't look as though it can cross $9,000; just so-so. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG) was another that started off strong, but petered out enough to clip takings down to $12,000; but oke at that.

Majestic (2,200; 15-25-40)—'The Earth Turns' (WB) and 'Love Birds' (U). Weakness in names in the first picture holding things back; swell reviews may pep things in time to bring gross past anticipated $5,700. Last week 'Wonder Bar' (WB) in second stanza was very weak at $3,300.

Paramount (2,200; 15-25-40)—'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Twin Husband' (Chest). George Raft doesn't mean much to the box office in these parts; reviews not kind either, and with bad weather spoiling early opening there's little prospect of this one touching $5,500. Last week 'Come On Marines' (Par) and 'The Quitter' (Chest) faded down to a poor $4,300.

RKO Albee (2,200; 15-25-40)—'Where Sinners Meet' (Radio) and 'I'll Tell the World' (U). Opening promising, but audience reaction to first feature may kill chances of house maintaining lead over the other stands in town; reviews lukewarm, but the word-of-mouth will tell whether house can garner $6,200 for the lead. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col) and 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) opened strong, tapered off during the last part of eight and half day run, but nice at $7,000.

RKO Victory (1,600; 10-15-25)—'Crime Doctor' (Radio) and 'Social Register' (Col); looks as though it will be strong enough to garner at least $2,500 for the week. Last week 'Hell On Earth' (Aeolian) and 'Sing and Like It' (Radio)). Bill didn't stand up as well as anticipated despite push behind it; at $2,300.

30 Days at Airfield For M-G's Plane Film

Hollywood, April 30.

Metro's production schedule on 'West Point of the Air' will provide for a minimum of 30 days on location at Randolph Field, Texas. Producing company has secured special permission from the Government to use this army flying field.

Richard Rosson is slated to pull out with cast and crew next week. Wallace Beery and Robert Montgomery have top spots in the feature.

'Bottoms'-Olsen Band Lead Loop At $34,000; Arliss a Swell $30,000; 'Sisters'-Baker Upping Palace, 20G

Chicago, April 30.

Loop is in good spirits this week, as okay product around for the majority of the downtown houses. Even the draggy Palace picks itself up currently.

'Rothschild' and 'Bottoms Up' are gunning for the big marks. Both pictures came in with punch publicity and campaigns. 'Bottoms' is backed by George Olsen's band on stage.

Opening of 'Rothschild' hit the town about three weeks later than originally planned. It ran into a flock of rave notices and is building to the best week at the United Artists since 'Roman Scandals.' Almost the entire bulk of this trade is at night, afternoons and mornings meaning nothing, indicating no matron or single-o trade. All of it's couples and parties.

'Sisters Under the Skin' is making some hay at the Palace, with the aid of Phil Baker on the stage. House goes into first peek at black ink in some three months with the exception of the 'Wild Cargo' session. 'Tarzan' is fading at McVickers on Wednesday (2), after a disappointingly short stay. Started off like a house afire, but practically all kids meant little at the final countup. Looks like a cinch nabe picture. 'Stand Up and Cheer' next, followed by 'Viva Villa.'

'Hitler's Reign of Terror' is back in the Majestic as 'Hitler's Reign,' and doing business. May stick four weeks, but still having difficulties with authorities.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,940; 35-55-75) —'Bottoms Up' (Fox), and George Olsen band, Ethel Shutta on stage. Business continues at a live pace here for third consecutive winning week. Heading for $34,000, in the money. Bad comment helped clip off the finish on 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) last week but healthy at $38,100.

McVicker's (B&K) (2,284; 25-35-65)—'Tarzan' (M-G). Goes out after 10 days and flabby $14,900 on opening session. Kids mobbed the weekends and kept adults out. For last three days maybe $4,000, weak. 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox), in Wed. (2).

Majestic (Jones) (1,650; 25-35-40) —'Hitler's Reign' (Cummings). Reopened after police injunction and doing business. Likely to touch $4,000, excellent at this theatre. Vaude-film policy to follow picture which is hoped to last until Fair time.

Oriental (B&K) (3,200; 25-35-40) —'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) and vaude. Some letdown in pace this week but managing to stick to $15,000; okay on seating capacity and price but not when stacked up against overhead of this house. House makes money at $17,000. Last week, $16,400 for 'Wharf Angel' (Par) and vaude headed by Frances Arms.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 25-55-83)—'Sisters Under Skin' (Col) and Phil Baker on stage. Healthy upping of gross this week on combo picture and stage strength. Heads for $20,000, best in weeks. Last week, 'Glamour' (U), $14,200.

Roosevelt (RKO) (1,500; 25-35-45) —'Six of a Kind' (Par). Opened Saturday (28) and may get by on comedy name strength. Looks like $5,000, okay. Last week, 'Men in White' (M-G) held over to good score at $6,500.

State-Lake (Jones) (2,700; 25-35-40)—'Keep 'em Rolling' (Radio), and vaude. Consistent vaude house continues on money making keel at $12,000. Last week, 'Spitfire' (Radio), fine $12,800.

United Artists (B&K-UA) (1,700; 35-45-65)—'Rothschild' (UA). Cream of the loop on reports and business. Drawing every class except the shopping matron which slows down the afternoons. On way to $30,000, powerful figure. Last week, 'Looking for Trouble' (UA) couldn't get started; faded to $7,900 and out.

Tacoma Grosses

Tacoma, April 30.

Brand new policy at Hamrick's Music Box starts this week; duals with same prices. Seems the folks like a lot for their dough and time is no object. 'Melody in Spring' and 'As Earth Turns' used to debut the new plan.

Estimates for This Week

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,400; 25-35)—'Melody in Spring' (Par), and 'As Earth Turns' (WB), dual, indicated to get $3,500. Last week, 'Wonder Bar' (FN), $5,300, great. Best in long while.

Roxy (J-vH) 1,300; 25-35)—'Men in White' (MG). May hold full week, if so, anticipate around $3,800. Last week 'Cat and the Fiddle' (M-G-M) held up four days around $2,100, not standing for full week; 'Love Birds' (U) in for three closing days, $1,500, for week's total, $3,600, fair.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (650; 15-25)—'Lone Cowboy' (Par) and 'Let's Be Ritzy) (U) dual first half; 'Wharf Angel' (Par) last half, for expected $1,300, slow. Last week, 'One Sunday Afternoon' (Par) and 'Success at Any Price' (Radio), dual, split with 'Jimmy the Gent' (WB) slow, $1,500.

'SWEETHEARTS,' ARLISS, BUCK LEAD ST. L.

St. Louis, April 30.

Although certainly nothing to get excited about, there's a slight improvement around the box offices this week over the terrific slump of the last few weeks. When the figures are totaled up, it looks like three—half of the houses—will show a profit and one or two others may.

Heading the list of the certainties is Loew's State with 'Rothschild.' Will get a big $25,000, and possibly hold. Dick Powell's local popularity—he seems to be better liked here than some places—will put the Shubert in the money, and Frank Buck's latest animal epic will do the same for the Fox.

Estimates for Thi Week

Ambassador (Skouras) (3,000; 25-35-55)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and stage show. Crosby pulling fairly for $11,000. Last week, 'Death Takes Holiday' (Par), $12,000.

Fox (F&M) (5,000; 25-35-55) — 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) and 'One Is Guilty' (Col). Fair $13,000 likely. Last week, 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and 'Three on Honeymoon' (Fox), mild $10,000.

Loew's State (Loew) (3,000; 25-35-55) — 'Rothschild' (UA). Good going, $25,000, while last week for 'Tarzan' (MG) was $15,000.

Missouri (Skouras) (3,500; 25-40) — 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and 'Cross Streets.' Fair $7,000. Last week 'Show-Off' (MG) and 'Countess Monte Cristo' (U), ditto.

St. Louis (F&M) (4,000; 25-40)—'Sisters Under Skin' (Col) and 'Waltz Time' (GB). Only real baddie here, $3,000. Last week, 'Finishing School' (RKO) and 'Pals', just as blah.

Shubert (WB) (2,000; 25-40) — 'Twenty Million Sweethearts' (WB). Going fairly for $10,000. Last week, 'Jimmy the Gent' (WB), $7,000, n.s.h.

NEW HAVEN NICE

'20 Million Sweethearts', Solo, $6,200 Versus Duals

New Haven, April 30.

Some nice dough floating about this week, with everybody getting a slice of it. Good bills all around have the fans cracking the baby's bank, with several overflow houses for weekend. Cold weather a nice break for film spots so far this spring.

Estimates For This Week

Paramount (Publix) (2,348; 35-50)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'Two Alone' (RKO). Heavy weekend indicates swell $9,500. Last week 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and 'One Is Guilty' (Col). Held steady for good $8,100.

Poli's (Poli) 3,040; 35-50)—'Viva Villa' (MG) and 'Finishing School' (RKO). Packing 'em out to the gutter for sugary $12,000. Last week 'Tarzan and Mate' (MG) and 'Glamour' (U). So-so at $8,700.

Roger Sherman (WB) (2,200; 35-50)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Favorable comment but too weak as a single against current competish. Fair $6,200. Last week 'Earth Turns' (WB) and 'Crime Doctor' (RKO). Fans just wouldn't go for these. Moderate $5,000.

College (Poli) (1,565; 25-40)—'Looking for Trouble' (UA) and 'Ninth Guest' (Col). Oke opening looks like satisfactory $4,500. Last week 'This Man is Mine' (RKO) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U). Slightly better than average at $4,400.

'ELYSIA' AND 'TARZAN' IS LINCOLN'S RAW MEAT

Lincoln, April 30.

The natives will get a squint at the raw meat in two spots, State and Stuart, this week, so hence will go the dough. Stuart is doing the big leaf and bough romance of 'Tarzan' and the State has 'Elysia,' the nudist pic. Flashing ads are out and a whispering campaign is being used instead.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (Livingston) (850; 10-15) —'Search for Beauty' (Par) and 'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U), dual. Looks to be the most likely combination for trade at this house in some time, a very good $1,100 in sight. Last week 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox) and 'His Double Life' (Par) bad at $700.

Colonial (LTC) (750; 10-15)—'One Is Guilty' (Col) and 'Inviable Man,' serial. Probably bring this house into fair taking, $850. Last week 'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox) and 'Voice in the Night' (Col) split, with serial last half was pretty good $800.

Lincoln (LTC) (1,600; 10-15-25)—'Gambling Lady' (WB) will get 'em in this house solely from the price appeal, $2,200 plenty satisfactory. Last week 'Melody in Spring' (Par) clicked over every picture in town, $2,600 is mightly neat.

Orpheum (LTC) (1,200; 10-15-25) —'Forgotten Men' (Jewel) and vaude. Will push the take into $2,400, very good. Last week 'Cock of the Dame' (Par) and 'Showoff' (MG), with four-act vaude bill, split, gathered $2,100 on first half strength.

State (Monroe) (500; 10-15-25)—'Elysia' (E). No ads in the papers and the telephone disconnected show state of this house. However, every drug store counter helper is babbling about the nudes, so the pic will probably help lift the mortgage; $1,200 excellent. Last week 'Whirlpool' (Col), with no exploiting help, was in cerise, $500.

'Dressing' at Rivoli, 32G, Sweet, Penner at State $28,000, Big; 'Sweethearts' a Fine $25,000

Stuart (LTC) (1,900; 10-25-40)—'Tarzan' (MG) looks in the dough for good $3,300. Last week 'Spitfire' (Radio) saw red with a so-so run, $2,500.

RAND-'SISTERS' BIG 18G IN 5 DAYS, PITT

Pittsburgh, April 30.

Main stem bidding April adieu with no regrets. Generally speaking, it's been the poorest month of the season, grosses skidding everywhere with few exceptions.

Nothing exciting in prospect this week although Sally Rand in person and 'Sisters Under the Skin' at Stanley should give house an even break at $18,000 or better. One of major disappointments is 'Tarzan' at Penn where, despite great campaign and glowing reports, getaway was way under par. If opening can be taken as a criterion, $12,000, if that, looks like the limit, which is under expectations by 50%.

Couple of bright spots, however, in all the gloom. 'Lost Patrol' at Warner got the best opening since 'Son of Kong,' and indications are for nice $7,000, most encouraging takings in months, while 'Bottoms Up' at Fulton started out briskly and should make the grade at $6,000.

Showmen all watching situation in East Liberty with interest. Warners have struck terror in the district by sending 4,000-seat Enright into double feature policy in direct competition to indie-owned Liberty. They're also shooting first-run East Liberty major product into Camera-phone and Sheridan Square, both houses directly across street from Harris-Family, with a monopoly on Fox and UA product. Some interesting developments developing with first week of new policies winding up in WB's favor.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea-Hyde) (1,750; 15-25-40)—'Bottoms Up' (Fox). Musical off to nice start and should wind up at $6,000, all right here last week, 'Coming Out Party' (Fox), $2,200 in three days, house yanking it to get back to regular Thursday opening.

Penn (Loew's-UA) (3,300; 25-35-50)—'Tarzan' (MG). Big things expected of this one aren't materializing for one reason or another and will be lucky to collect $12,000, plenty disappointing, particularly in view of brisk campaign and rave notices. Last week, 'Trumpet Blows' (Par), and '50 Million Frenchmen' unit just so-so at $16,750.

Penn (Loew's-UA) (1,600; 15-25-40)—'Ever Since Eve' (Fox), and Herman Timberg unit. Poorest opening here in some time and will have to build up plenty to crack $6,000, not too hot. Last week, 'Quitter' (indie) and 'Hot Chocolates' unit very nice at $7,200.

Regent (WB) (900; 25-35)—'Chance at Heaven' (RKO) and 'Two Alone' (RKO). East Liberty site has things pretty much to itself now that Davis, which formerly day-and-dated, has closed and profiting by general opening up of district all around. Looks like a fair enough $1,600 this week. Last week, 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U), and 'Madame Spy' (U) about the same.

Stanley (WB) (3,600; 25-40-60)—'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col) and Sally Rand on stage. In for only five days due to Tanner's previous booking and should gather around $18,000 for short session. That's plenty okay. Last week, 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) so-so at $9,500.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 25-40)—'Lost Patrol' (Radio). They've been holding this one up for some time, afraid of its b. o. chances. Reports from elsewhere, however, provided a convincer and management isn't sorry now. Gave it best getaway since 'Son of Kong' and ought to be a cinch for $7,000, a figure this site hasn't seen in a blue moon. Last week, 'Very Honorable Guy' (WB) very dishonorably weak at $4,000.

DUPONT REP EAST

Hollywood, April 30.

O. H. riggs, sales manager for Dupont films, left for New York Friday (27).

Has been here 10 weeks on business.

Discounting the State, second run on films, which has Joe Penner hitting high for a $28,000 week, it remains for the Rivoli and the Strand to fight it out this week, with both taking a strong lead on their first run adversaries. Runner up for what appears will be a fairly good week is the Roxy, which has 'Journal of a Crime,' and may hit $24,000.

Riv is nosing out the Strand for first place. This house is straining to top $32,000 with 'We Not Dressing,' and hopes to get four weeks out of it. 'Twenty Million Sweethearts' should top $25,000 at the Strand and hold over.

Two houses are in the second week on pictures, Music Hall with 'Stand Up and Cheer' and Capitol with 'Tarzan,' but neither are big. 'Cheer' will do around $50,000 on the holdover, while Cap is pointing to a weak $22,000.

George Jessel and Ethel Merman on the stage and 'Witching Hour' as screen company at Par only look like $20,000. This is under the $25,000 Gloria Swanson did there last week.

'Hitler's Reign of Terror,' which opened yesterday (Monday) at the Mayfair, may pull something in the way of a surprise when getting under way. Its opening day's business suggested $4,000 on day. Walter Reade is advertising it heavily and Broadway is watching it for results.

Lack of femme appeal is still holding down 'Viva Villa' on its two-a-day run at the Criterion, but it's turning a profit through good night business. 'Rothschild' holds high at the Astor, coming down from opening weeks only by fractions.

Estimates For This Week

Astor (1,012; $1.10-$1.65-$2)—'Rothschild' (UA) (7th week). Last week (sixth) rung up $22,800, fancy, while first five days of current week $16,300.

Capitol (5,400; 35-75-85-$1.10)—'Tarzan' (MG) (2nd week) and stage show. Only around $22,000 appears the answer on holdover; not enough. First week a good $48,000.

Casino (2,100; 25-35-55)—'Finishing School' (Radio) and vaude. Combination policy invited here Friday (27). Prime time for a poor $6,000 will surprise.

Criterion (875; $1.10-$1.65-$2)—'Viva Villa' (MG) (3rd week). Ladies aren't showing up at matinees but night business all right. Okay at $9,900 last week.

Mayfair (2,200; 35-55-65)—'Hitler's Reign of Terror' (Jewel). Opened pretty well yesterday (Monday) and may turn out to be a freak b.o. winner. Looked to $4,000 first day. House splurging in ads. Six days of 'Beggar in Ermine' (Mono) only $4,900.

Palace (1,700; 25-50-66-75) 'Earth Turns' (WB) one day, and 'Trumpet Blows' (Par), six days, and vaude. Turned 'Earth Turns' loose after one day; week indicates under $11,000. Last week 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) over $11,000.

Paramount (3,664; 35-55-75-99) 'Witching Hour' (Par) and stage show. George Jessel and Ethel Merman on stage but poor $20,000 indicated. Last week Gloria Swanson on stage and 'Wharf Angel' (Par) no more than $25,000.

Radio City Music Hall (6,945; (40-60-85-99-$1.65) 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) (2nd week) and stage show. Ordinary on extension at $50,000 or a little over. First week $85,000.

Rialto (2,000; 40-55-75-85) 'She Made Her Bed' (Par). Maybe thin $8,000. Final five days on fourth week of 'Lost Patrol' (Radio) $7,000.

Rivoli (2,200; 40-55-75-85)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Town's leader and may hurdle a good $32,000. Looking for four weeks. Last week, second of 'Looking for Trouble' (UA), $17,300, okay.

RKO Center (3,525; 25-40)—'Lost Patrol' (Radio) four days, and 'Bottoms Up' (Fox), three days; 'Patrol' exhausted itself on close to four weeks at Rialto and probably less than $8,000 on week. Previous duo, 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) and 'Good Dame' (Par) under $9,000.

Roxy (6,200; 25-35-55-65)—'Journal of a Crime' (WB) and stage show. Ruth Chatterton may hit a good $24,000 here. Last week 'Tll Tell the World' (U) $23,000.

Strand (2,900; 35-55-75-85)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Has a chance to top 25,000, good figure, and holds over. Last week 'Modern Hero' (WB) only $14,200.

State (2,300; 35-55-75)—'Catherine, the Great' (UA) and vaude. Joe Penner personal providing strong suction for possible sock, $28,000. House record is $41,000, drawn by Jack Dempsey when getting 85c for orchestra seats. Last week 'Riptide' (MG) over $20,000.

'We're Not Dressing,' $8,000, Fair

Minneapolis Listless—'Glamour' Poor at $3,000—'Mr. X' So-So at $5,000

Minneapolis, April 30.

With practically a complete absence of box-office socko entertainment fare, it looks very much like a blah week ahead. Slow start betokens slim patronage almost all along the line, the only possible exceptions being 'We're Not Dressing,' which promises to do fairly well for the Minnesota and lead the procession even though its gait is none too fast.

Estimates for Thi Week

Minnesota (Publix) (4,200; 25-35-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). By no means a world-beater, but still able to edge somewhat into the box-office money class, due to the presence of Bing Crosby, a pretty good local magnet. Critics and customers like it. May hit pretty good $8,000, which probably would enable big house to come close to breaking even. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG) $4,500, new low.

Orpheum (Singer) (2,800; 25-35-40)—'Glamour' (U). Not catching on at all. Critics panned it and public is very cool in its attitude. Joe Penner short played up equally with feature in ads, and probably the larger draw. Maybe $3,000. Poor. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (RKO), $6,500, disappointing, but fairly good at that.

State (Publix) (2,200; 25-35-40)—'Mystery of Mr. X' (Par). Robert Montgomery no particular magnet in this berg and mystery thrillers don't pull so well in No. 1 houses, either. Picture very well liked, however. Will do well to top $5,000. Fair. Last week 'Cat and the Fiddle' (MG), $7,000. Good.

World (Steffes) (350; 25-35-50-75) —'Private Life of Henry VIII' (UA). Fifth week and still going pretty strongly. Should reach good $2,000. Last week, fourth, $2,400. Good.

Uptown (Publix) (1,200; 25-25)—'As the Earth Turns' (WB). Around $3,000 indicated. Good. Last week 'David Harum' (Fox), $3,200. Good.

Lyric (Publix) (1,300; 20-25)—'Lazy River' (MG). No cast names that mean much and title not a help, either. Probably around $2,000. Bad. Last week 'Jimmy the Gent' (WB), $4,000 for eight days. Good.

Grand (Publix) (1,100; 15-25)—'Queen Christina' (MG). Second loop run and around $1,600 in store. Fair. Last week 'It Happened One Night' (Col), second loop run, $2,500. Big.

Aster (Publix) (900; 15-25)—'Son of a Sailor' (FN), second loop run, and 'Ever Since Eve' (Fox), first run, split. About $700 indicated. Light. Last week 'Roman Scandals' (UA), third loop run; 'Fashions of 1934' (FN), second loop run, and 'Convention City' (FN), second loop run, split, $1,000. Pretty good.

Georgie Price, Plus 'Success,' $18,000; 'Rothschild' Big $22,000 in Philly

Philadelphia, April 30.

Sensation of Philly's downtown picture house situation is, without any doubt, 'The House of Rothschild.' This Arliss picture reported the biggest single day's business on its opening that the Aldine has had all season, excepting Christmas and New Year's, 7,349 paid admissions being taken. From the looks of the Thursday, Friday and Saturday biz, film is bound to get $22,000 and may hit a grand higher.

Two stage-show houses aren't doing anything remarkable. Although neither Keith's nor the Wainut could be considered serious rivals to the Earle, the closing of these two East-of-Broad Street houses has undoubtedly helped the other. $18,000 looked for this week.

Fox, on the other hand, has been definitely off for several weeks and although this week's bill isn't noteworthy it ought to up the business a point or two. 'Such Women Are Dangerous' is the picture and Benny Meroff and his orchestra are stage headliners. Figures for $15,000.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (1,300; 40-55-65)—'Rothschild' (UA). Town's sensation. First day's attendance best of year except two holidays. Big $22,000 on week sure and likely a grand better. Last week, 'Catherine the Great' (UA) $6,000 for seven days. Film played 13 days in all.

Arcadia (600; 25-40-50)—'Scandals', (Fox). Third downtown showing. Unusual to find Fox film in this house. Start not so hot. $2,100 and no more. Last week, 'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG) $2,000.

Boyd (2,400; 40-55-65)—'Melody Spring' (Par). Fine notices and a fairly good week's trade indicated. $12,500. Last week, 'Spitfire' (Radio). Under even the rather dubious expectations. Only $14,000.

Earle (2,000; 40-55-65)—'Success Any Price' (Radio) and vaude. Georgie Price headlining. House up in weekly average due to several strong bills. This one should benefit to the extent of $18,000. Last week, 'Wharf Angel' (Par) and vaude. Got $21,500, Ozzie Nelson orchestra proving a big draw.

Fox (3,000; 30-40-60)—'Such Women Dangerous' (Fox) and stage show. Benny Meroff's orchestra headlining. Figures for $15,000. Last week, 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox) and stage show. Not so hot at $13,500.

Karlton (1,000; 30-40-50)—'Countess Monte Cristo' (U). Not oyer $3,000 if it hits that. Last week, 'Sing and Like It' (Radio). Same figure—which is a trifle under house's weekly average.

Stanley (3,700; 40-55-65)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Completing first week today and will get $14,000 or $14,500. Runs four days over week with 'Tarzan and his Mate' in on Saturday.

Stanton (1,700; 30-40-55)—'Trumpet Blows' (Par). Figures around $6,000. Last week, 'Registered Nurse' (WB) $6,500. House isn't varying much these days.

'TARZAN' $8,000 IN INDIANAPOLIS, NICE

Indianapolis, April 30.

It's a fairly even race for top honors in town this week between 'We're Not Dressing' at the Circle and 'Tarzan' at the Palace. The Bing Crosby opus is headed for $8,000 while Metro's ape opera is steering for the same figure. Comparatively, this is a better showing for the former than it is for the latter house.

Estimates for This Week

Apollo (Fourth Ave.) (1,100; 25-40)—'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox). House playing up Zasu Pitts above Eliers and rest of cast in an effort to bolster the pic, but the gross will hang around $3,750, tepid. Last week, 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox) was gloomy at $2,900.

Circle (Katz-Feld) (2,600; 25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Songs in film and plugging of Crosby's singing of them done neatly in ads. Gross $8,000, swell. Last week, 'Wild Cargo' (RKO) fair only at $4,500.

Indiana (Katz-Feld) (3,100; 20-25-40)—'Come On, Marines' (Par) and 'His Double Life' (Par) dualled to take $3,750, very thin. Last week, 'You're Telling Me' (Par), and 'Wharf Angel' (Par), also dual, was better at $4,000.

Lyric (Olson) (2,000; 20-25-40)—'Glamour' (U) and vaude. Could be worse but will be no better than fair at $5,700. Last week, 'I'll Tell the World' (U) and vaude was very good at $7,000.

Palace (Loew's) (2,800; 25-40)—'Tarzan' (MG). Big ads did not help as much as hoped but the gross zoomed nicely to $8,000. Last week, 'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG) and Dave Apollon unit on stage at advanced prices did only fair at $8,500.

ALL'S FAIR IN K.C., BUT ARLISS IS BETTER, 20G

Kansas April 30.

For the first time since it adopted its 25c policy, over a year ago, Loew's Midland this week changed to a 40c price for night shows of 'Rothschild.'

A block away, the Mainstreet is again trying a double bill policy for a quarter, with 40c for the lower floor at night. Is showing 'Lost Patrol' and 'Sing and Like It.'

Estimates for This Week

Mainstreet (RKO) (3,200; 25-40)—'Lost Patrol' (Radio) and 'Sing and Like It' (Radio). Hard to tell whether double bill will bring any additional customers or not, but as some of the opposition are doing it, the management is giving it a trial. Probably around $5,000, fair. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) started well and wound up with $7,500, good.

Midland (Loew) (4,000; 25-40)—'Rothschild' (UA). Reviewers spread for this one. Should go to $20,000, big. Last week 'Tarzan' (MG), $9,700.

Newman (Par) (1,800; 25)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'You Can't Buy Everything' (Par). Bing Crosby top billed and Burns and Allen will also draw. Week looks like a good $8,000. Last week 'As Earth Turns' (WB) and 'No More Women' (Par) fair for $6,000.

Tower (Newot) (2,400; 25)—'Let's Fall in Love' (Col) and stage show. Lots of show for a quarter and hopes to build back the vaude end. Near $5,000, fair. Last week, Advice to Lovelorn' (UA) and vaude for ditto.

Royal (Par) (800; 25-35)—'Narcotic' (Ind) (2nd week). Continues to draw the curious, looks like $2,000, fair, after o. k. $4,500 first seven days.

Uptown (Fox) (2,040; 25-40)—'Three on Honeymoon' (Fox). Will hold its own around $3,000. Last week 'Bottoms Up' (Fox), $4,000, good.

Bill Robinson, Ozzie Nelson Orc on Stage, Aiding Films in New'k

Newark, April 30.

Standard houses are going all right, with the Paramount around $15,000 due to Ozzie Nelson on the stage with 'Crime Doctor,' Proctor's is nearly the same with Bill Robinson and 'This Man Is Mine,' while Loew's should be about a grand less with 'Tarzan.' The Branford will be okay with over $9,000 for 'Registered Nurse' and 'Love Birds.'

Estimates for This Week

Branford (WB) (2,966; 15-65)—'Registered Nurse' (FN), and 'Love Birds' (U). Going all right and maybe better than an okay $9,000. Last week, 'As the Earth Turns' (WB), and 'I'll Tell the World' (U) beat expectations by clicking $10,200.

Capitol (WB) (1,200; 15-25-35-50)—'Jimmy Gent' (WB), and 'Good Dame' (Par). Cagney doesn't draw as he did and the other not attractive. Will hardly reach $4,000. Last week, 'Palooka' (U), and 'Heat Lightning' (FN), weak at $3,500.

Little (Franklin) (299; 30-40)—'Die Tochter des Regiments' (General), and 'Der Brave Suender' (Assoc. Kinema). Anny Ondra counted to pull a bit and maybe $600. Last week, 'Tannenberg' (Blue Ribbon), and 'Der Liebling von Wien' (B. R.) the best for weeks with $700.

Loew's State (2,780; 15-75)—'Tarzan' (MG) and vode. Okay but not what it seems to be elsewhere; unless it builds unexpectedly, $14,000. Last week, 'Catherine' (UA) weak at hardly $12,000.

Paramount (Adams-Par) (2,248; 15-99)—'Crime Doctor' (Radio) and vode. First film not a Paramount to pay house this season but the good business is due to Ozzie Nelson on the stage. If it holds up, $15,000 is assured. Last week, 'Trumpet Blows' (Par) with a radio show okay at $14,000.

Proctor's (RKO) (2,300; 25-35-40-55-60-75-85)—'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) and Harlem on Parade. Bill Robinson always good for decent business and this looks like $15,000. Last week, 'Wild Cargo' (RKO) fair at nearly $14,000.

Terminal (Skouras) (1,900; 15-25-40)—'Three on Honeymoon' (Fox), and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox), with 'Hell on Earth' (Aeolian), and 'Spitfire' (RKO) split. Week ought to be around $4,000. Last week, 'Whirlpool' (Col), and 'Success at Any Price' (Radio), with 'Scandals' (Fox), and 'Speed Wings' (Col) split okay at $4,200.

Thaumaturgic

Hollywood, April 30.

Producer was berating a writer who couldn't untangle a story.

'There's only one way. You can bring the hero and heroine together for the finish,' said the scribbler.

'What's that?' producer asked.

'By magic,' came the answer.

'ROTHSCHILD' 9G BEST DENVER BIZ IN 4 YRS.

Denver, April 30.

Aladdin headed for best week in four years. Class premiere with reserved seats sell-out and house rushing close to capacity. 'Rothschild' will be held at least two weeks. Denham only other house hitting above average also with best week in some time.

Orpheum not getting big crowds, Denver fans caring not for crowd of Hollywood doubles. Picture doing most of pulling this week.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Huffman) (1,500; 25-40)—'Rothschild' (UA). Wow biz, $9,000, best in years. Sure holdover. Last week, 'Registered Nurse' (FN), only fair and closed with $2,500, below average.

Denham (Heilborn) (1,500; 25-40)—'Not Dressing' (Par). Also okay, up to $7,000. Last week, 'Come On, Marines' (Par), boosted by productive exploitation campaign by Manager Heilborn, topped the former stanza by a grand, being that much above average also, finishing with $6,000; steady and strong crowds all week.

Denver (Huffman) (2,500; 25-35-50)—'Tarzan' (MG). Fair only, $7,000. Last week, 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) apparently couldn't compete with the fine weather and went down with only a fair $6,500.

Orpheum (Huffman) (2,600; 25-35-55)—'Harold Teen' (WB) and F&M stage show off, $7,500 only. Last week, 'Glamour' (U), with Chic Sale in person, average, $9,500. Crowds good first three days, with big drop Monday. Built some later in week, but not as much as expected. Weather, being perfect, proved serious competition.

Paramount (Huffman) (2,000; 25-40)—'Lazy River' (MG) and 'Show Off' (MG). Below par, $2,000. Last week, 'Looking for Trouble' (UA), held three days on that week after playing four on previous week, and 'Man of Two Worlds' (RKO), did average, $2,500. Gross on 'Trouble' for its complete week was above average week with $3,000. Excellent but economical theatre front added business to the till.

Cincinnati Zooms; 'Rothschild' $17,000, 'Viva Villa' $14,500, Both at 44c Top

Cincinnati, April 30.

Best array of product on downtown screens for some time and combined receipts shadowing ditto. 'House of Rothschild' on top with $17,000 for Albee's best take in months and several grand in front of 'Viva Villa.' Latter pic is trebling biz of Palace over last week, when 'Trumpet Blows' faded close to theatre's all-time low.

'Tarzan' held for second week at Lyric and doing okey. 'As the Earth Turns' got dandy press mentions and pulling nice in view of exceptional competish.

RKO Grand turned into a money maker by addition of vaude, yet reaction not so favorable for the indie Strand, which also has five acts with films, with screen so so.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,300; 35-44)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Cricks acclaim it biggest artistic triumph for George Arliss since his 'Disraeli.' Jam up biz in first half points to a whopper $17,000. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), $14,500, whammed above expectations.

Palace (RKO) (2,660; 35-44)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Firsting for 8-day run. Wallace Beery followers and extra ad splurge anent the w. k. Mexican brigand and long production time of pix helping to spell a rip snortin' $14,500. Last week 'Trumpet lows' (Par) only six days for a sorry $6,000.

Lyric (RKO) (1,394; 35-44)—'Tarzan' (MG) (2nd week). $5,000, okay, after nice $9,000 for first 7 days.

Keith's (Libson) (1,500; 30-40)—'As the Earth Turns' (WB). Great notices. Heading for a comfy $4,700. Last week 'Wonder Bar' (WB) in third week fetched $4,400, rounding out $25,000 for the engagement.

Capitol (RKO) (2,000; 35-44)—'No Greater Glory' (Col). A dreary $2,500. Will likely give way after 6th day to 'House of Rothschild' for transferred extended run. Last week 'Sing and Like It' (RKO), $6,700, sweet picking.

Grand (RKO) (1,025; 25-35)—'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) and Kirby and Duvall topping 5-act bill. $4,000, hotsy totsy, same as last week on 'Love Birds' (U) and Ilse Marvenga the vode topper. Management is radioing some of acts on WFBE for 15 minutes on Saturday evenings.

Family (RKO) (1,000; 15-25)—'Man Trailer' (Col) and 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (RKO), split, $1,600, usual horse opry pace. Last week 'Quiet on Western Front' (U), reissue, $2,100, swell.

Strand (Ind) (1,200; 25-35)—'Man of Sentiment' (Mon) and Simpson's marionettes, the vaude fronter, $1,600, weak. Last week 'Stolen Sweets' (Mon) and 5-act bill, $1,700.

PALACE, MONTREAL, 9G; 'RIPTIDE' 10G, OK

Montreal, April 30.

Grosses are bound to suffer currently with the annual housemoving trek now in full swing and lasting well into the week, despite above average pix and locally popular stars featured at main stems. Weather too wintry and wet won't help a lot.

His Majesty's back to French operetta, $1.50 top on subscription basis, and may get $4,000. Palace showing 'Wild Cargo' and 'Sing and Like It' and hopes to gross $9,000. Capitol has native daughter in 'Riptide' and 'Hold That Girl,' a nice bill that ought to run around $10,000. Loew's with seven acts of vaude and 'From Headquarters' looks like possible $10,000.

Princess has the most ballyhooed pic of week in 'Rothschild' and 'Chance at Heaven,' which should get at least $9,500.

Nabes have small chance in moving week.

Estimates for This Week

His Majesty's (CT) (1,600; 50-1.50)—French operetta, subscription basis. May gross $4,000, Last week dark.

Palace (FP) (2,700; 50)—'Wild Cargo' (Radio) and 'Sing and Like It' (Radio). Possibility of $9,000, very good in a bad week. Last week, 'Gambling Lady' (WB) and 'Easy to Love' (WB) only fair at $7,500.

Capitol (FP) (2,700; 50)—'Riptide' (MG) and 'Hold That Girl' (Fox). Shearer will bring 'em in and chance for $10,000. Last week, 'Mr. X' (MG) and 'Meet the Baron' (MG) not so good at $8,000.

Loew's (FP) (3,200; 65)—'From Headquarters' (WB) and seven acts vaude. Should hold to average of $10,000. Last week, 'Beloved' (U) and 'Greenwich Follies' revue packed them in all week for $12,000, very good.

Princess (CT) (1,900; 50)—'Rothschild' (UA) and 'Chance at Heaven' (Radio). Should be smash any week but this and $9,500 is estimate. Last week, 'Lost Patrol' (Radio) and 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) grossed $6,500.

Cinema de Paris (France-Film) (600; 50)—'Les Thenardier'; 2d episode 'Les Miserables' (2d week). Getting good biz and should gross $1,500 after $1,800 last week.

WB CAMERA HEAD OUT

Hollywood, April 30.

Warners has made a switch in its camera department, Mike McGreal replacing Charles Glounder as head.

McGreal was an assistant in Metro's camera department under John Arnold for several years.

'Not Dressing' and Thurston $29,000; Boston Drops Vaude, Down $7,000

Boston, April 30.

Three spots held brisk b.o. pace, Keith's with 'Catherine the Great,' Orpheum with 'Men in White,' and Met, with Bing Crosby on screen and Thurston, the magician, on stage. For rest of field biz is just fair to middlin; but it must be added that 'Wonder Bar' has passed into third run downtown and is still socko stuff at two majors.

Majestic closed last night (29th) after four weeks and two days of 'Rothschild,' tremendously successful.

Estimates for This Week

Majestic (Shubert) (1,590; $1.65 top)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (4th, final week). Only decided last Friday to end roadshow run with peak success. Al Selig complimented on one of best and most dignified ballyhoos town ever had.

Keith's (RKO) (4,000; 25-35-40)—'Catherine the Great' (UA) Ushered in suddenly 25th when 'Glamour' (U) wilted soon after start. Latter for four days of past week got $3,000, with 'Catherine' pulling $9,500 in three days, which is swank-o for British film. Cricks raved and the fans like Elizabeth Bergner, so new week should set Keith's pretty for $16,000, lovely.

Boston (RKO) (4,000; 25-30-40)—'Crime Doctor' (Radio) and 'Finishing School' (Radio). Stage shows dropped. Prospective $9,500. Last week 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox) and stage show, ambled to just fair $16,500. Spot expected to go stage again early August.

Orpheum (Loew) (3,000; 30-40-50)—'Men in White' (MG) and vaude. Film a topper and looks like smash at $16,000. Probably some help from Boston theatre's going all film, two spots being oldest downtown rivals on stage draw. Last week 'Laughing Boy' (MG) very weak, with shifty stage bill; lucky to wring out $13,500, quite nice.

State (Loew) (3,000; 30-40-50)—'Sorreli and Son' (UA) and Pete Smith short. Good profit in expected $13,000. Last week, 'Tarzan' (MG) hypoed house to magnificent $16,500, worth bragging about.

Met (M&P) (4,330; 30-50-65)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and Thurston, the magician, stage show. Both Crosby and Thurston in the flesh hotcha, and stage show packs the punch, with Ed Smith tossing in tasty ballet as footlight extra. Hunkadory $29,000, mebbe more. Last week 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and George Raft in person ballooned grosses to $32,500.

Paramount (M&P) (1,800; 35-45-55)—'As Earth Turns' (WB) and '3 on Honeymoon' (Fox). Better than fair, and set for good $9,500. Last week 'Wonder Bar' (WB) and 'Two Alone' (Radio) former alone packing 'em in for $10,500.

Tremont (Isaacs) (1,600; 25-30-40)—'Waltz Time' (British). Irving Isaacs venturing independently as exhib; nice opening 28th, biz picking up, and house hopes for $8,000. Last week 'Narcotic' (Indie) in third week grossed $5,000, which totaled about 19 grand for whole visit.

'Dressing' May Do $18,000 in Buff.; 'Glory's' $8,500 Okay

Buffalo, April 30.

Closing of the Great Lakes should mean better grosses currently at remaining houses. Good shows and extensive advertising also helping out situation.

'Tarzan,' at the Hipp, is undergoing the heaviest barrage of display advertising of any attraction here in months. Strong stage show at Buffalo helping there.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Shea) (3,600; 30-40-55)—'We're Not Dressing (Par) and The New Yorkers unit. Well balanced show with indications for over $18,000. Last week, 'Good Dame' (Par) and Roxy's Gang on stage saw class draw attracted by maestro shunted off by film. Fell away mid-week to $17,500.

Hipp (Shea) (2,400; 25-40)—'Tarzan' (MG). With plenty of kid patronage may make $10,000. Last week, 'Scandals' (Fox), and local angle via Henderson-Yelien tieup, boosted to $9,000.

Century (Shea) (3,400; 25)—'Harold Teen' (WB) and 'Lazy River' (MG). Appeal to youngsters points for nice $7,500. Last week, 'Show-Off' (Fox) and 'Bedside' (WB), picked up strongly for $7,000.

Lafayette (Ind) (3,400; 25)—'No Greater Glory' (Col) and 'Charming Deceiver' (Maj). Aided by additional advertising and seems to have good chance for pleasant $8,500. Last week, 'Shanghai Madness' (Fox) and 'Marriage on Approval' (Frenier), $7,000.

U'S 'MOMENT' RETAKES

Universal City, pril 30.

Universal's 'Embarrassing Moment' went back into work Saturday (28) for three days of retakes.

Several additional players, including Pat Flaherty, have been cast for the re-vamping.

above its low of day, but off 3.65 points from previous Saturday. Utilities ere badly off from previous week, while rails and amusement group looked best.

Amusement group wound up week on Saturday with 12 representative issues only off .95 from preceding Saturday. As pointed out last week, film company stocks as a group were tending to form a temporary top at levels around last week's close. Final prices this week confirmed this, because group had backed away from previous highs and closed considerably under previous Saturday's closing. Thus the amusement group is tending to follow general market trend, though slightly behind in receding from its top.

Loew's Slips

Both Radio preferred B and Warner Brothers common are following general pattern of group and that of big board stocks as whole. Loew's has been slipping off in last two weeks after making its new high at 35⅛. It closed on bottom this Saturday at 32⅜. Fox A has been bucking trend for past two weeks, and announcement that Chase National Bank is concluding agreement to sell 200,00 shares of the Class A stock sent this issue to new high for year at 17½. It fell back on Friday and Saturday to finish near its low of the week.

Only real decline with volume, however, came Thursday. When many expected prices to stage a comeback, announcement of cutting Consolidated Gas dividend from $3 to $2 annually started a good-sized selling movement. Labor difficulties and collapse of latest move for more radical forms of inflation also contributed to willingness of traders to sell. Settlement of rail wage dispute brought some support to market when it was most needed.

Feeling persists that commodity market is not ready to go ahead, particularly wheat, and that until it gets straightened out even the most optimistic do not expect higher prices on Stock Exchange. Weakness in grains hurt stock market most of week.

Business outlook is admittedly spotty with week-end reviews on trade not so optimistic. With inflation for time being out of picture, many stocks may gradually slip down to 'ex-inflation' levels. These factors plus commodity market situation are making shrewd traders look for a lower market over ensuing few weeks. They claim that stock market is past what is considered spring peak usually witnessed at this time of year. Although it has been many weeks since administration has pulled any inflation rabbits out of the hat, these same traders are not overly hopeful of any vast help from this source.

Stock Exchange control measures come before House and probably will be brought up in Senate during the coming week. That the final bill will be a comparatively mild measure, if passed, seems now practically certain. And more and more this exchange control bill is dropping from picture as a factor on market prices.

Purchase of personal stock holdings in Madison Square Garden Corp. held by Richard F. Hoyt were reported completed Saturday and said to give a Wall Street group working control of Garden. Rumor of transaction on Friday sent Madison Square Garden stock up to a new 1934 high at 7 on much more than customary volume. It was reported that under new deal Col. John S. Hammond, once identified with Madison Square Garden, would be the new president.

Two Exceptions

All amusement stocks closed week showing net losses excepting two preferred issues, Loew's and Metro-Goldwyn, and Madison Square Garden, which showed nearly two points net gain on news of new control. Columbia Picture certificates on big board, with loss of 1¼; Loew's, with a net decline of 2½; Pathe A, with a net loss of 2¼ week; Radio preferred B, with nearly a three-point drop, and Warner preferred, with a point net loss, were among heaviest losers in amusement group. General Electric dropped more than a point, and Westinghouse was off two points net.

Film company issues in other instances confined their losses to fractions of a point. Radio preferred B, it was noted here recently, seemed to have gone ahead of remainder of film group and appeared to be no bargain at recent high levels. It closed Saturday at its low for week, where it was off more than four points from its new 1934 high, recently recorded, and 2⅝ points net on week.

Loew's has been churned about nearly every day in past week in large quantities, but has not been able to make any headway. It wound up week at 32⅜. At that level, however, it was only little more than four points from highest mark it has been this year or in 1933.

Announcement that Chase National was winding up agreement to sell 200,000 shares of Fox Class A stock at $15 per share to Balfour, Boardman & Co., Ltd., British investment bankers representing large financial interests in England, was taken constructively by traders, who shot up Fox A stock to new high for year. Chase does not relinquish control of Fox Film, although if options are exercised in full its interest will be cut to less than majority, it is reported.

Carloadings were up nearly 2% over previous week, and operating income of first group of railroads in March showed net up 306%. However, rails did not enthuse over either item. Other favorable trade news included a slight increase in power output over preceding week, bank clearings up 28% from year ago, sharp advance in U. S. foreign trade for March and higher steel operating rate. On the other hand, new financing was below normal, railroads were worried over increased costs and ultimate rise in wages according to new agreement, and currency in circulation declined $23,000,000.

Dividend meetings of forthcoming week include on Metro-Goldwyn preferred, which rate is now $1.89 where it yields 7.3%.

Bonds

Money which has been going into purchase of bonds was diverted into buying preferred issues on Stock Exchange and Curb during week. This brought to a halt the rapid rise in most liens, and amusement bonds were affected along with others. Only amusement lien to show a gain was General Theatre Equipment '40, which bonds made net gain of nearly point after getting up to 11¾.

Pathe 7s went to a new 1934 high at 98⅜, and then finished week unchanged at 97½. Other film company bonds, excepting Loew 6s, which lost three-quarters of a point net, were off one to three points. Paramount - Famous - Lasky and Paramount-Publix liens and certificates of same suffered most heavily. However, there was a tendency to rally from lows on Saturday.

Summary for week ending Saturday, April 28:

Zirn in U.S. Supreme Court

Action of the Paramount trustees in getting an order permitting them to sue Par directors and others on stock repurchase deals came last week on the eve of filing in the U. S. Supreme Court at Washington of Samuel Zirn's suit asking for removal of these same trustees. They are Charles D. Hilles, Charles E. Richardson and Eugene W. Leake.

Zirn went to Washington Saturday (28) with a view to filing his action with the highest court tribunal yesterday (Monday). Case has been in preparation for many weeks, following refusal of the lower Federal courts to grant relief.

Acting for Robert S. Levy, Par bondholder, Zirn demands the removal of the three Par trustees on the grounds that they were improperly elected and are not qualified to act as trustees.

In another Zirn action on question of whether a non-judgment creditor, such as a bondholder, can sue Par directors for responsibility on the film-hocking bank deal and others, application for leave to appeal will be heard some time this week, with argument at Albany expected the following week.

'DRESSING' OK IN S. F., $18,500

San Francisco, April 30.

For the most part it's a pretty lightweight week among the first runs, with no wallopers shows to pull 'em into the theatres and plenty of warmish weather to take 'em into the open highways.

'Rothschild,' moving briskly at the Geary, and going into a third week tomorrow (1) after a very neat fortnight. Arliss pictures continues to draw class and is set to stay for at least two more weeks of two-a-day showings at $1.65 top.

Warfield showing 'We're Not Dressing,' pretty fair, but not outstanding.

St. Francis with Ruth Chatterton in 'Journal of Crime' and Novarro in 'Laughing Boy' has a screen combo that is fair. Last two weeks have been single features, 'Riptide' and 'Wonder Bar' moving over from the Warfield and getting good money.

Orpheum somewhat dubious this week with 'Success at Any Price' and 'Century of Progress' revue on stage. Fairbanks, Jr., no longer a Frisco draw, and Chi's fair drew little or no publicity here while it was running, so the combination isn't so hefty. Faith Bacon and the tieup on Ripley's connection with the show some help.

Paramount splitting 'Mr. X' and 'Harold Teen.' No names, most of money coming because of Montgomery.

Golden Gate taking it easy with 'This Man Is Mine' and usual stage show, while United Artists is also light, with 'Catherine the Great' holding for a second week. Fairbanks, Jr., in the latter, too, and though pic is drawing good comment and class trade, it's spotty.

Fox showing Jack Holt in 'Whirlpool,' along with a second picture, 'Secret Sinners,' plus vaudeville, and quite good this week.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Leo) (5,000; 25-35)—'Whirlpool' (Col) and 'Secret Sinners' (Maj), split, and vaude. Jack Holt in former has a following, and looks like $9,000. Week before it was $8,200 on 'Helen Stanley' (Col) and 'City Limits,' split.

Geary (Lurie) (1,800; 50-75-$1-$1.65)—'Rothschild' (UA) (2d week). Good money pace after nearly $12,000 on first week. Staying for a run.

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,844; 25-35-40)—'This Man' (Radio) and stage show. Not heavy at $9,000, while last week saw $9,500 on 'Glamour' (U) and stage show.

Orpheum (F&M) (2,400; 25-35-55) —'Success' (Radio) and 'Century of Progress' revue, with Faith Bacon and Ripley characters. Young Fairbanks is not a b.o. magnet, and $8,000 is not up to par of past few weeks, which generally have been pretty good except for last week's disappointing $10,000 on Duke Ellington's band with 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (Radio).

Paramount (F-WC) (2,400; 25-35-50)—'Mr. X' (MG) and 'Harold Teen' (WB), split. Montgomery drawing in the former, and latter fair after years of the Teen comic strip. About $12,000, while last week's 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and 'As Earth Turns' (WB), split, got $11,000.

St. Francis (F-WC) (1,500; 25-35-40)—'Journal of Crime' (WB) and 'Laughing Boy' (MG). Chatterton and Novarro followers making it a fair $6,500 week. Last week 'Wonder Bar' (WB), after big stock at the Warfield, was moved over here and got big $8,000.

Warfield (F-WC) (2,700; 35-45-65) —'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and stage show. Bing Crosby means money, to the extent of satisfactory $18,500. Last week was swell $24,000 on 'Men in White' (MG), with stage show led by Howard, Fine and Howard.

BOB WELSH JOINS MONO

Hollywood, April 30.

Robert Welsh has become executive producer of Monogram, appointed by Trem Carr to replace Lou Ostrow, who leaves Mono June 1.

Welsh has already reported on the lot.

W.R. HEARST HAS REEL BOYS REELING

Newsreel field is getting ready to reflect greatest in years war being passed around that William Randolph Hearst has issued orders that no expense be spared in putting Metrotone on its own at the top.

In Fox Movietone, the from Metrotone regarded as an opportunity Foxites to re-gear themselves.

Right down the line plans are being made to strengthen weak spots in all newsreel coverage and to giv the publisher plenty to fight over.

'Tarz' Sends Par, Omaha, Back to Singles, $7,500

Omaha, April 30.

Calibre of attractions is up a bit over last week at all houses, with no subtraction on the money and possibility for some incline. One material change in policy is at the Paramount, which goes back to single features with "Tarzan" after an experimental spell in which such films as 'Riptide,' 'Nana' and 'Scandals' had to troupe double.

Toss-up as to which house the real magnet, but contest likely between Paramount and Brandeis. First should realize around $7,500 and 'Lost Patrol' should build at the Brandeis to a good $4,500.

Last week 'This Man Is Mine' made it surprise week and topped $4,000, packing them in first three days. Street-car employees' strike settled before all openings and transportation normal again. Heavy competition from Bob Morton's indoor Shrine Circus at the city auditorium cut in on finish of last week bills and openings this week, and noticeably, too. Other competition last week came from Eva Le Gallienne's 'Master Builder' one night at Tech High.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (Singer) (1,200; 20-25-35)—'The Lost Patrol' (RKO) and 'Journal of Crime' (FN), dual. Expects $4,500, good. Last week, 'This Man Is Mine' (RKO) and 'Ninth Guest' (Col) bettered expectations at $4,000.

World (Blank) (2,100; 25-35)—'Looking for Trouble' (UA) and 'Midnight' (U). Better fare than past week, take at b.o. up some, $4,000, average. Last week, 'Come On, Marines' (Par) and 'I Believed in You' (Fox) only $3,500, slack.

Paramount (Blank) (2,765; 25-40) —'Tarzan' (MG). House back to single features. Fans who like to see a show without getting dragged through a three-hour program approve. Should better several of the double-feature programs which have preceded, and worthy at $7,700. Last week, 'Nana' (UA) and 'Show Off' (MG) disappointing but over average at $7,250.

Orpheum (Blank) (2,976; 25-40) —'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Registered Nurse' (FN), dual. Average bill, should have little trouble taking $7,200. Last week, 'Melody in Spring' (Par) and 'Upper World' (WB) were a couple of smiles, and very pleasing at $7,700.

Arthur has been in charge of Paramount's cutting and editorial department for several years, and assumes his new post upon the return of Diamond from the East.

Frenchmen Think Up a New One; They Want to Tax All Dubbed Films

Paris, April 21.

Newly created syndicates of independent producers and distributors took advantage of their first business meeting to sock American and other foreign films. They advocated the imposition of a tax on started in what favorable vein to Americans by saying that the new groups 'oppose systems of tariff duties and quotas which do not work, or work badly.' This idea was greeted with cheers. But the resolution went right on to say that French films should be more effectively 'protected' by the application of quotas on the exhibition of films, instead of on importation, and by a tax on French post-synchronized versions of foreign language films.

Idea is that at the same time taxation of French films would be reduced, to give them further edge.

Proposal of a dubbing tax is met by representatives of American companies with the argument that the requirement that films be dubbed in France is in itself a tax, and a heavy one. Law requires that French dubbed versions be produced here, and this makes it obligatory for American producers to spend an average of $45,000 in France to dub each film they want to show here in the language of the country.

Resolution goes on to say that other countries have been able to regulate foreign competition successfully by this method, and France should imitate them. Also proposes that the American example should be followed by provisions concerning block booking and dual bills.

Film Bank

Regarding the proposed film bank, new groups declare that it should be organized as a credit institution purely and should not go in for angeling films. Distinction, insofar as there is one, fits American ideas.

Organizations announce that they will set up a co-operative buying agency immediately and organize credit check-up outfits for the industry. Also will start a commercial film publicity bureau, which will eventually place all advertising and conduct propaganda abroad for French pix.

They say that the trouble with French films is that they are both too many and too poor, and their aim is to make them better and fewer.

Meanwhile, a healthy scrap has burst between the exhibitors' organization and the distribs' section of the Chambre Syndicale. Latter has issued a ukase that the distribs will continue to stick to a standard contract for renting, which the exhibs consider unfair.

Exhibs, led by Raymond Lussiez, have declared war on the Chambre, and decline to have anything to do with the standard contract.

SHABAN OUT, S. AFR. INDIES REORGANIZE

Capetown, April 3.

A. Shaban of Independent Film Distributors, S. Africa (Rty.) Ltd., is no longer connected with the concern, financially or otherwise. Shaban was associated with American Film Distributors, S. Africa (Rty.) Ltd., and recently amalgamated with British and Universal Pictures (Rty.) Ltd. as the Independent Film Distributors, S. Africa (Rty.) Ltd., with Shaban as comanaging director with J. Kalusky.

Company has now been reorganized, and it is understood that J. Kalusky will be managing director alone. I. F. D. claims to be a co-operative unit of South African Showmen who are in the field to break the present monopoly of film distribution. They carry no building schemes and will not rent houses.

Company has secured the product of British Lion, Sound City, Monogram, Universal and Majestic, with a full year's supply available. Guarantee exhibs one program weekly, and hope to make it two later on.

Madrid Comebacks

Madrid, April 18.

Comeback season is on with a bang. Newest recruit from the old-timers' ranks is Pastora Imperio, a gypsy dancer who had quite a rep about six years ago.

Other comebacks include Juan Belmonte, the greatest bullfighter in Spanish history, and Rafael Gomez known as 'El Gallo' ('The Cock'), who are set to fight again. Belmonte has been out of the ring for the past six years. El Gallo, is bald and 53 years old.

Paris Newsreelers Group; Ask Greater Safety, Privileges

Paris, April 21.

Local newsreels have formed a syndicate, with Gallo of Pathe at its head, to represent them in dealings with the police. Step is a preparation for the riots everybody expects to come, and to which the newsreelers look forward with watering mouths.

What they want is front line privileges and orders to policemen to spare cameras and the heads of cameramen. Suggestion is that armored trucks and steel helmets would be more effective.

Fox's shots of the Feb. 6 riots, which censors forbade, were shown by official order to the parliamentary committee inquiring into the responsibility for the bloodshed. Pictures showed nothing edifying, but Fox was flattered and the probers saw a good show.

Fratellinis Collecting $210,000 from Circus

Paris, April 21.

Paul Albert and Francois Fratellini, best known clowns in France, have learned that it may be about as profitable, on paper, not to work as to work.

They won a $210,000 verdict by default against the Cirque d'Hiver, which shut down on them. Sum represents back and indemnity for breach of contract.

Home Made Pix Dominate Madrid Cinemas; 1st Time

Madrid, April 18.

Foreign pix took one on the chin this week. Four out of seven loop houses are showing Spanish-made productions, with two Americans and one French film at the other cine.

This is the biggest onslaught made by Spanish films in a long time, and it's believed due to the fact that the minister of industry is getting set to limit showing of foreign pictures and make the presentation of a certain number of feet of Spanish films mandatory.

By showing that they can produce the pictures, Spanish producers evidently hope to convince public opinion that such a decree would not rob them of any theatrical pleasures.

Curious note is that houses showing Spanish films are drawing an older and more Spanish crowd than the houses presenting American pix. Few foreigners are seen at the Spanish pictures, while young Spaniards seem to be exhausting the grinds showing foreigns before taking in the home-made product.

B. O. Grosses Take Big Leap Up In Australia; Product Varied

IC GORRICK

Sydney, April 4.

Lenter just concluded has been one of the most prosperous experienced in Australia for many years.

Reported that over the holiday period $6,000,000 circulated in Sydney alone, with the country folk eager to spend a portion of their huge wool-checks around the stores and on Amusement Row.

State Fair, regarded as the biggest in the world, drew capacity day and night, and the side-shows did corking business. One or two wet days helped to jam the theatres, and everybody got a break.

From every State in the Commonwealth reports flashed that record-spending crowds gave the trade highest of grosses. To cope with business some theatres began their sessions at 9 a.m.

Line-up of amusements offered here today can stand shoulder to shoulder with any other country in the world.

American pictures are in high favor and clicked strongly all around, British, too, more than held their own, all over Australia.

Despite the recent strife between distribs and exhibs, more high-grade pictures from every studio found their way into the ace houses of G.T. and the indie managements.

Current line-up includes 'Duck Soup' (Par), 'Alice in Wonderland' (Par), 'Wax Museum' (WB), 'I Believed in You' (Fox), 'Tillie and Gus' (Par), 'Little Women' (Radio), 'I Was a Spy' (G-B), 'Red Wagon,' 'Lady Killer' (WB), 'What Price Innocence' (Col), 'Damaged Lives' 'Orient Express' (Fox), 'Only Yesterday' (Univ), 'Sitting Pretty' (Par), 'I'm No Angel' (Par), 'Secret of the Skies,' 'Queen Christina' (MGM), 'Thark' (Brit), 'Hindle Wakes' (Brit), 'Gold-Diggers' (WB), 'The Right to Romance' (Radio), 'This Week of Grace,' 'Design for Living' (Par), 'Too Much Harmony' (Par), 'Female' (WB), 'Smoky' (Fox), 'Happy Ever After' (German), 'Just Smith' (Brit), 'This Is the Life' (Brit), 'Going Gay,' 'Soldiers of the King' (Brit), 'The Invisible Man' (U), 'My Weakness' (Fox), 'As Husbands Go' (Fox), 'A Southern Maid' (Brit), 'Roman Scandals' (UA), and 'The Masquerader' (UA).

Bobby Howes Sticks to Waller; Cochran to Do Musical Again?

London, April 21.

Contrary to general rumor, Bobby Howes is still to produce shows in conjunction with Jack Waller.

Rumor still persists that Bobby Howes will be starred in 'Roberta' when the show reaches London. Should this happen, Max Gordon will do the musical in associati with Waller and Howes.

Jack Buchanan, now in 'Mr. Whittington' at the Hippodrome i association with Waller, is also staying with him for his next vehicle, which is not set, as Buchanan is due for the 'Sons o' Guns' film, to be produced by British & Dominion, and has not given his new musical a thought.

Again?

Couple of years or so ago Charles Cochran stated he hoped he would never produce another revue.

There are at present healthy signs of his bursting forth again in the field of endeavor, however.

Three Weakies

'There's Always Tomorrow,' play by Lionel Brown, was produced at the Shaftesbury, April 17. Plot revolves around a mother with a fanatical love for her son, which is carried on to the extent where she deliberately dopes the wine glass of a girl whom she believes her son wants to marry. He is, in fact, already married to the girl, and everything comes out all right.

Mary Newcomb plays the mother. One paper says it is a stupid and unconvincing play. He's wrong. It isn't a play at all.

With no less than four plays tried out at the Embassy now running in the West End, the management presented 'Battle Royal' April 18. It is a comedy in three acts by Kim Peacock, an actor.

Not enough substance in it to make a 20-minute vaudeville sketch. All talk, designed to be 'smart,' along the Noel Coward lines, but woefully lacking.

M. Willson Disher, a reformed VARIETY London correspondent, now dramatic critic of the Daily Mail, has written a play titled 'Having No Hearts.' It was produced at the little Mercury theatre, on the outskirts of London, April 18. Least said about it, the best.

Dean-Hopper Nuptials

Victoria Hopper, one of England's youngest potential stars, is to marry Basil Dean. She played Tessa in the film version of 'The Constant Nymph' and is now appearing in the Drury Lane production, 'Three Sisters.'

Less than a year ago she had her first West End engagement. She is 22. Dean is 45. This is his third venture.

Sydney Goes West

Sydney, April 5.

ney has strongly for that West gal. 'I'm No Angel' goes into fourth week at the classiest house , Prince Edward, and already the other feature has been changed to give customers a chance to take a second look at Mae.

The 'come up' gag is a by-word all around town, from the poorer area up to the ritzy centre.

Mussolini Says Okay, So Italy Starts Its Very Own Hollywood

Rome, April 18.

Italy intends to have its own Hollywood, and work has already begun on a grandiose new film town on the coast, between Pisa and Leghorn. Mussolini approved of the idea and has baptised the filmopolis Vis, which is the way the old Romans said 'strength.'

Vis is situated among beautiful pinewoods and has natural background of hills and valleys. Site chosen covers 10,000 square yards, and the foundations are being laid out under the direction of C. Valente.

Director of the ambitious enterprise is G. Forzano, co-author with Mussolini of several stage successes, including 'The Hundred Days' and the shortly expected 'Julius Caesar.'

Film-town, in which it is hoped to concentrate all Italian picture production has a naturally good climate. Enterprise is being backed by a group of Turin and Rome financiers. Newly reorganized Cines Co. of Turin has an interest.

BRITISH GOV'T NIXES SHOW TAX REDUCTION

London, April 21.

Legitimate end of the amusement industry, although joining in the formal protest, was apathetic in an effort to secure a reduction of the entertainment tax in the new budget just issued by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Film people put up a bold front and told how they were placed upon the terrestrial globe for the sole purpose of providing amusement for the downtrodden unemployed. As such they were badly handicapped in providing picture entertainment owing to the tax and, sooner or later, they cried they would all be bankrupt.

Chancellor said he was very sorry, but he really was unable to do anything this year in the way of tax relief.

Government official is privately quoted as saying there would be no concession in the matter of entertainment tax reduction for a long time. He says the Chancellor has been gathering data on the subject for some time. These statistics showed that Gaumont-British is doing well and paying dividends to its stockholders, and most of the smaller are doing proportionately well.

Coupled with this data is a lot of figures on the agitation for a restriction of picture house building operations. Gaumont-British publicity is to the effect the new building of picture houses makes it impossible for any of the theatres in certain territory to show a profit. Gaumont-British has just completed a couple of large picture houses in districts already supplied, and others under their direction are in course of construction.

Another reason whispered about the film district for failure to secure tax remission is said to be some difficulty about checking up on a proposed tax on foreign film negatives in the form of ad valorem duty.

FOX PARIS PRODUCER MOVES OFF PAR LOT

Paris, April 21.

Fred Bacos has deserted the Paramount lot and is making his next production, 'White Lilac,' at the Pathe studio, also in Joinville. t costs him a lot less in rent, and he gets the same facilities, he says.

Bacos, whose films are distributed by Fox, has proved to be one of the most successful of the local independents this year because he can chisel down the costs and at the same time make an appealing picture. Nobody gets up and shouts 'masterpiece' when one of his pictures is shown, but he gets the rentals, especially off the boulevards and out of Paris.

His pictures are purely French in character. Alice Field is starred in 'Lilac,' which Karl Anton is directing.

Bacos, a Levantine of long residence in Paris, ran the business end of the Paramount studios until Par stopped local production.

No Jacobs-Bregstein Split

Irving Jacobs and Herbert Bregstein have not dissolved their partnership for distribution of foreign pictures, Jacobs said on arrival in New York.

Duo has turned down U. S. rights of 'La Maternelle' made by Universal in Paris, which Jacobs had intended to bring over.

Sir Benj. Fuller and His Brother, John, in Surprise Split of Circuit

Sydney, April 30.

Sir Benjamin Fuller and his brother, John Fuller, have split their holdings in Fuller ' theatre

It's the most surprising move in show business here in some time.

Sir Benjamin and his brother have been very close to each other for many years and it is inconceivable that they should have had an argument causing the split-up of business affairs.

Under the split, Sir Ben retains the circuit and his brother John takes the St. James theatre, Sydney, ace house.

In New York the news was received Monday (30) morning with utter amazement. Only conceivable explanation is that it is a move on the part of the Fullers to get out of the combine thing down under. Fuller chain has an agreement with Greater Union and Hoyts to purchase films en bloc, thus forcing down prices of American and other distribs. Deal has been unsatisfactory and much bickering in Australia has resulted. Sir Benjamin is known to have wanted to get out of it for some time, with no easy action open to him.

It is recalled in New York, also, that the St. James is a separate corporation from Fuller Theatres and does not actually belong to the circuit, although generally considered as its ace house. St. James has been going along on a pretty much indie policy for some time.

Recently, immediately after Metro was turned down in its attempt to build a theatre in Sydney for itself, the company completed a deal with Fullers for distribution in Australia, all Metro pics to get pre-release showings at the St. James.

Crashing DeLuxe

Paris, April, 21.

Theatre managers here squealing that the game of gate-crashing is getting so popular they even have to sell tickets in secret to lovers of the sport who want to show off their prowess.

R. Cardinne-Petit tells the story of a man who boasted he could get into any theatre just by showing his card. Crasher neglected to tell admiring friends that he always went to box office the night before and bought seats, exchanging the tickets for a marked pasteboard that looked like a visiting card, which admitted him.

PAREE NITE LIFE GETS NEW START

Paris, April 21.

Much needed new life is being instilled into the Montmartre nitery district by opening of new spots by Bricktop and Dinah, veteran colored Paris American whoopee specialists. They're counting on the arrival of American tourists this summer, and, as a matter of fact, the influx is already beginning, despite high prices.

Dinah's new place is called Pigall's. She has set the drink tariff from $1 to $1.60, with champagne from $3 to $7.80 a bottle.

Bricktop's revamped place, called the Monico, got a high society send-off at her opening. She has fixed up the decor in bright red and has put boxes of geraniums in the windows. Ceiling is trimmed with square mirrors. Dropping obligatory champagne, she lets her supper customers come down to corned beef hash and coffee, and specializes in fried chicken.

Entertainment is supplied by Myrtle Watkins, formerly of 'Blackbirds' troupe, and Mike Riley, hoofer who was with 'Hot Chocolates' in New York. Music is by Jimmie Boucher's band.

Richard Arlen showed up for the opening, and the hotsy-totsy effect was provided by Barbara Hutton Mdvani and her Georgian prince, with a party, and Lady Mendl of the British Embassy.

Ambassadeurs opening also will help keep the ball rolling for new season.

Boop Pic Nix in Eng.

London, April 30.

'Red Hot Mama,' a Betty Boop cartoon, was rejected 100% by the British Board of Film Censors.

Censor's report reads 'that a film depicting the comic treatment of hell is unsuitable for public exhibition in this country.'

ANZAC PROBE DWINDLES TO CHATTER

Sydney, April 4.

Film probe is dwindling down now to mostly lawyers' chatter. Figured in the trade that the legal lads will cop a nice gross from their principals in the all-for-nothing battle.

After the chatter finishes the commissioner will hie himself away to make out his report for the government. Then, maybe, in four-five-six weeks the result of the probe will be given out.

Believed generally here that both exhibs and distribs opened their mouths a little too wide to the government representative, and that the government will now find a way in which to squeeze a little more cash out of the industry by introducing new taxes.

Betting on the outcome of the probe strongly favors a quota for Australian pictures and protection to Australian shareholders in the amusement field. Maybe the government will sanction the building of more theatres in Australia, but it is thought local men will be protected from foreign competition.

Now that the smoke of battle has blown away, both sides are wondering whether they said things which they ought not to have said, and whether a royal commission will really become an actuality. With grand trade over Lenten, both exhibs and distribs forgot all hard feelings and united in selling the public entertainment along sane showmanship lines, and the results have proven that with an international spirit prevailing in the trade good business can always be brought to the box office.

Charles Munro says that at no time did he seek a battle with the film men. His circuit was out to make a profitable buy, he claims, and he must be in a position to run his theatres on safe lines, so that at the end of each financial year the stockholders okay the methods employed.

Lower Belgian Tax

Brussels, April 19.

Relief for Belgian exhibs is seen in decision to cut admission tax from 6% to 4% for seats sold at 30c or less.

Reduction applies only to houses with 40c top or less. Goes into effect immediately.

NOLAN BETTER

Hollywood, April 30.

John Nolan, Fox Film rep in Australia, who has been confined to the Cedars of Lebanon hospital since arrival from down under, is improving and expects to leave for New York soon.

COULD FORCE U.S.A. DEALS

Establishment of Central Booking and Buying-Selling Syndicate with Downing Street Blessing Expected—Gaumont British Mentioned Guiding Spirit

NATIONALISM

London, April 30.

Movement is on foot to form a semi-official government corporation to be known as British Film Distributors. It will be along lines of British Broadcasting Corporation and will take practically complete control of film distribution in England.

Idea seems to be engineered by Gaumont-British. Corporation, if formed, is figured to be able to control and regulate prices of foreign films. But that's not the real sting from an American standpoint. Whip will probably come in the form of compulsory booking of British pictures in the United States in some proportion to the American films that are given permits for exhibition over here.

Whole thing started by examination in certain quarters of film production figures in the United States and in Britain. Authoritative sources put the estimate of features produced in the United States per year at about 600, plus about 800 shorts. In addition there will be over 100 British features made here by American concerns next season, plus about 20 shorts. British films made in England will total 200 features and 60 shorts. Added to this will be some importation from the Continent.

U. S. A. Can't Take It

That still gives the Americans plenty of edge over here, but the British are beginning to feel their oats, despite the fact that American film concerns are complying with the quota requirements. Feeling is that the Britons are in good enough shape to force their hands and the Americans in no shape to reject whatever gauntlet is thrown down by the locals.

Some years ago daily newspapers in England saw a menace in the form of a new approaching competition for their advertising. They ing, as expressed, is that American consulates and embassies the world are not co-operating sufficiently with picture companies or giving them the protection American commerce.

In the case of 'Rasputi pointed out that the picture got into difficulty in England, company losing a libel suit against it and immediately cutting the offending sequences. Picture as going around now has nothing more to possibly offend and in several recent instances, after being banned in European countries, an appeal and explanation has brought a revision of the ban.

Metro's attitude, however, is that as soon as the ban was proclaimed the American government residents should have taken action to reverse it on the simple grounds of aiding American commerce abroad and from the standpoint that the picture, bei... commercial property owned by an American concern, is being unjustly dealt with by banning.

Other film companies, notably Paramount, which has had considerable difficulty of a similar nature recently, subscribe to this view.

Hays office, when apprised of the banning of an American film, always takes steps to revert it or do something about amelioration. Picture companies, however, insist that they should not have to go to the Hays office for help in the first place, that the aid ought to be forthcoming as a matter of course and automatically.

AMERICANS ASK CZECHS FOR 12-1 QUOTA

Prague, April 17.

Still discussing the offer of the American film producers, making possible re-entry of American films into Czechoslovakia on a quota of one to twelve, or a payment of $625 on every film coming from America.

Czechoslovak government has countered by offering eight to one quota.

At the same time, while negotiations between America and Czechoslovakia are still going on, Czechoslovak film producers are urging the establishment of a film bank to aid domestic film production. To finance the proposed institution a register is to be kept of all the domestic and imported films. On every foreign film a license fee is to be imposed which would be used to make easier the cost of domestic films.

Under present existing conditions persons desiring to produce films in Czechoslovakia are compelled to call on financial aid of important picture house owners, who give the money only on condition that they have the premiere rights of the first films shown, and when the films do not turn out successfully, the film producers find it difficult to place the films in question in other picture houses.

Proposed film bank is following the example of similar one in Germany.

Gordon, LeMaire, Ritchie and Goetz Hold Paris Convention of Their Own

Paris, April 21.

It's been Broadway Old Home Week here. Ray Goetz has been passing through looking things over. Lee Shubert dropped over from London. Max Gordon spent couple of days on his way to Vichy for a rest.

All have been at the George V, where Irvin Marks lives, and his room has been headquarters. Bob Ritchie also is at the hotel.

Gordon, whose chief concern is his health, has bought nothing on this trip. Marks took him to see 'Waltzes from Vienna' at the Porte St. Martin, in a French version. This is the show which Gordon plans to take to the small Radio City house next fall if the deal can ever be finally fixed up.

After he has finished his cure in Vichy he'll go back to England to see Gertrude Lawrence's new show, which is opening in Manchester. Gordon is also considering a new musical for which Cole Porter is writing a score.

Also passing through Paris is Rufus LeMaire, who is fixing up a deal for George Arliss in London.

Ritchie is keeping his plans deep and dark, but says he is not trying to book Jeanette MacDonald on the continent. He's going from here to Berlin, Vienna and Budapest, and will be back in Paris afterwards.

Goetz is working on a play for Gilbert Miller, who is now in London and is expected here soon.

Shubert said he was here because the American public is getting tougher and tougher in its desire for plays with a wallop, and he hopes to get some material on this side that will supply the need. Also registered a kick because Hollywood has signed up all the veteran playwrights, leaving Broadway dry.

In London he bought rights to two plays: 'First Episode' and 'Sexes and Sevens,' latter adapted from an old French piece by Savoir. He also arranged to put on A. E. Thomas's 'No More Ladies' in London in collaboration with Gilbert Miller, with Constance Collier in the lead.

He's due back in New York May 1.

FRANCO-RUSS PICTURE DEAL?

Paris, April 21.

Charles Delac, back from Russia, claims to have made arrangements for the collaboration of French and Russian producers.

Certain elements in French film trade see in this an attempt to make a deal whereby French producers will work together with the Soviets to make pix in Russia, and then both will try to force these films on foreign markets, especially American, in exchange for the privilege of sending films to France and Russia.

Idea is poohpoohed in American circles here.

OWEN MOORE'S PLAZA, LONDON, P. A. AT $500

London, April 21.

Plaza, besides a double feature film program, had Owen Moore doing a personal, week of April 16. Moore was booked in here at $500 per week, after trying out at the Astoria, Brixton, a Paramount suburban spot.

It's a one-man sketch, using a film as background, with Moore talking to the audience and then conversing with some of the characters on the screen. Idea, while not new in America, is a novelty over here.

Second Ship's Officer	Ted Oliver

'We're Not Dressing' in plot is an unofficial remake of Par's 'Male and Female' (nee Sir James Barrie's 'The Admirable Crichton'), but at least Par has taken its musicals out of the backstage-tin pan alley atmosphere. Where it's light and familiar on the story it's heavy on sturdy croonology by Bing Crosby, who makes the footage a vocal delight. no small amount of comedy—ever a b. o. asset—via the combined efforts of Burns and Allen, Leon Errol and a comedy bear that motivates the action. All in all a cinch audience picture—any audience.

Plot is one of those familiar patterns of the fabulously rich heiress on whose yacht ing is a gob. His particular chore is to exercise the furry pet of the femme owner of the yacht, and when the bear encounters some mishaps she seemingly takes more direct cognizance of the sailor.

Comes the wreck which throws 'em all on shore. Strangely enough none of the crew survives, but this particular sailor (Crosby), although somehow all the less expert passengers—Carole Lombard, Errol, that clown princeling pair, and Ethel Merman—manage to reach shore safely.

Burns and Allen are introduced as a botanical explorer and his wife who thinks flora and fauna are a vaudeville team and who sets up Rubegoldbergish traps for wild animals.

The Crichton stuff naturally fast asserts itself, with the gob alone knowing how to wrest food and comforts from the natural sources, thus making the proud heiress capitulate.

The vocalizing is all Crosby's. While he may be crooning constantly he does it so well (and not too implausibly because he is discovered as a naturally singing deck washer) that it's forgivable What's more, a little effective business is introduced with the bear, who responds only to the 'May I?' song. That number, along with 'Love Thy Neighbor,' 'Once in a Blue Moon,' 'She Reminds Me of You,' 'Good Night, Lovely Little Lady' and 'Riding Round in the Rain,' already are being well aired on the ether waves and will continue so to be, particularly 'Neighbor,' 'May' and 'Lady.' Mack Gordon and Harry Revel have done a notably good job of the songs, in that they're patterned to conform with the plot action.

The triple-threat collaboration of Francis Martin, George Marion, Jr., and Horace Jackson does much to sustain the weak story, for which Barney Glazer takes double-billing credit as author and associate producer.

Carole Lombard is negligible and not favorably impressive opposite Crosby. She is eclipsed in the femme division both by Miss Allen and Miss Merman, latter working with Errol. Errol, never far from the bar or the cocktail shakers, registers with his finished stew comedy, of which there could be more. Errol-Merman's 'New Spanish Custom' is their sole vocal opportunity. It's Burns and Allen who really rate the second honors to Crosby, the unofficial star. Crosby himself is most of the picture. He screens his best and sings better.

An unquestionable good audience icture certain to please generally. Abel.

20 Million Sweethearts

(MUSICAL)

First National production and Warner Bros. release. Features Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Ginger Rogers, with Four Mills Bros., Ted Fio Rito's band and Allen Jenkins underlined. Directed by Ray Enright. Story, P. F. Moss and Jerry Wald; screen play, Warren Duff and Harry Sauber; music and lyrics, Harry Warren and Al Dubin; dialog director, Stanley Logan; film editor, Clarence Kolster; photography, Sid Hickox; orchestra under Leo Forbstein. At Strand, N. Y., week April 25. Running time, 90 mins.

Rush Blake	Pat O'Brien
Buddy Clayton	Dick Powell
Peggy	Ginger Rogers
Pete	Allen Jenkins
Sharpe	Grant Mitchell
Brockman	Joseph Cawthorne
Secretary	Johnny Arthur

An entry the theatre boys won't have to worry about. It's a laugh musical without chorus numbers, holds a couple of nice tunes and keeps going despite the 90 minutes' running time. An attractive cast lineup and the proof of the pudding will be in the seeing. Feature shouldn't disappoint anywhere and ought to be able to grab a couple of weeks for its Broadway debut.

Tempo is half this picture's victory, ditty and no little of that impulse comes from Pat O'Brien. He is cast again as a flip chatterer, talking his way out as fast as in, this time as an agent. O'Brien walks into scene after scene, tucks them under his arm and is away. He deserves a world of credit for his sense of pace in whipping this film home, not forgetting that Ray Enright, the director, also should share for allowing him to scamper. Script runs more to situations than gags with almost all the action indoors.

Story has its fun with radio, pokes its finger into that medium's ribs and chuckles. But the point is that it doesn't keep those laughs to itself. Powell is a singing waiter whom O'Brien picks as his big discovery for the air. The boys ease their way to New York where the girl (Ginger Rogers) rings in and through whom they finally frame Powell's opportunity before a mike. Having to break Powell down for that theoretical second act curtain, the script almost makes a heel of O'Brien in splitting the betrothed pair. He gets them together again in time for the finish.

Nothing new about this device, but as played by an engaging lineup, and with well written dialog, it's in the groove that they'll like.

Counting the three specialties of the Mills foursome there are eight numbers, including a couple of reprises. Four Warren and Dubin songs, none of which listen as a sock although two are easy on the ear. These will enjoy their share of popularity and do the picture no harm. The two standouts are 'I'll String Along with You' and 'Fair and Warmer.' Powell also does one vocal chore with the Mills boys, evidently borrowed from the Crosby-Mills ether idea, but Miss Rogers only sings early in the running. The music bunch can get a flash at Leo Forbstein in person.

Powell's entrance is signalized by a prolonged version of 'Flying Trapeze' which marks the film's only slow spot. This Walter O'Keefe flimsy has been around so much on and off the screen that it's becoming a trial. In cutting Enright has thought enough of it to let it run for three or four verses, in addition to which there's another session with it on Powell's flop audition. Ted Fio Rito's band arrives for the closing night club sequence, while the Three Radio Rogues are on the sound track for radio name imitations at the opening.

Film is no cinch assignment for Powell, who is once more spotted as a singing juvenile. He's been in so many recent releases that at the rate they're using him it makes it tougher and tougher. Anyone of less graciousness and vocal calibre might easily have been swamped by such studio demands, despite being blessed with good tunes to deliver. But Powell stands up here from all angles and seems to have the elasticity to team well with any girl picked to play opposite him. Every so often he gets a chance to evidence a flair for comedy, and probably could handle more material in this vein, but it might be playing safe to ease up on him for a spell. It would be a shame to undermine this boy, as he's a valuable lad to have around, all of which Burbank seems to realize only too well.

Miss Rogers is away from comedy on this stint and appears more pleasantly placed as a straight ingenue. A versatile young lady, she looks exceptionally well and plays pleasantly. Grant Mitchell is a pillar in doing straight as O'Brien's grouch nemesis, while Allen Jenkins makes a kiddies' 'Uncle Pete' stand up for results. Joseph Cawthorne is also worth a giggle or two.

'Sweethearts' is really a picture man's picture; a good all around job which will do very well at the box office and looking decidedly within reason as to cost. Sid.

MEN IN WHITE

Metro production and release, starring Clark Gable. Directed by Richard Boleslavsky. Screen play by Waldemar Young, from play by Sidney Kingsley. Musical score, Dr. William Axt. Camera, George Folsey. At Roosevelt, Chicago, week April 23. Running time, 72 mins.

Dr. Ferguson	Clark Gable
Laura	Myrna Loy
Dr. Hochberg	Jean Hersholt
Barbara	Elizabeth Allan
Dr. Levine	Otto Kruger
Dr. Cunningham	Henry Gordon
Dr. Michaelson	Russell Hardie
Dr. McCabe	Henry B. Walthall
Shorty	Wallace Ford
Pete	Russell Hopton
Dr. Gordon	Samuel S. Hinds
Dr. Vitale	Frank Puglia
Dr. Wren	Leo Chalzel
Mac	Donald Douglas

Belongs in the strictly adult class of pictures. Not because of any particular incident or scene but rather for the realistic and profound theme, that of a man torn between a woman's love and the relentless destiny of his soul. 'Men in White' is the tale of a potentially great physician who almost, but only almost, tosses away his future as a scientist for the quiet peace of a good marriage. His destiny proves too strong and he sticks to medicine.

Gable is the potentially great doctor and he does an excellent job of it. It is a role diametrically opposed to the breezy style of the reporter of 'It Happened One Night,' but he brings a change of pace to this picture with a sure feeling for the part. Gable does much to make this picture box-office.

Show spells money from plenty of angles. Cast is hand-picked and with a fat roster of names that count. Though the story is centered around a hospital with its pains and starkness, the picture has managed to sentimentalize much of it to keep it from depressing. Hospital set itself is as perky and shiny as a honeymoon kitchen, which has an excellent psychological effect.

Other than Gable there's Hersholt for the strong sympathetic role of the famous surgeon and teacher who keeps tab over his pupils as a hen over her chickens. Up against almost any one but Gable, Hersholt would have had little trouble in gobbling up the picture. He does outstanding work here as the man who helps keep Gable on the path of science. The two women in the picture are Myrna Loy, as Gable's fiancee, who refuses to play second fiddle to his work, and Elizabeth Allan as the student nurse who pays with her life for a few hours of clandestine happiness with Gable. Every role is treated with kindliness and sympathy; even the resentment of the fiancee against the interne's devotion to his work is made understandable.

Besides the main roles, all of which are handled with excellent restraint, the minor ones also shine. Otto Kruger is on only for a few flashes as the man who gives up his chance to study in order to set up a commercial practice and marry, stands out for a part of sheer understanding and sympathy. Ford and Hopton give the picture its only light touches as somewhat irresponsible internes.

Picture is from the play now current both in New York and Los Angeles. According to the contract, Metro cannot release the picture in these territories until the play has closed. Which, in New York, means not before July. On the play angle alone the picture is ripe for class appeal, and on its sentimental sock values otherwise is set for the remainder of the picture public. Film in theme closely follows the stage original. Gold.

Miniature Reviews

'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Bing Crosby, Burns and Allen, Lombard, Leon Errol and Ethel Merman for marquee and cast strength in tiptop audience-appeal musical.

'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Good comedy musical minus chorus numbers. Attractive cast coupled with some air names and two nice tunes. There be no worries.

'Hitler's Reign of Terror' (Jewel). Newsreel compilation condemning Nazi reign. Loses strength because of several obviously faked scenes and not likely to mean important money except in a few spots where newspaper publicity may help.

'Picture Brides' (Allied). Okay double feature material. Has moderate name value players, which will help.

'Beggars in Ermine' (Mono). Love interest played down and cast not big enough to spell instant box office, but good all around entertainment for the masses just the same. Lionel Atwill starred.

'The Unknown Blonde' (Maj.). Professional respondent story with enough interest to put it over. Good cast and title may help.

'Finishing School' (Radio). Story too much handicap for good cast. Doesn't rate major attention.

'Ferocious Pal' (Principal). Dog story neatly planned for the family houses. Will serve in these spots. Children will love it.

'She Made Her (Par). Story handicaps this one to the extent that cast names may not be able to overcome it.

'Honor of the Range' (U). Chock full of a little bit of everything not to be found in average western, and still an ideal dime admissioner.

'The Witching Hour' (Par). Old-fashioned stage play that still has something. Lack of names hurts, but good playing will build on extended dates. Just average biz getter.

'Journal of Crime' (WB). Chatterton's best role since 'Madame X' as a wife murderess with motives that are justifiable, according to viewpoint. Strong in feminine appeal, but a good man's picture, also.

Talking Shorts

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT
'Mr. W's Little Game'
Comedy
10 Mins.
Rivoli, N. Y.
Paramount

Excellent 10-minute short starring the raconteur and litterateur whose reputation must have percolated into the hinterland. And even if the pix fans in the stix don't know just who Woolcott is, that's the least of it, for basically it's commercial filler material which, in some effete locales, can stand joint billing with the feature. That's true particularly in the bigger keys and in the respective literati sectors or arty cinemas where Woollcott assumes something of name proportions.

Lynn Shores directed and Leo Carroll and Marion Martin are excellent support.

Locale is a smart restaurant. Carroll is Woollcott's seemingly favorite waiter. Miss Martin is a casual femme acquaintance.

Action opens with Woollcott berating the waiter for serving his cognac in a thimble glass instead of the Napoleon snifter which he, as a true epicure, favors.

'Mr. W's Little Game' is anagrammatic. Given any letter, the idea is to see how many words can be reeled off in 60 seconds starting with that letter. Woollcott derives smart comedy from his caustic observance of the manner in which his femme vis-a-vis couples certain sequences of words to indicate how her mind has been running along certain meretricious lines. However, it's all in the nature of good clean fun.

Fade-out is the rest of the dining room essaying the same Mr. W's Little Game, while Woollcott irisouts consuming his cognac.

Material is bright and patently is tailor-made for the rotund litterateur's peculiar personaality. Abel.

RUTH ETTING
'Derby Decade'
Comedy, Songs
20 Mins.
Palace, N.
Radio

Peach of a two-reeler that will fill a void nicely in any theatre. One of those rare combinations of comedy and songs that go well together and please. Lou Brock is credited with production and the bows go to him, the writer and Miss Etting in equal shares.

Scene is in the good old Bowery days. Tom Kennedy is running a saloon and two rival gangs are coming to watch the show at the same time. Fearing riots, he gets a high-class singer from uptown, Miss Etting. She sings 'Bird in a Gilded Cage,' 'After the Ball' and 'When You Were Sweet Sixteen,' all beautifully. Miss Etting is the one person who knows how to take these old-timers and give them new vitalit and pep. That her songs quiet the mob spirit in the saloon is thus lent plausibility.

There are a couple of minor technical faults, such as the unveiling of the first electric lamp in the saloon and a mention of 'Hello, Central,' the song which was written some years later, but maybe that doesn't matter in a short. Kauf.

'MAN AGAINST MICROBE'
Commercial Novelty
10 Mins.
Mayfair,
ife Insurance

This is the cleverest ad short probably ever produced. It is mostly clever because of the fact that audiences are very unlikely to sense it's made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. for advertising reasons.

Nothing mentioned about Metropolitan, nor about insurance. Apparently from the Met angle, it is good policy if for no other reason that the short may make more people germ-conscious. That might cut down the number of deaths and thus benefit an insurance company. It is in line with the same company's educational advertising.

Subject matter is very interesting. As a doctor lectures a medical class, the action digs back to the first microscope and battling against germs, brings it down to the present when science is grappling against cancer and other dangerous diseases. Char.

'HOTEL ANCHOVY'
With Ritz Bros.
Comedy
17 Mins.
Roxy, N. Y.

Material provided by the slapsticky title of 'Hotel Anchovy' for the three Ritz Brothers gives them a pretty fair opportunity to excavate a few laughs, but on the whole it's familiar old clapstick. That's because of the material writers, not the Ritzes, who have stopped many a show in vaude and picture houses. Short gets by, that's about all.

Boys are attaches of a hotel which comel gal owner is trying to sell. They go in for a lot of nut stuff in retaining guests until two buyers arrive to bid against each other. When one apparently isn't coming, a Ritz frere impersonates the absent bidder in an effort to run the other mugg, a legit, up pretty high. Then the bidder who wasn't coming decided to show up and the fun begins, but it all peters for a weak finish. Char.

'FULL COVERAGE'
Farce
21 Mi
Globe,
Universal

Henry Armetta and Paul Hurst in a heavy burst of slapstick. Armetta's wife gets her brother to insure her husband's life.

Brother borrows Armetta's raincoat and latter comes home drenched. Has a chill and they get the doctor. They ask the medico how to get rid of Armetta's dog and he thinks they mean to kill him for the insurance. Gets his lawyer to help him and they work at heavy-handed cross purposes.

Probably over in the lesser houses, but not much to brag about, and Armetta is not at his best in this style of stuff. Chic.

Hitler's Reign of Terror

Samuel Cummins presents film, with Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and Edwin C. Hill starred as film assemblers and dual commentators. Supervised by Joseph Selden; editor, Sam Rosen; directed by Mike Mindlin. Running time, 60 mins. Caught in projection room, N. Y., April 26.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., went to Europe about two years ago and attempted to make a lot of film of the Hitler rise, installation and effect in Germany. He couldn't cart any of the important footage he got out of the country. This picture is an assembly of the few shots Vanderbilt got out, plus newsreel stuff available in New York on the subject and re-enacting of several interviews Vanderbilt allegedly had with Hitler, Kaiser Wilhelm, his son and his grandson. There is enough exploitive material contained which, added to newspaper wrangles in New York and Chicago over censorship, will get the film some attention for a short time in a few key spots. On the whole, however, it probably won't get important money. As a film production it's poor and doesn't rate as entertainment. To those who may be partial to its provocative and disturbing contents it will not satisfy because actually it's a wishy-washy footage.

It's the re-enacted interviews, plus several other obviously staged and unexplained sequences which will mitigate the film. When word of mouth on this gets around, curiosity will be cooled off.

There is another thing to be taken into consideration and that is the unavoidable fact that Americans have proven themselves cold to Hitler insofar as theatres are concerned. Several stage plays on the subject have flopped badly and several films have been repulsed.

Actually, so far as such films can be, the editing and production job is a good one. Starting by some flashes of Samuel Seabury, Rabbi Wise, Fanny Hurst and Edward Neary, American Legion chieftain, denouncing Nazi-ism at the Madison Square meet in New York last year (although not mentioned as such) it moves to a view of Edwin C. Hill, who reads a similar speech in front of a mike. Hill then says he'll phone his friend Vanderbilt in Berlin and get details. Phone connection is put through and Vanderbilt does some dialog with Hill, inserted news shots illustrating his remarks. Then Vanderbilt is shown returning home, a scene is re-enacted of the films he shot being taken away from him and how he saved several cans by taping them to the bottom of his automobile. From then on he and Hill discuss it comfortably in New York.

Actually, most of what seems really Vanderbilt film concerns Austria and other items away from Hitlerism. There are a few scenes of torture of Jews, there is a clear portrayal of that burning of books by Nazi dictate, already seen on newsreel screen, and that about does it. Then the interviews, the fellow playing Crown Prince being especially obvious.

Ends by some more inserts of Madison Garden speeches, including those of John Hayes Holmes, Raymond Moley and Michael Williams. Also an obviously true interview with Helen Keller, one of the American writers whose book was burned in that bonfire. And ending with a chat by Congressman Dickstein on the subject of the danger of the Silver Shirts growth in the U. S.

It's cleverly done and some of it well done, but a good deal of it is clumsy. Kauf.

Journal of a Crime

Warner Bros. production and release. Stars Ruth Chatterton, with Adolphe Menjou and Claire Dodd in support. Directed by William Keighley. From play by Jacques Deval; screen adaptation, F. Hugh Herbert and Charles Kenyon; camera, Ernest Haller. At Roxy, N. Y., week April 27. Running time, 64 mins.

Francoise ..... Ruth Chatterton
Paul ..... Adolphe Menjou
Odette ..... Claire Dodd
Chautard ..... George Barbier
Cartier ..... Douglas Dumbrille
Costelli ..... Noel Madison
Young Man ..... Philip Reed
Henri ..... Henry Kolker

This is the case history of a woman who loved her husband so much she killed his paramour, and with that secret between them tried to live with him in a hut of hate. As 'Journal of a Crime' records this case history down to a unique climax, it is traveling a trail of drama high in sympathetic interest and material force. Singularly rich in material for women audiences, it is at the same time a good man's picture, and except for children should get the support of the masses.

For Ruth Chatterton 'Journal' offers the best part she has had since 'Madame X.' As the too-loving wife who was guided as much in protecting her husband from a dangerous infatuation as she was by what would seem a pardonable sense of jealousy, the Francolse of the script is Miss Chatterton at her best.

As in 'Madame X,' though not over such a long period of years, Miss Chatterton transforms from a pretty young wife to a woman who's broken in spirit and on the v ge of mental collapse. By degrees the script takes her from the moment she thought she was saving her own heart and her husband by the murder of the latter's girl friend, up to the point where agony of conscience is driving her to confession and jail.

Meantime, she has been paying a heavy penalty by living with her husband under the halo of a hatred that is both enervating and painful.

When it appears there is nothing else to do but let the woman confess her guilt, she is struck by a truck. With this turn the husband's hatred mellows, whether it is out of commiseration or not, and on recovering from the accident the scenario sees to it that the wife's memory of the past has been entirely obliterated. This enables an ending that deviates from the almost inviolate rule of films that all crime must be paid for.

Having lost her memory of the past, but having the faculty to remember in the future, the fade has Adolphe Menjou teaching Miss Chatterton her primer again.

The star comports herself as the self-punished wife in a manner that deeply impresses, while Menjou acquits himself creditably in an assignment that is right up his alley. The murdered girl is Claire Dodd, just the type.

In the direction William Keighley has steered his story and his cast with captainly understanding of dramatic and sympathetic values, not overlooking the details that are important and avoiding those that aren't. Picture runs 64 minutes, and hence is compact. Char.

SHE MADE HER BED

Paramount production and release. Directed by Ralph Murphy. Richard Arlen and Sally Eilers featured. Adapted by Casey Robinson and Frank R. Adams from story, 'Baby in the Ice-Box' by James M. Cain; Milton Krasner, photog. At Rialto, New York, starting April 26. Running time, 71 minutes.

Wild Bill Sml ..... Richard Arlen
Lura Gordon ..... Sally Eilers
Duke Gordon ..... Robert Armstrong
Elve Richards ..... Grace Bradley
Santa Fe ..... Roscoe Ates
Ice Olsen ..... Charley Grapewin
Ron ..... Richard Arlen, Jr.

This is so weak in every other respect, it's doubtful that even Richard Arlen, Sally Eilers and Robert Armstrong as cast names can pull it through. It's a combination comedy and drama, with a melodramatic finish, that just doesn't work out for screen entertainment purposes.

Story swiftly establishes Armstrong and the very s.a.ish Grace Bradley as a pair of unquestionably bad 'uns. But Arlen, supposedly representing the opposite type of person, and the hero of the picture, struggles with a vaguely written characterization. His actions are implausible, as is the story most of the time.

For suspense, script resorts to the loosing of a tiger in a baby's bedroom, and the sustained possibility that the baby will be devoured. It isn't very pleasant.

The baby is Sally Eilers and Armstrong's. Father is a bad egg and a cheater, Arlen being the nice boy who's in love with Eilers. The father redeems himself by going into the house to save the baby, but the tiger gets him. A fire starts, a gasoline can explodes and the house both blows up and burns down. But the baby is saved—mother had put him in the ice box. Latter is the only piece of furniture remaining after the fire, and the baby is found snug and safe among the vegetables and with a chain of frankfurters around his neck. It's a toss-up for the kid between getting killed by the tiger or catching pneumonia in the ice-box. And why the mother runs out of the house leaving the kid in the box, instead of taking him with her, is never explained.

The illicit love stuff between Armstrong and Miss Bradley is pretty warmly presented. Miss Bradley featuring full bosoms and a phonograph that plays 'St. Louis Blues.' The Ellers-Arlen romance, on the other hand, is free from fleshy thoughts.

Except for some carnival lot footage, action is confined to a tourists' camp. Armstrong has a thoroughly unsympathetic role, playing it so that he becomes immediately disliked and remaining so throughout the picture. But his is the only continually believable character. The others are overshadowed by Armstrong due to the nature of their parts. Bige.

Return of Bulldog Drummond

(BRITISH MADE)

Associated British Picture production, released through British International. Directed by Walter Summers. In cast: Ann Todd, Ralph Richardson, Francis L. Sullivan, Claud Allister and others. Running time, 73 mins. Reviewed Prince Edward theatre, London, April 10.

This story is adapted from Sapper's novel, 'The Black Gang.' He also wrote 'Bulldog Drummond,' so it was probably figured good biz office to utilize the Drummond name in the title of the present offering. Captain Drummond is now married, living in seclusion, and after a period of retirement is once more drawn into action by the invasion of a band of foreigners who are agitating for the making of armament. His old enemy, Carl Petersen, turns up again, accompanied by Irma.

Melodrama of the old school is rampant, with enough incidents to make them interesting. Picture, however, is spasmodic and episodic, rather than sequential, and, while some of it is very good, other sections of it won't bear close scrutiny.

Climax has a 'terrific' fight between Drummond's band and the horde of aliens. The way the two sets of contestants struck each other would give the impression of acute femininity of the clinging-vine type.

There is more than sufficient in the picture, plus the drawing power of the title, to cash in on as a top feature for England, and it could easily be utilized as a second feature in a double program in the U. S. Jolo.

BEGGARS IN ERMINE

Monogram production and release. Stars Lionel Atwill. Directed by Phil Rosen. From novel by Esther Lynd Daly; adaptation by Tristram Tupper. Photography, Gilbert Warrenton. At Mayfair, N. Y., week April 23. Running time, 70 mins.

John Dawson ..... Lionel Atwill
Marchant ..... H. B. Walthall
Joyce ..... Betty Furness
James Manley ..... Jamieson Thomas
Lee Marley ..... James Bush
Vivian ..... Astrid Allwyn
Joe Wilson ..... George Hayes
Scott Taggart ..... Stephen Gross

While lacking somewhat in romantic appeal and following a well-worn melodramatic channel, 'Beggars in Ermine' is satisfactory entertainment of its kind and should appeal.

What helps to set the picture apart from the general run charting a similar meller course, is a plot background of novel nature and a part for Lionel Atwill which makes him a crippled hero.

Eased out of a steel mill as its head by a treacherous aide de camp, who not only grabs the plant but the man's wife as well after Atwill has suffered the loss of his legs the plot begins to change. It takes up with beggars all over the world and the efforts of Atwill to organize them all into a fraternal and financial order, wealth of which eventually enables him to regain his steel mill.

The Atwill part is developed with keen understanding for dramatic and sympathetic values, interest following him all the way from his accident to the final coup in market manipulations which turn the steel mill back to him. To some extent, efforts to stress the companionship of the steel magnate with his workers, whose investments in the mill were impaired at the hands of the villains in control, is a little overdone.

Atwill gives a smooth and commanding performance. Dialog has favored him, plus the effective background of steel mills in operation. He has with him as a beggar ally Henry B. Walthall and as his heavy, Jamieson Thomas. Both oke. The girl is Betty Furness and the boy for minor love interest, James Bush.

Generally the supporting cast has been well chosen, except that Bush hardly fits as secretary of a big steel corporation and Stephen Gross as its head counsel appears too much the juvenile type. Char.

FINISHING SCHOOL

RKO Radio production and release. Directed by Wanda Tuchock and George Nicholls, Jr. Frances Dee, Ginger Rogers, Billie Burke, Bruce Cabot, John Halliday featured. Story by David Hempstead; adapted by Wanda Tuchock and Laird Doyle; J. Roy Hunt, photog. At Casino, New York, week April 27. Running time, 70 mins.

Virginia ..... Frances Dee
Mrs. Radcli ..... Billie Burke
Pony ..... Ginger Rogers
Mack Farland ..... Bruce Cabot
Mr. Radcliff ..... John Halliday
Miss Van Alstyn ..... Beulah Bondi
Mrs. Fisher ..... Sara Haden
Ruth ..... Marjorie Lytell
Madeline ..... Adalyn Doyle
Billie ..... Dawn O'Day

A combination 'Flaming Youth'-'Maedchen in Uniform,' portraying the trials and tribulations of the nice and not so nice pupils of a snobbish school for girls, no dice as a picture. A well-behaved and nice-looking cast tries hard, but can't offset an underlying literary handicap that clamps the lid down at the start and keeps it there.

Novel twist is given at the beginning on the title sheet. After the characters are mentioned, the villain is announced. Vil is the school building, where most of the action takes place. Authors' theory, as enacted by the players, is that the owners of such a high-toned place as Crockett Hall don't care what a girl does, or what happens to her, so long as the school's reputation remains unblemished.

Frances Dee, daughter of wealthy parents, is made a victim of the school superintendent's prudishness. She falls in love with a young interne, who doubles as a hotel waiter and therefore doesn't rate socially. School mistress keeps them apart for 71 minutes. But the picture runs 72.

Miss Dee, as the wealthy but unhappy Virginia Radcliff, takes her troubles very seriously, even so far as contemplating suicide on one occasion. But it's doubtful whether the part, as written, will induce audiences to take it as seriously as she does.

Ginger Rogers' role is much more acceptable. As Miss Dee's roommate, Miss Rogers is the unconventional type. Regarding the school's rules and regulations, Miss Rogers says, 'You can do anything you like, as long as you don't get caught.' Miss Rogers proceeds to break the rules, wise-cracking all the while, and classes as the picture's one and only comic.

In many respects Billie Burke's part here is so similar to her role in 'Dinner at Eight,' she seems to be reading the same lines once more. She's the girl's mother, caring more about her social obligations and the hang of her gown than the welfare of her daughter. Script gives Miss Burke a chance to troupe as she best knows how, and as a result she appears to top the cast on performance. John Halliday, Bruce Cabot and Beulah Bondi, in more or less straight parts, are satisfactory.

Plot might have been more valuable as a musical comedy book, and is still serviceable for musical adaptation, because 'Finishing School' isn't likely to be seen where the good ones are played. Bige.

Honor of the Range

Universal production and release. Starring Ken Maynard. Directed by Alan James. Story by Nate Gazert. At Tivoli, double feature bill, April 27. Running time 60 mins.

Boots ..... Frank Hagney
Rocky ..... Jack Rockwell
Turner ..... James Marcus
Smoky ..... Al Smith
Charlie ..... Eddie Barnes
Saloonkeeper ..... Franklin Farnum
Tarzan ..... Tarzan

A mountain blows up. A horse nonchalantly kicks open rock doors that a score of men can scarcely budge. A bad man has a church organ in his camp and during a battle the hero's girl plays it. Those are a few of the items this basket of western groceries contains. Action is there in broad cuts and so are laughs that dime audiences appreciate.

Why he did it is not explained but Ken Maynard in doubling for his weak brother proves that once a hard riding, tense jawed man of the saddle never a character actor. Yet vice-versa, Fred Kohler proves that a character man can take any kind of a part and put it over. Kohler does the bad guy as though he had been brought up in the saddle.

This isn't to be mistaken for the average shot-off-cuff western. U went to a lot of trouble and the camera crew had to do more than the average angling. They even have a general store giving up to flame effects as phoney as the rocket-like glares that streak out of six-shooters every time a trigger indicates squeezing.

When Maynard as the weak brother, who gives the safe combination to the gang and tries to steal the girl, repents and touches off the fuse which rocks the mountain, then Ken as the strong brother weeps, pays back the money, and marries the girl. And the girl, in Cecelia Parker, never gets her finger wave ruffled or forgets her expression of glassy-like innocence. Waly.

Bedrich Smetana, Czech composer of this opera, probably would be very much abashed by its mien as a film. It's a beautiful opera, actually, but filmatically emerges weak musically, although not so bad from a straight farce comedy standpoint. Director of the film, in trying to avoid stamping it as an opera, swayed back too far. It's now neither fish nor herring, too high-brow for ordinary fare-lovers and too bad, musically, for those who might be attracted by its fame as an opera.

Jarmila Novotna, best of the Czech singers and with considerable fame through Europe, was a bad choice for the lead in view of the film's unmusical handling. She can't act well enough and doesn't photograph any too well. Sound, also, as it happens, is way off, making a complete hash of it.

Paul Kemp and Otto Wernicke, German film comedians, come out best in the supporting cast.

Story is one of those mixed romantic themes of two boys and two girls who fall in love in criss-cross fashion. Several entanglements all four ways before it's straightened out, although possible considerable of the audience, even if thoroughly acquainted with German won't get the tangles unsnarled at all. Without a knowledge of the language it's completely hopeless. Kauf.

Adieu Les Beaux Jours

('Goodbye, Beautiful Days')
(GERMAN MADE)
(French Talker)

UFA production and release, starring Brigitte Helm and featuring Jean Gabin. French version directed by Andre Beucler and Jean Boyer, original direction of Johannes Meyer; French dialog, Pierre France; music, E. E. Buder and Raoul Ploquin. At the 55th St. Playhouse, N. Y., week April 21. Running time, 95 mins.

Olga ..... Brigitte Helm
Pierre ..... Jean Gabin
Alexander ..... Henry Bosc
The Jeweler Dergan ..... Lucien Dayle
Producer Romay ..... Henri Vilbert
Commissioner Marle ..... Andre Nicolle
Marlette ..... Ginette Leclerc
Commissioner Dampreil ..... Thomy Bourdelle
Fred ..... Jean Carette

For obvious reasons, producers of this film are hiding their identity and presenting it as completely French, afraid that the German origin may hurt its b.o. potentialities. Well, it might, too, because, as a French film, it stands a pretty good chance; it's better than the average turned out by the French on their own. Nevertheless, its appeal in the United States is necessarily limited.

It's a crook yarn made by Ufa with an entirely French cast, except in the instance of the star, Brigitte Helm, who speaks either French or German equally well. She made both versions of the picture. Film has a lot of appeal in its own because it is a fast-action yarn photographed against a background of beautiful scenery.

Miss Helm is a high-pressure crook. By a very clever ruse she steals a costly pearl necklace and escapes in a high-powered car to Spain. That allows for a lot of beautiful scenery and plenty of action, as she's almost caught several times. A young and good-looking advertising man, Jean Gabin, helps her out of her dilemma unwittingly, and she spends several beautiful days with him. It's allegedly love at first sight and all is well. But after a few days the cops trace her and arrest her, giving the film its title, as the young lad walks away, puzzled by his adventure.

Miss Helm is, and has been for a number of years, one of Germany's best actresses and is as effective here as she has ever been. Gabin is one of the younger French juveniles who seems to have a future. With some adroit handling he can develop into a big star.

Picture has that excellent production value for which Ufa was once famous in Europe and stands out above the run-of-the-mill French product. Possibly realizing that its appeal is limited, distributors have not bothered with superimposed titles, but use some cut-in tables of explanation which seriously hamper action. Kauf.

WITCHING HOUR

Bayard Veiller production and Paramount release. Directed by Henry Hathaway. From the play by Augustus Thomas. Salisbury Field, adaptation; Anthony Veiller, screen play; Ben Reynolds, camera. At the Paramount, N. Y., week April 27. Running time, 64 min.

Martin Prentice ..... Str Guy Standing
Jack Brookfield ..... John Halliday
Nancy Brookfield ..... Judith Allen
Clay Thorne ..... Tom Brown
Mrs. Thorne ..... Olive Tell
Foreman of Jury ..... William Frawley
Lew Ellinger ..... Richard Carle
Frank Hardmuth ..... Ralf Harolde
District Attorney ..... Parnell Pratt
Chief of Police ..... Frank Sheridan

Done by Paramount as a silent in 1921, the Augustus Thomas stage play still has a punch for the nabes and probably will make fair grosses in the more important spots. Should build on word of mouth for run spots since the acting and production averages are excellent. Handicap is a lack of names for the marquee. Something might be done to overcome this in the advance advertising.

The story is a bit old-fashioned. Hypnotism was newer when it was first staged than it is now, but it still packs a punch for those who do not insist on extreme plausibility, and the master touch of one of our few great native dramatists still stands out in the photographic translation. It does not help much that there's a court room scene, but it is, well, at times deftly, handled, and the scenarist rates a share of the credit, but it is the acting and direction which will chiefly put this picture over. A few comedy touches might have been better, but in the main the action moves fluently and swiftly.

Story is familiar to most persons; the hypnotizing of the hero, who unconsciously takes more than the intended suggestion from his magnetizer, and in addition to overcoming his aversion to a certain jewel also shoots a man, with the jury swayed for acquittal when the shrewd old lawyer has the same man hypnotize the foreman of the jury.

Sir Guy Standing heads the cast as the lawyer, but he shares the honors with John Halliday, as the gambler; a good part even in incompetent hands, but gaining through the certain touch of the present player. Judith Allen, who does not always screen well, is acceptable, but unimportant, as the girl, and Tom Brown makes a likable and convincing youth. He had a fine chance to tear passion to tatters and spoil things, but he doesn't. Other chief players hold their ends up, but a couple stand out better, particularly William Frawley, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Purnell Pratt.

Picture is well staged, in the period of the '90's, and if you can accept the hypnotic angle, it's thoroughly well done. Chic.

El Agua en el Suelo

('Water on the Ground')
(SPANISH MADE)

Madrid, April 18.

CIFESA release of CEA production. Directed by Eusebio F. Ardavin. Story and screen play by S. and J. Alvarez Quintero; music by Maestro Francisco Alonso; features Maruchi Fresno, Nicholas Navarro and Jose Calle. At Callao theatre, Madrid. Running time, 85 mins.

This is a distinct improvement on recent Spanish films. The Alvarez Quintero brothers, noted local playwrights, have tried their hand at the screen with their familiar style of dialogue, which their compatriots like. Direction of Eusebio Ardavin, an author, looks okay. He gives the film a tender and religious touch which could have been mishandled and miscued if it had been in less able hands, considering the delicate theme.

Story is about a beautiful girl who is encouraged in her religious and charitable activities by a young priest. A scandal sheet publishes a poem in double-entendre about the couple and they have to leave the town, each going his and her separate path. A few years later the author of the poem meets the girl for the first time and falls in love with her. The inevitable forgiveness by the gal and later by the priest bring the pic to a sentimental ending.

Jose Calle as the priest stands out in the cast, with Nicholas Navarro second as the poet. Senorita Maruchi Fresno, fine interest, has plenty of what it takes as far as looks are concerned, but depends too much on looks to put her over.

Another weakness in the cast is the use of character actors whose voices are not clear and who can hardly be understood.

Photography by Henry Barreyre and Jose Beltran is oke. Couple of cathedral and hillside shots are pips.

Film looks very good for Catholic countries, with a Spanish viewpoint, but probably no go any place else.

STATE, N. Y.

Joe Penner's presence at the State this week as headliner at a salary five or six times greater than his standard figure prior to radio again focuses attention upon what the air can do for an act. Years ago when vaudeville flourished, performers slowly advanced from Ackerman & Harris to Gus Sun to W. V. M. A. to Keith family time and maybe after plenty of trouping they polished themselves into what was known as the class. And then they played the Palace. That was the peak.

On the way from the death trails of the far west to the flossy two-a-day or the east the performer probably had a salary differential from $40 a week to $450. And at $450 they could wear spats and half the Kimberly mine. They had arrived. Things have, in the trite phrase, changed a lot. By way of added evidence there's the week-ago case of Block and Sully. They were liked on a radio program one night. One radio program and one night. Their vaudeville salary catapulted $500 the next day!

Joe Penner himself at the beginning of his career was laboring in a Cincinnati burlesque honky-tonk for $40 a week. Up to the time he hit the kilocycles he had escalated that figure to a reputed $750 or thereabouts. A long hop but just a curbstone compared to the monumental mathematical ladder he has since climbed. Because of radio and a couple of catch-phrases that captured the public fancy.

As a vaudeville performer before radio Penner did the same act, sang the same songs, used practically the same set of bodily and vocal mannerisms he is still employing. He did well, worked pretty steadily. But probably the extent of his word-of-mouth comment among the public was one peasant telling another peasant, 'There was a funny fellow at the Arcade last night—his hat kept bouncing when he danced.' It didn't translate into paid admissions.

Now thanks to the magic of broadcasting, Penner's phrases are mouthed by thousands of school-kids, he's a national figure, the ordinary lights in front of theatres aren't big enough, and he needs a wheelbarrow to tote his percentage of the grosses to the bank.

No wonder performers are daffy to make radio. No wonder they'll work so cheap for radio, knowing what happens to their theatre salaries if they become sprinkled with that sweet ether.

At present Penner uses Monk Purcell and Dick Ryan for a couple of bits. Right out of burlesque. Winding up with his regular song and dance. It's not an act to make arnica mandatory on overworked tummy muscles. Nobody will be carried out in paroxysms induced by excessive merriment. But it's apparent that as an attraction, Penner fills plenty of seats. Even with an all-day rain Friday (27) it was evident that the State is heading for a snappy stanza.

Five trolls a day because of Penner means that the show has zip since it has been speeded up. Saxon Sisters, for example, held to two numbers and an encore. Joe and Jane McKenna pranced through in a scant 10 minutes. Monroe and Grant, closing, were equally brief. Act that most needed cutting did not. That's Bernice and Emily and the Three Long Brothers (New Acts).

For the screen end Penner has 'Catherine the Great' (UA). With only Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., known to the general public, this is perhaps a dubious supporting attraction to the rank and file despite the film rating high artistically. Land.

PARAMOUNT, N. Y.

It's mostly George Jessel at the Paramount this week, but with Ethel Merman and Harriet Hoctor giving strong support. House gets the advantage of the publicity from his recent marriage, but he has the good taste to avoid all references. He's in for master of ceremonies, but he doesn't try to horn in on the applause due the others. He knows he can afford to wait for it when it comes his first of the job comes when he's on to open the show cold. He's in a spot but manages to get them warmed up, and after that everyone is friends. Actual opening is a star dance by the Danny Dare girls, working taps in unison on stairways terraced three deep. Nice looking, but unimportant until Davy Krafts happens along for some stair-acrobatic work for the finish.

Then Jessel for the first out and scores as well as can be expected in that position, announcing Ethel Merman, who opens with a medley of her hits. Gets a hand in this and taken off her coat wrap to unveil a wonderful back. She got plenty more applause for 'Love Thy Neighbor,' but she didn't take anything more off and she did not take an encore other than a couple of bows. Saving up.

Harriet Hoctor next for her 'Pink Ballet' prefaced by a solo in soft shoes that was really more to the liking of the mob than the more severe ballet work. They could sense her artistry in this section, but most of them could not appreciate it.

Jessel back for his main effort, and got some laughs for his chatter, with a blackout on the NRA that's an audience scream, but a yell to the few actors in the crowd. He first used it in the ill-fated Casino Varities. Gag is that the code calls for part-time work and a walking delegate sits on the stage beside a time clock and blows the whistle as the shifts change.

Worked for full effect and then Jessel gets back on the bobtailed runway and wows them with the telephone bit. Probably he'll never be able to shake this, and no good reason why he should when he can collect as he is doing this week. Keeps ringing the changes on the old idea, so he can keep his material fresh, but they began to chuckle when he reached for the phone. Only thing that saved him from having to take an encore was a quick break into a finish for the can-can on a miniature stage as a prelude to the Merman in 'Eadie Was a Lady.' Didn't seem to be anything to follow that up with that could top, so called a day for 59 minutes of pretty solid entertainment.

Johnny Green was in the orchestra pit for a medley of his songs, and at the piano for his pet selection. No build-up but the audience seemed to get the idea.

Film is 'The Witching Hour' (Par), and business excellent at the first night show with the crowd still coming in. Chic.

STATE-LAKE, CHI

Chicago, April 27.

House has developed a remarkable pace for steady patronage. People have learned just what to expect for their money when they come here. Six standard acts against a line of girls and a band, plus a feature picture, for two-bits. They sometimes get more, never less. It's a case of consistent quality and quantity building up a vaude house. And the history of this house under Aaron Jones is a lesson in what vaude needs for a real come-back. It needs a man who will give the public steady money's worth entertainment.

Jones demonstrates that shock names are not essential to vaude business and box-office. He demonstrates once more what the old-time vaude moguls knew, that vaude is a habit that must be acquired by the public. That it isn't the question of breaking a house record one week and losing your shirt the next. But a simple, steady patronage that comes to the house week after week to see a good show for money they can afford.

In the old days it used to be simply Keith vaude, or Orpheum vaude, or Pantages vaude. Names were rarely billed above the entertainment or house policy, and it meant steady profits throughout the year. Now Aaron Jones brings that back with a socking box-office lesson when he teaches the Chicago public to come week after week to see not freak attractions, not gasp stuff, but genuine State-Lake vaudeville.

Current show is solid entertainment throughout without going overboard for stunt stuff. Alice Joy of radio fits as a suitable 'headliner' for this house. Sings her songs quietly and pleasantly in the radio style. She hugs close to the mike and relies plenty on her reputation. It was what the public expected of Miss Joy and they were not disappointed.

Opening were Ray, Rich and Dell, who stall plenty trying to snatch laughs. Have borrowed knockabout comedy ideas from everybody and would do better if they learned to dance or sing efficiently. As it is they are doing a lot of everything and nothing sufficiently well. Gus Robey and gang in deuce was typical of the material this house can use to its advantage. Homely humor from a man in the box, a youthful singer, and an actorish Gus Robey to weld the thing together.

After Miss Joy in the trey came Prof. Lamberti to finish the vaude section with a mess of howls on his comedy xylophone turn. He wrapped this audience up and took it home. They're probably still going into stitches when they remember Lamberti's fireman's underwear and his torn sack. Ace entertainment for this mob.

Band show is set against a naval background this week, with the gals in line doing sailor routines and at least one act using sailor costumes. Jack and Buddy is not the regular name for this act, but it didn't make any difference to this audience. That midgy passed for a kid without trouble here, and the audience wouldn't let him go after they squinted his cross-fire, singing and hoofing. Rene and Rathburn have a finish that makes their turn. That's the contortion leg bit. On that alone it is an act that 40c audiences rave about. Other performer on the show is Doris Hurtig, who warbles with the band.

Excellent business here at the supper show on Friday. Feature was 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (RKO). Gold.

LONDON PALLADIUM

London, April 17.

Another idea misfires here this week, and, strangely enough, it also comes from the British Corporation's bag of tricks. In this case it is a pity, for 'In Town Tonight' is worthwhile. It was introduced by the B. B. C. a year ago, being more or less a 'Guest Night,' idea, as done in America for years, and has proved one of the best features on the ether here.

At the Palladium the thing is staged in the second portion of the bill, taking about an hour. Far too much material there, with lots of it not up to standard of the house. One could dispose of Clifford Moses, a Mrs. Jack Hylton discovery from Wales. Youth does a Za-Su Pitts and Garbo. Ideal Sunday school entertainment. Nor would Beryl Orde's Mae West impression be missed, with the Three Southern Sisters, in chopped harmony, also not essential. By the time these had made their appearance the house became restless, with some walking out.

There were four acts in this show that should have been given plenty of time, however. Albert Sandler played the violin divinely. Western Brothers, with very clever material, could have done more. Coleman Hawkins played two numbers on the sax, begging off with a speech, and Bob Murphy, with Dick and Dorothy, in their fourth visit here, recently came on at 11:30, socking them with three numbers. Had to remind the audience they have homes to go to.

Rest of the bill had Forsythe, Seamon and Farrell, and Cliff Edwards, both holdovers, and both repeating their last week's success. Vic Oliver, with Margot Crangle, in one of his frequent repeats here, hit them very hard. Mrs. Jack Hylton, who has made a reputation in the last year as a band leader, has a much smaller outfit than her husband's. Relies more on brass, with a crooner or two, a few bits of comedy and several of Jack's mannerisms.

'Butch' (Leslie A. Hutchinson), billed as 'British Radio and Gramophone star,' is a colored boy who has come to the fore here as a society entertainer. Has a very forceful personality, which is liked here. Max Miller has not been clicking so well here lately. Entirely due to material not being up to standard. Which shows that even a clever artist must have material.

Opening first half were Three Auroras, continental head-to-head balancers on bicycles, with second half openers being a local act, the Three Loose Screws, type of 'nut' act built up locally and mostly culled from recent importations.

House practically capacity.

ROXY, N. Y.

They dish it up a little differently this week at the big seater on Seventh avenue, hard by some new opposition in the form of the Casino, which Friday (27) went into a combination policy at a 55c top. The Roxy regulars won't be driven away, however, by what they'll get here on both stage and screen and should be conducive to drawing them back.

In support of the Ruth Chatterton picture, 'Journal of Crime' (WB), the best this star has had in a long time, the stage serves a rather appetizing Fanchon & Marco revue, which Friday is it new in idea, including the novel use of a film cartoon short, but among its personnel are some entertainers whose efforts raise the standard rather high currently.

An unusually fine act is the opener, the wire performance of Olvido Perez (New Acts), a marvel in the slack wire line, topping anything that's been seen. Perez includes a ladder-balancing trick which attests to the uncanny balance displayed. No umbrella used at any time. It may appear a little odd to see wire acts in picture houses, but this one would stop the opera at the Met if it could get in.

Billy Costello, the young lad who does the offscreen voice of Popeye, the Sailor Man, for the Paramount cartoon series, is also on the show, and the manner in which he's spotted proves novel.

House booked in the Popeye short, 'The Man on the Flying Trapeze,' and as the girls down on the stage floor in front of the screen while it's being shown to keep it within the atmosphere of the stage show. Then, on its conclusion, Costello comes forward to do his bit.

He plays a uke and sings a number a la Cliff Edwards, then the 'Trapeze' number as Popeye, and 'Lo, Louis Blues' as the sailor character might tackle it. It all works out in an entertaining fashion.

Balance of the show consists of a production number, including the Cubanacans, rumba outfit from a Harlem spot called the Cubanacan, fast Spanish dance trio of Romero Brothers and the girls; Marty May's comedy act, and a song interlude with the m.c., Wesley Eddy.

Cubanacans, dispensing haunting melodies, are spotted in the pit. In addition to their orchestra efforts, the nine men interest vocally, notably one who does a solo. The 'Carioca' naturally figures for the finish, with the line of Gae Foster leglifters for production background. The same girls have an effective number on the opening in which they dance around and on chairs.

Marty May, assisted by the chattering Jean Carroll, did much better here with the same material than recently at the Albee, Brooklyn, getting across strong Friday night.

A few diverting moments with Eddy carrying via 'You're Mean to Me,' straight, as an Italian would do it, as Helen Kane would boop-a-doop it, and finally as a colored lad would kick it out.

Show runs 61 minutes, not too long for what it contains. A short with the Ritz Bros., 'Hotel Anchovy' (Educ), and a lot of newsreel fills out. Char.

PALACE, N. Y.

Better than average variety at the Palace this week, although it doesn't quite jell into a good unit. The five turns on their own have sufficient quality to please.

After a mild overture by Dave Mordecai's pit lads, Ray and Sunshine start proceedings in rapid shape. This is the team that used to be Hudson Wonders, a peach of a child acrobatic act only a few years ago. Two girls have bloomed into young womanhood and the astonishing agility they showed as kiddies is no less a sock now. They're earnest workers, on only six minutes, but fast and furious, all the way without even stopping to collect the full share of their applause along the route.

Two Daveys in the deuce is a bit higher notch than deserved. Davey is a juggler who's been around, lo, these many years, and should have more courtesy than to rush on before the hand for the previous turn is finished. He's a good juggler, one of the best, and has a spirited and witty tongue. But his material, as portrayed Friday night, was entirely questionable in taste. He's a good show-opener, but not more than that.

Grace Hayes is introed as presented by NBC. She shouldn't need advice on stage appearance after her healthy background of show experience, but unfortunately does. First three or four minutes of her turn are very cold and out of place. Then she gets going and, especially after bringing on her son, Lind Hayes, manages to unwind a completely new angle in revue acts. It's very good from then on and is plenty alibi for her being headlined, but that opening still needs fixing.

Ross and Edwards, next to shut, also have a tough time getting started, but win out after a bit. It's the goofy chatter and tongue-twisting that gets them started and that dancing stooge of theirs finishes up.

Gomez and Winona, with Paul Tisen's orchestra, is a beautiful flash act and sends the customers away happily. Staging and routining are both in good taste and the artists, of course, topnotch.

Screen is occupied by 'Earth Turns' (WB). Friday night saw the theatre less than one-quarter occupied. Kauf.

FOX, BROOKLYN

Olga Baclanova, a breath from the old silent days when a vamp was something more than part of a shoe, headlines the current stage show. It's her second appearance this season on a New York stage, her first having been as star of a short-lived legiter. In the latter she got every opportunity to slink her svelte blondeness to her heart's content, but in variety she's sticking to songs and one comedy bit with the Fox's m.c., Bert Frohman.

With the vamping out, Baclanova uncorks a pleasing singing voice and a rather charming accent in her speech. However, that blackout she does with Frohman is from hunger. It's the old 'husband's return' gag, and its one redeeming factor is that Baclanova makes such a darned good-looking wife.

Remainder of the 'Spring Karnival' presentation is above the average for this Brooklyn family spot. Besides Baclanova and Frohman, it includes Hunter and Percivale, mixed comedy team, a three-male Chinese novelty and a mixed dance team. The latter two turns, both good, are unbilled out front and, while the Chinese act is unannounced entirely, the mixed team's introduction by Frohman could not be grasped.

Hunter and Percivale clicked nicely, the male's wopology going for a lot of laughs to his blonde's straighting. Frohman, who does not make his appearance until after the perch, risley and Japanese juggling work of the Chinese, paces the layout rather well, doubling between the introductions and batoning the pit-band on the stage. He started badly, though, with an old, over-long gag.

House line of 24 girls is steadily improving here, their routines in this show meriting high praise in comparison to what this theatre had been getting from its ensemble up until a few weeks ago.

Till Tell the World' (U) on the screen following the 70-minute stage show. Biz good opening night (Friday).

MEDRANO, PARIS

Paris, April 20.

Bianca Bordoni, daughter of Grock, the clown, makes her circus debut this week at Medrano with Marshall Hall, versatile American dancer, musician and producer to whom she has just been married, and with a third anonymous partner. Her famous father got his start in the same ring many years ago.

Heavy publicity, based on the wedding and using Grock's name, was spread through French and local American press in an attempt to put the new act over. As entertainment, however, number is pretty meager. Might get by in some nite clubs, but it doesn't carry in a circus.

Bianca and Hall open with a two-piano jazz number and she sings. Third partner does an eccentric dance, which is best feature of the act. Hall then produces a sax, working in a duet again with Bianca, and all three appear in a finale. No real distinction anywhere.

It's a bad week for American acts here in general; another billed as Clemens Belling, isn't doing so well. Belling does comedy juggling, aided by a couple of girls and two dogs. He has some pretty good stuff, particularly a dog-and-hoop stunt, but the girls are not so hot and the act needs pulling together.

Best on the bill, beside the regular Medrano clowns and the Schumann cavalry, are the Three Ariels, equilibrists, with a pole act. Stern.

MET, BROOKLYN

Regulation bill of five acts, rating slightly above the average and nicely balanced, with likelihood of some lure in names of Jim Barton and Will Osborne. They walked on the latter's final band number at the first Saturday show, after the turn had gone 22 minutes and started tiring 'em. Too many straight band numbers in the routine which slow things up. Final number could easily be done without.

Osborne carries no specialty entertainers. There's a girl who comes on to take part in the number suggesting confusion in a broadcasting room just before going on the air, but she doesn't return, which leaves specialty work up to Osborne himself. No solos from any of the men, either.

Barton was late in getting on and Al Stone, from the previous act, had to fill in with a gag. Comedian-dancer-singer did 12 minutes, not including an encore. Close was not so strong as to force the encore, and Barton let it go at that.

Middle of the bill shelters team of Stone and Lee, who please in a melange of comedy talk, clowning, music and dancing, while No. 2 holds sister twain of Margot and Libby Robin. Girls do impersonations which suffer from bad diction, but are entertaining. Libby Robin's bit as Katherine Hepburn is her best, while her sister's try as Wynn proves good. The two, as Mae West and Garbo meeting on the street, finish well with West gags gettings the laffs.

A cute little animal act which the kids love opens the show, Gautier's Toy Shop. The shetlands and dogs are well trained four-footers that put on an amusing show for 10 minutes. Opened fine.

Business rather blah when caught, with the big Met half empty. Picture, 'Looking For Trouble' (UA). Char.

ORPHEUM, LINCOLN

Lincoln, April

There's a gag in this show that listens: 'Well, if you're goin' to be rotten, be good and rotten; and so everybody tried to live up to it. There are parts that are oke, but it takes a good eye to ferret them out.

Danny Hurwyn of Wyn and Hurwyn (No. 3) acts as the m. c. Talks fair and has but one outstanding bit, an acrobatic soft shoe which would be a substantial click on any bill. No. 1 is the only part of the show that's an attention focuser. It's the Mijares and Co. turn, circus wire act. Almost a single, since the girl only looks nice to march on and carry props. Boy up on the wire does a drunk dance.

Hal Rawin, novelty fiddler, follows and, although he scrapes a pretty bad set of strings, takes the edge off by doing some tap and Russian hops simultaneously. Has both a straight violin number and one with a Neon lighted instrument which is a good flash. Wyn and Hurwyn in the trey are good dancers and should stick to that. Their talk and song so-soed or worse.

Shut is left for Rosita Royce, who used to be a fan dancer, but now is trying to keep the natives from seeing meat with scarfs. It's a sort of relief from the fly fanner appearances which have been made here, but it doesn't have the zip over the footlights like the plumes do.

Pic 'Showoff' (MG) and shorts. Back at 25c top. Biz average. Barney.

ALHAMBRA, LONDON

London, April 17.

House grossed around $9,000 last week, and Sir Oswald Stoll highly satisfied with his new venture.

Two important holdovers are Jack Doyle, singing boxing champ, doing same act as last week, and Gillie Potter in a rehash of an old vehicle, which is much better than his last week's offering.

Newcomers are Leon Rogee, clever musical instrument mimic. Has been around the West-End quite a while but still new to the mob here, which shows the Alhambra is building a clientele of its own.

The Marvellous Essedras, continental balancing act, do some clever stunts on a wire and ladder, and some good jaw work.

Hetty King, male impersonator, finds out that this type of act is no longer in demand.

Scott and Whaley, colored boys, have been doing same act for last 12 years, and about time they shelved it and got something new. Boys are booked for the new British Broadcasting Corporation film, and are not worrying much.

Leslie Weston, clever raconteur, has a fine delivery. Quite a popular act on the air, too. Jack Stanford, an excellent mime dancer, does a clever apache burlesque dance. Played for Shuberts a few years ago, with unpleasant memory still lingering.

Robert Naylor and Sylvia Cecil, are operatic singers. Naylor came to the fore when he understudied Richard Tauber in 'Land of Smiles,' at Drury Lane some three years ago. Since then he has had several partners, with Cecil his third. Team have good choice of numbers, finishing with 'You Are My Heart's Delight' to a splendid reception.

Nice, Florio and Lubow are in the closing spot, which is all wrong, as this is a clever acro dance team with several mannerisms that are their own. Despite this, act does as well as anything on the bill.

Seemingly Stoll is out for names, as Bobby Howes is due here next week, with George Raft negotiated for. Raft is asking for $5,000 per, and has been offered salary and percentage of grosses, with deal thought likely to materialize.

PALACE, CHICAGO

Chicago, April 27.

House is in a peculiar position and a position that isn't so comfortable. Changing the top admission price in the midwest, it has had a difficult time of it for the past two months. The attractions have been weak, not only for an 83c. top, but when compared with the rival houses charging half as much. Shows have been sloppy, cheap and without meaning in entertainment or box-office.

Much fuss is being made by the RKO vaude department over acts playing rival houses. Palace is insisting on a 60-day protection on acts before allowing them to play opposition spots. This is a silly and meaningless gesture. Not only does it fail to keep acts from playing opposition, but it only serves to keep good acts from playing the Palace at all. Rather than risk a 60-day protection clause for the one week the Palace can offer, many acts are turning down the date and accepting bookings in opposition spots here, such as the B. & K. time, which offers as much as six weeks locally, or the State-Lake, which, through the Billy Diamond book, has more than the Palace can give an act. Though the Palace has declared its 60-day protection, acts are going into the other houses almost immediately, simply changing their names. Palace is not only incurring the enmity of acts, but also does not accomplish its purpose of keeping acts out of the opposition theatres.

Palace this week brings back Phil Baker and his Armour show troupe for a two-week stay. This is an early repeat for Baker, having played a fortnight here about six months ago. Show is called the Baker revue, with the accordionist working throughout the running time. That Baker is box-office is demonstrated by the well-filled main floor at the opening show on Friday, the first time there's been so much business here in a dog's age. House indicates a chance to go into the profit side of the ledger this week.

Top list of standard acts assist in current show. Gracie Barrie is here again and brings a constantly satisfying pair of pipes. Miss Barrie has the stamp of quality. An individual style in song-selling, backed by face and figure that are eye-filling. Entertainment to the hilt.

Also returning, but after a longer absence, is Buster West. Has a couple of new helpers, Carter De Haven, Jr., and Sandra Ward. But it's all West, particularly when he brings his act to a brilliant finish with his comedy dance number. The rest of the turn is largely by-the-way, but everything is forgiven when West takes to his shoes.

Baker again has Harry McNaughton and Mabel Albertson as chief assistants, though they are working less than usual. Miss Albertson is singing one song in Russian, besides some cross-fire clowning and a bit in a blackout, and making every moment count. She's a thorough performer.

Man in the box is still Baker's best bet. The material in this part of the act continues at standout level. Cleverly thought out, the lines top each other for climbing laughs.

Danny Russo brings his orchestra out of the trench this week to finish on the stage as a background for a couple of dancing turns. Melissa Mason, the 1934 Charlotte Greenwood, is dancing in a long-legged manner, while the adagio act of Karre and LeBaron adds the ballroom touch to the afternoon. For the finish, Baker slings the pump organ over his shoulder for a concert.

First show was largely rehearsal for the entire Baker routine, but handled with that carefree manner than makes audiences feel at home, and Baker got laughs out of the fumbles.

'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col) feature. Business good. Gold.

NEWSREELS

(EMBASSY, NEW YORK)

The newsreels deliver for a change, judging from the representative program this week. There's not more than about 10% filler material. Remainder is in the class of fresh, and occasionally spot, news.

Camera boys evidently were even further away from Dillinger than the Federal men. They didn't arrive until after Little Bohemia had been sprayed with lead, which provided sufficient holes to make the picture look authentic. Pathe only proved, by interviewing hold-up victims of Dilly, that the killer isn't such a bad guy, at least from their perspective. The innkeeper whose place was riddled called him 'very congenial,' and a housewife termed him 'very kind.'

After such statements from eye-witnesses the reel reporter's efforts to give the subject a blood-curdling finis fouled rather conspicuously with the audience. There was a reaction in more attentive attendees that if Dillinger remains at large much longer and more such interviews are obtained, there may be some petitions circulated to make him President.

Paramount boys took a pleasure ride with some gobs when the fleet tarried in Panama. Although beer signs were included, the cameras kept away from bars and favored the boys at the harmless pastime of teasing monkeys and parrots. The navy subject gave Pathe views of Guantanamo, U. S. Marine base in Cuba.

Only two people were killed in an Austrian train wreck and Universal, which covered this, neglected to get views of either corpse.

Guffaws rather than melodious laughs from Mayor La Guardia's pose in the pitcher's box. There is a hand for President Roosevelt tossing the ball in Washington. Incidentally, the President always has a gag for audiences when he is away from the White House. This time it's 'Last year I almost killed a photographer.'

Philadelphia police pose willingly for Pathe cameras while knit mill pickets are flounced around. Audience laughed when a woman was heaved into the green wagon.

Poor recording, or atmospheric difficulties, make Nathan Burkan reproduce almost unintelligibly about the New Tammany (Pathe), and blurr the witticisms of Shaw in Australia (U).

Maybe every time Sweden's King plays tennis a new clip is made, but the one in current issues from Universal not only looks the same but sounds identical. Same is true of a particular Long Island swan which appears about this time every year in the same act, with either Fox or Hearst taking credit.

Paramount's silent titles call attention to England's silence on the war debt, after which Chamberlain plugs his country as now having a surplus while others, including the U. S., are still deep in the red. The subject is excellent for home audience consumption, but it will not aid propagation of good-will elsewhere.

While Pathe was reviewing effects of the land collapse in Norway, Paramount was covering the aftermath of an Italian landslide.

Model of world's tallest building, which is to be erected in Moscow, afforded Paramount its worthwhile clip. Same reel also had more about Chicago teachers' pay protest, with little action other than a parade. The 19-year-old girl who regained her sight told a Par contact man the thing she most enjoyed seeing was a baseball game.

Insull subjects during the past month impress as coming from the same reel. They all show him with his hat over his eyes, either going in or coming out of a building.

Floods, pet shows, Italian tanks, Mussolini, salmon, marathons, steeplechases, cherry blossoms, Lindbergh christening, legal betting in New York, Rome's altitude filer, Long Beach (Cal.) twin convention, Macon, Annapolis—they're not forgotten.

Cardinal Hayes doesn't very often pose. Celebration of an anniversary and opening of the Catholic Charities Drive gave the reels their opportunity not only to get pictures but also a few words from the Cardinal, and his blessing. Waly.

PARAMOUNT, B'KLYN

Simple logic of showmanship relates that there's no ingenuity in nudity. The undress stuff is what hurts regular film houses more than anything else. There's a simple q.e.d. to all this. That is that the theatre in most towns is a family institution.

Thus it's illogical showmanship for the Alton Girls to be in transparent brassieres.

The 'Ebony Rhapsody,' which is not unlike other arm and leg dansapations that the film house stage shows usually project nowadays, could just as well fit without the nude angle.

Otherwise, the Brooklyn Par boasts a natty and fast piece of stagecraft in practically all departments in the current week except for certain settings. On the performer end the weakness is in make-up. That goes for two otherwise skillful players—namely, Paul Draper and Edna Torrence. Draper's facial make-up detracts from a full reception to his unusually clever dancing.

Gertrude Niesen, who takes the middle of the current bill, shows distinctly well. She has learned to dress, and that white gown becomes her figure and person, rather than the sombre colors she was wont to wear. Miss Niesen looks like a different personality. Three numbers and all over even with the none too heavy audience that was around Friday (change day) night. When caught. Could have continued, but there was Draper to follow, who also clicked heavily, and Block and Sully to clean up for the finish. Customers also got additional laughter from the roughhouse comedy antics of Mills, Kirk and Howard, a trio of clever comedy makers.

The finale ensemble number is one of those things where the drapes look none too handsome for a spot like this one. Another flash number that starts off well is 'Reunion in Vienna,' but customers' reception is thrown off by the downstage stand-ups and a girl and lad who sit atop the whole set and cater to the backstage rather than to the audience.

House has a new pit maestro, and a good one, in Alexander Olshanetzky, rated as a composer besides. His baton swings the pit currently into a medley of Jerome Kern songs with a male chorus of eight lads in tux handling vocal choruses. Show runs to around an hour. Feature, 'Witching Hour' (Par). Shan.

WARFIELD, FRISCO

San Francisco, April 25.

With a hefty draw in 'Men in White' on screen, and the best stage show in many moons, Warfield is romping home to a high score this week. It's second of the Bert Levey-booked oprys, with Peggy O'Neill and Bert Catley staging. There isn't a dull moment, thanks to several acts that wallop 'em.

Howard, Fine and Howard, ex-Ted Healy stooges, are the top-liners and hold the stage for some 15 minutes of mad mayhem crowded with belly laughs. Working with Jack De Wees as straight man, trio had the crowd steamed up. There was a nice buildup for them, too because they were preceded by Art Frank, one of the best of the old men characters; a swell pop medley by Walt Roesner's band and a good routine by Miss O'Neill's line of girls, with Audrey Stewart contributing some excellent acro dancing.

Frank worked with a fem looker for his usual big laughs, and wound up with a lot of plain and fancy, old and new hoofing by himself and partner. Another who stopped the show—three cold stops not bad for a 50 minute performance was Tommy Harris, local NBC singer here for his fifth week, who gave 'em a coupla tunes and ended by doing four encores.

Roesner stage band medley was three of the current 'Goodnight' tunes with the house's stock mixed octet of voices adding much to it. An old-fashioned sequence to close had John and Harriet Griffith dancing nicely, George Nickson tenoring in a pleasing voice, and the girls and the octet working also.

A Charlie Chase comedy and news rounded out the show. Bock.

'BONDAGE' ADDED SCENES

Hollywood, April 30.

RKO will toss 'Of Human Bondage' back into production this week for two days of added scenes. Company expects to grab Leslie Howard for the scenes before the player starts in 'British Agent' at Warners. John Cromwell handling the subsequent scenes.

Ayres Subs Kent Taylor

Hollywood, April 30.

Lew Ayres supplants Kent Taylor in Fox's 'She Learned About Sailors.'

Taylor wouldn't have been able to complete picture, which has been delayed nearly a week, as he is set for a job at another studio.

Ghost of Straight Vaude Rattles Feebly at the Casino and Scrams

'Ho, hum,' said the Ghost of Straight Vaudeville, stretching himself and preparing to take his departure from the Casino theatre 'Guess I might as well scram.' I opened and died in three weeks, as usual, and now they've wired the place for sound. So long, sweet Casino; may you have better luck with a combination policy. So long.'

'Just a minute,' said a voice from the balcony. 'I'll float right down. I want to talk to you.'

'Who are you' asked the Ghost of Straight Vaudeville. 'Who are you that so boldly interrupts me in the middle of an -to-Buffalo?'

'I am the Ghost of the Dramatic Sketch,' replied the voice. 'You remember me. You used to play me on every bill. I closed just ahead of intermission, those were the days! But pictures knocked me off. And they didn't do you much good, either.'

'Yes,' said the Ghost of Straight Vaudeville. 'I remember you. My shows were never complete without you. What are you doing around here? Don't you know you haven't got a chance?

'Ah, yes,' said the Ghost of the Dramatic Sketch. 'I know. But I love to haunt the old street now and then. Say, why not take me along with you? Everybody's got a stooge nowadays. I can stooge for you. Please let me go along.'

'All right,' agreed the host of Straight Vaudeville. 'Take a number from one to seven. Right! (bang!) Now you're a stooge.'

'Oh, thank you, sir,' said the ghostly stooge. 'Henceforth am your humble servant. But, please, sir, tell me of your latest escapade. I have heard of your valiant try at this Casino theatre. What is the lowdown?'

'Oh, it was the usual story,' answered the Ghost. 'I guess I must be a bit old fashioned. Ever since the Palace closed I have been shunned like a No. 2 act at a meeting of next-to-closers. In other words the public has given me the chill. I am in a sorry state. If I drop any lower I will be running into the Byrd expedition.

'But I have my memories. Yes, yes. I had my share of glory. Even Bernhardt courted me. Your radio stars of today—once they were my children. Ed Wynn—one of the team of Wynn and Jennings when he sought my royal favor. Jack Lait—of Bard and Pearl, just out of burlesque, who thought of no greater glory than a week at the Palace. Joe Penner—a duck salesman then, as he is now, and the price of ducks was considerably lower in those days. Morton Downey—a young singer in the Leviathan band.

'And your picture stars of today, they were my children too. Mae West—whata gal. Marie Dressler—say, Marie was always Mike Shea's favorite act. And Bing Crosby—but why go on? Such soliloquys only tend to make me sad.'

'I know how you feel, boss,' said the stooge, sympathetically. 'But I would like to know what happened here at the Casino.'

'Don't quote me,' said the Ghost. 'But I didn't have a chance. They dressed me up with a line of girls and a little production, but I still didn't have a chance. Say, talk about the buggy whip. Why, a buggy whip is a piece of modernistic furniture compared to Poor Straight Vaudeville, it seems. But I tried my best, though my best wasn't enough.

'And now look. The same old story. That snip Vaudfilm Policy once more replaces me. A picture in my stead. A roll of synthetic entertainment. A coil of celluloid. No flesh-and-blood amusement is this. No warmth, no talent, no intimacy. Yet, they love it. The customers actually prefer it to me. The fools!

'And the management throws them a five-act bill to boot. A vaudeville bill they call it. Vaudeville, ha ha! Four times a day. That's not a program. That's a prescription. Take this opening show, for instance. International Mangeans, a good act. Rio Brothers, a good act. Keller Sisters and Lynch, a good act. Watson Sisters, a good act. Miles and Kover, a good act.

'All good acts, but what of it? Put them all together and what do they spell? You guessed it. Five acts, a picture and the headliner's name is 55c.

'I tell you, my boy, but please don't quote me; I tell you there is something missing. Five good acts make a fair show. In my day there were no fair shows. There were great shows then. They were more than an introduction to the picture. And the picture here this week. Bah! Did you see it? Something called 'Finishing School.'

'But why waste more time her ? I have grown accustomed to taking it on the lam. Once I bid farewell to Hammerstein's Victoria, so why not the Casino? In more recent years I have, in turn, received the bum's rush from the Palace, the Hollywood and the Broadway. And now the Casino, nee the Earl Carroll. Through these portals passed the most beautiful girls in the world. And so has the Ghost of Straight Vaudeville.'

'Well, boss, I guess you won't be needing me any longer,' said the ghostly stooge, sadly. 'If I happen to run into any of the boys, I mean the other ghosts like the Ghost of Burlesque, the Ghost of the Paper Tearers, the Ghost of the Bag Punchers or the Ghost of the Bicycle Act—should I give them your regards?'

'Yes, Sketchie,' replied the Ghost of Straight Vaudeville. 'Give them all my love.'

'And how should I tell them feel?'

'Medium, just medium,' answered the Ghost of Straight Vaudeville, as he drifted out on a search for another sucker to finance another two-a-day funeral. Bige.

to admit children to all pictures—for sex is something that everybody understands—but it is essential and wholly possible to treat sex so that its import is comprehensible only to those who have reached an age and experience to get its implications, believes this director. Yes, there was plenty of sex in 'Convention City,' but perceptible only to those with the adult knowledge to perceive it. Without that knowledge, it was still a tempestuous comedy, declares the director of that film.

Don't write up to sex, says Mayo. For instance, instead of a producer's saying so-and-so is a hot number, so let's dress her to point out what she's got—let him rather put her in a straightforward story about a man and a woman and let the sex inherent in it and her come through, for it carries anyway. Mayo believes that screen standards should be such that the greatest number of people can get the greatest amount of entertainment out of them. Presenting sex with taste and discretion automatically gives admission to children. Without it, the vast child audience is, and should be, lost.

Discovering just what will interest the most number of people for pictures is hard, Mayo realizes, for what with changes in the economic system, the ever present groups of antis, the constant readjustment of the social order, and the changes in standards themselves—it is a problem for the producers to keep abreast of the public's shifting tastes. But it would not be quite such a problem, Mayo believes, if there were more co-operation between the picture producers and the theatre owners. If both would be honest with each other they would inevitably arrive at what is best for the theatres, and thus, what is best for them both.

'For example, in regard to the question of is sex important to pictures,' says Mayo. 'This is the present situation: the producer claims the theatre owner wants it, the owner says he's forced to buy it—and then he overemphasises it in his theatre advertisements. Neither side is strictly honest with the other and so, aside from passing the buck, they don't get anywhere.'

Follow the News

In Mayo's opinion, however, we are living in such a dramatic, world-changing age, so many vital things are happening that if the producers will counter the news, will take for their screen material themes that suggest and reinterpret the trends of contemporary life, they must find screen material of universal appeal. 'The House of Rothschild,' as it interprets the Nazi situation today, Mayo cites as example. It is not a picture of present day Germany, but by suggestion makes its point far better than a direct story on the current situation. In 'Rothschild' pictures realize their function for moulding public opinion, realize their moral responsibility to their audience, yet it is primarily solid entertainment, states Mayo.

EXPLOITATION

Direct Hook

Columbia made a hookup with a N. Y. fur store for Claudette Colbert's picture in a fur coat she probably did not get at the store. A credit line referred to her work in 'It Happened One Night,' now playing at the Globe theatre,' and got an extra week at that Times Sq. grind house. Another picture had been slated to go in the following day, but with the ad mention the Globe seemed to figure it was worth a prolongation.

Probably the first time a N. Y. daily ad has been hooked to a grind, but the deal apparently was made too late to be of use to the first and second runs and it gave the Globe a break for once.

Too few managers take advantage of the hook-up possibilities of the stills specially posed for just such use. Most of them are satisfied to land a still in a store window with a written card. No reason at all why the lesser spots should not persuade store keepers to tie these stills into the newspaper space as well as the window. It would pay the cost of the cut and the space and give an attractor for the ad. For that matter it probably would pay the theatre to donate the cut if the store will take the space. Two or more cuts in the same issue would be a real help.

With business getting better, and patronage growing, it will help to cultivate the returning patrons intensively for a time, and this is as cheap a way as any. Don't try to land the press book cuts. Use the stills directly applicable to the merchant's own product.

Vacation Contests

This is as good a time as any to go to work on the vacation contest stunt, since it will require considerable preparation and should be ready for launching early in June. In brief, the winner receives free transportation to and from the vacation point and from one to two weeks at the resort. Best result comes through co-operation with a newspaper, though it can be worked as a lone hand, though not as effectively.

If the newspaper comes in it is permitted to issue votes, one for each 10c. paid toward a subscription for a given period; generally three and six months. The theatre gives out votes on the basis of each dime. The person obtaining the largest amount of votes gets the trip, which may be for one or two persons.

Transportation must be promoted from some railroad or bus line in consideration of the advertising received. A similar arrangement is made with some resort hotel. In larger towns it may be possible to additionally promote luggage, clothing, golf clubs or other donations to make the vacation more enjoyable. Contest should run six to eight weeks, but end in time to permit the winner to take a vacation in August.

Such contests have been big money makers in the past. It can be made as profitable this year, but it has to be kept jazzed up from start to finish. That's easy with a live wire; particularly if the newspaper is riding along.

Phone Bally

Lynchburg.

Manager of Grandin theatre, Roanoke nabe house, looked in the telephone directory for a novel exploitation gag. When he decided to hold over 'It Happened One Night' after it had already run a week, he printed an ad: 'If you don't believe this is a good show, just ask any of the following persons:'

Then came a double column, large-type list of persons who had viewed the show, the names being followed by street addresses and telephone numbers. Street addresses were included as subtle way of showing that while house is suburban, crowds came from all over town.

'Sorrel' and Dad

Rochester.

KO Palace gave heavy ballyhoo for 'Sorrell and Son' via a prize contest for boys and girls to write 200-word essays on 'What I Think of My Dad.' Cash prizes of $25 in addition to free tickets.

Baseball Gags

Several managers are planning this season to use some sort of clown attraction at the ball park afternoons the team plays at home. Idea is to keep the bleachers amused while waiting for the game to be called. Stunts are framed to include a banner for the current attraction, to capture some night business.

One gag being planned is two teams of four boys each, playing a trial innings, but running only to first base. Two pitchers have been coached to go through the regulation wind-ups, but to shoot the balls anywhere but toward the catcher. Gag is to have the game wind up in a row with the umps, who'll send both teams to the showers to clear the field for the regulars. Manager has an idea that by the second week the crowd will be watching for the fight to start.

Another manager has a base running contest before the game, with tickets to the first and second. All must touch each base, with the kids piling up at each of the sacks. Any boy cutting any bag is disqualified. May not sound very funny, but it's more amusing than it sounds.

Other ideas are more along the circus idea of rubeing the crowd, but they are all counted on to get attention for the theatre and at the same time put the crowd into a good humor.

And don't overlook the baseball from the top of some tall building. That's an annual. Can be worked either with the professional catchers or with the sandlot teams.

Elmer the Second

Frank Wetzel, new operator of the Omaha Western League baseball club, has been the beneficiary of the best publicity stunt in the history of baseball in the region. Gag itself is just another development of the Ring Lardner rookie style combined with the Art Shire the-great-I-am system.

Letters from ambitious sandlot grad calling himself Charmie The Great began pouring in a month ago, and became such clever reading that the World Herald, local daily, signed the kid wonder for a daily letter. With his arrival in town, paper arranged a parade, followed by dinner at the C. of C., and crooning over the radio. The slugger marvel has since rated more space in the sport pages than the town's own John Goodman and more than any of the major league players. The town, a sore spot on baseball past few seasons, is perking up like the boom times of ten years ago, and the ballyhoo is the best that could have happened.

Owner Wetzel prays that the strongarm will be so good the town will worship him, or so rotten they'll come to boo him. Some of the minor feats the rook has assigned himself are the hitting of seventy home runs (in a 120-game season), the batting of one hundred bases, and a batting percentage of .500. Trains on a five-mile trot daily, four hours of practice, three gallons of pure Guernsey milk, and no parties or late hours.

The whole gag was a natural engineered by the kid himself from his home town, Monona, Ia.

Summer Uniform

Many houses put their service staffs into summer uniform, but overlook the lobby. They use the same heavy valance under the marquee, the same heavy painted banners and the same lighting. The entrance looks uninviting.

Net should be used in preference to heavy cloth for the valance, with cutout letters. If the same valance is used for several houses in a circuit it is advantageous to provide each house with its net and ship only the letters from point to point. Net should also be used for the banner in the lobby, where one is employed, which will offer a change of pace and look more summery.

Lighting should be in a very light blue, mixed with the white, just enough blue being used to kill the glare of the white lights. Light tints should be used on exposed globes instead of deep colors, and if there is only one set of frames, these should be draped with light scarves to hide the hot-looking brass. It will not cost much to get a set or make one of white pine tints, taking the bars from the metal displays, and enameling these in white, with frequent touch-ups.

Lighting in long inner lobbies should be toned down, and the auditorium lighting should be subdued, a very light rose or a pale blue with a little heavier color in the cove. Make everything from the sidewalk to the screen look cool and summery and it will be worth as much as the cooling plant.

Lupeing 'Tarzan'

Washington.

With Lupe Velez coming east for personals she becomes a natural for spots also playing 'Tarzan.' Local Loew house had pic already going when word came through of Velez's local booking. Exploit lads got nice second-week plugs of jungle film by constantly reminding press guys that Lupe is Johnny Weismuller's wife. Gags about ape-man's real life 'mate' being en route crept into half columns in town as double plug for Lupe and monkey show.

Rebroadcast Bally

Hollywood.

For '20,000,000 Sweethearts,' pic dealing with radio broadcasting, Warners, through exploitation manager, Harry Maslich, has constructed a portable broadcasting station, mounted on an auto truck with a locomotive head, which is being used as a street bally.

Entire outfit is surmounted with neon lights. Rear end has been transformed into a miniature studio and contains a studio piano with femme player. Music is picked up by KFWB (Warner station) and rebroadcast at intervals. Following local exploitation campaign, bally will be sent on a tour of Coast key centers, where pic is being played.

Stealing a Parade

Washington.

Local Loew exploiteers pulled a fast one on the Cherry Blossom Festival committee last week. With 500,000 visitors in town, the publicity boys sold committee on using 'Mary,' rhino ballying 'Tarzan,' in a mammoth parade.

So happened, however, that 'Mary' wasn't visible when truck carrying her was in motion. All that crowds saw were two big signs telling 'em to trot over to Loew's Palace.

Seeking Secrets

Baltimore.

For showing, currently, of Radio's 'Finishing School,' at the Hippodrome, Ted Routson, pub man for Izzy Rappaport, has promoted contest in tie-up with p.m. news that hews closely to line of thought and essence of the pic in that it seeks best stories recounting sorority and fraternity initiations. Descriptions sought from both active studes and past ones of what pranks they perpetrated on their fellow scholars when initiating 'em into the Greek-letter clubs. Both humor injected into the writing and the ingenuity of the stunts described counted in deciding winners.

Both cash and coupons on trophy table.

Rules for 'School'

Baltimore.

Not new, but Ted Routson, for the Hippodrome, put out 25,000 one-foot rules, on stiff paper, for 'Finishing School,' distribution being made by girls on the downtown streets. Main copy was 'One rule that isn't broken at 'Finishing School.' Do as you please, but don't get caught.'

Back copy told it was an earful, eyeful that even a columnist didn't know about the schools 'where the girls of America's gold reserve learn to be young ladies.'

Made a hit.

Quackery

Loew's State, N. Y., had a Joe Penner short. Blew it up with a large head in the lobby and back of it put something that made a noise more or less like a duck.

Got more attention than some of the phonograph records they used on musicals, and everyone was looking back of the picture for the duck. But the pic was fastened down. Used also for Penner's personal.

Hot in Havana

Havana.

For the first time in the history of the flickers here a real advertising campaign has been launched 'a la U. S.' to put over the films at the Nacional theatre, deluxer, by Hellodoro Garcia. None of the Cuban showmen up to now has gone in for elaborate publicity stunts in connection with films. The most they ever did was stage a contest of some silly sort.

For 'Flying Down to Rio' Garcia had a mystery plane fly over the city shooting handbills and a few passes. It was a great stunt, as during revolution era here everybody makes comment as to what the plane was doing, etc., waiting with craned necks to catch the ads.

For 'Roman Scandals' Garcia effected a tieup with Frau Marsal, advertising agent here, with the result that all the ads of cigarettes, department stores, etc., contributed space to Eddie Cantor and his 'Roman Scandals.'

The biggest stunt so far credited to Garcia is the tie-up with the Precios Ffios Department tore. The store that has held a fair for two years with name orchestras and radio artists will celebrate its second anniversary on May 1. The 19 show windows which cover the front of the store in three streets have been covered and darkened. On April 30 they will be 'unveiled' to show in each a real scene of the leading 19 pixs to be shown at the Nacional in forthcoming dates. The store foots half the bill and Garcia the other half as the scenes will make the background for the mdse to be exhibited. The contract is for six months, thus Garcia is assured a steady advertising medium of six months for a small rental.

The decorations are being done by Nono Noriega, Cuba's leading scenic artist under the direct supervision of Miguel de Canas, the store's art director. The stunt was devised by Hellodoro Garcia and his assistant, Domingo St. Saenz, and Manolito Sanchez, the store's publicity director.

Crowds gather daily at the closed show windows wondering what mystery lays behind the screen.

Hustled for 'Tarzan'

H. M. Addison's staff of go-getters put all they had on the ball when 'Tarzan and His Mate' came to Loew's State, Cleveland. The house front was dressed for a jungle effect with stuffed skins and heads, cutouts and a native and his grass hut. Plenty of pictures and a river backing for the walks.

There was an issue of 10,000 copies of a four-page Jungle News, apparently an accessory, and 10,000 Tarzan Drawing Mats were ordered. These last were soft paper sheets embossed with a spirited drawing of a lion. These were sent to the schools, and there was such a demand that an additional 10,000 were ordered pronto. Many of the lower classes were given the mats as part of the classroom work with 45 minutes allowed in which to finish them. Picture was traced with a pencil in the grooves.

A baking company supplied 10,000 animal crackers which were sacked and distributed by a pair of girls in the theatre's page uniforms, and another bakery, which has a Tarzan whole wheat bread, used herald enclosures for a full week in every wrapped loaf. Payoff was a display in the lobby. Usual radio broadcasts at the children's hour and teaser trailers in all Loew theatres two weeks in advance.

Mail Work Helped

Washington, April 30.

Loew's Fox cleaned up plenty on two intensive direct mail campaigns recently. Playing medico angle of 'Men In White,' boys mailed out 1,500 letters covering every physician in town. Docs passed word on to interns, etc., and there were more medical cards filled out at b.o. in single week than in three months previously. Special one-sheet in lobby welcomed docs and called attention to special call service.

Other stunt was worked on 'Trick Golf.' MGM short, showing Tom Hudgins making golf balls hop about. Letters went to entire local country club memberships. All golf pros were invited as guests of theatre opening day. Twenty-two out of 35 came and went out as walking advertisements.

Used Color

Des Moines.

Don Allen, manager of the Des Moines, gave away 150 free tickets to kids under 16 as awards for colored Tarzan strips from the local paper preceding opening of 'Tarzan and His Mate.'

Kids could use either crayons or water colors on any strip from three days' papers, and with entries numbering well in the hundreds, the headache came from selecting the 150 winners—the antidote being good editorial space.

Out of the wilderness rides "Stingaree" who feared neither death nor devil..a price on his head..a song in his heart..a girl in his dreams..to fire your blood with leaping thrills in a rash romance of danger!

Variety, April 24
PARAMOUNT, BROOKLYN

Big come-on this week is Bebe Daniels and her husband, Ben Lyon, on a personal. Daniels-Lyons pair were attracting milling mobs Saturday afternoon and look to make up handsomely for the bad dive taken last week by Roxy and his Gang.

Miss Daniels and Lyons are popular with the masses, and Brooklyn represents a lot of the masses. For the first time in a long while the ropes were up at 1 p.m., Saturday afternoon, and the accordion player in the lobby had an audience to work to.

Daniels-Lyon twain has been provided with a nice little skit, written to suit their talent about as well as anything could. After a trailer has shown, both in glimpses from past releases, the pair walks on, into what is represented as a broadcasting room. Lyon goes on the air, allegedly an announcer, with some comedy lines, plugging arm shields and a cuticle beautifier, then introducing Bebe Daniels, who'll tell what the product, Cuticulus, did for her. Material gets laughs. This also goes for the fan letters Lyon reads later, while Miss Daniels is getting into costume to do 'Rio Rita.' She encores with a number in Spanish, passing out violets from a runway to outstretched hands.

They close the show, which totals just under an hour and up ahead includes several high moments.

Chicago Daily News
BEBE DANIELS and BEN LYON in STAGE DEBUT
By CHARLES COLLINS

"Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, a young married couple from Hollywood who are household words to the picture show public, are making their debut as a vaudeville team on the Chicago theatre's new program. They appear to be completely at home before the footlights, and give what would be regarded as a first rate variety sketch if they were merely a pair of rank-and-file performers on the four-a-day bills."

Detroit News

"There are several excellent reasons for looking in on the new bill at the Michigan, not the least of which is the opportunity afforded for an intimate appraisal of Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, screen favorites, who are heading the stage revue. Mr. and Mrs. Lyon (Yes, they're still married) bring in a stage sketch that is a welcome departure from that presented by the average Hollywood touring star who is quite apt to offer nothing more than a charming smile and a 'dee-lighted to be in St. Louis—beg pardon, I mean Detroit—and meet my great public face to face.' Bebe and Ben really settle down to their task in earnest and soon prove to the satisfaction of all that they're not altogether dependent on a Hollywood job for their bread and butter."

Break in Ad Rate Spat as Wash. Star Offers a 50% Slice

Washington, April 30.

What looks like a prolonged upset in ad rate situation here got under way last week when the Evening Star capitulated, in face of united front of all major theatre advertisers, and offered what amounts to a 50% cut in amusement rates.

First break came last month when both Post and Star upped rates. Post went to 45c per line with 15% off for cash. Star put in 40c with 5% off. Film lads got together and cut both papers down to half of former budgets. Also withheld national r.o.p. stuff. Looked like a deadlock till Star called meeting last week and made new proposition.

New Star schedule offers graduated scale down as low as 25c for guarantee of 100,000 lines over 52 weeks. News is to meet theatres this week with reported plan to meet Star's cut. Post is still immovable. Two Hearst papers so far have taken no action in fray offering rates only slightly above News.

Instance marks first time in recent years that all local major picture houses have lined up together to force issue with press. Success is seen as possible forerunner of future collective bargaining.

Anyway, the Acme's Mgr's Gold Fillings Are Safe

Syracuse, April 30.

Police and the operator of the Acme theatre are today puzzling over the disappearance of a 400-pound safe and its $300 contents from the office of the theatre.

The robbers removed the safe from office, trundled the unwieldly receptacle across the width of the building and took it out through the jimmied exit through which they had gained entrance without leaving a mark or a trace, according to police.

Serial and Feature

Hollywood, April 30.

Having sold satisfactory territory for 'Young Eagles,' a Boy Scout serial, on the strength of two preliminary chapters, George Stout and Arthur Beck have placed the film in work at Mack Sennett studio. 'Eagles' will also be made as a feature.

Harry Hoyt is supervising and Vinn Moore directing.

TEAM VENABLE-TAYLOR

Hollywood, April 30.

THEATRE BLDG. 'WAR' IN MPLS.

Minneapolis,

With approval given by the city council to the construction of three new neighborhood theatres, a theatre building 'war' is on in full swing here. Publix will build two of the theatres—the first time in five years that it has erected a showhouse—and comes on the heels of the acquisition and reopening of three theatres in the territory.

The two new Publix houses will give battle to a new independent showhouse to be built in a nearby suburb for Ben Friedman, a former Publix partner. Interests sponsoring the Friedman theatre unsuccessfully opposed the permits for the Publix theatres, each of which will involve the expenditure of $100,000. The houses will seat 1,000 each.

Harry Dickerman, who has two neighborhood theatres, obtained a permit to build another $80,000 house to seat 800. He was unsuccessfully combatted by Leo Aved, owner of another nearby theatre. Dickerman is suing Aved for $5,000 damages for alleged slander. He claims Aved attempted to poison the minds of aldermen, labor union officials and business men in the vicinity by spreading a false report that he would not build even though he obtained a permit, but simply was trying to prevent Aved from building a new theatre and so protect his two houses.

Art Johnson of RCA Photophone recently obtained a permit for the construction in the loop of a 350-seat newsreel theatre to be called Time.

Newark Ops. Suit Up

Newark, April 30.

The sensational suit of some of the junior members of Essex County Moving Picture Operators Local 244 against officers of the union asking for relief from their alleged oppression and a receiver has been reopened before Vice-Chancellor Berry.

So far William Collins and Joseph Klein of the complainants have testified that they had been assessed part of their pay each week to hold their jobs. Klein said he had been shifted repeatedly, being required to pay Andrew Gehring, assistant business agent, $100 on each shift. The jobs each lasted a few weeks.

The case will be continued this week.

SO. CALIF. DISTRIBS' POLL ON DUALING

Los Angeles, April 30.

Independent exhibs of Southern California will vote tomorrow (Tues.) at a mass meeting called for the Hotel Mayflower, on whether they want to continue double feature programs for another season, or return to single bills. Proximity of the new film buying season has many indie exhibs who have been dualing for the past year, ready to call quits.

Exhibs feel that if 90% of the indies will vote to abandon duals, a 100% agreement can be brought about. Circuits will take no steps until indies have reached a complete accord, and say that the ban must include every house before they will restore single bills.

Chi Nabes Go 4-5 Changes Wkly. as Pic Quantity Hops, Quality Slips

Chicago, April 30.

Demand among the exchanges for double features is being quieted somewhat as Balaban & Katz and the other circuits begin using greater quantities of product by shortening the playing time of each picture. Big B. & K. nabe spots, which have been accustomed to play full-week and split-week stands on pictures are now shifting to four and five changes weekly.

In this way much of the product of the exchanges which was left on the shelf is now being picked up for short showings. And the resulting increased revenue has stilled the yelps of some of the exchanges which had previously been largely out in the cold as far as circuit dates go. Has also relieved the pressure of the double feature demands made by exchanges which were looking for product outlets.

On the part of the houses it has resulted in a pick-up in trade. Weak pictures which were formerly stretched are now dipped into the house and yanked quickly. According to the managers, there's little product around at present that can stand up for a week or even a split week in the subsequent run nabe houses.

Can. Stench Mess

Toronto, April 30.

Trial of Lew Kendall and Fred Pitton on charges of perjury and 'frustrating justice,' arising out of the stench-bombing of the Dovercourt theatre, was halted in General Sessions here by the non-appearance of Albert Gold, principal Crown witness, who had signed an affidavit that he and not Kendall was responsible for the bomb attack after Kendall had been sent to jail for a year for the offense.

Gold, who has now disapeared, had previously testified that he 'was confessing to the crime rather than see an innocent man go to jail.' He later claimed that he had been promised $500 by the rival-exchange theatre-owner (Kendall) but had come forward to police with a true statement when Pitton, the alleged pay-off man, had tendered only $125 in payment for the stench-bombing.

Pix for Chi Garrick; 'Bergere' Into Apollo; B-K Asks Joint Cooler

Chicago, April 30.

B. & K. expects to open the Garrick by May 15 with 'B" week release pictures at 40c top. This places it in the same release category as the State-Lake and Oriental. That's the present plan though firm may decide to send it down to first week of general release for a try at 25c top, competing with the Woods next door.

B. & K. will spend about $40,000 on the remodeling job which takes in the new marquee and lobby, very little being done on the auditorium itself other than new seats on the main floor.

Firm is also working on an angle for a single cooling plant to serve both the Garrick and the recently acquired Apollo about five doors away. Mechanically the job can be done since both houses are small enough to be worked on one medium-sized cooling plant. However, the difficulty here is the fact that both houses are not under one ownership. B. & K. now negotiating with both owners trying to get an agreement.

As far as the Apollo is concerned nothing has been decided and that house won't open until June 1 at least. House may stay in legit for the duration of the World's Fair, B. & K. being interested at present in a deal to bring the 'Folies Bergere' into the house for the exposition time.

NBC Trying to Tie Up All Metro Stars for Air Pacts, Says Report

Hollywood, April 30.

There's indications here that an effort is being made by radio chains and indies to line up film talent in wholesale batches for air programs.

Various broadcasting organizations would contract with studios for the exclusive other services of all contract players, according to the reports. NBC and Metro figure in the most prominent deal, it is said. Provisions of the proposed film-air pact would provide salaries for the players used but would not include any exchange of cash to the studio for the privilege. However, as an inducement to put over such a deal, it is reported, NBC is offering to institute Hollywood-emanated program similar to 'Hollywood On the Air,' to be used as Metro desires for its picture plugs and build up of film star prospects.

Plus this reported chain interest in gathering exclusive air contracts from film players, several independent radio producers are said to be working on a similar scheme with other studios. It is known that one of these producers, with proposed commercial accounts awaiting consummation of such a deal, has sounded out Paramount on the idea.

Quick Thinking

St. Paul, April 30.

Tourist Director George H. Bradley was declaiming over station WCCO when he glanced up to find page four of his six-pager missing.

Frantic, Brad left the mike cold and crawled over the rug on all fours looking for the errant page. Finally he spotted it under the studio baby grand.

Rushing back to the silent mike a full half-minute later, Brad made these amends: 'That pause, ladies and gentlemen, was for emphasis. I cannot emphasize too strongly that Minnesota is the place for you to spend your vacation.'

Clive Brook, Howard, Lowe, James Dunn in NBC-Spi Coast Tieup

Hollywood, April 30.

Top name film personalities will be used in a series of love stories, written by eminent authors, to emanate from here for NBC and commercialled by Non Spi, cosmetic account.

J. R. Warwick, of Cecil, Warwick & Cecil, is here lining up the talent to start May 9, 5:30 to 6 p.m., EST, with Clive Brook in Michael Arlen's 'Three-Cornered Moon.'

Also set for future programs as a weekly NBC feature are Leslie Howard, Edmund Lowe and James Dunn. One to emanate from New York will have Roland Young starred.

NBC COAST FACILITIES ON RKO LOT EXTENDED

Hollywood, April 30.

NBC's broadcasting facilities on the RKO lot are to be extended, in view of this chain's plan to utilize more film names on programs and to emanate more national accounts from this end.

While under consideration for several months, the work of expanding did not get under way until John F. Royal, now on the Coast, gave the word. Expanding will be under the supervision of Don Gilman.

Building plans call for the extending of the stage in the present studio and eliminating much of the space now utilized by audiences; a music room, erection of a client's room (for auditions) and five offices for the staff.

Expected also that increased staff personnel will be added to the department now topped by John Swallow, who is in charge of NBC activities from here. Changes are also seen to mean that many Coast broadcasts will go from these headquarters rather than from KFI, the NBC chief outlet here.

Phil Harris Commercial Hinges on Side Job

Phil Harris' contract with Cutex expires the second week in June and whether the band will continue for the summer under the cosmetic brand depends on where it makes its next night club connection.

Harris is currently dickering for two berths, one in New Jersey and the other in Galveston. If he signatures for the latter the line charges involved will be too steep for him to hold on to the commercial. He's been on the account for almost a year.

WCKY'S BASEBALL QUICKIES

Incinnati, April 30.

With three smaller local stations devoting full time to accounts of the Reds' games, WCKY is servicing reports of scores on all National and American league contests every 15 minutes. Batteries, homers and outstanding plays are announced by WCKY in addition to the tab on runs in the major circuits.

Blasts are made on station breaks of studio and NBC programs and occupy from 30 to 40 seconds.

GULF'S STANDBYS

Think Atmospheric Angle Oke, but Will Have Understudies

Before switching the source of its broadcasts to Europe, Gulf Oil will bring Will Rogers back for a run of several weeks. Rogers is slated to succeed Irving Berlin, who makes his debut for the refiner this Sunday (6). Berlin's contract is for six weeks.

Cecil, Warwick & Cecil, the agency on the Gulf account, avers that it has given study to the problem of atmospheric interference with transatlantic shortwaving and found that the outlook this summer is very favorable for broadcasting. Authorities consulted by it, says the agency, have for years charted the effect of the sun's spots on radio conditions.

Gulf, however, will have a standby show in the NBC studios on this side, ready to go on in case.

Jane Froman, Don Ross on 17 Stations for Armand

Armand face power will back a series of 15-minute recordings with Jane Froman, Don Ross and Lennie Hayton's band over 17 stations starting May 15. Schedule calls for 13 weeks at the rate of one program a week. All but one of the outlets, WOR, slated for the campaign are in the middle west.

N. W. Ayer is the agency.

CBS Curious to Know Why Mail Continues 6 Months After Offer

Columbia is trying to find from its listeners what mental quir it is that causes them to write in about an offer months after it is made. Even though it knows that it can find the answers in some primer on psychology the network wants to carry on its research direct. It's interested in ascertaining what reasons the fans will vouchsafe to account for this curious bit of cerebral reaction.

What prompted the study into belated letter writing was the sequel the web experienced to an offer of a booklet giveaway. The announcement was made once but for months afterwards listeners wrote in asking that the thing be mailed them. Total number of requests for the sixth month after the offer was made almost equalled the pile of inquiries received during the second month.

During one of the sustaining programs (Mark Warnow Presents) last Thursday night (26) the odd piece of mailroom discovery was described to the listeners and they were asked to tell what causes them to do this procrastinated taking of pen in hand. Spokesman for the network said that its research department wanted to know whether the details of the offer hadn't been lurking in the tuner-inner's unconsciousness all the time and whether some idea association hadn't been responsible for recalling the letter they had meant to write but didn't.

CBS won't be surprised if it gets a batch of replies to this inquiry six months hence or even later. It's happened that way not only to its own booklet offer of last year but to scores of commercials clearing through it.

Loyalty

During the reading of the commercial on last Monday night's Ex-Lax broadcast an executive with the account noticed that one of the players in the cast was chuckling to himself.

After the show was over this exec remarked to a member of the CBS staff: 'Do you think that so-and-so (naming the actor) is really loyal to Ex-Lax?'

CHI NBC KILLS 'BILL' TITLE ON WMCA CHAIN

Chicago, April 30.

Due to claim of title priority by WMCA, the local program department of NBC is canning the tag of 'Barnacle Bill' on its sustaining kid show.

New name for the show is 'Salty Sam,' with Cliff Soubier still handling the mike for the sea water tales.

2-a-Day Policy For Some Acts Set by Cisler

Birmingham, April 30.

Two-a-day has invaded the radio field on local programs at WSGN. Steve Cisler, manager of the station, has decided to put several acts on this basis because he believes he is hitting two distinct classes of listeners. The first program to adopt this policy was Cecil and Sally. One or two others are scheduled to do likewise.

Cecil and Sally skit goes on at 9:30 in the morning, when it catches mostly women. Then it is repeated at 6:45 p.m., and fan mail indicates this type catches mostly men and kids.

Musical programs are alternated by days. Usually one or two days intervene. In this way Cisler feels that he is spotting the good programs and doing away with a lot of tripe.

'Inquiring Reporter' Tag Copyrighted by Chi Trib Stations

Chicago, April 30.

WGN, the Chicago Tribune station, has established copyright on the phrase 'Inquiring Reporter,' which Quin Ryan will use on his World's Fair show for John R. Thompson's restaurants.

Reporter tag goes back some 10 years when it was originated for a column in the Trib.

Elsa Maxwell, Society Tomboy, May Go Radio

Elsa Maxwell, New York society's fave parlor game m.c., has been auditioned for International Silver by CBS. Program, a comedy and musical melange running an hour, is tagged 'The Shipwreck Party'.

Cast framed around Miss Maxwell included Roy Atwell, Fray and Braggiotti, Sylvia Froos and Johnny Green. Benton and Bowles is the agency.

Bond Joins Petry

Osborne B. Bond has joined the New York office of Edward Petry & Co., station representatives.

Bond has been director of media for the past two years with Calkins & Holden agency. He is rated as an expert on, among other things, the Canadian markets.

Inside Stuff—Radio

Two land lines connecting the WEEI, Boston, transmitter in Weymouth with the Boston studios were picked up by a dredge working in the vicinity of the construction job at Fore River bridge early the other day. As it happened before eight a.m., when the operating schedule calls for using other lines routed another way, there was no broadcast interruption. According to WEEI chief operator Phil Baldwin, the lines in use at the time are utilized daily until eight a.m. as a check on their availability should anything occur to interrupt communication on the circuits ordinarily used. During repairs on the broken submarine cables (a matter of several hours' work) the spare or duplicate lines more than proved their standby value in maintaining program schedules.

Only three straight half-hour dramatic shows are slated to remain on NBC's and Columbia's nighttime commercial schedules after the end of next month. They are 'The First Nighters,' Eno Crime Clues and 'Death Valley Days.' Eno mystery affair will, as it has done the past two years, retire for the month of August.

For the past several summers WBT, Charlotte, N. C., has been having bug trouble. Enormous night bugs had a habit of flying into the condensor plates at the station's transmission plant several miles from the city. Occasionally these were large enough that their bodies caused a short circuit between two plates. When this happened the station was thrown off the air.

Now Chief Engineer Paul Rosecrans is going to outlaw the troublesome bugs that inhabit rural Mecklenburg county by screening in the entire transmission plant with a thin netting, something like mosquito mesh, but with greater strength. Hundreds of yards of the material will be strung from a frame that encloses the plant on all sides and above.

Standard Brands may relieve Eddie Cantor of the remaining obligation he has with the Chase and Sanborn coffee whirl. It's for eight weeks to be played out in the coming fall. There is also a possibility of Dave Rubinoff moving over with Cantor to the Pebeco stanza on CBS. Their getting together is mainly a question of the maestro's price.

For his Pebeco half hour Cantor will draw $10,000 net a week. Out of this sum he will do his own paying off for the band, the script and other members of the cast.

Application of the Central Broadcasting Co., operating WOC-WHO, Des Moines, for the transfer of station KICK from Carter Lake, Ia., to Davenport, and assuming of the old WOC call letters, was up before the Federal radio commission in Washington last week with an early decision expected as regards the transfer. Stations WHBF, Rock Island, Ill., and KSO, Des Moines, are objection to the transfer with a galaxy of legal talent and radio experts represented at the hearing. The commission granted an application for the removal of the station to Davenport in February, later withdrawing the grant because of protests from the two stations represented at the hearing.

Dr. Voeller of Conquest Alliance, makers and placers of wax programs (mostly in Latin American countries), has a unique lighting system in his offices. Series of buttons provides varied-colored lights which the doctor selects to match the 'mood' of the program being auditioned by clients, etc.

Ed Wynn, at the conclusion of his broadcast last Tuesday night (23), spent the major part of 30 minutes spouting his personal troubles to the Texaco free-broadcast audience in the NBC studios in N. Y.

Wynn first derided the report that a ghost writer is grinding out his air material, saying that he hasn't had anybody write his stuff in 30 years. Wynn also declared he is one of the most sued persons on the air, having 138 lawsuits against him at the present time.

He then also accused Will Rogers of stealing his stuff citing, especially, that he had suggested that the United States appoint a Secretary of Humor at a Coast dinner which Rogers attended, only to learn that Rogers later suggested it to Fox and Lew Brown as an idea for a picture.

Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation is attempting to sell local show business the idea of air advertising of coming features. Set-up is to feature weekly broadcast of coming attractions with stories and scenes taken from the films and being broadcast either by transcription or a cast in person.

Babe Ruth did his turn for Quaker Oats over the WJZ network from WGY, Schenectady, last week, motoring there from Albany, where he had played an exhibition game with the Yankees. Ruth made the ball club's jumps by automobile on its eastern tour, in order to keep his radio engagements. Traveling with him were Mrs. Ruth, Shortstop Lyn Lary and Mrs. Lary (the former Mary Lawlor, musical comedy dancer).

Newspaper Calls Court Scene Re-enactments Over Radio 'Vicious'

Charlotte, N. C., April 30.

First open attack on radio in a North Carolina newspaper appeared here last week. The Observer, in its issue of April 20, carried an editorial titled 'Vicious Radio Feature' in which it directed an attack at Clark's radio court, which advertises Teaberry gum.

Apparently confused as to the sponsors of the spot, the editorial makes reference to 'the patent medicine firm sponsoring the trial.' The paper's complaint is that the murder trials are not good for the minds of children—in fact are vicious. The program is cited as a good argument for governmental censorship of radio. The piece closes by saying that such programs make radio a factor in encouragement of crime.

Local station officials were amused at the paper's ignorance as to who sponsored the radio court, and called attention to the fact that all trials were taken from real court scenes, with fictitious names used. The newspaper, they added gleefully, carries in minute detail accounts of murder trials—together with pictures—that make the Clark radio court look tame indeed. They could not fathom the inconsistency of the paper's editorial opinion and its own presentation of the same sort of stuff, in what the radio men describe as a much more 'vicious' manner.

CBS CENTRALIZES MIDWEST P.A.'ING

Chicago, April 30.

Centralized publicity releases for the CBS owned-operated stations in the midwest are being worked out by Bob Kaufman, CBS publicity director here. Under the system, press blurbs for WCCO, Minneapolis, and KMOX, St. Louis, will clear through the national channels. Figured to reach a total of some 126 newspapers throughout the territory in this way instead of being localized in one or two towns.

News and blurbs will clear through Chicago to New York, where the CBS mechanical setup is capable of handling the extra mimeographing without trouble.

TAX STUDIOS AS THEATRES

Cuba Limits Advertising

20 Mins. Per Hour Maximum—Island Imposes Other Air Rules

Havana, April 23.

A halt has been called by the Cuban Radio Commission to the hit-or-miss chaos prevailing in Cuban broadcasting. Henceforth wavelengths and wattage will be subject to rules and regulations. President has okayed the new set-up and Dr. Marino Diaz, commission boss, is enforcing it. Broadcasters whose toes are stepped on are yelping.

Among the other changes the commission proposes is establishment by the government itself of a 50,000 longwave and auxiliary shortwave transmitter to disseminate propaganda on behalf of Cuba. Simultaneously it is announced the promotional 1,000,000-watt station announced by J. E. Mojarrieta is without government sanction either as to wavelength or call letters. Name of Doc Brinkley, outlawed by America and Mexico air authorities, has been mentioned in connection with this million-watter.

There have been 38 stations operating in Havana. Against this there are 40,000 registered radio fans. Henceforth no station will be allowed within the city with more than 250 watts and all stations must install crystal controls. Only five full time channels will be granted stations under 5,000 watts and they must stay on the air at least 18 hours daily.

Advertising is limited to an aggregate of 20 minutes to the hour. Announcers must take examinations to qualify. Five hours daily must be devoted to Cuban music and radio discs are frowned upon.

Cuban Telephone Co. is obligated to rent lines for remote control pick-ups and may not charge more than $17 monthly for each line. That's the regular telephone rate. Up to now the telephone company has refused to rent lines for remotes reserving this privilege exclusively to its own station, CMC.

PHILCO SPONSOR IDEA FOR SPAIN

Madrid, April 16.

Philco Radio considering sponsoring an international program from EAQ, only shortwave station in Spain. International Broadcasting Company, a British outfit which arranges programs, would probably handle Philco's idea. The radio set people are presently featuring shortwave apparatus and figure a sponsored program for their set owners wouldn't go bad.

EAQ on the air nightly from 10:15 p.m. to 1 a.m., Greenwich mean time, or 5:15 p.m. to 8 p.m., EST. Broadcasting on 30 meters and 10,000 kilocycles, it is picked up easily in the United States and South America and as far away as the Philippines, New Zealand and Japan. Its owners, Transradio Espanola, affiliated with RCA, claim it can be heard more consistently and clearly than any other station in Europe.

Lester Ziffren is doing 15 minutes of straight news in English nightly and has picked up a wide audience in various parts of the world with his chatter on Spanish politics.

Amateur Broadcasters Dislike Some Things, Including RCA Puffs

Des Moines, April 30.

In a vociferous session last week, nearly 200 amateur radio operators from Iowa and the middle west demanded removal of K. B. Warner, secretary, American Radio Relay League.

Those present, both members of the league and non-member 'ham' operators, voted 150 to 4 in favor of the Minneapolis Radio club demands for revision of the league, removal of Warner and improvement of the league's magazine, 'QST.'

Group voted opposition to sponsorship by the Radio Corp. of America programs on NBC networks dramatizing the amateur radio operator.

HOWARD S. MEIGHAN JOINS GETCHELL AGCY

Howard S. Meighan, formerly general manager of Scott Howe Bowen, Inc., has joined J. Stirling Getchell, Inc., as head of the agency's radio department. It's Meighan's second agency connection. Prior to coming with Bowen, which was two years ago, Meighan was on the radio staff of J. Walter Thompson & Co.

Getchell currently has one program on the air, Sconyland Sketches, which the agency inherited the first of April along with the merged Standard Oil of New York and Vacuum Oil Co. business. An account in the Getchell office which has been a big spender on both network and spot is Chrysler-Plymouth.

NAB Conv. in Cincy

Looks like Cincinnati will get the 1934 convention of the National Association of Broadcasters which last year met in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Committee will confirm the site and fix a date in October within next week or so.

Cincinnati is evidently favored because of central location and general interest in WLW's new 500,000-watt set-up.

BURNS-ALLEN LEAVE COAST

Burns and Allen left for New York Friday (27) to continue the remainder of their NBC broadcasts for White Owl until the latter part of June.

NEW YORK ASKS $500 PER HALL

Columbia Pays for Hudson, But NBC Asks Corporation Counsel for Legal Opinion and May Fight

SHOW BIZ ANGLES

By the ruling of Paul Moss, New York City's License Commissioner, all Metropolitan radio broadcasting studios in which performances are given in front of audiences, paid or otherwise, must be licensed as theatres. Fee the city exacts is $500 per theatre yearly, and N. Y. C. is asking this amount for each studio in public operation by the broadcasting companies.

CBS was the first to be hit by Commissioner Moss' edict, based on the city ordinance affecting theatre licensing, with the Hudson theatre, former legit and now a radio showcase, being forced last week to apply for a theatre license. Company tried to fight the ruling for a couple of days and then gave in as far as the Hudson is concerned.

Columbia, however, has not made applications for licenses for the studio it occasionally uses in Carnegie Hall nor the orthodox broadcasting room in its own building on Madison avenue it sometimes uses for audience's sake.

National Broadcasting Company, with four studios in Radio City in use for the free performances, has also delayed applications for their licensing, waiting for a ruling on the law it has asked from the Corporation Counsel's office. It is understood, however, that even if the ruling is against NBC to the effect that the studios must be licensed, NBC will attempt a court battle on the legality of licensing broadcasting studios as theatres. Opinion from the corporation counsel's office will be ready some time this week.

'No Argument'—Moss

Commissioner Moss, though, stated that 'there can't be any argument over it.' The way he interprets the licensing law, an audience is an audience whether it pays admissions, or not, and that place where they gather, as for instance radio studios, fall in the classification of theatres.

Until now NBC, CBS and independents giving public broadcasts have escaped the licensing mainly through oversight on the part of the previous city administration. With the present Fusion party in force, and seeking every possible angle to raise money for the badly depleted municipal treasury, nothing is being passed by. Licensing of the radio studios is the second invasion of show business by the License Department. At the present time this branch of N.Y.'s government is also attempting to license all theatrical agents as employment agencies.

WOR is the only other broadcaster besides NBC and CBS that may be hit by the licensing order through infrequently giving public broadcasts in its Seventh Avenue studios.

Free radio broadcasts in New York have always been a sore-spot with the legit, motion-picture and variety theatre operators on Broadway, latter claiming broadcasts cut deeply into their paid admissions and, in offering something for nothing, act as 'unfair competition.' Licensing of the studios affords them no measure of relief, however, though perhaps some personal satisfaction.

Washington, April 30.

Search for specific information about extent of free-broadcast admissions was started in earnest last week, when Radio Code Authority mailed 550 questionnaires about statistical phases of alleged competition between radio, films and the legit theatre.

Addressing all broadcasters and networks, C. A. explained 'it is the contention of some people that the admission of visitors to radio program performances is unfair to the motion picture and legitimate theatre industries. The Code Authority, after considering the matter, agreed that the subject was one on which all broadcasters should be allowed to express an opinion. It was further agreed that the Code Authority was in need of certain statistical information to enable it to determine the full scope of the questions involved.'

Urging return of blanks by June 1, codists asked:

1. Average number of visitors admitted monthly; capacity of studio or special auditorium?

2. Patronage, if public performances are not regular practice?

3. Reasons for inviting guests? Blank asks if practice is followed at request of sponsor; for station good-will; primarily for entertainment of lookers, or any other reason.

4. Whether admission is charged and what percentage of patrons pay?

Henry Ford and Son, Edsel, Decide They Don't Know About Showmanship; So Ayer Agency Gets Free Hand

10 Second Breaks

NBC plan of reducing the station break between programs from 20 to 10 seconds has been postponed to June 1, due to the inability of the telephone company to provide the required mechanical equipment required before that date. Original idea had been to put the revision into effect May 1.

There has been a certain amount of objection to the time slicing between programs from NBC associated stations. These outlets feel that the network has resorted to this device as a means of stopping them from slipping in local commercial announcements.

THINK WLW TO SET $1,300 RATE

Advertising circles in New York are indulging in conjecture concerning the new card rates for WLW, Cincinnati, which this week goes to 500,000 watts. Guesses run as high as $1,500 an hour against the present $990 rate, which is the highest in America.

What attitude NBC will take toward a request for upping of the WLW rate is not known. Present rate is a permanent thorn in NBC's flesh and the situation has many ramifications of significance. Globe-encircling power of WLW creates a problem not previously existing in broadcasting.

Cincinnati, April 30.

John L. Clark, general manager of the Powel Crosley radio interests, states that the question of higher rates for WLW has not yet been considered.

Locally it is understood that until the dedicatory uproar has quieted down and WLW can start figuring added expense of operation and compile tatistics on coverage the rate matter will be left undisturbed. Cincinnati guesses on the revamped rate mention around $1,300 an hour as likely after six p.m.

Henry Ford and Edsel Ford have agreed to cease tinkering around with their programs on CBS. From now on Fred Waring and the agency on the account, N. W. Ayer, will have absolute authority over the makeup of the shows.

Guest artist supplementing is out, and Poley McClintock and Johnny Davis are back in the program. The Fords didn't cotton to McClintock's froggy larynx, while Davis' warbling style was too hotcha for their tastes. What convinced the Fords that they were amiss in letting their individual tastes get in the way of the program's makeup was the showing that Waring made on the last Crossley Report. He had slipped appreciably from the niche he held at the time he quit Old Gold.

Motor outfit will continue to support Waring on two half-hour spots up until the first of July. The Thursday night frame will then be dropped for at least the next two months. If NBC is able to furnish a satisfactory spot and hookup it will get the second half-hour starting in early September. Otherwise it will be on a CBS schedule.

Aylesworth Kids Self Into Giving Wash. Eds. Free Radio City Trip

Washington, April 30.

Local radio eds took Merlin H. Aylesworth at his word when he was in town several weeks ago and will draw a free trip to New York for their trouble. Boys took occasion to mention they would like to see Radio City. Pointed out that WJSV, local CBS outlet, has sent them to Broadway twice in three years.

Aylesworth suggested they organize party and come up to see his layout. Press men agreed, but lamented no dough. Aylesworth jokingly offered to finance trip. And next day eds showed up at local NBC offices to find out about it.

Jaunt tentatively set for May 5.

SOME CBS ACCOUNTS FOLD FOR SUMMER

Majority of the accounts on CBS which are slated to quit for the summer are doing their exiting this week. Among the bowouts are Brillo, Cream of Wheat, Affiliated Products ('Princess Marie'), Wheatena and Wrigley.

Barbasol has trimmed its time for Edwin C. Hill down to a single evening, Monday. News commentator has been doing three a week.

Cecil and Sally Apart For Health Build-up

He plans to spend the next year at Carmel, where he'll pound a typewriter. His partner, Helen Troy, maintaining her home here.

JOE COOK
'Colgate House Party' with Frances Langford, Donald Novis, Don Vorhees Orchestra, Howard Claney
Revue
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Colgate Toothpaste has had its Saturday night 'House Party' (9 p.m. EST) on the NBC blue web several weeks, Joe Cook is an added starter. He's set for four weeks, but can stay from now on so far as clicking goes. He enlivens the entertainment in the same degree that he dominates it and the fact is that the others on the show are just so many supernumeraries with the advent of Cook.

Joe Cook is probably not well known to the great masses of the radio listening public. His musical comedies have taken him to only the larger cities and he made only one or two motion pictures. No doubt some radio fans will confuse him with the completely different and unrelated Phil Cook. It's another case like George M. Cohan of a guy terrific for years in show business proper who suddenly steps into a strange new entertainment world where a surprised and pleased public naively asks, 'Where have you been all our lives?'

Cook's versatility and fertility of resource is so great that radio ought to be simple for him. Seldom indeed does a comedian so quickly catch the right mental pitch for the ether addicts as he did on his getaway appearance. Neither too hokey or too highbrow his stuff seemed to find the common denominator with canny showmanship.

Influence of the Cook slant in tomfoolery was visible throughout. Program goes on the air with no signature theme or commercial introduction, but with the voice of Cook proclaiming, 'Well, here it is 9 p.m. and here am I, Joe Cook, giving the Colgate House Party and nobody's here.'

Sounding better than it probably reads, this opening was showmanly in its neatness. It told all the essential facts and laid the scene in one sentence. Then followed the statement from the commercial, 'Yours for brighter smiles, the Colgate Company.' Then Howard Claney breaks in to ballyhoo Joe Cook in a series of phrases. 'The one and only,' 'that genius,' 'the incomparable,' etc. Cook comments upon the comment upon Cook.

Having no guests at his house party, he decides to give one-man imitations of the Don Vorhees orchestra, Frances Langford and Donald Novis. That cues in these people ghosting for themselves. Later the guests arrive officially.

Cook brings in some of his characteristic 'how have you been' nonsense, describes himself at the age of 15 minutes sassing back his paw in Evansville, Indiana, and works up a steady barrage of nuttiness. All of which spells hit.

Early in the program it seems that Colgate is going to be ultra-modern and confine its advertising to a few dignified mentions. But later the advertising rash, verbosity, breaks out and the blah-blah about the double action effect of Colgate toothpaste upon teeth gets a bit burpy. Howard Claney administers the gas, but has assistance as the advertising is in the form of dialog. Even Joe Cook steps in.

Dentifrice copy, and this applies to practically all of them on the air, runs to extravagant claims. Colgate asserts that its pepsin paste does things that other molar-scourers can't.

Otherwise the Colgate House Party is the berries. Land.

JAMES THURBER
Humor
15 Mins.
Sustaining
WABC, New York

Last Thursday's (26) appearance was the second for James Thurber on this series over CBS. On the debut occasion Thurber showed that he was all jitters by the way he dashed through his script disregarding punctuation, gagline preparation and whatnot, and among the subjects he sought to treat in a light way were the eccentricities of a couple pooches he once owned, his French cook Tessie, and old Connecticut barns.

Thurber's second release found his nerves pretty well under control and his topics dealing with some of the phobias from which visitors to New York suffer and such 'perils of New York life' as clip joints. For humor content the number two program was a slight improvement, though not far removed from what it takes to cure insomnia. Thurber's inning comes close to the average retiring hour. He goes on at 10:45 p.m. EST.

Thuber is on the staff of the New Yorker where he writes light pieces and does a pen and ink drawing tagged, 'The War Between Men and Women.' Columbia brought him in as one of the pinchhitters during Alexander Woolcott's spell of retirement from the mike. Thurber fills a negligible part of the niche made vacant by the Woolcott personality and style of humor and human interest. Odeo.

NIKITA BALIEFF
Dialectian
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Nikita Balieff, Russian impresario of the Chauve Souris revue, is on the Paul Whiteman program for the Kraft sponsorship. His inaugural appearance (27) was a disappointment. He carried the dialect (which is natural) beyond the limits of comedy and most of the time was unintelligible. There were, in fact, moments that constituted a grave menace to the program holding those tuned in.'

If the sponsor has some theory about attracting foreign listeners through Balieff, this may be a sufficient reason. Otherwise it appears that Balieff doesn't belong on the air. He is not funny on the air and the type of English-twisting that was droll 14 years ago when the Chauve Souris first came over from Europe has by now been thoroughly and much better exploited by American comedians.

Balieff made a grave mistake for his radio debut in not studying the type of thing which is currently popular over here and in not hiring competent authors to outfit him with material. He relied instead entirely upon his own stuff, such as he delivers in theatres. To visible audience his delivery is accompanied by comic pantomime, facial mugging and tricks of personality which fail to get across with air listeners. An attempt to build up a tag line expression, 'ai, ai, ai, vie,' did not fit.

On the receiving set end it appeared that the invited audience was getting a lot more than was percolating through the ether. Balieff brought along some of his Russian singers who handled a sample of grand opera nicely. But this is nothing memorable or exceptional in itself.

Obvious Balieff's gab is the supposed novelty, and since he delivered only one or two giggles amidst a great deal of idle conversation that confused the ear and brought no delight to the mind, the verdict is adverse. Land.

LOMA GARDEN OF TOMORROW
With E. F. D. Seymour, Henry Neenely, Frank Pinero Orch
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WGY, Schenectady

In the midst of the usual early-Sunday morning broadcasts of classical music and religious services comes this new garden program, sponsored by the manufacturers of Loma. A half-hour shot, bringing before the mike E. F. D. Seymour, horticulturist, Henry 'M. Neenely ('The Old Stager' of NBC's, 'Two Seats in the Balcony') and Frank Pinero's orchestra, it is the only Sunday a. m. commercial fired over the red network.

Apparently the sponsor reasons that there is less competition for the attention of household heads between 10:30 and 11 in the morning than there is in the afternoon, when one of two garden programs have been floating out from key transmitters. The type of music served and the general atmosphere of the broadcast fit in well with Sunday morning radio requirements.

Instructions on the planting and care of a garden are skillfully spooned to dialers through the medium of dialog between Seymour and Neenely. There is a little background production to set the stage for these seemingly casual chats (two in number), in which Neenely plays the role of questioner and Seymour that of instructor. Neenely, as always, is natural and easy in his manner; Seymour also does rather well with the conversational technique, speaking clearly and not too dogmatically or too scientifically.

Pinero's unit plays well the type of music which program suggests. Pinero also solos competently on the violin. Theme is the melodic 'Garden of Tomorrow.'

The announcer, Frank Singiser, plugs Loma, Seymour, too, mentions one or two garden products. A booklet on gardening is offered. Jaco.

HAROLD LEVY'S ORCHESTRA
With Jay Velie and Marion Starr Discs
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WGY, Schenectady

Music from waxers pressed by this band and vocalists sifts over WGY's wave lengths on a Friday-morning program sponsored by the WGY Food Stores. It is a good brand of pop entertainment— superior, as a matter of fact, to some of the in-person stuff served on local household shots.

Levy's unit plays dance tunes smoothly, and Velie and Miss Starr handle the vocals competely. Velie has a light but pleasing voice and Miss Starr's, though deeper-toned, is well suited to the warbling of current numbers in the manner many ear-cuppers like.

Announcer fades the orchestral music to plug the stores and their 'specials'. Prices are mentioned, but the spieling as a whole is not carried to the lengths often pursued on locals. Odd, however, to hear the mike man about to read advertising copy, say, 'Play Softly, Harold,' after he has signed on the program as an electrical transcription. Jaco.

HELEN MENKEN
Dramatic
COMMERCIAL
WABC, New York

Helen Menken, legit star currently with Helen Hayes and Philip Merivale in the Theatre Guild's 'Mary of Scotland' repeated within two weeks on the Ex-Lax Monday night program. For the second guest appearance (23) she offered, quite appropriately, another facet of the life and personality of Queen Elizabeth.

Appropriately, because she plays that role in the stage play about Mary of Scotland and because at the moment she broadcast from CBS she was in theatrical costume and make-up having rushed over from the Alvin theatre and due back momentarily.

An actress of wide experience Helen Menken brings a rich, velvet-smooth voice to the radio. Elizabeth's love life and heartaches as radio-synopsized for Miss Menken gave a swell opportunity for a wide range of emoting. All of which the actress handles with authority and verisimilitude.

Qualifying both as a stage name and an actress, Mis Menken should land other air appearances. Land.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES
Newspaper Feature Yarns
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WBBM, Chicago

Dodge and Plymouth dealers of the Chicago area are getting three 15-minute bows weekly in this program, besides a monthly 60-minute program known as the 'Program of the Month,' which brings in a mob of guesters for a musical festival.

'Headlines' program is in line with the recent revival of old pictures and old news yarns. That old pictures thing was started by Maxwell Anderson's photograph book called 'The First World War,' which started every newspaper in the country reprinting world war pictures. This naturally led into a general run of picture reprints. The old news on the air was begun almost two years ago by Quin Ryan on WCFL for Atlas Beer with Ryan recounting the famous stories of the past century.

'Headlines' doesn't go back that far. It goes back just 24-hours. That 24 hours is necessary due to the radio-press agreement. Since they can only present news that's at least 24 hours old, the Dodge program has switched to the 'human side of the news,' taking human incidents for short dramatizations.

However, it's sold as hot news by this program, especially by the tagline between yarns, 'Dodge speeds on in search of news.' Program also makes much of the tag that 'it happened in Chicago.' Typical incidents portrayed in short dramas are the case of the amnesia victim, a near trolley accident, a robbery, the clean-up week proclamation. It's all done in fast style and manages to cover a lot of territory. The feature yarn thing is okay, but the program is choosing some items which are too insignificant; the near accident, for example. Some stories are ripe for real build-ups such as the amnesia story, which has real pull for readers and listeners. Program could use a good solid newspaper man who has a nose for what's really interesting to the public. The idea as presented in this show is worthwhile throughout, and has a chance of building to something, but it needs a keener sense of news values. Gold.

MULSIFIED
'Night Owls Revue' with Lillian Roth, Edward Nell, Jr., Ohman and Arden Songs, Music
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WABC, New York

This program takes to the cosmos at 6:30 p. m. Mondays for a half hour. That means it comes at a time when the commercials are about washed up for the night, but when there still are plenty of listeners, albeit no children or early snoozers. Time may very well be one of the program's chief assets.

While nicely put together, half-hour lacks outstanding personalities. Ohman and Arden, piano duo, are dependable filler-inners who bob up on beaucoup commercials and sustainers during the season. Edward Nell's voice is oke, but not individualistic or memorable. Lillian Roth sounds flat and colorless over the kilocycles. Deprived of her good-looking self and personality, there's little remaining to project ether-wise.

Mulsified Cocoanut Shampoo concentrates 'above the hair line.' Bad complexions have an affinity with bad scalps, declares the sudsbrewer. Film stars wash their own hair. Hollywood angle is used extensively. It's a dandy promotional thought but not developed. Would seem that the program should have picked up some well known screen actress and built the program around her. With the actress handling the spiel.

Plenty of screen gals a little superannuated for films but still widely known to the public are available. It would create a far more distinctive program than a conventional arrangement of tenor, torcher and instrumentalists. Land.

MORTON DOWNEY'S STUDI PARTY with Freddie Rich, Emory Deutsch, Betty Barthell, Ken Harvey, Connie Gates
45 Mins.
Sustaining
WABC, New York

Columbia has Morton Downey spotted at 8 p.m. Saturdays for a series of weekly 45-minute shows embracing besides the boyish-voiced Morton such other CBS artists as are available. But mostly it's Downey, and a good thing, too.

Downey, as a performer, constantly improves. An immense increase in maturity and authority is noticeable in his work in theatres. And the same applies on the air. He is by way of becoming a light comedian. Not a wise cracker nor a gagster, but the infectious Irish humor of gay songs and gentle banter. Indeed, he might be sagaciously counseled to develop the lilting ditties in Hibernian vernacular. It's an alley that seems to lead places.

Meanwhile, the CBS studio jamboree (for such it is) rolls through its 45 minutes joyously. At the end Ralph Wonders slides across a plug for the CBS Artists Bureau and the talent for hire for clubs, parties and conventions. Primarily, however, the production is simply a temporary attention-caller to Downey, who belongs with a sponsored program like a musical gong belongs with a time signal.

Of the various helpers last Saturday (28) the least known and perhaps therefore most appropriate for extended comment is a banjoist named Ken Harvey. This lad has the master's touch. He has the banjo under parade-ground discipline. Seems to be in the Eddie Peabody virtuoso class.

Freddie Rich's music is slick, as is the specialized fiddle of Emory Deutsch, while Betty Barthell and Connie Gates do smartly by pop songs. Land.

GENE AND GLENN
Comedy

COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Gillette safety razor (and blades) is the new bankroller for the Cleveland radio favorites now broadcasting at 7:15 p. m. instead of early a. m.

It's hard to judge Gene and Glenn's present series. Rambling, disconnected, unpunched style of working, which is uniquely theirs contrasts oddly with what evening listeners are accustomed to in comedians. It is almost true to call Gene and Glenn's humor esoteric, like the humor of A. A. Milne of Vanity Fair. One gets it or one doesn't.

It may seem like straining for a comparison, yet Gene and Glenn suggest the casual, offhand, naturalism encountered a good deal in legit. It is being therefore the opposite to the socko, point-stressing delivery of the vaudeville-trained performer with whom pressure is never relaxed.

Gene and Glenn retain their original selves, falsetto 'Lena' and companionable 'Jake'. These characters are worked out with considerable imagination and finesse. It may be assumed that Gene and Glenn achieve a mellow spell over their fans, which like the fidelity elicited by Amos 'n' Andy probably outlasts more flashy methods. Sympathy-tug is presumably what they aim for rather than bellies. There is the usual intermixture of light music and vocal harmonics.

Gillette commercial copy mentions prices, plugs the 49c gold-plated razor as well as the five for 25c blades. Gene and Glenn also weave mention of the product into their stuff. That may be dubious. Land.

GOODRICH BASEBALL SUMMARY
With Ford Bond
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Ford Bond tackles the job of a play-by-play description of baseball games played three hours before the time he is broadcasting. He talks as if he were present watching the game, and describing the action as actually occurring. There is, of course, a mingling inevitably of present and past tense. Yet the presentation, all things weighed, is graphic, concise and giving a remarkable illusion of being there.

Thousands of men and boys each evening habitually read the newspaper inning-by-inning accounts of the day's games. This large pre-existent audience is obviously what Goodrich seeks to reach. It is a cinch bet that the program will have wide masculine appeal.

Two games are reported, those involving the New York teams, Yankees and Giants. Commercial spiel for the tires comes in between and is marked by brevity. A longer spiel is used at the fade-out. Bond has to talk fast. Perhaps in the instances of the more memorable contests it might be just as well to slow down a bit or devote the entire session to one game. Land.

JIMMIE DURANTE

Chase & Sanborn
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Schnozzola kid, now of Hollywood, but doing some slumming in New York for broadcasting purposes, nosed over the mike much better Sunday night (29) on his second show for Chase & Sanborn, than in the opener the week before. Difference was due to considerable improvement in material and better program staging and pacing.

Coming through on his second show as a very different sort of entertainer for the air, Durante established himself. They can't see the kisser, but they can get the idea, and as long as the Durante phiz is now pretty familiar all over through pictures there's little likelihood that they'll misunderstand his strange delivery.

Something else that helped on the second program was the slicing of Durante's time and division of the comedy and into three sections, Rubinoff filled in admirably between laugh items. One of Durante's appearances on the initial bill consumed as much time as all three of his last Sunday night's showing. An hour is a long stretch for anybody, probably too long for continuous fun-making, and the only solution is to break it up into snappy spasms.

With Durante apparently in as a result of the last one, it's now up to the material boys to keep him interesting. Several slips in the script reading marred some of the lines, denoting possible lack of rehearsal preparation, and that should be watched in the future too.

On the Chase & Sanborn show Durante follows Eddie Cantor. If the writers supply the right jokes for Durante's talking and singing style, the Schnoz ought to nose in. Bige.

WEVD, New York

International Ladies Garment Makers Union is celebrating its 35th anniversary with a series of Friday night programs over WEVD, mouthpiece for many of New York's labor and liberal organizations. For carrying out the spirit of their purpose these half-hour soirees garner much credit for those concerned in the union and on the station's staff.

Last week's (27) session was the fourth in the series and for the guest artists there were Morton Downey, who took the closing spot for a pop tune, and Alla Nazimova, who played the protagonist in a thumbnail sketch dealing with the subject of child labor. It was undiluted propaganda, but effectively put.

As the guest speaker on this program New York City's Mayor, Fiorello LaGuardia, congratulated the international for its contribution to the social welfare of the town, namely, the driving out of the sweat shop from the cloak and suit industry. Another speaker was Isadore Nagel, v.p. and gen. mgr. of the cloak makers union. He greeted the new members listening in, commented on the benefits that President Roosevelt sought to bring labor through the NRA and also touched on the results to be obtained through solidarity.

Two speakers scheduled for future programs are Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, while the guest artist set for this Friday's (4) affair is Georgie Jessel. Odec.

WGY, Schenectady

This, the second in a series of behind-the-scenes talks by women executives of the film industry, was probably more interesting than the first heard over NBC on an afternoon shot, due to its 'inside stuff' angle which would naturally appeal to listeners who are film fans. Miss Kelly, secretary to Will H. Hays and secretary of the M. P. P. D. A.'s Title Registration Bureau, not only had a timely story to tell but, equally important, she told it well.

Miss Kelly explained the functioning of the title bureau, established by Hays in 1926. She detailed the steps taken by the bureau to insure that no title is the same or one similar to it for an original story, has previously been used. Miss Kelly said that a title is not subject to copyright, but that if it has been headmasted on a book or play which enjoyed some circulation, the title 'acquires a secondary consideration which has legal recognition'.

Most interesting part of her talk was that in which she cited title changes for recent productions, with the reasons. Thus Warner Brothers agreed to substitute 'Twenty Million Sweethearts' for 'Rhythm in the Air' because Fox had purchased, for a considerable sum, the rights to the operetta, 'Music in the Air', a name which the bureau members thought was rather similar. Universal changed 'Moonlight and Pretzels' to 'Moonlight and Roses' in England, because the word 'pretzels' had no meaning there. 'The House of Con-local stations, WBAL, WCAO, WCBM and WFBR, have formed an unofficial and untitled group that meets semi-monthly to discuss mutual difficulties that arise and to prevent offside inter-station warring.

4 BALTIMORE STATIONS SET UP FORUM

Baltimore, April 30.

Idea, first advanced by WFBR, took a while to flower, but is now functioning with all station heads enthusiastic. Group, as a it, seeks to avert price-slashing and unfair trade practices, and wants to bring out into the light of forum misunderstandings and grudges which in the past were nursed interminably without any effort or request for explanation or understanding. Also believed that this fortnightly get-together will be means of tipping each other off as to certain advertisers' practices, such as poor or late pay, chronic squawking, chiseling, etc.

As yet, group has not been drawn up constitutionally, there being no iron-clad, signed agreement making it mandatory that all hands abide by suggestions or general policies pursued. Believed that it will be more feasible at outset .. place all members at ease, and that fetters of any sort would prove unduly burdensome until deemed necessary.

Networks Bad Losers; Agencies Rap Rule On Program Switches

Pressure may be brought by the radio committee of the American Association of Advertising Agencies upon NBC and CBS to agree on a special dispensation for clients shifting from one network to the other. Agency men's attitude is that since the business stays within the medium the webs can afford to be gracious in allowing the account to make a followup announcement.

Rule prevailing at NBC bans the making of any announcement to indicate that the program just heard is the last on that network and info regarding the resumption of the series can be obtained by watching the newspapers. CBS is inclined to be more lenient on this finale announcement but still refuses to permit an account to designate the date on which newspapers will carry the spotlight and telling about the new network release.

Case in point occurred last Sunday night (29) when True Story folded its 'Court of Human Relations' show on NBC. Program unveils on CBS this Friday (4). Account sought to advise the listeners on the Sunday stanza that an announcement regarding the series would be found in this Friday's newspapers, but NBC bluepencilled the reference out of the continuity. Mag made the switch in hookups because CBS had the more desirable time. With the change to daylight savings the program would have got out to the Coast in the middle of the afternoon. On CBS the series has not only a weekday night (Friday) but another hour later than its clocking had been on NBC. New hour of release is 8:30 EDST.

17 AFFILIATES TIED TO G.B.

Columbia Network Stymied by Group Broadcasters, Inc.—Shut Out of 70% of Basic Area for Entering Spot Broadcasting

EXCLUSIVE ANGLE

CBS would like to follow NBC into the field of general station representation as well as the transcription business, but finds that the way has been barred by the spread of the Group Broadcasters, Inc., plan among its own (CBS) affiliates. Of the 23 network stations allied with the G.B. proposition of selling spot time on a group station basis 17 are members of the Columbia link. The G.B. contract restricts its associates from permitting their spot time to be sold on a group basis by any organization other than Group Broadcasters.

While Columbia has been mulling over the idea of extending its operations to spot time selling for CBS affiliates the directing minds behind Group Broadcasters have been active in aligning one CBS station after another with them. With the result that when CBS decided to expand its local station service to take in allied broadcasters it discovered that the majority of strategic spots that CBS itself didn't control through ownership or operating leases have been sewed up. One area that it is shut out of completely from the angle of spot time selling is New England. John Shepard, Third, owner of the Yankee network, is not only a charter member of Group Broadcasters, Inc., but chairman of the board.

Among the CBS stations now allied with Group Broadcasters are WADC, Akron; WLBZ, Bangor; WNAC, Boston; WICC, Bridgeport; WGR-WKBW, Buffalo; WHK, Cleveland; CKLW, Detroit; WDRC, Hartford; KMBC, Kansas City; WEAN, Providence; WHEC, Rochester; WMAS, Springfield; WSPD, Toledo; WIBX, Utica; WMT, Waterloo, and WKBN, Youngstown. This constitutes 70% of the basic area.

SHOWMANSHIP HAS REBUFFS AT WBT

Charlotte, N. C., April 30.

Several big shots, recently here for professional appearances, have turned shrinking violets for WBT. The station invites any important personages visiting Charlotte to 'say hello to the folks.'

Recent retiring individuals of the national spotlight have included Aimee Semple McPherson, Big Bill Tilden, Richard Crooks and Katharine Cornell.

These dignitaries said nay to the enterprising station. Crooks said he was going to bed; Tilden said outside contracts forbid his getting the extra publicity of a radio greeting to those he expected to attend his evening match with Ellsworth Vines; Miss Cornell left it to a hard-boiled manager, and Aimee said she reserved radio appearances for her own Angelus Temple station.

Lord and Thomas agency here moves the Lavena disc show with the Hal Kemp orchestra from WBBM, the CBS station, to WGN, the Chicago Tribune outlet. Figure that the WGN new 50,000-watt transmitter to reach a larger audience this summer.

NBC Asks Radio City Tourists To Answer 'What's Wrong' Quiz

Paying tourists of the NBC plant in Radio City and also attendees of the commercial broadcasts are being quizzed by the network on their program preferences. Questionnaire folder comes with a souvenir booklet that the visitor gets on his admission to the layout. Major portion of the booklet is devoted to plugging RCA products, such as radio sets, phonographs and tubes.

Introduction to the questionnaire reads: 'You've often wished you could tell the people who make radio programs what's the matter with them. And we've often wished you could tell us. An occasional letter doesn't help much—but if a lot of you would give us your answer to specific questions, then we'd come near to knowing what the public wants.'

First section of the questionnaire inquires when is the best time to broadcast a program for the children, 7:30 to 8:30 a.m., 3 to 6 p.m., or 6 to 8 p.m.? Also whether the answer filler-inner listens between 7 and 8 a.m. on weekday mornings and what are the program preferences for this dawn greeting stretch—music, religion, physical exercises or children's programs?

Next section deals with the choice of evening programs. The segment of the clock between 7:45 and 9 p.m. is broken up into 12 fifteen-minute periods, and the inquiree is asked to note what type of program he prefers for each of these quarter-hours. Available for his culling is a list of 33 types of programs. In this listing crooners are given a classification by themselves. It's the first questionnaire put by either NBC or CBS in which this species has received such recognition.

Questionnaire also asks the listener to check off what types of programs they don't want. Summer listening gets attention through the query which wants to know whether they tune in during the vacations, and if not, why? Is it because of no set available, poor reception or some other reason?

In the booklet itself there is included a chapter on 'Who pays for radio programs?' Whereas, explains the network, the European listeners pays the government a tax for his ether entertainment the American does his paying off with 'one of his most valuable possessions—his time.' In the United States, argues the network, the listener has absolute control over broadcasting. With the American system being competitive, the networks and stations must strive to hold the attention of the listeners, and if a program does not please a large audience it soon disappears from the air.

San Francisco, April 30.

But his pride turned to horror when seagulls swooped down and made off with the goldfish first day, and now are making daily raids on the seaweed. Fitzgerald is afraid to let his dog outside for fear the gulls will pick him off too.

Both CBS and NBC are wondering if they are going to get any direct advertising from the Fair, which has an appropriation of $435,000 for advertising in national media. Chicago, April 30.

Kastor agency locally has set a series on WGN for Procter & Gamble soap company. Starts this week for a daily shot of 15 minutes each. Show will be known as the 'Friendly Neighbor' and feature Virginia Clark as the dame who hangs over the backyard fence.

Harry Tugend is preparing the programs from an adaptation written by George Redmond.

Grofe will compose special music for the programs. Final audition due this Thursday (4).

'Ambassador' Eckersley

Chicago, April 30.

Roger H. Eckersley, director of entertainment of the BBC, in town for a look-around on American broadcast methods. Director of entertainment means program manager on this side of the water.

Eckersley was diplomatic in comparing American and English air shows. Said English shows are best for England, and American shows best for Americans, which is sound logic and irrefutable.

NEW FRISCO TALENT

San Francisco, April 30.

NBC's program department has reversed itself on several artists who were to have been let out this week (29) when it decided to retain the Clef Dwellers and Gypsy, and to add several new groups as well.

All will be fitted into NBC schedules under the naw daylight saving time setup. A number of programs are set to shift from KPO to KGO, too.

Pickard Family has recorded 26 quarter-hour shows for United Remedies. They're being placed at the rate of two a week. Station list is in process of being made up. Columbia Phonograph did the stenciling.

, April

President Roosevelt is scheduled to press a key in Washington at 9 P. M. (EST) Wednesday (May 2) which will formally dedicate WLW as a 500,000 watter, world's most powerful broadcasting station. Then Powel Crosley, Jr., founder of WLW, will start an all-night inaugural program that may be heard in every corner of the earth. Invited to participate in the program are members of the Federal Radio Commission, governors of several mid-west states, Ohio's United States senators and prominent professional and business men.

Charles Sawyer, lieutenant governor of Ohio, and a director of the Crosley Radio Corp., ill be toastmaster. The main speaking and entertainment program will originate in the Hall of Mirrors of the Netherland Plaza hotel, where 500 distinguished guests will attend a banquet prior to the dedicatory exercises. More than 200 artists, entertainers and musicians will appear in the broadcast, which is claimed to be the most elaborate remote control pick-up of its kind in the history of radio, enlisting 28 engineers, 12 mikes and 7,000 feet of wire.

New 500-KW station will carry a signal strength approximately 325% greater at any given point than the present 50,000-watt WLW, the service areas of which will be extended by about 1,000%. Under favorable conditions, says Joe Chambers, who supervised the installation and designed a large part of the equipment of the high-powered transmitter, a good receiving set will be able to pick up the station's blasts anywhere in the world.

From 10:30 to 11 o'clock, NBC will cut in on the broadcast with a network program originating in New York. The pick-up from the hotel will be from 9 o'clock to midnight. After that it will be conducted in the Crosley studios. The transmitter plant is at Mason, O., 22 miles north of Cincy. In the afternoon, guests will be transported by buses from the Netherland-Plaza to the transmitter.

WLW staff orchestras directed by William C. Stoess, Henry Thies, Virginio Marucci and Phil Davis will be heard together with Margaret Carlisle, Ponce Sisters, John Barker, Mary Alcott, the Charioteer, Rhythm Jesters, Johnny Muldowney, Joe Emerson, Sandra Roberts, Flora Blackshaw, Carl Grayson, Charlie Dameron, Oklahoma Bob Albright, Crosley Male Four, Jack Berch and the Crosley glee club of 35 male voices.

Bela Lugosi is the guest artist on tonight's (1) Shell Show over the Coast Don Lee chain. He has the lead in a dramatic sketch.

RADIO SHOWMANSHIP

(Merchandizing and Program Tieups)

OUTSTANDING STUNTS:

POLICE RADIO TEST FORD PROGRAM, CBS

New York.

Ford Motor's program of last Thursday (26) on CBS gathered heaps of space for itself in the New York dailies as a result of a stunt it pulled with the connivance of Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan. To show the listeners how the radio equipped cruiser cars of the department function the commissioner put on in the studio a real emergency call test. Thing worked so quickly that it blew up the commissioner himself. In his excitement over the unexpectedly overwhelming service he got the commissioner forgot about the speech he was to make immediately following the test and the production man on the program had no alternative but to push the Fred Waring unit into the breech.

Demonstration started off with a call being put through for the police via the telephone company and then let the tuners-inners get an earful of what happens after the call gets to the radio division at headquarters. Voice at that end ordered the cruising cars in the vicinity to report to Commissioner O'Ryan on the stage of the Columbia Playhouse. What obviously upset the commissioner was the sight of the first cruiser cop approaching the stage within a minute after the call had been dispatched over the air from headquarters.

During the rehearsal of the program that afternoon the response had been entirely different. He had to wait while two other more important calls in the neighborhood were being attended to.

'Grand Hotel's' Last Night

Chicago.

In taking leave of the air for the summer the Campagna program, 'Grand Hotel,' put on a farewell performance similar to the final night of a legitimate play. Each member of the cast, Ann Seymour, Don Ameche, etc., figuratively stepped in front of the curtain to speak direct to the public and thank them for being 'sweet.'

Salute was nicely arranged to leave a pleasant impression and put the program's good will on ice over the summer pending the show's October return to the air. Slightly hyperbolic but impressive was the statement that a Campagna v. p. had sailed for Europe for the purpose of scouting literary material for the series.

Are They Listening Test

Boston.

Scott Furriers has changed its show on the Yankee web in an effort to determine the size of their audience. New program called 'Guilty Or Not Guilty' is a series of dramatic thrillers in which the radio audience sits as jury.

Each case is complete in one broadcast. The evidence is presented in dramatized form and the verdict is determined by the mail response. As an added come-on the client is awarding ten cash prizes each week to those sending in the most reasonable verdicts based on the evidence in the broadcast. The programs are transcriptions.

WHEC's Convention Stunt

Rochester.

Station WHEC will broadcast a mystery drama 'Dolores Divine,' sequel to 'Trial of Vivienne Ware,' in the crystal studio at the Progress Exposition sponsored by the Democrat & Chronicle and Times-Union. The play will be produced both for air listeners and show visitors under the direction of Nicholas Pagliara.

Audience will be the jurors.

id Identification

Chicago.

Illinois Meat Company, which is marketing the cornedbeef hash known as Broadcast, starts on the Michigan network with a children's program known as the Man Hunters. Tie-up includes a string for the parents, so they will allow their children not only to listen to the Man Hunt program, but also purchase the product.

Station is issuing Man Hunt identification badges to the kids, each badge numbered with the number registered against the child's name at the station. In this way the network is promising to help locate man-hunters who get hurt or lost. When a man-hunter is lost the finder need only call the station and tell them the number of the badge, by which means the name and address of the lost or injured youngster may be discovered.

Coaxing Street Remarks

Washington.

Best stunt broadcast of week was pulled by Bob Trout and Art Godfrey, local CBS announcers, during Cherry Blossom Festival aired on WJSV. Trout wheeled baby carriage, carrying shortwave transmitter and receiver, along line of parade. Stopped along curbs and asked people to say things into mike. When they hesitated, Godfrey's voice came out of receiver coaxing 'em.

Godfrey being some four or five blocks away, gag had non-initated crowding about carriage like flies.

Nat Stewart on Web

San Francisco, April 30.

Several program changes going into effect at NBC include a new transcontinental to start May 15 with Nathan Stewart, baritone, getting a cross-country ride into New York every Tuesday, 11 a.m. (PST).

His song spot replaces that of Armand Girard, wth Stewart getting a berth on the NBC staff as well.

Mary's Garden, daily p.m. period conducted by Velva Dickinson, is off with Miss Dickinson returning to KGW, Portland, for the same sponsor who formerly bankrolled her there before she came here.

New Coast Firm Producing Discs For Air Channels

Hollywood, April 30.

Radio Release Ltd., has been formed here to handle disc recording and production with Hal Huff, general manager; C. Whitney Sheely, production manager; Jack Lewis, charge of the script department, and W. O. Watson, chief engineer. Company quartered in old KMTR studio on Highland avenue.

Production plans call for the discing of 14 programs. Clifford Knight is writing 'Highways of Steel,' railroad yarn; Frank Fiske is adapting 'Racing Luck,' from his Satevepost series of that title; Hugh Lester, 'Witch's Cauldron'; Robert F. Hill, 'Phantom Gods'; Isabel Anthony, 'Royal Intrigues'; Edward Lynn, tabloiding his 'Catherine the Great,' which was broadcast over CBS from KHJ here.

Permanent stock company to appear in these wax serials include Georgia Fifield, formerly in charge of dramatics at KNX; Noreen Gammill, Betty Ross Clark and Ezilda Sutton.

WGN-WOR-WLW HOOKUP FOR CAL-ASPIRIN SHOW

Chicago, April 30.

Cal-Aspirin spreads the 'Painted Dreams,' now running on WGN, to the Cincinnati WLW on May 7. Understood that it will be a three-way hookup by the first of June, with WOR to be added.

This will make it the second show to use the WGN-WLW-WOR network, Pebeco at present spreading on those three stations. Aspirin account handled by the Carrol Deal Murphy agency here.

Borden Hits Filmites

Hollywood, April 30.

Use of film names on the CBS 'California Melodies' hour from KKHJ here is out for the time being in deference to the Borden show, a commerciallier that uses film talent on the same night.

Order to keep filmites off the sustainer came from New York.

JEDDO WILL BE BACK

Jeddo Hyland Coal will return its dramatized version of the novel classics to NBC in the fall. Schedule will again be three programs a week.

Fuel distrib gave the series a run of 16 weeks this season.

Gary Breckner as M.C.

San Diego, April 30.

Gary Breckner, production manager for Don Lee system broadcasts on the west coast, was master of ceremonies last week at a three-day program presented in Balboa park in connection with a Chilled Food Institute, sponsored by the Union-Tribune.

Radio show also carried Naomi Woodruff, Three Gingham Girls, Thelma Beck, Ione Davis and Julia Fortcannon, and Bob Young. Packed them in afternoon and evening for three days.

Hudnut Stocks 4 More

Hudnut Sales will hold onto its Friday night spot on CBS for another four weeks beyond May 4. Program continues with Jack Whiting, Jeannie Lang and Jack Denny's band. Will make 17 weeks altogether.

Involved are 26 stations.

Radio Survey of Europe Shows Austria Tops in Music Preference

The Hague, April 18.

Union Internationale de Radiodiffusion has gathered statistics on the types of programs preferred throughout Europe, with the result it's learned that Austria, in pronounced preference of music, tops the Continent.

Test period and survey was over a period of four months. Music in general is preferred by 60.8% of Austrian listeners. Holland makes a distinction of classical music, 35% of its listeners preferring it. Classical music in the rest of Europe lines up Austria, 24%; Poland, 23%; Germany, 22%; England, 17%, and Switzerland, 10.5%.

Opera, as a separate item, gets 15% of Italian-listener preference, a record for Europe. Others' likes for opera are Yugoslavia, 10%; Austria, 4%; Holland, 0.6%.

Curious item is that in the two most Fascist countries of Europe, Italy and Germany, news commentation gets greatest ether attention. In both of these countries 19% of the listeners prefer tuning in on news items and comments, which figure is the highest preference given. This is quite surprising to the rest of the world, because in both these countries news comments consist largely of government handouts.

Legit or drama in any form doesn't seem to be very popular on the Continent. Budapest goes for sketches and skits to the extent of 10% of its listeners, but, outside of the Hungarians, there is only one other country which indicated liking this form of entertainment. That's Austria, with 3.5%.

HERE AND THERE

NIGHT CLUB REVIEWS

JOLLITY, LONDON

London, April 17.

Mainstay of Charles Cochran's new suppertime show, produced at the Trocadero grillroom, April 16, is, as usual, young and beautiful girls. Dance routines proved alluringly attractive. Previous bunch were too youthful to possess sex appeal, and the present ones seem to have just about been hatched. There are a dozen of them. Half appear under the title of 'Sweet' and are demurely attired in white; the remainder then burst out titled 'hot,' and designed to impersonate warm babies.

Later on they do a variation of the old Can-Can, but instead of stockings that come to the knees, they wear silk leggings that reach to their calves. Raising their skirts, they reveal seductive lace panties. They make three separate appearances, and on each occasion do fast and well-trained dances.

Then there is a team called the Two Bustons, who do burlesque acrobatics as closely along the lines of Roth and Shay, even to the costuming, as it is possible to imagine, without actually doing exactly the same tricks in the same sequence.

Star of the evening is Eve, probably the greatest female contortion dancer extant. She has now developed into a first-rate pantomimist. Properly placed in a West End show she should make a sensational hit. Some years ago Cochran had her in his musical spectacular shows, but she was not, then, sufficiently matured. Maybe he is grooming her for the right opportunity. He doesn't usually overlook many bets in the way of exploiting talent.

A very effective act is the Su Yee troupe of Chinese acrobats and jugglers with some original formations and an exceedingly clever bit by one man who wrestles with a dummy.

Altogether an artistic flash midnight cabaret show running 35 minutes. Jolo.

Ambassadeurs, Paris

Paris, April 21.

Far and away the best floor show Paris has seen this year. It's 100% American, booked by the William Morris agency, and in combination with Alberti's expert handling of the public and Jim Witteried's active but careful dealings with both French and American press it ought to put this spot over again this spring.

Opened Tuesday (17) with a capacity crowd of the best people, who took the show with a roar. Center of the entertainment is supplied by 18 Gertrude Hoffman girls who rollick through their athletic numbers with more youthful pep than this old town has seen in years, in spite of a floor a bit too small for them. Opening night they came out in their last number, in which they use a huge veil to cover all 18, clad only in minute panties, but second night they wore brassieres also, indicating that someone had kicked.

Girls are not all, however. Show is balanced. Cornell and Graff supply three dramatic dance numbers of high artistic value. Grace and finish of their routine and the meaningful expressiveness of their gestures are items which Paris appreciates. Everything in their performance is studied with taste, down to the last detail of their costumes.

Dorothy Crooker's dance on one leg had the crowd gasping for a while, but the impression was not 100% good because Miss Crooker let it be felt at times, through her facial expressions, that the stunt was tough. She probably wasn't suffering at all, but the audience got the idea she was, and that cramped somewhat the gay nitery spirit. Nothing but admiration expressed for her, however.

Necessary humor is supplied by the Three Sailors, comedy hoofers whose act went big. Biggest laughs obtained by gags, in which arms and legs of the boy get intertwined.

Hoffman troupe, however, remains the big attraction. They come on seven times in the course of the evening, and every time go over with a bang. Troupe is so drilled as to preserve individuality, and the contrast to the rigidity of the lines to which Paris is accustomed was remarked.

Most sensational numbers, besides the veil dance, are a rope-climbing feature in which simple mass acrobatics give an impression of strength and skill, and a swashbuckling fencing number in which they seem about to carve each other up.

Girls are just up from Cannes, where they had a successful engagement at the Casino, despite the meagerness of the season there. They are billed here for six weeks, and Miss Hoffman, who is watching over them in person, is considering further European bookings, but hasn't yet signed anything.

Show is divided in two parts, one of which goes on at 11 to top off dinner, and the other at 1 in an attempt to catch the after-theatre mob. Latter is an innovation for the Ambassadeurs, due to Albert's initiative. The spot, on the Champs-Elysees near the Concorde, is out of the way for late suppers, for which Montmartre is the chief district, and it's a question whether the crowd will change its habits to come here so late.

Bulk of business is done with diners, whose checks run around $15 per person, or higher. Late comers pay slightly less per bottle of champagne.

Turnover is augmented by good afternoon crowd of dancers. Show is put on at night only, but Leslie Sherling's Ambassadeurs band, which plays the best dance music available in town, plays matinees also, supplemented by a tango orchestra called Inglese. Sterling got his start in London as a crooner, and his vocalizations, as he leads, help a lot with the Paris crowd.

Decorations remain the same as last year to give an outdoor impression. Stern.

Diane, Dewey Elope

Marriage March 31 of Diane, of the ballroom team of Dario and Diane, to John G. Dewey, Jr., son of the managing director of the Edgewater Beach, Chicago, was disclosed by the couple last week.

While his bride fills out her season's contract with the Place Piquale, Manhattan niterie, Dewey has taken over the management of the Nautilus Beach Club, Long Beach, for the summer. Elopement took place while the dancer was doing a personal appearance with George Raft.

CHIEF OF POLICE BACK

San Francisco, April 30.

Frisco's broadcasting police chief, William J. Quinn, returns to the air on May 2, beginning another dramatic series on NBC.

This'n is 'To the Best of Their Ability,' penned by Carlton E. Morse of the network writing staff, who is basing the stories of actual attempts of gangsters and others to make baddies out of the local cops. The chief suggests the story ideas.

Chief Quinn works with an NBC dramatic staff which gets regular sustaining fees for the shows, while the Chief takes his out in the form of publicity and the kick he gets out of performing.

WPGG Findley Ohio has been transferred by the Buckeye State Sheriffs association to the Ohio Highway patrol.

ATTACK MPPA SONG FOLIO

ROSE AND ASCAP MAY SETTLE

Indications are that Billy Rose, as one of the operators of the Casino de Paree, will get together with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers on the license fee asked of the near-Broadway spot. Rate set for the nite club by ASCAP is $4,800 a year. Rose has offered to raise his original ante of $1,500 to $2,400.

Publisher members on the society's board of directors last week declared themselves in favor of bringing the controversy with Rose to a showdown by instituting injunction proceedings against the cafe. The purpose of this litigation would be to restrain the spot from playing any tune controlled by the society. These publishers argued that with the Casino de Paree grossing around $35,000 a week and using two bands it would be no hardship or imposition for it to pay less than $100 a week for music performing rights.

Rose is a class AA member of the society. What would make it embarrassing, in the event of an injunction, for the society's members is the fact that the Songwriters' Protective Association has arranged to stage a benefit performance for the Authors' League relief fund at the Casino May 22.

GUN ACCIDENT CUTS VIOLINIST'S CAREER

Toronto, April 30.

Accidental discharge of a shotgun April 26 wrote finis to the musical career of John Langley, 30, first violinist of Rex Battle's Royal York orchestra and member of the Hambourg Trio, who tripped on a loose shoe lace after a trap-shooting practice, his outflung hand releasing the trigger of the gun and sending the charge into his left hand. The index finger, so vitally important to a violinist, had to be amputated and his other fingers are badly lacerated.

There is insurance, but not enough to compensate the loss of his career.

'Night on the Desert,' Billy Hill's latest tune, has had its general radio release date set for Friday (4) by Shapiro, Bernstein & Co. Number goes into the Ziegfeld Follies today (Tuesday), replacing the same writer's 'Last Round Up'.

Ask Chi Park Board Spot for Petrillo to Open Musical Jobs

Chicago, April 30.

Number of the ace band leaders of the city have petitioned Mayor Kelly to place Jimmy Petrillo, musicians' union chief, on the new park board.

Recent edict by the Mayor dissolved the five park boards, with the official intending to replace them with one board of five men to supervise the entire park system of the city. Petrillo has for years been an active member of the west park board.

Musicians are making a strong fight to have Petrillo appointed to the park board, since in this position he will be able to secure band concerts in the parks this summer, resulting in work for about 100 musicians.

Fox Royalty Squabble Ends as Tunesters Win

Hollywood, April 30.

Royalty differences that have existed on the Fox Film lot since the inception some months ago of the Sam Fox Music Co. have finally been ironed out, with L. Wolf Gilbert, of the Songwriters' Protective Association, being advised that the lyric and music writers will receive the royalties owed them, and that synchronization rights royalties would also be forthcoming, as provided for in the SPA contract.

Settlement was reached after Winnie Sheehan called in Fox, George Bagnell, studio comptroller, and attorney Watson, Fox New York legal rep. Studio head told the trio to straighten out the tangle that has existed since the Sam Fox company was organized, with protests having freely been made that Fox had neglected to pay off.

Sheehan told the conferees that studio was facing possible court actions if the royalty differences were not settled forthwith, and the decision to pay off came shortly thereafter.

PUBS. CLAIM IT'S BIZ HINDRANCE

Hold Counter Sales Not Helped—Critical Element Will Fight Third Folio Attempt—Compilers Accused of Over-reaching

'GUESSING'—PAINE

From a number of quarters in the publishing industry attacks have been directed at the Music Publishers' Protective Association's plan of fighting fire with fire by going into direct competition with the bootleg hawkers of lyric sheets. The method, aver these critics, leans towards business destruction rather than improvement. By tossing on the market 850,000 folios of their own, the publishers, hold the critical element, have done nothing to stimulate counter sales. These same opponents of the folio idea declare that they will fight any move on the part of the MPPA to put out a third nickel folio edition.

Among those who have already voiced their dissent to the MPPA folio proposition is E. Grant Ege, general manager for the Jenkins Music Co., Kansas City. Among the publishers who have refused to let the lyrics of any of their songs be included in the MPPA folios are Harms, Inc., and Irving Berlin, Inc. Other publishers have expressed themselves as peeved at the liberties taken with their property by the compilers of the folios. In several instances, when permission had been extended to use 10 sets of lyrics from a catalog, the compilers, complain the publishers, have had no compunction about including almost twice that number. Robbins insisted on certai song lyrics being elided, and it cost the folio printers several hundreds of dollars to comply.

Paine Answers

In answering these criticisms, John G. Paine, chairman of the MPPA board, pointed out last week that the folio was still purely an experiment, and that it was impossible at the present time to evaluate the results of the MPPA'S folio distribution. A publisher who at this stage declares himsef as opposed to the proposition on the ground that it is destructive to the songsheet business, said Paine, is basing his remarks on nothing but guesswork. He and those working with him on the plan, averred Paine, are trying to gather facts, and until this has been done the thing cannot be judged either way. In a survey taken among dealers, 34% of them, added Paine, opined that the MPPA folio tended to stimulate the sale of sheet music.

The chain syndicate, asserted Paine, has advised him that if the MPPA will guarantee to continue the lyric folio idea it will open music counters in 115 more stores. This syndicate, which he declined to name, had found the folio conducive, Paine said, to bri ing the buyer back into the store. If the proposition has only been successful in prevailing upon the consumer to do his folio purchasing in a music store instead of a bootleg hawker,, he added, it should be hailed as a boon to the industry.

LEW POLLACK DEPARTS

Philadelphia, April 30.

Lew Pollack, the songwriter, scheduled to do a fade from the Walton Roof tomorrow (1). Story is that biz increaserd greatly, but bank receivers for the hostelry are skeptical of floor shows.

Vincent Travers ork crew also leaving for shore spot, and hotel plans no entertainment for the warm weather. This puts the Walton among those missing on the local nitery list, which has perked up miraculously in the last month.

Pollack created big talk around town, and may move into Jack Lynch's Adelphia for a fortnight.

Trade Provisions of Code Allowed to Stand, but Labor Clauses Rewritten

Trade practice provisions of the music publishing industry's code, as originally drawn up, have been left practically intact by the Department of Justice and the legal experts for the NRA administration, who last week turned over the revamped document to the Music Publishers Protective Association. Sections of the covenant that the government lawyers almost completely revrote were those dealing with hours of labor, labor conditions, wages and the organization, powers and duties of the code authority. These were made to conform with the codes of other industries.

As the trade rules now stand, every off-color plug angle in the business is covered and stringently described. Not only noted are the payoff methods by way of cash, gifts and cut-ins, but the matter of furnishing free special arrangements. Government legalities let stand intact the provision which forbids a band leader to make a special arr ngement without first obtaining the written permission of the copyrigh owner. Specifically declared an unfair practice is the paying off an orchestra or singer for the making of a special arrangement.

Phoney Ads Out

One clause in the fair practice section that underwent revision was that having t. do with publishers who direct their advertising to amateur songwriters. This clause now baldly bans this element from even suggesting that they will do anything but print the material submitted. Proviso brings within its range the raft of hole-in-the-wall firms that have in recent years sprung up to take advantage of the radio angle. These mushroomers indicate, if not making a direct promise, that they will get the works of the amateurs plugged on the air. The practice is common among them to include in their firm names the word 'radio.'

Under the revised terms of the code, five persons are to be selected by the MPPA board of directors to serve as the code authority. Nothing is said in this section as to how many of them shall be from the pop ranks and from the standard end of the business, or what the odd members shall represent. Revamped document also calls for the establishment of a national co-ordinating committee of five to help in the adoption of rules for the code authority, the enforcement of the code, and the adjustment of differences that may arise between members of the code authority.

Retained in the pact turned over to the MPPA by the government lawyers is the clause which sanctions the formation and maintenance of such selling and distributing combines as the now suspended Music Dealers Service, Inc. This clause permits any publisher, or group of publishers, to sell their merchandise to all dealers irrespective of quantities purchased.

It is expected that the administrator of the NRA publishing industries' division will set the date of public hearing on the music code the latter part of this week.

Song Pluggers Defer By-Laws Until F.D.R. Signs Music Code

Adoption of a set of by-laws for the song pluggers' association, now in process of formation, has been deferred until President Roosevelt has signatured the music publishing industry's code. Professional men feel that their suppression of free special arrangements and plug payoffs should be so phrased as to conform with the provisions of the code.

Those active in the organization disavow any connection with the idea of asking the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to contribute a percentage of its collections to a profcssianal men's relief fund. Strong opposition to this suggestion, when it was originally proposed, arose from both the writer and publisher ranks in ASCAP.

Benee Russell, temporary chairman of the contacteers' organization committee, declares that he had never in any way been associated with the proposal.

Ask Sunday Concerts

Troy, N. Y., April 30.

Troy Musicians' Union has petitioned Mayor Cornelius F. Burns to resume Sunday afternoon band concerts in a city park.

The concerts were eliminated two years ago, due to lack of funds, but officers of the union say the budget for the next fiscal year carries an appropriation which can be used to defray the cost.

Herbie Kay and orchestra, who have been at the Silver Glade, Denver, for several months, started barnstorming when the place closed for the summer. Will go into the Rice hotel, Houston, Texas, about May 28.

Inside Stuff—Music

Top money for the most number of performances during the first quarter of 1934 has been split between the writers of 'Let's Fall in Love' and 'Old Spinning Wheel.' Awards come from the $12,500 quarterly purse set aside by the writer faction of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

First coin in this instance amounted to $2,500, $1,300 of this amount going to Harold Arlen and Ted Kohler for 'Let's Fall in Love' and $1,200 to Billy Hill for 'Old Spinning Wheel.' Hill's other active number for that quarter, 'Wagon Wheels,' netted him $195. Complete allocation for the 'Wagon' tune was $390 with Peter DeRose, co-writer, getting the other $195. Gordon and Revel collected $1,250 on 'Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?' and $250 on 'You Are Such a Comfort to Me.'

Induction last week of the Casa Loma band (14) into the New York musicians union has relieved that combo of making further payments weekly of $750 to the local's relief fund. Sum represented standby money arising from the unit's connection with the Camel program on CBS. As members of the local the band may now retain the full $2,750 it collects from the cig account.

Boys in the Casa Loma outfit retain their membership in the New Rochelle, N. Y., local, which has jurisdiction over the Glen Island Casino where the band unveils for its second summer May, 24.

Latest factional battle to agitate members of the New York musicians' local is the one between the trial and governing boards. What brought about the squaring off was the latter coterie's overruling of decisions handed down by the trial board.

Holding that the governing board is without authority in matters of trial board procedure, latter group has taken its grievances to Joseph Weber, international prez.

Hotel Pierre, New York, has settled privately with several members of Will Osborne's orchestra who lost hats and coats about a month ago. Band played for the high hat Dolphin Club dance.

Strictly a social register event but some of the 5th Ave. society boys had 11th Ave. ideas of comedy, raided the check room and tossed coats out the windows.

UNIT REVIEWS

Herman Timberg Unit

(PITT, PITTSBURGH)

Pittsburgh, April 27.

lenty of work needed, but Timberg has the makings here and it should shape up all right once it's set. Billing reads Herman Timberg's 'Temptations,' and first performance was pretty ragged, with backstage crew gumming up the works on several occasions. Unit opened cold in Pittsburgh and cues were garbled frequently, making it tough on everybody concerned.

Timberg is show's backbone and he's carrying plenty of first-rate talent, principally his son, Herman, Jr.; Don Tannen, a dialectic stooge; a cute trick by the name of Audrey Parker, and the dance team of Armondo and Lita.

Early and late sections all brisk and amusing, but it's in the middle that 'Temptations' needs some sharp editing. One song number, 'There Is No Budget for Love,' introduced by Joe Herbert, develops into a marathon and should be shortened considerably or eliminated entirely, while blackout of chorus girls gabbing in their dressing room is overboard on running time. Ran for what seemed like 10 minutes, and that's too long for the sake of a single laugh.

Also too generous is the 'All Nations' number, a build-up for the show-stopping routine of Armondo and Lita. Too much talk here and most of it wearying. Likewise on wrong side of ledger is Oriental songstress, Toyo Sasabe, who does a single unmber with Herbert that's entirely superfluous. Girl has personality but no voice.

But there's plenty that's good in the unit. Group number with Timbergs, pere et fils, Tannen and Miss Parker are all sockos. Timberg, Jr., has inherited his pop's nimble feet, while Tannen is a dialectician who should go places. Gets over a swell imitation of Arliss. In Miss Parker, Timberg seems to have found a worthy successor to Barbara (Snoony) Blair, who used to be with him. She has class and talent and an individual style of comedy that Timberg knows how to bring out at its best, and does.

Chorus of 12 Ned Wayburn girls has looks and gals know how to dance, too. They've been outfitted with some nice costumes, considerably more pretentious and attractive than usual line costumes coming this way. They're on for three or four numbers and do all right. Several of them also serve in number of sketches.

Timberg has retained his modern vaudeville bill routine, in which he shows what talking pictures have done to the familiar variety layout, but most of it went over mob's heads, here. Backstage gang gummed this one up, however, and this may have had a lot to do with it. Finale is the Timbergs' goif-dance number, starting out in 'one' and winding up on full-stage with entire company participating in front of country club set. It's a fast finish.

In addition, show's billing also carries names of Oliver Harris and George Freems. Cohen.

TAKE A CHANCE

(Olsen and Johnson)
(PARAMOUNT, L. A.)

Los Angeles, April 26.

Hastily revamped from a full-length legit musical to picture house presentation status, 'Take a Chance,' featuring Olsen and Johnson, was away overboard on running time at initial unfolding, consuming 89 mins. Heavy pruning must be done before unit can be suitable for the pic spots.

Legit closed at the Mayan Sunday (22) and in three and a half days Fanchon & Marco, which produced, succeeded in eliminating close to an hour of the original. Most of the scenes have been retained, although in condensed form, but opening show indicated an attempt to give entirely too much.

Cast changes have Florine McKinney and Johnny Downs out as romantic leads, replaced by Betty Allen and Jack Macauley. Also Louise Carr has replaced Maxine Doyle. Olsen and Johnson, naturally, carry most of the load, and Lillian Miles, as in the legit version, cops high rating, particularly in her interpretaton of 'Eadie Was a Lady.'

Twenty-four line girls, from the F. & M. ranks, are used in several well-routined numbers, and an unidentified mixed dance team does some exceptionally snappy tapping in two different scene interludes.

Olsen and Johnson do a number of funny blackouts. Most of the off-color stuff that marred the opening night's legit performance has been eliminated, although Johnson still has a tendency to use a few gags that could just as well be eliminated.

Miss Allen is satisfactory as the girl foil for the team, a couple of crooked dealers in a gambling joint, and her brief scenes with Macauley are oke. Miss Miles is excellent and her several songs are nicely put over, with 'Eadie' topping her efforts.

Staging is adequate and unit as a whole should have no trouble clicking in key spots. It's hoke stage fare all the way, but evidently the type of entertainment pic house fans want, as O. & J. must be given credit for most of this afternoon's above average draw. Edwa.

SALLY RAND UNIT

(STANLEY, PITTSBURGH)

Pittsburgh, April 27.

The nation's premiere fanner, who proves that the Rand is quicker than the eye, has outfitted herself with a smart, showmanly-staged unit that gives her a big build-up and at the same time provides some first-class entertainment. Of course, they're all waiting for Sally, and she doesn't arrive until the very end, but there's plenty to keep 'em satisfied until Miss Rand dances on with the ostrich plumes.

Opens with the Ching Ling Foo, Jr., troupe, introduced through an offstage mike, and Orientals set a nice pace with expert tumbling, plate spinning and general all-around acrobatics. One of the best aggregations of its kind, Foo gang had no trouble registering all the way. Followed by Benny Ross, nice looking juve who serves as m.c., and after setting himself with a little chatter introduces the chorus.

Line does an attractive 'Bolero,' then Ross is on again plugging Miss Rand a couple of more times before he goes into his own specialty. There is hardly a moment here that audience is permitted to forget it's Sally Rand's show.

Ross clicks nicely with his singing and piano playing, getting over imitations of Jessel and Gershwin, and then brings on his somnambulistic partner, Maxine Stone, for flock of giggles Gal, a good-looking blonde, yawns all over place and her sleepy indifference fits nicely with Ross' breezy style.

For an encore, Miss Stone is presumably to sing, but before she can start, piano has to be brought out again. That's the cue for Willie and Joe Mandell, comedy acrobats, and while they're spilling all over the back curtain, cluttering up the stage and a terrible racket, Miss Stone stands nonchalantly out front and goes through the warbling motions. Good for steady ripple of laughs and when line trips off after their second number, Mandells follow them on for their still sure-fire act.

That sets the stage for the finale and after chorus has given Miss Rand a perfect build-up, she appears in a white spot at the head of a flight of stairs, comes down slowly and goes into her dance. Manipulates the feathers okay and makes most of her imitators look like third-raters. At the end she ascends the stairs again, gives the customers a brief glimpse of the chasis and curtains close in with her wind-up.

Smart idea finishing that way, for fanner's specialty is purely a novelty and hardly an applause-getter. Cohen.

Switch for Health

Lincoln, April 30.

Rosita Royce, who's been waving fans over her person for the last five weeks with Henry Santrey's 'Soldiers of Fortune' unit, came home last week with pneumonia.

She's giving up the fans now and will do a scarf dance.

RKO CONSIDERS LOCAL STAGING

RKO is reported considering a local production idea for next season in its principal vaudfilm theatres, with Brooklyn, Cleveland, Chicago and Boston the towns under consideration.

Circuit tried the idea out last week in Cleveland, building a show around and adding a line of girls to a regular five-act vaude bill. It's doing the same thing this week at the Palace, Chicago, where Ken Murray opens for a run. Sid Silvers is also in this show.

Production plan discussed thus far is for local staging only, involving a stationary producer and line of girls in each house.

SCRAP OVER CODE RULE CLOSES PITT VARIETY

Pittsburgh, April 30.

Trouble with newly-organized Burlesque Artists Association closed Variety here Saturday night (28), earliest house has shut down for the summer in years. Differences between actors' union and George Jaffe, owner and manager, arose when Jaffe sought to dismiss a comedian after one week. Association demanded that performer stay for four weeks or get full salary for that time. Rather than accede, Jaffe decided to shutter.

Management burned plenty and stated when it reopens in fall, it will be without BAA members. Variety usually closes around last of May but with business showing a slight pick-up last week, house might have continued into June barring the fight with association.

NEW ACTS

MATTISON'S RHYTHMS (8)

Dancing, Si
14 Mins.; Speci
Academy, N.

Another flash of the youth gets its fling category. Good looks are well scrattered among this troupe of five boys and three girls, but when it comes to promising talent the allotment is pretty much monopolized by the tall, gangling youngster. His is a style reminiscent of the early Hal LeRoy, with the knack for dishing out mixed and broken rhythm, making this lad of the Mattison entourage a worthy candidate for training by some recognized expert of the buck and wing.

Act is adroitly put together. Outside of the long-legged boy, the center of interest is the line tapping of the four youths, obviously brothers, and two girls, and a routine by the set of twins of the former foursome in which they mix their precision toe and heel rapping with a roundelay on the saxophones. There's also a girl in the turn who would like to become a specialist in the Harlem moan. It's entirely beyond her reach. She could at least learn how to carry a tune.' With the warbler replaced and the act given a dressier background it might have a chance of going places on what there is of the medium time. Odec.

BERNICE and EMILY And THREE LONG BROS.

Dance Revue
10 Mins.; Full (Spec.)
State, N. Y.

Couple of months ago Bernice and Emily were teamed with King, King and King. Verdict at that time was that while each dancing turn individually had class, jointly the resultant revue wasn't too good. Now the King threesome who have plenty of authority and accentuation in their hoofing have been replaced by a mediocre carbon copy whose taps lack firmness and whose general stage deportment is without the stamp of approval. Boys look nice but have some distance to go professionally to meet fast competition.

Act is dull and listless and opened the State bill to poor results. This despite the remarkable precision acrobatics of the two girls. Their routines employing a staircase are especially fetching but the act is sloppily put together and just doesn't jell. Land.

THREE HEAT WAVES

Singing; musical
8 Mins.; two
Orpheum, N. Y.

Three males, introduced as by 'courtesy of Federal Broadcasting Company (WMCA),' in a combination of singing, musical work and hoofery. Last is reserved for the finale and delivered by one of the boys to the harmonica and guitar accompaniment of the others. It tops their straight harmony and boop-a-dooping, but the best portions of the turn are the hot harmonica and kazoo bits.

As a whole the act lacks spark, this mainly due to their grouping around the mike until the terpsichore session. Fortunately for them, however, they are on for but eight minutes. One more song and they probably would not have rated the warm applause they received.

Boys took their billing from the song, 'Heat Waves,' and were on the air but a short while. While no comparison, they are at times a takeoff on the Mills Bros.

In the deucer here.

OLVIDO PEREZ

Wire Act
8 Mins.
Roxy, N. Y.

This act is tops among those in the wire division. It should be with the Ringling show.

Olvido Perez, a young chap, does a routine on a slack wire without the aid of an umbrella that will bring any circus or theatre audience to an enthusiastic demonstration.

He opens with the usual routine matter, then goes into what looks like his best stunt, a drunk on the wire a la Maximo and that wire artist's big bit. Perez has something to top this, however. With the wire plenty slackened, he climbs up on a ladder balanced on the steel strand and after straddling the top, goes in for some juggling. He failed the first time here, when caught, but if a stall, it's the best-looking stall ever installed.

For the close Perez gets the wire down to within inches of the floor and swinging in a wide circle walks and turns around on it. His balance is uncanny. Char.

Frisco's P.A. Holiday

San Francisco, April 30.

With Marco's Orpheum playing those big name stage shows, house is practically surrounded with advance men and press agents.

Currently three of them are on the loose, Hilda Cole coming in for Kate Smith, who opens May 4 before hitting Los Angeles; Hal Niedes in from L.A. to p.a. for Olsen and Johnson, who open at the Columbia May 6, and then may do a condensed version at the Orph for F&M, while Grenade Wilson is ahead of 'Century of Progress' revue, current.

Indie Agents' Drive to Enforce Code Okayed by All Bookers but Godfrey

Wit the exception of George Godfrey (Godfrey-Linder), who insisted on two provisions to keep down the salaries, all the important New York indie vaudeville bookers Friday (27) agreed unconditionally to support the organized indie agents in a drive to enforce the vaudeville section of the Motion Picture Code.

The 37 indie agents who hold membership in the Independent Vaudeville Artists Representatives' Association voted as a body to abide by the code in an organized manner, and penalize agents and bookers that violate the code. A committee, consisting of Phil Coscia, Bill Miller, Bill Schilling and Lew Sharp, was appointed to see the bookers and advise them of the agents' intentions.

On Friday afternoon the committee made the rounds of the various booking offices and drew a pledge of support in enforcement of the code, as it is generally interpreted, from all but Godfrey. Latter voiced opposition to the popular interpretation of the meaning of the $40 a week minimum salary provision.

What Godfrey Thinks

Godfrey's opinion, as he gave it to the agents, is that the $40 for a week's booking, as against the $7.50 per day rate, can apply to seven days' work whether or not the seven days follow consecutively and ithin the same week; that seven days' booking played in eight or nine days classifies as a week's work at $40.

The agents disagreed and asked the Code Authority for an opinion. Code Authority upheld the agents, stating the $40 rate applies only to a week's engagement played consecutively within the same week.

Godfrey also stated he will insist on enforcing the code provision which lowers the salary minimum for actors with less than two years' experience to $25. The booker stated he would require agents to obtain affidavits that their acts have been in the profession for over two years before he will pay them $40 weekly.

Elsewhere the agents' committee met with no opposition. In addition to the enforcement notification, they advised the bookers that they expect booking offices to help in penalizing violators. They will ask the booking offices to refuse to buy acts from expelled members of the agents' association. Bookers declared they will agree to this.

In the event an agent is found to have sold an act under code minimum, the agents' association will expel him and notify the bookers of their action. The agents further intend to effect a working agreement with the American Federation of Actors, by which joint actor-agent prosecution would be possible in the event of violations.

The 37 agent-members of the IVARA claim to represent 90% of the working vaudeville acts. Their attitude toward code enforcement is that they don't care to risk prosecution by being forced into violating the code by bookers. It is common knowledge in indie circles that some bookers have been openly violating the code in order to buy acts cheaper than their competitors, and in that manner grab other bookers' theatres.

Indie agents' association will elect permanent officers May 7.

Fite IATSE Delegates

Los Angeles, April 30.

Faction opposed to present leaders of Local 37, International Alliance Theatrical Stage Employees, is protesting action of the board of governors of the union in electing business representative Lew C. G. Blix and J. McEvoy as delegates to the IA annual convention to be held at Louisville June 4.

Members not in accord with the administration now in power assert that by-laws of the local specifically provide that convention delegates are only to be elected by membership meeting in general assembly.

ED SULLIVAN GIVEN LOEW'S N. Y. TIME

Loew office is laying out all its New York stage time for the Ed Sullivan unit. New bookings start May 18 at the Paradise.

The New York Daily News columnist, with a nite club revue headed by Harry Rose, opened at the State, New York, two weeks ago. This will be the only house omitted from the new Loew route. Unit is currently at the RKO Albee, Brooklyn.

Penner's Try-and-Get-It % Split Plus $10,000 At State, N.Y., This Wk.

At Loew's State, New York, this week Joe Penner won't break any records, but house should gross around $28,000, which is tops at the present 55c scale. State's record gross is $41,000, hung up by Jack Dempsey in person at 75c top.

Penner is in for $10,000 guarantee against a 50-50 split of the gross over $31,000, but probably won't get anything on the percentage split. Out of the $10,000 he's paying the cost of the whole bill, which includes four other acts besides himself. He'll probably finish the week with around $8,000 for himself, which is less than he has been getting on percentage deals out of town.

An early morning rush of business in the rain opening day (Friday) necessitated letting the waitees into the theatre at 10 a.m. Rehearsal was still in progress and had to be stopped. Acts went across the street to a public rehearsal hall and completed the tuning up over there.

VAUDE GUESTERS

Loop Spots Borrow Niterie, Ether Gag for One-Time B.O. Punch

Chicago, April 30.

Taking a cue from the radio programs and nite clubs, local vaude houses are going for the guest star gag as an 'extra added attraction.' Both the B. & K. Oriental and the indie State-Lake are using the guesters on different days, the Oriental on Monday matinee and the State-Lake in the first show on Tuesdays.

Besides these guest shows the houses are figuring on other specials for coin. State-Lake, for instance, now using a 'talent hunt' audition Monday night.

Trianon Gets Weeks

Chicago, April 30.

Anson Weeks orchestra set for a six-week run at Andrew Karzas' southside Trianon.

This suits the vacation period for the Wayne King orchestra, though it's likely that Weeks will stick through the Fair at one of the two Karzas danceries.

Curtis Sails Again

Jack Curtis (Curtis & Allen) sails June 9 on his umpty-umph European trip. This time he's also going into Russia, but for pleasure.

Dick Henry accompanies him as far as England to check on foreign bookings of U. S. acts.

ACTORS LOSE LUGGAGE

Cliff Crane, Ted Claire and Ken Nichols lost their luggage Saturday (30) motoring into Manhattan from Kingston, N. Y. Luggage dropped off the back of the car while in motion.

Threesome were with the NTG unit.

SAN'S SUPER, 4 OTHERS RESIGN

Climaxes Circuits' Investigation — Closing N. Y. Clubhouse — Guilds to Send Patients — Annual Fund Drive This Week

NEW MEDICAL HEAD

Saranac Lake, N. Y., April 30.

Mrs. Katherine Murphy yesterday (Monday) was asked for and submitted her resignation to New York as superintendent of the NVA sanitorium. Also going out, in what amounts to a general shakeup, are Mrs. Murphy's husband, who has been the san's steward and buyer of supplies; Margaret Beauchene, head nurse, and Mitzi Willette, housekeeper. All turned in their resignations.

Removal of Mrs. Murphy as supervising officer of the San was ordered as of last January by the New York State Department of Social Welfare, which carried on an investigation of conditions at Saranac Lake, but this was not complied with at the time by the NVA's board of directors. The state at that time recommended that Mrs. Murphy be demoted to housekeeper without supervision over patients.

Yesterday's action was the culmination of an investigation by the major theatre circuits which were prompted to act by the NVA's almost bankrupt financial condition.

It is understood here that a medical head will be appointed within the next week to take over powers of superintendent as well as the medical end. NVA board, from account, is satisfied with the present medical staff, headed by Dr. George Wilson, and will prevail upon Dr. Wilson to remain under the new sanitorium head. Objections were mainly to the house staff headed by Mrs. Murphy.

Economy Measures

NVA board's intention, as a result of its findings of the past month, is to sharply reduce operating costs both at the San and in New York. The latter probably will be accomplished by the closing of the costly 46th street clubhouse and removal of any necessary social activity to smaller quarters. At Saranac Lake the problem is to reduce the operating costs without impairing the curative purposes of the San.

Under Mrs. Murphy's superintending it was found that the average weekly maintenance cost per patient at the Sanatarium has been $32. This is double the average at most other sanitoriums of the kind. The NVA's high costs, not general-

Commissioner Moss and Agents' Counsel's Open Break; No Chance Of Compromise, Test Case Likely

Battle between the agents on one side and New York City on the other as to the legality of License Commissioner Paul Moss licensing the theatrical reps as employment agents is now wide open, after appearing last week as though an amicable compromise would be reached. Maurice Goodman, counsel for the RKO agents, informed Commissioner Moss yesterday (Monday) that all further negotiations were off, intimating that the city would be sued in a test case before licensing of agents could be made general.

Goodman and Harold Goldblatt, latter counsel for the Loew franchised agents, attempted last week to get Commissioner Moss to concede the point that some of the salesmen he classifies as agents are in reality personal managers, and therefore outside the pale of the employment agency law. Moss refuted this, however, with Goodman's letter, which incidentally, was sent without Goldblatt's knowledge, resulting.

Salaried Reps Only Exempt

Moss' contention is that any person who extracts fees from clients for procuring work for them is an agent falling within the province of the licensing ordinance, and that the only reps that can be exempted are those who are paid a weekly, regular salary whether the actor works or not.

The Commissioner contends that all agents are alike and there cannot be separate classifications for them as agents, or personal managers, and that all have to be licensed. He is proceeding at once against all agents to apply for licenses. Start of the fiscal year on the License Department's books is May 1, and all agents must be licensed by that date or face prosecution.

Commissioner Moss denied knowing about a reported ruling by N. Y.'s Corporation Counsel last week which upheld the briefs of Goodman and Goldblatt claiming distinction between agents and personal managers. Moss added that no interpretation of the law is necessary now as he had gotten a reading a long time ago which determined that he is legally right in his drive to license the act-sellers,

30 Give In

About 30 agents, according to Commissioner Moss, have already applied for licenses and submitted to the finger-printing the law requires. License fee is $25 yearly, entails a $500 to $1,000 bond, and requires that the applicant has had no criminal convictions.

It is held likely with the breach between the License Department and counsel for the agents, that a test-case arrest will be made shortly for a permanent ruling on the status of a theatrical representative in regards the Employment Agency law.

Goodman and Goldblatt are presumably working jointly for the RKO and Loew agents' associates for a total of $1,000 retainer. Combined, they also are representing the independent agents, who defrayed $150 of the costs.

N. Y. PAR TELLS JESSEL TO CUT HITLER GAG

No Hitler gags allowed around Paramount.

After George Jessel's opening performance Friday (27) at the New York Par, higher-ups among the theatre executives went into a huddle and decided to order the Hitler gag out of Jessel's routine. Execs said they dc not want to offend anyone, besides which the Jessel gag was deemed 'a little rough.'

Gag was not deleted in the Loew houses or at the Casino.

Chi Palace to Get Stage Director as Vaude Supervisor

Chicago, April 30.

Palace here will shortly have a theatrical director to supervise its shows on lighting, staging and general production. This follows an o. o. of the house by the RKO theatre chief, N. H. Blumberg.

House is suffering from adverse criticism on the part of the public, who compare the generally poor shows here with the productions at the cheaper Loop vaude stands. State-Lake and Oriental.

State-Lake has Charlie Niggemyer supervising the staging, lighting and costuming of its shows. Oriental and the B. & K. Chicago also have checkers. Palace, without production finesse, is charging top admish in town, however.

AFA'S 1ST BENEFIT HITS $3,500 GROSS

First benefit show of the American Federation of Actors Sunday night (29) at the New Amsterdam, New York, grossed around $3,500. Net is expected to be around $2,500 after expenses are deducted.

Moneys garnered by the show will mainly go toward the AFA's sick and benefit fund, although Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the organization, admitted part of it will be used toward founding branches of the AFA in other key cities.

Among the m.c.'s of the show were Fred Keating, president of AFA, Ted Husing and Bob Hope.

N. Y. Agents See an Unofficial Boycott of American Acts by Nazis

Broadway agents see an unofficial boycott of American acts for Germany. This goes for all turns, Jewish or otherwise.

Agents on this side of the big drink have not been directly apprised of any boycott by the German bookers, but have surmised the banning from the fact that not an American act has been booked into Germany in the past couple of months. Formerly U. S. acts went into Germany at the rate of half a dozen a month.

The foreign market as a whole seems shot now for American acts until next September, bookings being off in England and France until then. France is out because of the decline of variety shows in that country to almost none at all, while England's currence.

Palladium's annual 'Crazy Show' opens May 21, and, as last season, is expected to run throughout the summer. This show entails all the leading English comedy acts and rarely uses more than a couple of turns from this side of the Atlantic. Only U. S. personality set so far for the new 'Crazy' layout is Irene Vermillion.

Dick Henry of the Curtis & Allen office, who set Miss Vermillion, has also lined up Pegleg Bates; Mills, Gold and Raye, Slim Timblin, Radcliffe and Rogers, Freddie Craig, Jr.; Ray and Harrison, Smith, Rogers and Eddy, and the Gaudsmith Brothers for the Palladium starting in September.

Lipstone's Trip

Lou Lipstone returned to Chicago Saturday (28) after a three-day booking stay in New York for the Balaban & Katz theatres.

LYNCHBURG'S VAUDFILM

Lynchburg, April 30.

Paramount has resumed tab bookings. Slatz Randall and his Brunswick orchestra are featured in 'Rhythm Aristocrats,' playing first three days of this week.

Last week, house had Gertrude Avery's 'Diamond Revue.'

School Film

come from exhibitors, one of the provisions the plan will be that these pictures are to shown within school hours. Proponents of the scheme figure the subject matter will justify the classroom time and that that will quiet the exhibs.

Proposal really has two purposes. One is to put the film colony's idle to work and the other is that such product can be held up as an altruistic gesture by the film industry at large. The latter angle, it is presumed, would not be entirely welcome to the picture business at this time, when church, welfare and reform organizations seem to be closing in from all sides in a campaign against the screen.

If sufficient people become interested, and should it look as if the project could get places, an effort may be made to reach Washington to ask for a Government subsidy. It is even hoped that the interest of Mrs. F. D. R. may eventually be gained.

Recruiting the Idle

Scheme would call for casts to be derived from idle minor players, with technical crews also to be recruited from those who have nothing but time on their hands. This would carry down the line from scenarists to cutters. It is pointed out that this type of school film would give the better type of extra and small bit player a chance to be important in front of a camera while second and third cameramen would step into top spots for such shooting. And so on throughout the entire unit. Another angle is that it might occasionally be possible to obtain a player of more or less prominence from one of the major studios on the theory that either the performer, studio, or both, might want to be publicly identified as cooperating in such a movement.

Financial plans, mostly dependent upon the Government, organization and who would head it are all pretty hazy right now. It's too theoretical at the moment, although Sol Lesser is among those aware of the idea and has offered to do what he can on the production end if actual launching ever takes place. Neither is it known whether any schools or educators have been interviewed for their reaction. It is simply being taken for granted by those interested in the Hollywood phase, which is primarily to put people to work, that the schools would welcome this type of film.

There is no question of profit in the venture as outlined other than for those who would draw salary while actively engaged in making a picture. Any employed executive, performer or technician concerned would be expected to donate his or her services.

As previously stated, the proposition is strictly hypothetical at the moment, but it is being talked about and the number who think it's worth a try are growing. If sufficient strength should be gained here to send a representative, or committee, to Washington with a definite plan, and if the Government should see fit to endorse unto a subsidy, it seems reasonable to suppose that most of Hollywood would swing into line. It could even reach the stage where the big shots might be begging to get an oar in somewhere.

50 YEARS AGO

(From Clipper)

North Adams, Mass., had two theatres and one hotel. Manager of one theatre owned the hotel. Troupes at the other house were denied profe.sional rates.

Telling of the closing season T. H. Winnett recorded that his troupe had traveled 2,169 miles, spending 73 hours on 13 railroads, at a cost of $642.46. Used 13,823 lithos and pasted 14,233 sheets of paper.

Performers in a dime museum in Fall River, Mass., got only part of their salaries. Manager tossed in the auditorium chairs, and they hocked those to get out of town.

Henry E. Abbey's benefit at the Metropolitan netted $40,000. Scalchi refused to appear because of an earlier spat. Abbey returned her subscription and she gave it to the ctors' Fund.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

Now that the Par trustees have indicated a desire to sue Par directors and others under stock repurchase agreements, greater interest centers around the impending appeal, also in the State courts, of Samuel Zirn, acting as attorney for Robert S. Levy, Par bondholder. Zirn appeal is to the State Court of Appeals in behalf of Levy and 'any other bondholders similarly situated,' and, it is expected, will be argued during the week of May 7. Interest in the action centers around efforts of Zirn to get a ruling on whether Par directors and officers can be held responsible for the film-hocking and other deals under fire.

When it was up in the Appellate Division recently, responsibility also included the Columbia Broadcasting stock repurchase, one of the three deals the trustees want to sue on. What Zirn wants from the highest State court is a ruling on the question whether a non-judgment creditor, such as a bondholder, can sue in behalf of creditors or whether only the Par trustees could bring such an action.

His original Levy suit against Par which asked for a receivership the same week Par took that step itself, details all the stock repurchase agreements as one branch of a large, comprehensive action.

Major circuits and independent chains are setting themselves for a big battle when the NRA grievance board opens its doors in New York. Charges from the independents of over-lapping protection and alleged manipulation by big interests of using booking power to cause a scarcity of product in competitive zones comprise the highlights.

Delay in getting the local machinery ready is stalling the Manhattan grievance grand opening until May 8. This had been scheduled for May 3. While it is heard in exhibitor circles there are 'hundreds of cases on the New York docket', official grievance spokesmen over the weekend stated that not over 10 cases so far have been formally set down for hearing.

The hearings are to be public except when the board commences weighing the evidence for a decision which will be done in star chamber.

The New York zoning board likewise has before it the major problem of speeding up distribution.

Suit of the Paramount trustees against a group of banks and Film Productions Corp., P.F. subsidiary to which negatives were transferred to secure a loan of over $13,000,000, will probably go over to autumn. Attorneys still working on this action believe matter will not be reached for trial by June, when the New York Supreme Court recesses for the summer.

This is the only important legal action of the Par trustees started except last week's step to sue for recovery of $12,237,071 from Par directors and others in connection with stock repurchase deals on which Par's own stock was guaranteed at high figures, around $80. Not intending to file this action just yet, although summones will be served on intent to file, it is likely this action also will not reach the Supreme Court until the fall.

Press agent gags contained in some syndicated cartoons on film people finally caused editors of the Los Angeles Times to rebel. Drawing that finally caused the editorial blow up there depicted how Bing Crosby, while making a film at Catalina, had been chased by a whale.

L. A. Examiner also runs a cartoon which recently caused a laugh at Hollywood by saying that Warner Baxter always had to be introduced to his leading ladies several weeks in advance of a picture so that he wouldn't be embarrassed making love to them.

Cartoons are popular with readers, and NEA is also now establishing one.

Julien Duvivier, French director just back to Paris from Canada with shots for 'Maria Chapdelaine,' is squealing because Canadians made him pay $770 customs duties to bring in equipment and film, and then wouldn't reimburse him when he took them out. Contrary to international usage, he says.

Especially sore because he only used half of the 13,000 feet of film he took in, and so had to pay just to bring 6,500 feet in and take it out again in the same raw state. Wants diplomatic action taken. He's going back in August to take summer shots, so he's anxious.

Persistent denial from Loew officials that the Loew company has worked out a new deal for the Capitol on Broadway. Also, whether Loew is still interested in acquiring the Roxy theatre.

The ground lease on the Capitol is held by the Moredall company, in which subsid Loew has a 50% interest.

In the meantime, A. C. Blumenthal is stated to be angling still for the Roxy with trade belief that in doing so the financing arrangements may come from Loew as with the Poli theatres in New England.

Representatives of the Panama government registered a kick with Fox against the filing of the Jacques Duval story 'Marie Gallante.' Contention is that the yarn is French propaganda and unfair to Panama of the period when the Canal was built.

Protest came while Henry King and a crew were in the Canal Zone filming. Winnie Sheehan got on the long distance phone and after assuring the Government the protest was withdrawn and an offer made to give full co-operation to the unit.

Paramount received $150,000 in settling its $3,000,000 obligation from Art Cinema.

Paramount originally loaned Art Cinema, United Artists financing firm, the $3,000,000 to divert the possibility of a Warner edge with U. A. Par, for the loan, received notes plus an option to buy 50% of the common stock of Art Cinema. Par never took up that option.

Paramount trustees consider the Detroit-Par situation as closed for the time being. Also, Detroit operation is independent of the Par home office theatre management.

This was shown conclusively the past week when on the trustees' action, Roxy and his Gang were cancelled out of Detroit after the Par home office theatre department had booked the act into Detroit.

Starting today (May 1) Universal is doing all of its printing in its own laboratories in Hollywood. The lab payroll will include some 300 employees and Roy Hunter, now in New York, will assume charge.

In addition to saving money on cost of physical operation U is also counting on the time element.

In refusing to cooperate with foreign correspondents on the Coast, Paramount's foreign studio publicity man is using a unique argument for his stand. In turning down the credentials of one writer he stated, 'Your stuff is getting into foreign papers six weeks ahead of placing by our own people and we can't have that happen.'

For ritish and general European release United Artists has changed the title of 'Nana' to 'Lady of the Boulevards'.

Two reasons. There was a previous European film titled 'Nana' and it also is figured that Zola's story was switched so much there might be, on the Continent, some resentment.

Independent producer on the Coast has been making the telephone rounds of writers, including many employed by majors, asking them to write for him on spec. If stories are satisfactory he will buy them. If not, writer has just wasted his time.

Inside Stuff—Legit

Fortune, the monthly mag, prints in its May issue an extended story on 'Roberta', current operetta, plus comment on the successes of its producer, Max Gordon. Publication based its story on the fact that although 'Roberta' looked like it was going $100,000 in the red at the end of the fifth week, business suddenly turned with indications that the show will make that much profit instead of losing it.

Gordon, in Fortune's story, is credited with a string of nine successes within a four-year period on his own. Producer admits one flop in that group but records indicate that six of the nine clicked, a high average. Included are his four current attractions, one of which, 'Her Master's Voice', closes this week. 'Roberta', 'Shining Hour' and 'Dodsworth' are the others, 'Hour' being the English show tossed into Gordon's lap by Noel Coward who has a piece.

Gordon's ace show is 'Dodsworth'. When it clicked his comment was, 'Now I can pay off'. Marcus Heiman is Gordon's silent and only partner in that hit and also has had an interest in the other Gordon shows, past and present.

One curious omission in the Fortune yarn is the failure to mention Albert Lewis and the firm of Lewis and Gordon. Latter specialized in this firm's vaudeville activities but was financially teamed in the Lewis and Gordon legit productions with Lewis the stager. Mag story states that Gordon produced 'The Jazz Singer' with Sam H. Harris; also 'Rain'. However, 'Singer' was billed as presented by 'Lewis and Gordon in association with Sam H. Harris', while the billing for 'Rain' did not mention Lewis and Gordon, who had a small interest. Lewis quit Broadway for pictures several years ago and is at present in Hollywood with Paramount.

It was expected along Broadway that 'Men in White' would be named as the drama winner when the Pulitzer awards are announced, although 'Mary of Scotland' was given most frequent mention as the winner of the six plays in the running. Other candidates were 'Ah, Wilderness', 'Tobacco Road', 'Yellow Jack' and 'She Loves Me Not'. Latter drew the Roi Cooper Megrue prize for comedies last week.

'Men' was regarded as a dark horse. It is aimed for a summer run at the Broadhurst, N. Y., despite the release of the picture version in all localities outside the Metropolitan area. Play, too, has generally been released for stock.

It is a first play by Sidney Kingsley, now in London supervising the 'Men' presentation there. 'Men' was around for five years before being presented by the young producing team of Harmon & Ullman, in association with the Group Theatre. Columbia Pictures had 'Men' and, on the strength of it, engaged Kingsley to write for three months. He was let out and the play reverted to the author.

While Boston offered little in a legit way this spring, two attractions visited the Hub and cleaned up. The Metropolitan Opera company drew $100,000 during its one week stay and for the first time the guarantors were rewarded with a dividend. Met had not been presented in Boston for 17 years and the patronage was so strong that two weeks will be played next season. Chicago Opera had been annually presented and while the business was equally good, it is claimed to have been more costly.

The other draw there was the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe which grossed over $21,000 in five days. S. Hurok, who managed the troupe, offered to play the date on a guarantee of $4,000 which was rejected, attraction thereby cleaning up. Last week the Russians played a third repeat at the St. James, N. Y., getting $6.60 top for the first night again. Troupe sailed for Europe Saturday (28) but will return next season.

Prize for the best comedy of the year, an annual event under the will of the late playwright, Roi Cooper Megrue, was awarded to 'She Loves Me Not', 46th Street, N. Y., last week at a Dramatists Guild dinner function. Heretofore little publicity has been accorded the Megrue award of $500, the Pulitzer prize of $1,000 getting major attention, but the 'She' management went to extra space ads to announce the win and business improved.

To date no show has won both prizes. Prize money goes to the playwright Howard Lindsay, in London for 'She's' presentation there. Novel from which the play was adapted was authored by Edward Hope, who may participate if the arrangement between the pair calls for sharing all money derived from the play.

Memorial services were held in Pittsburgh last week for Eleanora Duse, famous Italian actress who died there 10 years ago during an engagement. Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech, and Frank Vittor, noted sculptor, delivered eulogies over station KDKA, the speeches being broadcast by short wave to Italy.

After Vittor and Major Henry Hornbostel chairman of memorial committee, spoke at services in exhibition room of Carnegie Tech, Mayor McNair presented a council resolution of tribute, which is to be forwarded to family of the late actress in Italy.

Edna Max Cox, attached to the staff of the Miami Herald, was killed in a motor car accident two weeks ago. She was out on assignment, car being driven by a one-armed photographer who lost control.

Miss Cox came from the coast several years ago, after having made some minor picture appearances. While in New York she did some writing, but attracted the attention of the late Flo Zeigfeld when participating in a ballyhoo stunt for the Cameo theatre. Manager offered her a berth in the 'Follies' (his last), but she refused the stage bid.

Last Friday night (27) Royal Stout, of 'Are You Decent', Ambassador, N. Y., was delayed in arriving at the theatre until after the first act, being ill. There was no understudy, so Dimitri Ostrov, show's director, went on in Stout's part as butler.

It was Ostrov's first stage appearance. White-faced, low but did not miss a line.

Frank Gallagher, who was married to the late Lucy Weston, was found dead on the subway tracks in New York last week. He was not identified as having been connected professionally. Gallagher was seen to topple from the station platform. He was lifted back before a train arrived, but expired in a hospital without regaining consciousness.

He was an executive of the Goodwin, Gallagher Sand Corp.

When in Bali on his trip around the world, Nick Holde, who was general manager for 'Music in the Air,' was snap-shotted with two native girls, Goona Goona style. Matty Zimmerman of Leblang's received a post-card picture of the posing and has since made a colored enlargement. It's waiting for Holde, who is due back this month.

A. E. Thomas' comedy hit, 'No More Ladies', Morosco, N. Y., is said to have resulted from an idea given him by Patterson McNutt. Latter got first chance at production rights but let his option lapse.

Recently Thomas asked McNutt to lunch and presented him with $1,000 as a token for the idea.

Tom Galvin, commissioner of public safety (police and fire) in Lawrence, Mass., is a former dramatic actor. He played in stock up to 1929.

This is his first public office, Galvin having copped the job against the opposition of the local machine.

Legit Pact Still Hangs High, but Code Authority Lives in Hopes

Washington, April 30.

Slight progress toward terminating disagreements over amendments to legit code was evident last week, although NRA still hopes for early disposition of revisions of pact.

Despite threat to write his own ticket and mediation clauses if squabbles were not ended by the middle of the past week, Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth today indicated he is still waiting in hopes that the disputing parties can solve their own problems.

Labor-manager fight over creation of industrial relations boards seemed nearer conclusion, with matter now in hands of Robert Stevens, assistant administrator in charge of NRA policies. Detailed matters of scope and extent of power of boards continue up in the air, although steps toward an understanding were taken when Farnsworth talked the subject over with members of Labor Advisory Board.

Saying he had not found time to go over the transcript of code authority's most recent meeting, Farnsworth predicted something will be done during the week toward solving ticket distribution mess. Code will not go to Gen. Johnson, however, until scheme finally doped out has been resubmitted to code authority and leading brokers. If any major changes are effected, Farnsworth probaby will trek to New York to discuss them personally, but if only minor alterations are made, document will be laid before group by Robert Strauss, government member of C.A.

Special committee of the legit Code Authority was in session Monday (30) for the purpose of outlining plans for a new budget for next season. At present the budget is around $5,600, but may be tilted to $10,000, according to a proposal which would collect one percent of the premiums on agency ticket sales.

Idea is based on the formation of a ticket control system along lines recently discussed at the legit open hearing in Washington. Such plans were wholly opposed by ticket agency people, and managers did not seem impressed with the new theories of ticket control, either.

Showmen await action from Washington on the rewriting of the legit code. There is some indication that a ticket plan will be written into the code by deputy administrator William Farnsworth, although managers believe he will confer with the CA before its actual drafting. Some reports, too, that Farnsworth will again call the ticket people to the capital for further pariey.

Another matter which the deputy administrator will probably contact showmen on is the proposed realignment of the CA. Managers are seeking equal representation with labor on the committee, and both sides will doubtless be consulted. Revised code is expected to be ready in about 10 days. CA may have a paid executive secretary, one reason for increasing the budget.

ly known previously, are said to have been brought forcefully to the board's attention recently when the NVA 'farmed out' two of its former patients to other sans at a cost of $16 a week each.

In order to reduce the per capita cost, the NVA board plans to increase the number of beds at the San to 100. San can comfortably care for this number, although it now houses only 40. As currently operated there are as many employees as patients.

Actors' Fund and the various theatrical guilds will send patients to the NVA San and pay their way.

Last year's operation cost of the NVA San amounted to $84,000. Overhead was given as $104,000, but $20,000 was a bookkeeping charge off for amortization and depreciation. The same $84,000 has been applied for as this year's budget, but it is expected the paid-for patients sent up by the various guilds will make up any deficit while reduction in per capita costs will equalize any further increase in overhead.

Dr. Edgar Mayer, it is said, could have retained the medical head post had he cared to accept, but it precludes chances for outside practice, and Mayer felt this might curb his extensive research work. He is presently at the Cornell Medical Center in New York and not likely to return to Saranac Lake. Dr. Mayer has offered to perform the NVA's surgical operations gratis. It is also understood he will examine applicants for the Saranac Lake cure in New York for the NVA board.

Mrs. Murphy has been the NVA san's supervisory head since it opened in April, 1927. For the past four years she has been the constant subject of complaints from patients who resented her methods as a disciplinarian. Groups of patients signed a series of petitions requesting her removal but all were disregarded by the NVA operating board, consisting of William Lee and Henry Chesterfield. The last petition resulted in expulsion of six petition signers, at least two of whom were later found to have been in no physical condition to leave the san.

The circuits' most recent investigation was assigned to Harold Rodner, of Warner Bros., elected a vice-president and member of the NVA board in order to facilitate reorganization. Rodner is widely experienced, being Harry Warner's personal representative in the latter's benevolent activities.

Annual Drive

Circuits will shut down the New York NVA clubhouse with a view to leasing or disposing of the property. Move to smaller quarters probably will take place following the annual fund drive which commences in about 3,500 theatres throughout the country this Friday (4) and lasts all week.

There may be some administrative changes in the NVA New York end also, but what they are likely to be hasn't yet been revealed. Rodner departed for Hollywood yesterday (Monday) on business but returns in about 10 days. It is expected that upon his return other changes may be made.

As for devoting any of the funds collected fr m theatre audiences this year to other than strictly charitable purposes, as has been done by the NVA in the past, the circuit heads are reported as unanimously against permitting it in the future. This attitude, as reported, is apt to eliminate the costly New York social end entirely. The New York charity list, however, will continue although, from account, Henry Chesterfield will no longer have sole jurisdiction over it.

feared radio would take their ads away, watched its rapid development in the United States and determined to nip it here. Due to their powerful resistance British Broadcasting Corporation was formed as a government offshoot, with the distinct understanding that broadcasts were to contain nothing in the nature of paid publicity or advertising.

Now the promoters of the new film idea are using the same arguments and the same basis of incorporation for the British Film Distributors projected organization to protect the home boys in the film biz.

Plays Out of Town

FOREIGN REVIEW

LA BELLE ISABELLE

Paris, April 18.

Three-act farce comedy by Georges Beer and Louis Verneuil, at the Palais-Royal, Paris. Cast includes Jane Marnac, Christiane Delyne, Mirelle, Andree Champeaux, Marcelle Duval, Francoise Brohan, Nita Raya, Monna Lys, Anny, Duvalles, P. Faivre, Berville, Guy Rapp, Fred Gastal, Charles Legoux, R. Allie, J. Vallee, Bouvilliers.

Here's the good old bedroom entanglement back in the newest Berr-Verneuil opus. Authors get their characters seducing each other in cross-currents, and then turn out the lights. Audience wonders how it can tell who's who. But it gets straightened out in the end.

Plot is based on a business deal which uses love as an aid—typically Parisian. Isabelle is a successful dressmaker, and Gilbert and Gerard are her competitors. In order to get her to combine her firm with theirs, thus eliminating competition, Gilbert sets Gerard to make her. But Charles, her cashier, is in love with her, and Alice, Gilbert's wife and Gerard's mistress, object. Also Antoinette, who also works for Isabelle, wants to marry Charles, so the conflicting elements get the tangle under way.

Effect is aided by good figures, good cast names, and revealing costumes. First part of show tends toward comedy of manners, but the end is pure farce. Nothing particularly novel, but it gets laughs, and can do so in New York if well adapted. Stern.

JIG SAW

Washington, April 30.

Last of Theatre Guild's efforts this season is put on with gilt-edge cast and done up in lavish style, but it will take considerable polishing to click in big way. 'Jig Saw' has the stuff, but too much of it comes too soon.

Playwright Dawn Powell starts her little interlude in a Broadway penthouse off with a bang. Gathers together as heterogenous an array of bored sophisticates as ever got onto a single stage. Each is worth at least a dozen laughs during their first ten minutes on the scene. But after audience becomes accustomed to them, things begin to drag, with Spring Byington and Ernest Truex only reason for paying customers going away with a grin.

Claire Burnell is a lady who lives in an apartment paid for by Del Marsh. Marsh drops in from time to time for the purpose of looking over Claire's finances and running out her latest male annexation. Plot hinges on the arrival of Claire's convent-bred daughter, with rest of play taken up with said daughter's frank decision to lead Claire's newest playboy to the altar.

The action being rather flimsy, the show is entirely dependent on the wisecracks by the principals, plus the neighbors across the terrace who drop in to consume cocktails. Setting too swift a pace for her humor in the opening act, Miss Powell finds herself unable to keep it up after the novelty has worn off. A little rearranging of gags should do the trick, however.

Spring Byington, as Claire, has an ideal role and sustains the interest through sheer enthusiasm for her part. Same goes for Truex. Gertrude Flynn set critics talking as the daughter. Handles the ingenue role, which makes her out to be a combination of helpless infant and natural-born Cleopatra, excellently. And Cora Witherspoon puts over a constant stream of gags as Claire's gal friend.

Rest of cast includes Eliot Cabot, as playboy caught between mother and daughter; Charles Richman, novelist who likes to sun himself in bathing trunks, and Helen Westley, who doesn't get much chance, but makes the most of it as a queer-looking astrologist.

Lee Simonson's sets are fashioned effectively with plenty of attention to detail. One indoor and one terrace scene used. Fact that play is well staged is big help toward building up atmosphere, which is really what carries show along.

VILLAGE WOOING

Dallas, April 26.

World premiere of George Bernard Shaw's playlet, self-described as a 'comedlettina for two voice in three conversations,' presented by Dallas Little Theatre week of April 17.

A.....Charles Meredith
Z.....Keith Woolley

A bit of froth off the old stein, pushed into the world without as much as the usual Shavian preface and lassoed by the Dallas group for first presentation on either side of the salty Atlantic. The tale, wherein a female counterpart of 'Pygmalion' Head Jones' cops the prize catch of the season, shuns action and serves mostly as a punching bag for Shavian digs into this, that and the other.

An English village shop girl, victor of a free trip around the world in a contest, meets an ultra-busy author aboard her ship and succeeds in annoying him to jitters. Three months later, he strolls into her shop without recognizing her, which proves no advantage to him, as the girl thereon outtalks him into marrying her.

At best, it's an airy curtain-raiser for a dual program of Shaw plays. The Dallas group coupled it with 'The Man of Destiny.'

Two scenes, designed by Charles Meredith, director of the Dallas group, matched the unseriousness of Mr. Shaw's chatter. Any heavier staging would greatly handicap the play's function.

As the bored author, Meredith, in a make-up simulating Shaw in his younger days, worked smoothly and handed out the witty lines much as Shaw himself might. To Miss Woolley, however, who carries the part of the dumb, but not-so-dumb-at-that village girl, naturally fell the weight of putting over the piece and her past excellence in Dallas little theatre work continued without waver.

Future Plays

'One Hour,' by Denis Donoghue, to be presented by the Allen Productions, Inc., at Lyric theatre, May 28.

'Dancing Americans,' comedy by Arthur Murray, to be produced by National Institute of Social Dancing. Lawrence Barnett and Charles Colbert to direct.

Battle Looms in Equity Election; Officers Against New Amendments

Equity's annual meeting and election, dated June 1, promises to be one of the most important in the history of the association. Not only will the results of the balloting for new members of the Council proposed by the younger group be watched, but the adoption or rejection of four amendments to the constitution will be decided. It is known that two of the four amendments are objected to by the present staff of officers and the Council.

It is the first time since Equity was formed, in 1914, that amendments are emanating from the body of the organization. Heretofore all changes have been proposed by Equity officers.

Issues will be settled by the votes of 500 members, not more than that number being expected to attend the meeting. Paid up membership is less than 2,400 and, while ballots will be mailed to members out of town, latter will not vote on the amendments. Regulation requires the actual presence of members when amendments are to be considered.

Under Equity rules the officers must give their views pro or con on proposed amendments prior to the balloting. There is no objection by Equity officers and Council to the one providing for four meetings each year. Formerly there were four general sessions annually but meetings were reduced to lessen expenses. There will be no objection voiced, either, to the amendment which would give members the right to amend the by-laws.

However, present Equity leaders are against the amendments which would grant the right to vote to members in arrears of dues and they object to the plan whereby all nine persons on the nominating committee would be named from among the general membership.

They point out that the three named by the Council are in reality acting for members who are out of town and that it would be unfair to that considerable percentage if only New York actors are on the committee. Since the nominations are made by a majority vote in the committee, it is felt that the present rule, whereby six persons are named from the general list should not be disturbed.

There are additional 'reforms' sought by the younger group in Equity, matters which may not be brought forth until after the election.

Circuit of Old-Time Melodrama, Free Beer Halls for West Coast

Portland, Ore., April 30.

Change in management and personnel, but not in policy, is scheduled for April 30, when Walter Siegfried will take over from the Ned Lynch players the operation of the beer and melodrama resort, the old American. New company will take the boards in 'Murder at the Crossroads.'

Siegfried, well known here in association with dramatic stock companies, lately has been operating a beer-and-melodrama theatre in Seattle and has in prospect similar enterprises in Spokane, Tacoma and Butte, Montana.

New company of players includes G. Richard Frazier, Dorothy Miller, Warren Coffeen, Dick Lackaye, Ada Daniels, Marie West, J. Courtland Lynton and Jack Cassidy. Lynton and Cassidy are retained from the Ned Lynch company.

Siegfried policy includes free beer for the customers and the privilege of hissing the villain (and others, if desired) as loudly as the occasion seems to warrant.

Singing waitresses, a trio and two soloists will replace singing waiters, and incidental entertainment will be provided by five acts of vaudeville between innings.

San Francisco, April 30.

First legit show to begin a run in the dining room of a local hostelry is 'The Drunkard,' which opens May 7 in the grill room of the swank Palace hotel.

It's being brought from Los Angeles by Preston Shobe and O. L. Larson, who staged it at the Theatre Mart there for a long session. Larson is already here in advance, bringing with him a portable stage on which the show will be performed.

In at $1.65 top, with beer and pretzels included, and hotel is thinking of making a bargain for customers who might want to trip the light fantastic after the show.

Another version of 'The Drunkard' was staged in a converted storeroom here some months ago, but no clickie.

DONALD WOODS BACK TO DENVER STOCK CO.

Denver, April 30.

Donald Woods, under contract to Warner Bros., will return again this year to play leads with the stock at the Elitch theatre. Woods will arrive in Denver about June 10 for rehearsals. Season opens June 23 and will run ten weeks.

Woods was given the Warner contract on leaving Elitch's last summer, and the studio recently exercised its option. Past winter he has been in two WB pictures, 'As the Earth Turns' and 'Merry Wives of Reno.'

Addison Pitt will also return as director. No other members of the cast will be picked until Gurtler makes his annual play-selecting trip to New York in May.

2 for Sweden

Elmer ice's 'Counselor-at-Law,' current in London, has been sold for Swedish production. Deal is also on for Swedish rights to the Kern-Hammerstein operetta, 'Three Sisters,' now in London, and which has not yet been shown in New York.

Sanford Greenburgher agented.

Lachman-Proser, Inc.

Marc Lachman, who walked out on Hollywood, and Monte Proser, who resigned from United Artists press department, are a newly formed Broadway press agency.

Duo will handle legit, picture and radio shows and people, also commercial accounts if they can find any.

STEBBINS TO OPERATE AVON; 'BRITCHES' FIRST

Avon Theatre, N. Y., will be operated next season by Rowland Stebbins whose theatrical activities are carried on under the corporate name of Lawrence Rivers. He sponsored 'The Green Pastures' and the current season's presentation of 'The Pursuit of Happiness.'

Avon is owned by M. S. Goldstone, but it is controlled by the Emigrant Savings Bank, which has the first mortgage. Bank is handling the house under a mortgagee in possession arrangement. Stebbins is slated to start next season at the Avon with 'Tight Britches.'

House will play show on percentage, but agreement with Stebbins is that should the theatre share be less than expenses, bank can serve notice of discontinuance of contract which gives the manager first call on booking the Avon.

Emigrant owns the Hudson theatre outright. That theatre is under a year's lease to Columbia Broadcasting System, which uses it for etherizing shows. Theatre is now known as the Columbia Radio Playhouse.

HEISE WINS SUIT, BUT AFTER DEATH

Minneapolis,

Kenneth Heise, Toronto actor who formerly was a juvenile with the Bainbridge dramatic stock company here, won a victory in a supreme court decision against his one-time employer last week, but it came too late to benefit him. He died a short time ago.

In making a six-foot fall at the theatre on Jan. 12, 1932, Heise missed a mattress on which he was to land and was injured. He continued to act for a short time, but finally was forced to quit and undergo an operation. He filed a claim for compensation the following December. Theatre company contested it on the grounds that he had waited too long.

Heise was awarded $90 for doctors' fees and $20 a week compensation for the time he was ill. But the theatre contested the state industrial commission's award and Heise died before the supreme court decided and before he received anything.

'FOLLIES' CAST CUT 10%; WILL STICK

The 'Follies' will be aimed for summer holdover at the Winter Garden, N. Y. Despite reports that it was winding up, another lowering of operating expense is expected to extend the engagement indefinitely. Last week the cast assented to a 10% cut all along the line and, while several principals are listed to leave, Fannie Brice and the Howard brothers are definitely committed to stick until the end of the run.

Recently the operating cost was reduced by ensemble eliminations. At that time principals with run of the play contracts were asked to take a slice but final agreement to the cut were not reached until the gross dropped to around the $20,000 mark. Last week business was somewhat better, nearing an even break.

Effort to hold the show in is based on the belief few summer musicals are in the making, whereas New York is expected to be a mecca for visitors because of the devaluation of American currency. Predicted there will be plenty of visitors from abroad for the first time and for the same reason. Initial cheap dollar excursion from Europe arrived for a five day stay last week.

EQUITY HEARS CHARGES AGAINST DOUG GILMORE

Douglas Gilmore, leading man in Wee & Leventhal's rotary stock company in support of Lenore Ulric, was summarily dismissed after the first performance when the star opened in Philadelphia in 'East of the Sun.' Management filed charges with Equity that the actor was inebriated, and Gilmore has been ordered to make answer.

Not the first time that the player has been alleged to have offended thus. Last season, during the tryout of 'Forsaking All Others,' headed by Tallulah Bankhead, Gilmore was similarly ousted. At the time Arch Selwyn preferred charges, but a doctor's certificate absolved Gilmore when the case came before Equity's council.

Philly papers openly discoursed on the Gilmore incident, one suggesting that audiences coming armed with missiles could do more to correct the evil than Equity. A columnist interviewed the house manager, who declared no actor having over-indulged had appeared on the stage in his theatre for 20 years.

Equity has been severe in disciplining members who made similar breaches. Records show that one player was suspended for six months, while the late Jeanne Eagles was set down for 18 months. Harry Fisher replaced Gilmore in the Ulric show.

Only 35 Theatres Left for Legit; 17 Houses Switched Their Policies During Past Season; Once Were 60

Broadway's it theatre map next season—1934-35—will show an indicated total of 35 houses available for attractions. That is the smallest number of theatres open since before the building boom, which ended with imes Square dotted by more than 60 stages.

Current season started with 52 legit houses in all, but 17 have been temporarily or permanently dropped from the list because of change of policy or undesirable location. Part of that group is committed to pictures and several have gone burlesque, while the recent trend of transforming theatres into night spots with variety shows will absorb at least three more Broadway theatres.

At the 1929 peak it was claimed that Broadway had 68 theatres, but the figure was inaccurate in that some houses (now virtually discarded) outside Times Square were included, as were two roof theatres and little or limited capacity spots. All of the latter are valueless for bookings today. Switch of 42d street's legits to a cheaper type of attraction more firmly establishes 45th street as the principal theatre street of New York, there being a dozen houses on that street, all devoted to legit.

However, the Bijou, one of the 45th street bunch, is being offered for commercial purposes—probably the first instance of a theatre owner attempting to lure coin that way. Bijou is one of the limited capacity (608 seats) houses which have been difficult to operate successfully. House is owned by Walter Reade and is under lease to the Shuberts, both parties participating in the plan to rent the house in whole or part for other than show usage.

Realty Sharps

Realty sharps are waiting for a boom in property values. If and when the boom comes, it will date the rehabilitation of 42d street, gone honky-tonk. At various times options on most of the properties on both sides of the thoroughfare were held for vast realty improvements, but the time is not now considered ripe. Boom, too, will clean up 41st street, west of Seventh ave? nue, mostly occupied by tumbledown buildings and the rears of former legit houses facing 42d street, which are faced with extinction.

Building boom to come will eliminate the National (only house on 41st street except Comedy which is not in use) and would likely also take out the Elliott (39th street). That would leave only the Empire south of 42d street, but, because of its direct Broadway frontage and spotting opposite the Metropolitan, this house will probably remain in the legit ranks.

Northward trend on Broadway never materialized other than the building of five theatres in the 54th street zone. Not one of these houses is likely for legit next season, and three will be night clubs—Casino de Paree (the New Yorker, nee Gallo), Manhattan (Hammerstein's) and the Craig. Of the other pair the Broadway, which has tried several policies, may also turn night club, while the Ziegfeld is slated to continue as a picture house. It, alone of the 54th street group, ever drew real patronage with legit attractions.

52d Street Li

With that quintette out as legit booking possibilities the northern limit for shows will be 52d street, with the Guild and Alvin operating successfully on that street. The Cosmopolitan at Columbus Circle was once bright-lighted with stage shows, but has long been out for legit.

Other houses discarded for legit bookings are: Hudson (radio broadcasting); Casino (Carroll) (vaudfilm); Cohan, Selwyn, Gaiety, Globe, Harris, Times Square, Liberty, Jolson's (all third run pictures); Apollo, Central, Republic, Eltinge (burlesque). Some houses named changed policy some time ago, but most were on the legit map at the start of this (1933-34) season. Such small houses as the Belmont and Hopkins are no longer considered for legit.

Broadway bank-controlled theatres account for the hefty percentage of dark spots, use the banks will not participate in producing. Banks also figure on a realty boom and seem willing to take further losses of approximately $50,000 on each house next season, with the idea of recouping therafter.

Considering the number of producers in sight at present and the amount of money available for production, it seems that next season's 35 legit houses will be ample. However, if the new season tops the current season, more theatres could be devoted to stage shows. None have been razed—that will probably come later.

The 34th consecutive season the Lakewood Theatre, will begin June 2, Manager Herbert L. Sweet has announced.

Chicago, April 30.

Town continues in good legit shape. Ichard of Bordeaux' has clicked under the American Theatre Society banner and, instead of folding after its original fortnight, sticks on a week-to-week basis.

American Theatre Society, however, calls it a season with 'Bordeaux,' which is its fourth play of the year. Has written to all subscribers advising that the season is closed and is offering to refund the coin for the additional two shows. Very for immediate however, the subscribers generally saying a continuation of the subscription to take care of the two plays, if and when. These two plays are slated to be, 'Ah Wilderness' and 'Mary of Scotland,' which are due late in September. American Theatre Society finishes with a season of at least two big winners, 'Bordeaux' and 'Biography,' both of which were forced to hold over to satisfy demands.

'Curtain Rises' flew town after a highly profitable stay of 15 weeks at the Cort and was immediately supplanted last night (28) by 'Big Hearted Herbert.'

tes for Last Week

'Annina,' Grand (M-1,207; $3.85). Closed Saturday (28) after a good three-week engagement. Downstairs didn't do well because of the high take, but on balcony trade show managed to top $12,000 for the last two weeks.

'Affections, Ltd.,' Studebaker (C-1,250; $1.50) (3rd week). Picked up slightly on cut-rates revival. Around $2,000, okay. However, new play slated to come in within the next couple weeks.

'Richard of Bordeaux,' Erlanger (D-1,318; $2.75) (3rd and final week). Excellent trade caused additional time to be added to the original fortnight. Practically selling out nightly, with no shows on Sundays, means $11,000 and better, excellent. Last of the American Theatre Society's plays for the season.

'Shi ing Hour,' Selwyn (D-1,100; $2.20) (5th week). Business getting spotty again. Hitting around $5,000, profitable.

'The Curtain Rises,' Cort (C-1,100; $1.50) (15th and final week). Closed Saturday (28) after excellent run to heavy profits. Ran up as high as $3,500 and rarely dropped below $2,000. Small cast and overhead made sailing easy. 'Big Hearted Herbert' replaced yesterday (29).

Other Attractions

'Girls in Uniform,' Blackstone. In answer to matinee demands ran its first afternoon show yesterday (29). Non-pro cast doubling from regular commercial jobs makes week-day matinees impossible.

Rogers' Big Advance

San Francisco, April 30.

Will Rogers in 'Ah, Wilderness' has had the biggest advance sale in history of the Curran for his opening tonight (30). With top raised a dollar from the usual $1.65, reservations have been pouring in for the three-week run.

Henry Duffy warmed up the piece at the Fox Wilson, Fresno, for two nights before bringing it in here, and several of the local daily critics went down to catch it.

'SHIM SHAM REVUE' BIG $2,500 IN 3 DAYS, L.A.

Los Angeles, April 30.

'Men in White,' Henry Duffy production, had a clear field between Sunday and Thursday. Although last week has been twice announced, play stays on until May 5. Sixth week, just ended, held strong for close to $4,500, which is very oke.

Two arrivals late in the week were Homer Curran's production of 'She Loves Me Not,' debutting Thursday (26) at the Belasco, and 'Shim Sham Revue,' featuring Jack Osterman, starting Friday night at the Hollywood Music Box. Latter opened very strong, getting $2,500 in its first three days.

Maurice Schwartz opens a six-day stand at the Biltmore tomorrow (1) in 'Yoshe Kalb,' and following Monday Helen Morgan moves in with 'Memory,' her first dramatic characterization.

Le Galliene $3,000 In One Night, Omaha

Omaha, April 30.

Eva Le Galliene and her repertory company, in for one night's presentation of 'The Master Builder,' had the customary success of the road companies here this season. Nearly capacity house at Tech high auditorium, with a gross of about $3,000 at a $2 top.

This attraction, presented by the Omaha Drama League, closes the legit season as far as the road companies are concerned, but several bookings are completed for early fall showing, notably 'Ah, Wilderness.'

Block Booking

background. Any time, anywhere that a sizable citizens' group wants to spend an evening of block booking, it can now write or wire the Hays organization and, if physically possible, an officer will be on hand to submit to whatever heckling may be turned his way.

Pettijohn is ready to handle the most difficult assignments personally, such as when a club demands a showdown by insisting upon a Haysite meeting with a well-informed exhibitor in debate.

If such is the case, as occurred recently in Massachusetts when a club conscripted a former Harvard professor, the Hays block crusader must build up his regular block routine with some personal knowledge about his opponent. He must, for instance, find out before he entrains the number of pictures the exhibitor enemy canceled, especially whether or not any of these were classics or in that category lauded by church and civic organizations.

Cancellations are regarded by Haysites as the stranglehold in bringing an opponent to the mat before his own public. There is still another hold which the traveling Haysite has in reserve. If the opposing exhib should be able to wriggle out of the cancellations grip he is immediately shifted into a headlock (legal in block wrestling of this kind).

The Haysite makes this pledge to the audience, at the same time demanding it be confirmed by the debating exhibitor:

That if the theatre owner will give up pictures in the 'She Done Him Wrong' category and play only pictures that the good citizens out front—his representative audience—want and officially approve, the Haysite is in a position to guarantee that the 12 leading producers of the film industry will abide by the agreement and that thereafter that particular town, or exhibitor, will never again be troubled by block booking.

And when the exhibitor declines the idea of giving up all the pictures that have box office possibilities, the chairman of the citizens' association, which has heard an evening's pros and cons on block booking, turns to the assemblage with this nightcap: 'May I say to you, these two gentlemen have come here tonight absolutely without any reward except the rising vote of thanks which I trust you will give them at this time?'

Boston Legit

Boston, April 30.

All Shubert spots continue dark. Newcomers are Irene Purcell in 'Biography,' in the Wee-Leventhal series at Hollis, and Molly Picon in Yiddish 'Circus Girl,' at Colonial, latter one week only. Both open tonight.

Walter Hampden follows at the Colonial next Monday for a week, and that looks like finis of the legit season.

Circus opens tomorrow at Boston Garden and seems set to take upwards of $200,000 out of town during its five-day stay.

Shubert's Musical Revival, Maryland' Only 8½G, Yanked

Philadelphia, April 30.

Just when the local rialto (or what's left of it) was beginning to think that the Shuberts had found a winning idea in the operetta revivals at a $1.50 top in the Forrest Theatre, the plan struck a snag.

First show, 'My Maryland,' averaged over $12,000 a week on a fortnight stay, but last week's attraction, 'The Moon Rises' (alias 'Gypsy Love') folded Saturday night (28) when trade didn't warrant holding a second week. Gross only $8,500 and adverse notices indicated no pick-up for second week.

However, the idea hasn't been dropped. Lawrence Shubert Lawrence, running the operetta revival plan for Lee and J. J. here, announces for next show Victor Herbert's 'The Only Girl.' 'Bitter Sweet,' 'Student Prince' and 'Countess Maritza' are listed to follow. 'Only Girl' has an admirable cast, including Bettina Hall, Robert Halliday, Andrew Tombes and Jack Good.

Two Sam Nirdlinger houses, in the meantime, are announcing bookings well ahead. Erlanger, which hasn't been doing as well lately as it did in the beginning with the cut-rate and pass system, has a tryout, 'I, Myself,' this week. This one, directed by Charles Hopkins, and in for only six days, is not on the Wee and Leventhal schedule, although usual scale and system will be used. Following is 'Big-Hearted Herbert,' with Lean and Mayfield,' local favorites, in the leads.

Broad has 'The Second Man' this, with Bert Lytell starred, and 'The Wind and the Rain,' featuring Gigi Hunter, mentioned to follow.

'Pagan Lady,' last week at the Broad, didn't open until Wednesday afternoon, but gave an extra Friday matinee and did a sound $7,500 in seven performances. 'Double Door,' a return, got almost that amount in a single week's stay at the Erlanger.

Estimates for Last Week

'Moon Rises' (Forrest, one week only). Floppo. Closed Saturday after single week with $8,500 gross. House reopens May 7 with 'The Only Girl.'

'Double Door' (Erlanger, one week only). Return engagement got $7,000. 'I, Myself,' try-out, in this week; 'Big-Hearted Herbert' next Monday.

'Pagan Lady' (Broad, one week only). Opened Wednesday, but gave three matinees. Trade okay at $7,500.

S. Carlo Opera $32,000 In 10 Shows, Portland

Portland, Ore., April 30.

San Carlo Opera Co. proved so popular here, it was necessary to hold over a c y longer and present two more performances. Every night and matinee was a complete sellout. Total gross for the ten operas was $22,000.

Ellison-White Bureau of Portland is in charge of the company's tour in the Northwest, which includes Seattle and Vancouver.

Seattle, April 30.

San Carlo Grand Opera Co. biz pepped up during the week at Civic Auditorium. This is Seattle's first taste of dollar opera. Held over for eighth day for $25,000.

Aude apacity ho ever is double that, seating being over 6,000. 'Carmen' sale topped all, 'Il Trovatore' next. 'Aida,' opening night, disappointed with s nt 4,000 attendance.

'Yoshe' $2,000

Seattle, April 30.

'Yoshe Kalb' in Yiddish got around $2,000 here, fair, during mat and night engagement at the Met, last Wednesday (25).

Company jumped from Twin Cities to Seattle 1 go from there to S. F.

Second-Hand Airing

Growing business of selling second-hand magazines at cut rates will be completely aired as the result of action taken by the Federal Trade Commission in Washington against Butterick Publishing Co., McFadden Publicatons, Frank Munsey Co., Street & Smith, Pictorial Review, International Circulation Co., S-M News Co. and Midwest Distributors. Eight firms are charged with violating the Federal Trade Commission Act by conspiring to 'destroy the second-hand or used magazine and perodical business.'

First five of the firms are magazine publishers, other three are distributing concerns. They have been ordered to appear in Washington, June 1, to show cause why an order should not be issued against them.

Charge is that the eight concerns obtained agreements from magazine and periodical retailers that they should not sell or deal in second-hand mags. Also charged that the publishers and distribs refused to sell to newsstands or stores that also handled second-hand items.

In New York recently there has been a growth of the cut-rate mag stands, several dozen stores in the mid-town sector selling nothing else than second-hand mags and weeklies for a nickle or less.

Fawcett rops One, ive

Fawcett Publications scrapped one mag, Lovers' Confessions, and united five others into an advertising selling group to be known as the Fawcett Women's Group.

Quintette of mags in the Women's Group comprises True Confessions, Radioland, Screen Play, Screen Book and Hollywood. Claimed by Fawcett that the five combined reach 1,300,000 young women. Love:: Confessions was dropped on the premise the mag only duplicated another Fawcett publication, Romantic Confessions.

Outside of the Women's Group and Romantic Confessions, the Fawcett mags are Romantic Movie Stories, Modern Mechanics and Inventions, and Startling Detective Adventures. Two last-named are published by subsidiary concerns.

Flores Wins Title Race

Race to be the first to put out a mag with the title The Literary World won by Angel Flores and his associates. As a result, Edwin Valentine Mitchell, who had also selected The Literary World as the title for his forthcoming publication, will call his The Literary Observer instead.

The Literary World is a cross between a mag and a newspaper. Format of Mitchell's forthcoming mag understood to be much different.

Want Mae West's 'Sin'

Lee Furman, on the Coast, is negotiating with Mae West for the publication by Macaulay's of her story, 'It Ain't No Sin,' based on the film currently in production at Paramount.

Miss West's latest royalty check from the publishing house shows 'She Done Him Wrong' is near the 1,000,000 mark. This includes the translations into several languages.

Paper-Back Idea

Possible that there will be a flood of paper-backed books put on the market to replace the current heavy cardboard bound opuses. One of the first is 'David and Destiny' (Houghton-Mifflin), published currently.

Idea is that with the rise in production costs the paper covers can keep books down to the present price level. Thus, prices of books to consumers won't have to be raised, and danger of trade falling off because of this alleviated.

Lasky-Preston Tome

Macauley's will publish 'Curtain of Life,' novel by Jesse Lasky, Jr., and Jack Preston, due in the fall. Lee Furman, president of the publishing house, set the deal while in Hollywood.

Young Lasky has had poetry published, but this is his first effort at fiction.

Reuters' Coast

Col. R. A. Duckworth-Ford, retired army officer, has been appointed Hollywood correspondent for Reuters, London. He will do news of English personalities.

Duckworth-Ford, a resident in Hollywood, was appointed by Bernard Rickatson-Hatt, editor-in-chief of Reuters, now on the Coast.

'Nother H'wood Mag

Hollywood Mirror enters the fan magazine field as a monthly at 10c. First issue is dated June, and the sheet gets distribution on a franchise arrangement with representatives in key centers.

Franchisers take contracted number of copies monthly, and stitch in local inserts, carrying advertising of merchants in the particular city, society and club news. Mirror, published in Hollywood, is sent out to franchise representatives uncut and unstitched for the local insert to be bound in the center of the issues. Franchises have been set in Los Angeles, San Diego, Reno, San Francisco and Oakland, and negotiations are now on for cities in the midwest and east.

Mirror will not be sold on newsstands, and local representatives contract for distribution through direct sales to homes and offices.

Magazine is being published by Hollywood Mirror, Inc., which has Jack Grant as editor; Tom Wood, president and general manager; Richard C. Henderson, vice-president; and Hendon J. Norris, secretary and general counsel.

reel Californi idate

Second literary figure to announce his candidacy for the governorship of California is George Creel, w.k. writer and husband of lanche Bates, equally well known as a legit star. Upton Sinclair is the other. A Creel daughter is Blanche Bates Creel, who has already done one show on Broadway.

Creel has been NRA administrator in California since the blue eagle started talking, and has continued penning for Collier's and other mags, but not as much as formerly. He will run on the Democratic ticket, with Governor Jim Rolph on the G.O.P. side.

ily's Fan Section

Washington Times issues as a regular weekly supplement a 'Hollywood on Parade' section.

It is the first attempt of a daily newspaper to cover the field of the fan magazines, hence unique in newspaperdom.

Detroit Free Press issues a weekly 16-page full color section devoted to screen and radio material.

Grace Wilcox Dietz is the Free Press' regular Hollywood correspondent, and Douglas Churchill does a 2,000 word feature every week. Hubbard Keavy and Robbin Coons, A.P., Dan Thomas, NEA, Alison Edwards, UP, and George Shaeffer are other by-line contributors from Hollywood.

Joe Vila

Joe Vila, 67, sports editor and columnist of New York Sun, died April 27, in his home in Brooklyn of a heart attack. Vila was with the Sun for 40 years, half of that time as sports editor. He originated the play by play accounts of sports games and was first reviewer to use typewriter at the ringside.

Among colleagues, Vila was regarded as the last word in sport history, often being turned to as as record book. Survived by widow and a daughter.

John E. Barrett Dies

John E. Barrett, 84, author and editor, died April 27, after a lingering illness of six years, at his home in Scranton, Pa. Was editor of the Scranton Republican.

One of his literary offerings was 'Red Shadow,' story of an Indian massacre in Wyoming.

Charles H. Fentress Dies

Charles H. Fentress, 67, retired publisher, died April 27 at his home in Richmond, Va. Was senior partner of Fentress, Fentress & Marsh, owners of group of newspapers in Texas.

Fentress was also president of Newspaper Publishing Company.

Walter J. Flanigan Dies

Walter J. Flanigan, 74, dramatic and music critic of the Newark Evening News until his retirement last September, died at his home in Bloomfield, N. J., April 25. Was with the Syracuse Post Standard prior to the News, where he served in same capacity. Survived by sister.

Jeremiah Crowley, 59, manager of the art department of The American Weekly, died April 24 of a heart attack in his home in New York.

Edward Goldbeck, 48, writer, died April 25 in the Hotel Somerset, N. Y. Was formerly a columnist on the Chicago Tribune.

Jobless Writers' Dance

Newly organized Writers Union, in which is included the Unemployed Writers Association, has taken headquarters and clubrooms at Sheridan Square, in Greenwich Village, and will meet every Friday night starting May 11.

First official function of the group will be a dance and house warming party on Saturday (5). Fifty cents admission will be charged, except for unemployed scribblers, who will go in at half rate. Money will go for publication of a union bulletin, and part will be devoted toward rent of headquarters. Monthly dues are set down at 25 cents, with only a dime for those out of work.

Project committee of the union is lobbying in Washington, hoping to get a governmental cash grant to help writers exist.

Executive committee of the union consists of Valentine Erskine, Robert Whitcomb, Fanya Foss, John Mitchell, Franklin Folsom, Vivien Bentley, W. H. Nugent, Leon Herald and Margery Mansfield.

Dep't Stores' Reprisal

Hardly likely that the department store book sections, hit by the new price maintenance condition in the book code which prevents price cutting on books until six months after publication, won't do something to make their book counters again the 'sales leaders' they have been for so long. 'Sales leader' is a special offering to bring a customer into the store.

One of the stores, Bloomingdale's, is going after the second important feature of the retail book trade—rentals. Department stores are in a position to cut book-rental rates to a low where other rental libraries can't compete, as was the case with book sales prices.

New price maintenance code doesn't touch book rentals, nor does it affect book clubs, even though the book clubs sell to subscribers below subsequent retail prices set for the same volumes.

It's more likely that the department store book sections may attempt to work out something along book club lines, too. Establishment like Macy's could get an impressive number of advance orders on any book of importance, and sell it to subscribers below list price and without violating the code.

Book Reviews

Walter Bodin, night city editor of the World-Telegram, and Burnet Hershey, writer on the Warner staff for the past six years, have added to the rapidly growing library of the show world their 'It's a Small World' (Coward-McCann, $3), a treatise on midgets and midgetism that will interest other than show people.

The book is shrewdly plotted, opening with a chapter on a day in the life of a midget to gain interest for the subject, and delves into the gland perversions which result in the production of giants and midgets. There follow chapters on the love and other problems of the little folk, with special chapters on Tom Thumb and the Singer Midgets. There is rather too much stress on the fact that female midgets are forced to resort to the Caesarian operation, but this and other intimate problems are frankly and inoffensively treated. There are two chapters on the historial midgets of the past, which evidences considerable research work.

It is to be regretted that the book was not given a technical revise before being sent to the printers. It would have resulted in the omission of such errors as placing Denman Thompson in 'Way Down East,' and reference to 'Fritz' instead of Adolph Zink. It also would have placed Zink and Franz Ebert with the Rosenfield Brothers' Lilliputians, popular in the late '80s, and far in advance of the Singer outfit. It might also have included Richard Pitrot's Midget Village at Dreamland, Coney Island, in the second season of that park (about 1900), and avoided the inclusion of Paul Remo's midgets in the list of the missing. (They refer to Reme, instead of Remos.)

The Rossow midgets, Franz and Charlie, are meagerly referred to, though they were an outstanding attraction for many years around 1900, and Lucia Zarate and a few others are also slighted.

The errors, however, are those of omission rather than commission.

Faulkner's Briefs

William Faulkner is still among the top rank American writers, but his new book, 'Doctor Martino' (Smith & Haas; $2.50), contains several worrisome items. It's Faulkner's second collection of short stories, and is most notable through being a bad collection in spite of the fact that it contains some of his best work. It is uneven and contains a few stories that don't belong.

'Turnabout,' one of the stories, has already been filmed by Paramount. 'Death Drag' is another that could be filmed, and 'Smoke' is a cinch for picturization. 'Smoke,' however, is merely a clever detective story with an O. Henry twist in no way worthy of the Faulkner pen. 'Wash' is probably the best story in the book, with 'Fox Hunt' not far behind.

izzy Travelling

Newest Simon & Schuster gag-book is another one right down the center of the alley. 'Fun En Route' was collected and assembled by Clay Morgan. It's in the wake of the Frank Scully 'Fun in Bed' books, gotten up in exactly the same format and manner, except that the pages are just a bit smaller.

Subtitled the 'Bon Voyage' book, and tagged at $2, it ought to sell. It contains all the usual gags and time-passers, including cross-word puzzles, acrostics, puzzles, cartoons and humorous items. Not enough for a long journey, maybe, but a pip for short air or train trips.

I' Smoothi romfield

Louis Bromfield is probably entitled to be called an old smoothie to a greater extent than anyone in American literati. His book and stories are all smooth, so much so that they almost annoy.

In his newest book, 'Here Today, Gone Tomorrow' (Harper; $2.50), Bromfield spins four yarns, all novelettes. Novelettes is a fancy word, of course, for overlong short stories. They're all good stories, but all too long and all too easy. In all four of them there is at least one character who's just at the bend, baffled, worried, or faced with a dangerous future. And in all four stories this character, at this point, dies. Perhaps wouldn't be so bad if all the stories were separately published.

That isn't as harsh a criticism as it sounds, however, since Bromfield is nevertheless an important story-teller. He knows women probably better than any other American fictioneer. It's a toss-up whether 'Number 55' or 'Miss Mehafey' is the best story in the book. Latter reminds strongly of Bromfield's best novel, 'The Case of Annie Spragg.' It's a variation of a Chekov story, which doesn't hurt it in the slightest.

issionary Love

Probably 'The Lord's Anointed' (Doubleday-Doran, $2.50) will not make the best seller grade, but it's a book to be recommended for those who take their reading seriously. It's the rather acrid story of Constancy Williams, who marries a young Calvinistic minister and goes with him to Hawaii in the first load of missionaries sent the islands.

Constancy's love of the Lord was largely induced by her love for the handsome Jonathan Williams and the knowledge she could not hope to win him unless she saw the light. She's not blind to the pettiness of the rest of the missioners, and makes a good wife, a good mother and an even better grandmother. It's splendid character drawing.

Done by Ruth Eleanor McKee, who elaborated the time-stained journals of the pioneers now in the Honolulu library.

Speech Economy

Basic English is not an especially new idea, but is gaining some weight and prevalence. It's a scheme for changing the English language by eliminating a lot of unnecessary words, and limiting it to what are considered essential words only.

In 'System of Basic English' (Harcourt Brace; $2.50), C. K. Ogden explains the theory simply and clearly, and gives a lot of examples of its usage. For example, a portion of the scenario for 'Cradle Song' (Par) is used as written, and as it would be in basic. President Roosevelt's first radio talk on the bank situation is similarly translated, as also are some one-act skits.

It sounds very feasible and logical as explained, and might, for theatre purposes (especially in the executive and production ends), be of considerable worth.

ore Dicks

Current season has been responsible for more good detective yarns than has been true in a long time. Latest issue to get a high mark is 'A Drink for Mr. Cherry,' by Dorothy Gardiner (Crime Club; $2). It's human, exciting, well-written and quite baffling. Miss Gardiner has the added and unusual (for detective yarn writers) ability of writing sparkling dialogue.

Could make a good film, too.

Going Places

By Cecelia Ager

Something for the Flaps

Ginger Rogers, '20,000,000 Sweethearts' Cinderella Girl—who sings 'Is Baby Out for No Good'—is able to address a mike without breaking her hips, jiggling her knees, or chirping hot licks. But even so, Miss Rogers is not a complete success on the air in the films. Because sponsors' wives, explains '20,000,000 Sweethearts,' make up radio programs and also choose the talent. Sponsors' wives are plump and sentimental matrons who get dreamy when listening to crooners.

Miss Rogers' characterization then becomes that of a good sport, a self-sacrificing young miss who has a warm heart, a soft head, and several suits with ankle length skirts. Miss Rogers has a fine figure, slim and young and worthy of close fitting, which it gets. It is not accoutred with the chic and dash that dazzles advance style connoiseurs, but rather in the pretty giddy manner that appeals to the high school set. Her black velveteen evening reefer coat, in fact, should create quite a furore among the flaps because it's easy and cheap to copy. It could double for a sports coat. Miss Rogers' hats are a little staid for so swift a back talker adhering to the honest, head-gripping crowns of yesteryear rather than pinning their faith on a bit of elastic, as do the contemporary cock-eyed flighty chapeaux.

School

What goes on in 'Finishing School' won't surprise picture audiences. The fans know what to expect of the upper classes by this time. Frances Dee falls in love with a poor, self-made, and so, a noble man. But that Billie Burke, her mother—well, that's what those society women are like; selfish, vain. Oh, pretty enough—but empty-headed fluffs who dress in maribou and cloth of silver, like Christmas trees or birthday cakes, and who, when tragedy collides with them, won't even cry because they're afraid their mascaro will run.

Miss Dee, who's got the audience pulling for her because she experiences the bourgeois emotions of honesty, fairness, and love for an interne, is a student at Crockett Hall and an excellent model for its uniform, a navy serge dress with bolero jacket, white linen Peter Pan collar, black bow and black patent leather belt. Her roommate, Ginger Rogers, is a good model, too, a little sexier because she flaunts her curves and does her blonde hair in a flamboyant manner that should win her instant entree to a night club floor show when she graduates. Miss Rogers arrives in New York for week-ends in way-off-the-face hats and silver fox hung coats that are a poor advertisement for the gentility that seeps in at Crockett Hall. Miss Dee, in her simple beige caracul swagger coat and little girl caps better represents the ideals for a schoolgirl, but naturally the school, an upper class one, hasn't the sense to appreciate her. The shrieking hypocrisy at Crockett Hall serves as an unescapeable contrast for Miss Dee's—slightly monotonous, it must be confessed—sincerity.

Going Mad Stylishly

In 'Journal of Crime' Ruth Chatterton is supposed to be going mad with a guilty conscience. That's because she's a nice woman and has murdered Claire Dodd. So she forgets to use her lipstick and even neglects calling in her hairdresser, but she is not mad enough to fail to see her dressmaker. The result is that in 'Journal of a Crime' Miss Chatterton looks simply swell, which suggests that the ladies of the cinema, when they're not mad, are really like little girls and can't keep their fingers out of rouge pots nor resist the fascination of marcel waving irons, and, like little girls, they don't know when they've had enough.

In the beginning of the picture, during the carefully coiffed and resoundingly lip-rouged period before her derangement, Miss Chatterton is seen peering sadly into her dressing table mirror and pushing up the corners of her mouth and smoothing away imaginary lines around her eyes in a vain attempt to hold her straying husband, straying toward the younger Miss Dodd. But after Miss Dodd is put out of the picture with a bullet, and Miss Chatterton's mind begins to give way, and she proves it by gradually renouncing the precision in her coiffures and make-up, the years vanish from her face, and lo, her husband returns, loving her again. Thus, amongst the many morals that this film teaches, the ladies would do wisest to heed the one about too much lipstick and remember the tragedies that may follow in its wake.

Miss Chatterton's dinner dress—the one she wears the night of the day she does the murdering—is new in its use of polka dots, gold polka dots on white, and it's finished with that most innocent of necklines, the drop-shoulder bertha. Miss Chatterton's is o' gold lame. She holds with stark all white or all black frocks and negligees for her troublous times, and doesn't break out into the gayety of printed material until all's well.

Much Palace Dancing

Some like it hot and some like it cold, and how do you like your dancing? You don't like it? Well, you'll get it anyway at the Palace, all ways and always.

First you get Ray and Sunshine, a couple of astonishingly limber young ladies in red pyjamas, acrobatic exponents in the challenge tradition, who don't care if the myriad rows of red chiffon ruffies that surround their trousers from top to bottom do make them look kind of expansive cross the derriere—so long as those little ruffies build up the general idea of motion when they awhirling go. And who cares about style anyhow, when an opening act can click. But there are white tops to the red pyjamas, and white puffed little sleeves, and red flowers bordering the necklines, so Ray and Sunshine do too care about style, but not enough.

Now Winona, of Gomez and Winona, cares a lot. And understands a lot. So her costumes are designed to suggest the lovely lines beneath. Their focal point is the waistline, they swirl out in circular movement to the hem, gliding along the outlines of her figure—never confining it—and in the fullness of their sweep add grace, accenting femininity.

Paul Tizen's Orchestra, which accompanies Gomez and Winona, is made up of young women in gypsy costumes who play softly on the strings and create a proper Latin mood, broken for a bit by two exceedingly peppy harmony sisters granted a specialty and determined to make the most of it. When their turn comes, they tear off their gypsy dress and leap about with gestures and hot breaks, in white satin frocks with blue tops, and wide white bows on their slippers. Winona, soon as they're finished, recaptures the mood with her 'Bolero.'

Grace Hayes, so very appreciative of her kind audience, has discovered a new stance before the mike. She stands a little to the side of it, rests one hand gracefully upon it, and makes it part of the picture instead of an alien bit of mechanical necessity. Miss Hayes wears white net over white crepe, white net flounces cascading along her arms into a cape in back, and a train. Miss Hayes is very chic, very smartly groomed, very gracious, and very smiling.

A Long Show

There will be restless souls before the Casino Varieties three-hour show has run its ambling course. They'll find the Watson Sisters to test their endurance, Keller Sisters and Lynch to soothe them with harmonies, Miles and Kover and their five-girl ballet to interest them with their wholly modern style dancing, concerned with proving the laws of kinetics; and the International Mangeans, teeter-board spring-abouters, to demonstrate to them the superior physical strength of Swiss womanhood, for the two ladies in the act move its props and hold them steady whilst the men jump, leap and sommersault. Besides which there is a feature film.

Good natured Fanny Watson thinks it would be fun to burlesque fan dancers, in over-sized and purposely wrinkled pink tights. Kitty Watson busies herself with lending class to the act, achieved by a black net dress with pleated net cape and wide-brimmed black hat tied with yellow ribbon to match her yellow sash and flowers.

Red-headed Miss Lynch wears white satin bound round the neck with brown sequins, and flutters a large brown chiffon handkerchief. Blonde Miss Lynch harmonizes in chartreuse crepe fashioned in princesse lines. The Miles and Kover girls, whose stream-lined, machine-age ballet postures suit pleasingly the modernistic style of the theatre, wear purple leotards with gold gauntlets and helmets first, Roman chariot drivers costumes of white banded in gold, last. The act's premiere danseuse arrives for her big moment cloaked in shimmering black chiffon. There are sequin trunks and bandeau beneath.

Par Suit

Great States, Morris and CBS. In the Morris agency and CBS deals, under the stock guarantees, Par sold back its interests at considerably less than acquired under the security repurchase deals. CBS deal has been under attack in many actions under the Par bankruptcy, and the trustees prior to asking for permission to file suit have questioned Adolph Zukor, Ralph A. Kohn and John D. Hertz at length on this and other repurchase deals.

Record thus obtained will probably be used if and when the suit is heard.

Possibility of defendants other than those named in the trustee petition grows out of the fact that the Par trustees and counsel are investigating the liability, if any, of any persons from whom Par purchased its own shares, i.e. CBS, Morris and Great States.

The suit, as it now stands, will be brought in varying amounts against the 19 persons so far involved, with the majority to be sued individually for the full amount of $12,237,071. In the event that suit would fail against all but one, or if judgment can not be executed except upon one person, that one person would thus be liable for the full amount.

Or as much as could be realized in reaching the $12,237,071 total.

Proposed Defendants

Persons against whom the trustees want to sue individually for the full amount are Adolph Zukor, Raiph A. Kohn, Frank A. Bailey, Jules Brulatour, William H. English, Felix E. Kahn, Gilbert W. Kahn, Sam Katz, Jesse L. Lasky, Sir William Wiseman and Eugene Zukor, Par directors at time of the three deals.

S. R. Kent, now president of Fox, but a Par director when with that company, gets off easier, $8,040,971. A like amount will be set down against Elek John Ludvigh, former general counsel of Par, now in private practice. John Hertz will be sued for $7,362,071; Daniel Frohman for $4,875,000 and Austin C. Keough, present legal head of Par, for $4,026,140.

Additionally Donald S. Stralem, as executor of the estate of Casimir L. Stralem, of Hallgarten & Co., and Eugene J. Zukor, Melville Shauer and Julia Shauer, as executors jointly of the estate of Emil E. Shauer, former Par foreign head, will each be sued for the full amount, $12,237,071.

Suit for recovery would be on the ground that the capital or capital stock of Paramount was impaired by the stock repurchases and its property wasted to the injury of the rights of the bankrupt and of its creditors, the petition states.

Following private investigation and examination of officers in the Par bankruptcy, the trustees retained three different accountants to check and report on the stock purchases, obtaining permission of the courts in each case to do this.

Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co. reported its opinion was that the capital of Par was impaired by purchases of its stock in the aggregate amount of at least $11,335,285. Arthur W. Teele, of Patterson, Teele & Dennis, believed capital impaired only to the extent of at least $3,357,453. Teele regarded certain debit adjustments deemed necessary by Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co. against the book surplus of Par as raising questions of a legal nature.

William H. English, among those named for suit, died Sunday (29). He has been a director of Paramount for several years and it is likely papers will name his estate when suit is brought.

Frederick H. Hurdman, of Hurdman & Cranstown, retained to consult with Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co. on the matter, did not believe the stock deals had impaired the condition of the company.

Price, Waterhouse & Co. was also retained to certify to annual consolidated reports of Par for several years. This auditing firm indicated that it was not prepared to agree with the conclusions reached by Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co., the trustee petition reveals.

In the Federal courts on several occasions in the past it has been both charged and inferred, notably by bondholders, that stock repurchases were made when a surplus did not exist. CBS has been mostly mentioned in this connection and John D. Hertz, when under examination by trustee attorneys, was quizzed on this point, among others.

When the trustees were before Referee Davis last week to ask permission to sue, there was no opposition. The Referee noted this in his order.

In the petition of the trustees to Referee Henry K Davis, it is additionally stated that the trustees' counsel, Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantyne, advised the trustees to institute a suit on the ground that such repurchase of company stock impaired the capital stock of Par, after the lawyers also had made an investigation of the situation.

Among the Women

By The Skirt

The Best Dressed Woman of the Week:
ETHEL MERMAN
(Paramount)

Well Dressed Paramount

Johnny Green is in the pit with the Paramount orchestra this week. Although the overture is long it is worth while if only for the rendition of 'Body and Soul'.

The Danny Dare Girls do a number called 'Christmas Night in Harlem'. They are beautifully costumed in short coats over bare legs. One side of the coat is silver and the other half blue sequins. Hats and scarfs are red with the feet shod in one silver slipper and one blue. Half sleeves top off these picturesque costumes.

Ethel Merman sings a round of songs in a brown net frock made long and plain with long sleeves. The only ornament is a brilliant buckle at the waist line. The neck is cut square. Altogether a good looking outfit.

Ballet headed by Harriet Hoctor may have been pink but it looked white. The girls look lovely in the full skirts. Hats and gloves are black. Miss Hoctor is in white dotted in silver. House gives 'Eadie Was a Lady' a colorful setting. Miss Merman doing the number in pink satin trimmed with black jet. The girls in this cafe scene are in the early '90 dresses of all colors and styles.

The picture is 'Witching Hour', a well remembered play brought to the screen with no bad effects. With such a cast as Sir Guy Standing, John Halliday and William Frawley picture couldn't go far wrong. Judith Allen and Olive Tell are interesting in the clothes of an early period. Miss Allen is very lovely in a white hooped gown of many flounces.

Another Shipwreck, But OK.

'We're Not Dressing', at the Rivoli, is another of those shipwreck stories. And always in the tropics. Yarn may be thin but the cast is okay. Big Crosby has never sung better, Leon Errol does his well known drunk, Carole Lombard, in spite of an atrocious haircomb, is luscious, and Burns and Allen are as amusing as ever.

Miss Lombard shows but one frock, an evening affair of white satin showing plenty back and plenty front, too. The gown carries a flounce at the hem and there is an odd scarf arrangement across the front of the throat hanging in two ends down the back. For the most part, however, Miss Lombard is in a bathrobe of satin tailored, and finally manages to find a pair of perfectly fitting blue sailor pants and blouse in the jungle.

Ethel Merman, new to the screen, will go far if properly handled. Her evening frock was black with straps over the shoulders fastened to the gown with diamond rings. Gracie Allen, in the jungle for research work, wears a dotted dress with white organdie front. So appropriate.

Incidental Women

Women are incidental in the picture at the Mayfair this week, called 'Beggars in Ermine'.

Story is a hodge podge of steel, finance and poverty. All in all very unpleasant. Astrid Allwyn, in for two brief scenes, wears a negligee with ruchings, and a gown of some neutral shade with the style undeterminable.

Betty Furness is the love interest and shows several tailored frocks of tweeds and plaids and one velveteen coat. Two hats are beret style.

Long But Entertaining

The stage show at the Roxy, although long this week, is entertaining. Gae Foster girls, using red chairs as props, are in very short brown frocks made with a tiny ruffle at the hip line. Collars and cuffs are white with red ties and hats. For the finale they are in long white satin gowns with cerise feather boas around the hem and hanging in long ends down the back. Black velvet yokes and sleeves are relieved by green sequin headdresses, making a colorful ensemble. Jean Carrol, with Marty May, has chosen a simple frock of chartreuse with sleeves of a red plaid.

A young Mexican miss, assisting a man on the wire, is in a red net dress made long and high in front with a white collar with black tie.

A Bit Like Mary

The picture at the Rialto, called 'She Made Her Bed', carries plenty excitement. Sally Eilers is the lead and resembles Mary Pickford in many shots. As the owner of an auto camp, and behind a lunch counter most of the time, Miss Eilers is in ginghams and frocks of the simple sort. She attends a county fair in a black dress with a white frill at the neck and a large picture hat. A plain satin bath robe with collars and cuffs of a different color is followed by one quilted.

Grace Bradley, too young for the siren role, is seen in several dresses of indifferent style.

California—In the Raw

Realty Salesmen Cash In on State's Balmy Sunshine with Back-to-Nature Yokels

Hollywood,

The nudist colony idea has opened up one of the choicest channels for California estate salesmen they had in years. Potential prospects for a new camp 36 miles north of Hollywood gleaned through the use of the metropolitan dailies.

A salesman calls and quotes his figures and wherewithall. They tell that the prospect has little chance accepted to the club-colony—it's that exclusive. How-, before he gets a chance to get away he's persuaded by every argument in the interest of 'health, longevity and youth retention.'

Nude colony, however, is only partially in the raw. Femmes must wear brassiere and a loin cloth, the promoters say. Males call for a loin cloth. But in advising, the salesmen point out the club owns another spot, 'more rustic and wilder.' A certain prospect, doubtful of such spots, was shown pictures remindful of Parisian haunts.

Latest outfit to put the nudie thing on a realty selling basis is the Loin Cloth Sunshine Club with headquarters in Los Angeles. Club was organized six months ago and has 100 members, but is after 50 more at $35 per.

You can rent a tent for $3 weekly, or sit it out in the altogether in a cabaret where theatrical performers entertain. Dances also are held for the loin-clothers.

HORTON'S VARIETIES OF 1934
Slim Timbli, Vee Lawnhurst, Green Bros., Warren Hull
Comedy, Songs, Band
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WOR, Newark

Musically this Friday evening package, supported by Horton's ice cream, manages to pass muster. Surrounded by a small combo, the Green Bros., experts on the xylophone, make a melodious time of it. Vee Lawnhurst has been around NBC long enough to know how to feed it to 'em from the ivories, while Warren Hull, baritone, shows an aptitude for giving a pop tune the right romantic flavor. But as for the program's attempt at comedy its wear and tear upon the listener's good nature is too much.

Those responsible for the production have slugged Slim Timblin's possibilities at the mike from the start. They've loaded him with material that's not only unfunny, but annoying. The Slim Timblin of radio, as things are framed for him here, is not the Slim Timblin of vaude's standard act repute. It's just any blackface dialect hitched to a mess of futile and pointless gag fodder. Timblin also does a comedy verse. The one allotted him for last week's (27) program couldn't have tickled many funnybones.

Program's producers could do both Timblin and the commercial a favor by refraining from trying to inject comedy into the plug. Timblin's maladroit interruptions and frequent interpolations of 'That's right' to the announcer's recital of the product's virtues do anything but sugarcoat the copy delivery. Odec.

JACKIE MERKLE
Mentalist
45 Minutes
COMMERCIAL
KFOR, Lincoln

Puretone Tonic is using this 10-year old mentalist here over KFOR three times a day for a week and present plan is to take the lad east on the same deal. Always in vaude heretofore, Jackie blossomed overnight into a capable ether performer and is drawing turnaway crowds to the audition rooms.

Moving to the Lincoln hotel ballroom to house the people, Jackie works with his father stooging for him in the audience. The kid, being so small and with every appearance of being an ordinary lad, wins the older people over completely and they're the kind that usually need the tonic.

Jackie mouths words that baffles the audience and which he probably doesn't understand himself, but confines himself mostly to names and addresses. The kid is an especial sock for those stations whose wattage confines them to a limited trade area and allows listeners to participate bodily in the program. Manny Rose is the manager of the act. Barney.

WOR PROGRAM
Natalie Alt, Laurence Salerno, orchestra
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WGN, Chicago

This is one of the exchange programs between WOR in Newark and the Chicago Tribune station. No coin is passed, the deal being on a straight even exchange basis. Understood that WOR has the same type of deal with the John Shepard outlets in New England. It makes the similarity between newspapers and radio increasingly evident in the advertising of one publication in a similar medium.

WGN has developed a class program for WOR, the type of show that should click with the money people who can afford to back radio advertising. Concert style entertainment throughout and the kind of entertainment that will make the potential WOR customer lean back in his chair and puff contentedly on his cheroot. Natalie Alt as soprano and Laurence Salerno as baritone handle the vocal assignments well. Miss Alt particularly surprises as a soprano who can satisfy completely over the loudspeaker without getting that shrill quality in her voice that most sopranos have. In Alt and Salerno WGN has the makings of an excellent commercial couple.

WOR gets straight-forward commercial copy as the leading independent station of the New York city area, though interspersed are several institutional plugs for radio in general.

Bill Rambeau, the WOR local rep, gets a heavy spiel. They even spell out his name and list his address. It's tough that announcer Pierre Andre couldn't also mention that he wears a carnation occasionally and is a good guy. Gold.

Clean Pics

the offenses, a drive which would involve 26,000,000 citizens. It will be pointed out to the Catholic Church between now and May 15, when that church's crusade is slated to get under way, just what the majors have been doing in a clean-up way. It will also be suggested that the Church recommend its millions of parishioners they patronize films recommended by the Church and, if they so desire, stay away from the others.

The key to the Catholic situation which majors are largely relying upon, in addition to their own house-cleaning, personally supervised by Will Hays, is that the Church set up its own pre-viewing board of governors in Hollywood and from there disseminates the names of pictures against which there are no black marks.

Such machinery is partially set up in the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, majors believe. If the Church finds continuance of this group, augmented or altered, film leaders are hopeful that the industry generally will escape the branding iron. On an average year the Alumnae recommends 75% of the major output, New York records show.

Film leaders, however, see no abrupt ending of the morals war. They expect repercussions admittedly from some spicy dialog. Main hope now is that the moral tide against the major screen industry can be stemmed.

Wide publicity given filmdom's promises to be good have doubtless given many fans the impression that Hollywood is in for a brand-new regime and that all pictures will be denatured. This now is as of much concern to industry observers as the moral crusades, since attendances can be made to suffer either way.

As the result, new adjectives are being dug up for pictures. In official sources more frequent use of such bromides as 'grand' and 'swell' are being advocated for advertising copy during the new season.

Union of Allied Exhibitors' Ass'n with the M. P. Research Council, headed by Mrs. August Belmont, against screen immorality and block booking is analyzed by one of the most prominent majors as follows:

'The Council a disinterested group. It now apparently is aligned with an organization in the film business which has itself on the records as having endeavored to put over the greatest long-term method of block booking ever attempted in the industry.

'So, the more any outside group learns of the film business, the better it will be for the better elements in the film business.'

Hollywood, April, 30.

In line with the policy of the Committee of Motion Pictures of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, the conferees of the Catholic church leaders and Governmental officials now in session here will hear a resolution to that effect at tomorrow's (Tuesday) session.

Resolution is expected to concern itself with the moral aspect of pictures by which the conference is preparing to force an issue through the exhibition end of the picture biz.

Conference opened Sunday (29).

New Haven, April 30.

A new headache for local exhibs has cropped up here with the organization of a Better Films Council. Members include branches of civic, religious, patriotic and educational groups which range from the Y.M.C.A. to the D.A.R.

In addition to general plugging for better films, organization is sponsoring family programs of its own selection.

It is the former mayor's reported viewpoint that he could best present his case to the U. S. by personal contact via stage, screen and the air. The goodwill angle is said to figure very importantly with Jimmy Walker.

type and telephoto service, broadcasting, motion picture distribution, and equipment manufacture.

Methods of competition, control of patents, prices, alleged monopolistic control, and 'particularly the relationship of the company with Electrical Research Products, Inc., and its relation to independent motion picture organizations.'

Extent which phone users have borne cost of research developments in sound film, radio and other fields.

Relations with employees, maintenance of big salaries for high officials and continuous high dividends.

Propagan' activities, control of elections, and political activities.

Possibility that company and network of related firms have evaded tax liability or governmental regulation.

Dill resolution is directly related to refusal of President Walter Gifford of A.T.&T. to answer various questions while attacking Dill's communication-control bill a few weeks ago, and Gifford's opposition to the idea of giving Federal communications commission authority to supervise and regulate intercompany affairs.

Major objective is to curb asserted monopoly and bring about reductions in service charges for virtually all types of service. Dill feels local phone rates should be chopped drastically and that rental charges for various kinds of equipment are outrageous.

Committee discoveries could serve as a basis for legislation to prevent public utilities from entering other fields in competition with independent enterprises, action which has been demanded for many years by makers of sound film and radio equipment who have charged that patent control situation makes it impossible to compete.

ERPI relations are particularly prominent to Senate committee members since independent manufacturers have loosed their attack on telephone company's film interests. Probable that the committee will turn its guns on extent of company's financing of film producers, relationship to exhibition chains, and similar matters related to rental of both recording and reproducing apparatus.

Proposing to spend most of the summer and fall on the inquiry, and to submit a report when Congress convenes next January, Dill said information to be obtained will be useful whether communication-control bill becomes law this session or is delayed.

'If Congress fails to pass the communications bill, this investigation will furnish necessary facts upon which to base legislation with broader powers next session,' the committee head explained. 'If Congress does pass the bill, we should make the investigation furnish Congress with further information which the commissi will not have time to secure and which is needed for additional legislation.'

Hagenbeck-Wallace

Chicago, April 27.

With everything in the country coming out of the depression maybe this is a circus year.

Hagenbeck-Wallace thinks so. They even had a street parade this year, on Friday (20) the night before the opening. Circled the loop streets and brought some 10,000 people downtown. One certain result of the parade was that it meant some $5,000 additional coin for the loop picture houses, particularly the low-scaled ones where father and mother and kids could all ride in for a buck.

As run off on the opening Saturday night the circus ran smooth as a picture cathedral stage show with a comparable amount of smart lighting, fast pacing and shrewd routining of the acts.

Only one thing lacking in the circus biz. And that's the lack of a sufficient novelty. They repeat year in and year out the same style of acts. Names are few, only Clyde Beatty in recent years coming to the forefront as a billable attraction. Beatty joins the Hagenbeck show here next week, and continues with this trick through the season.

Two other names being billed on this show are importations, the Great Cristiani troupe, and the aerialist, Cyse Odell. The Cristianis are a riding family, and their act is held toward the end of the evening, and listed under Display No. 16. Entire number of events is 22.

No question about the Cristiani troupe for performance. They rank with the Polish and American Army groups in international exhibitions, having often taker the honors back to Italy with them. But the American public is a metropolitan one and little acustomed to horsemanship. It can hardly tell good riding from bad. The Cristiani family overcomes this fact to a great degree by inserting plenty of dare-devil and flash stunts, that even a guy who has never been on a horse must recognize as a bit of neat horse trickmanship. Seven in this family, five men and two femmes. They do a 10-minute act that has everything but comedy. Cristianis work in the center ring, and do leaping of every conceivable type. Particularly impressive in the back somersaulting from one horse to another just behind, especially one of the boy's full twist somersault from one horse to another while they trot around the ring.

In Display No. 10 Cyse Odell has the famous Leitzel aerial routine. After working on the rings for some graceful maneuvers, she gets into the wrist-lock for the Leitzel stunt. On the show caught Miss Odell clicked off 70 complete revolutions of her body. She makes a neat appearance in the air on her petite size and skilful costuming. With a certain amount of publicity plugging she is likely to mean money for the circus.

That the circus has learned plenty of the picture house presentations is demonstrated in the opening spec by Rex de Rosselli. Labeled 'Persia,' it's practically the same type of femme dancing routines as seen in the theatres, except that here they work on sawdust. They were lighted well, which in itself is still a novelty in the circus biz. Two dance routines, one to the Oriental tune of 'Persian Market Place,' the other to the modern tempo of 'Arlene.' Finishes in a burst of Roman candles and American flags. It gave the show a colorful start.

Second display brought the comedy dogs, mules and ponies working on revolving, tables with the three rings directed by Joyce, Rudynoff and Gordon Orton. Display No. 3 had Miss LaRue working excellently with a couple of camels and a pony in the center ring, while Miss Penn and Miss Butler drilled the ponies in military formations on the two ends. Around the hippodrome track for the No. 4 display came the 'Human Pendulum,' a man allowing himself to be carried by his head in the mouth of an elephant. This act has been with the show for a couple of years. Also stunting for a repeat season with the Hagenbeck show is Eddie Reece, who, in slot No. 14, is allowing a Pontiac auto to be driven over his body. Too much free plugging in the radio spiel manner for the auto is giving the act a bad psychological start.

For displays No. 5 and 6 the circus gals were upon the rings for some gymnastic work, led by the Misses Margaret and Pauline working on the high rings for the finale. Display No. 7 is weak and a letdown in pace. Three Hardings working in the center ring as hat jugglers fail to hold attention, and the two acrobatic turns, Jung Trio and the Neopolitan troupe, on the two end rings have an equally tough time of it.

Show perks up with the next act, Buck Owens and his troupe of wild west riders. Excellent riding throughout this display with plenty of excitement in the rodeo manner. Owens, billed as of pictures, finishes the display with a short re-enactment of a sequence from a motion picture in which his horse 'Goldie' helps the wounded Owens to get up on his back. It's a clever insertion on sentiment and the universal force of a story. Another break in the show follows in display No. 9 with some weak horsemanship inside the rings as led by Machaquita, Sandrina and Cossette. Meaningless act. Around the hippodrome track at this point comes the Giraffe Neck woman for a good freak display.

Following Miss Odell, the aerialist, came the sea lions under the direction of Roland Hebeler. Seals are still sureefire performers, whether on the stage or in the circus. Animals as well trained here and picked the show along in good fashion.

For display No. 12 the Great Neiss Troupe delivered a circusy trampoline turn in the center ring. This troupe brings in some new ideas in trampoline construction and stunting. They manage gasp stuff throughout without trying for comedy at any point. One or two laughs inserted into their routine would make them easily available for vaude time this winter. Acrobats worked the end rings, the Four Marvels and the Emellos on one side and the Angelo troupe on the other.

Cheerful Gardner continues as the outstanding elephant trainer in the country as demonstrated by his socko act. It is the outstanding animal turn of the circus. They work in all three rings for the fastest, ablest, trickiest elephant stunts seen anywhere. For a smash finish Gardner fills the hippodrome track with the longest line of elephants seen, and makes the whole line of 35 go through roll-overs, rearing and general formation work. By the very bulk of the job accomplished this turn is tops in the circus biz.

The iron-jaw girls were in for their butterfly business, and listed in the program as the Edward Sisters, Cronin Sisters and Mayfield Sisters, routines of circus calibre.

Then the Cristianis, and followed by Rudy Rudynoff back for dispay No. 17 in all three rings with the liberty horses. Clean and easy style that always makes the liberty horse act a cinch in circuses. Show was building right along and hits a new high with Bombayo, the man on the bounding rope, for display No. 18. This is another holdover turn from last year. His somersaults from straddle to straddle probably can't be copied. It's a cinch sock acrobatic act for any audience.

Dancing and prancing horses in the rings and track next for a colorful display, then back to the rings for perch routines, the Arleys and the Jardys in the two end arenas for acts that holdover from last year. The Four Polls work on the high perch in the center.

Show closes for straight acrobatics with two flying trapeze acts, Flying Codonas and the Famous Hills. Both troupes a pleasure to watch for thrills and grace in mid-air. Show finished with the usual races.

All in all a good circus that's ready to go, and with Beatty added should make money with half a break. Show sticks in Chi at the Coliseum until May 6, then goes to Kokohom for a one-day stand to open under canvas and followed by a five-day stand in St. Louis on May 8.

Plenty of clowns here—Billy Rice, Al Neyman, Dick Pinckney, Jean Baptiste, Joe Lewis, Arthur Borella, Jimmy Davison, Paul Gerome, Horace Laird, Louis Plamandon, Fred Delmont, Otto Griebling, Paul Jung, Jim White, Abe Rodemaker, Allan Huller, Grimaldi Stevens, Silvers Patterson, Buster March, Bert Wilson, Lucia Sparta, Johnny August and Joe Marino, but not a laugh in the whole list of them. Outside of the comedy flivver bit, and that's 20 years old.

Show has Joe Donohue as general agent again this year. Ore Parks comes in as p.a. for another year in the outdoors. Circus is being carried on 46 cars. Will run at $1.50 top, and again this year wisely play up that 25c for kids on matinees angle. For without the kids there's no business and no circus. Gold.

Albany, April

Vernon Sweet, 37, midget formerly with circuses and billed as the 'Goblin of the Catskills,' is in a Catskill hospital, recovering from an infection of one hip.

Sweet has been a sufferer since birth from a rare case of malformation, the cause of his diminutive size. He is afflicted with calcium deposits in his skin and muscles because of the condition of his glands. His skull instead of being in one piece is in two, and they overlap.

Sweet was taken to Albany Hospital for a clinic and was X-rayed and photographed several times. A substantial sum was collected and given to him,

Ringling Show Ends N. Y. Run; Sees Road Prospects as Brightest in Years

Completing a full month's date at Madison Square Garden, N. Y., Sunday (29), the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus started on Feeling around the show is quite different than last season's start, when there was an air of uncertainty as to whether the big top would make a season of it. Only six weeks out of the Garden were sure booking but the show stuck it out and ended the season out of the red.

Improved business for three shows under Ringling management is the basis of expectations of an unusual season. The Barnes outfit now on the Coast has made the best showing to date, grosses being 70% over those of early dates last year.

Hagenbeck-Wallace outfit is quoted being 40% better, and the Ringling show itself ran 30% ahead of last season in New York, that percentage holding for the final week, according to show officials.

Samuel Gumpertz, general manager of the Ringling show properties, stated that not only has business been markedly improved, but that the contact men in advance of the shows report promising conditions in many spots which last year were smitten by bank closings and industrial shut-downs.

Ringling show moved on to the Boston Garden. It opens under canvas next week in Brooklyn.

Clown Can Handle Cats, But Can't Manage Wife

Milwaukee, April 30.

Wagner, clown with the Barnum & Bailey-Ringling Brothers show, told a divorce judge here he has, on occasions, handled the "big cats" in the circus but isn't able to handle his wife, Alma.

The wife, 37, sued Wagner, 55, on charges of cruelty and won the decree after Wagner told the court he refused to fight.

Wagner told the court has $10,000 in $3,000 in government bonds, and owns a $15,000 home here. The wife said all she owned was $1,000 in building and loan stock. Wagner was ordered to pay his wife $3,500; give her the furniture and pay $350 in attorney's fees. There will be no alimony.

PARK-CARNEY PACTS READY; CIRCUS LAGS

Washington, April 30.

Codes for all outdoor amusement trades were in final stages of examination today and more or less ready for submission to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. Hope was expressed by Deputy William P. Farnsworth that the park and carney pacts might reach the front office for the general's signature before the end of the week, but the circus agreement is several steps behind this pair.

Generally satisfactory compromises have been engineered to iron out differences over key points of the park-pool-pier-beach agreement, and presentation of the code and reports to Gen. Johnson is being retarded only until operators have signified formal approval. Carney pact is in same boat, with okay from managers the only thing needed.

Scrap over trade practice provisions of circus code remains to be settled as soon as John Kelly and Farnsworth can get together. Issue involves tug-of-war between rail and motor shows, with former faction opposing everything except hours and wages, and latter crowd insisting on list of do's and don'ts on methods of competition.

Delay in straightening out this matter has caused considerable local speculation in view of previous insistence of big circuses on speedy disposition of code matters. Observers are wondering if major interests were waiting for opening of Madison Square Garden season before sitting down to attempt an agreement. Signs point to imposed code if delay continues much longer. Otherwise circus pact is all set for general's examination.

Questions of overtime and part-time pay in park code were solved last week when labor agreed to concede certain minor points which ended deadlock. Final version calls for six-day week instead of unlimited time as originally proposed. Compromises provide for 30c scale for part-time employees up to 30 hours, weekly wage over 30 hours, time and one-third for overtime up to Aug. 1 and time and one-half remainder of season.

PONY EXPRESS RACES

Douglas G. Hertz, promoter of pony express racing, brings his company of rough riders to the Auditorium, Atlantic City, May 29, for a five day meet, before beginning a tour of the Eastern states.

Some of the ponies are the same that were ridden by Willie Tevis, holder of the world's record for endurance riding, made in the pony express meet held last year in San Francisco.

Roustabout's Valuable Voice

Galveston, April 30.

Oscar Palmer, 23-year-old circus hand of Call, Texas, awarded $45,000 by district court at Beaumont in suit for $45,225 damages from Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus. Palmer claimed he had lost his voice at result of injuries sustained when a seat support inside "big top" fell, striking him on throat and chest, while working for circus at Fort Worth, Sept. 13, 1932.

BAR—BUT AN OUT

Lynchburg, April 30.

City officials have cooked up a new law frankly designed to scare away carnivals. Idea is to slap a $15 a week tax on every concession in outfit. Edict was laid down last week, and a show which had been dickering for a lot immediately decided to pass up Lynchburg.

Small carneys, however, will probably continue to show across the river in the unincorporated suburban town of Madison Heights. Although less than a mile from downtown Lynchburg, the show lot is in another county and therefore not affected by municipal bans.

TOO MUCH TORSO

San Diego, April 30.

A muscle dance with some expert stomach wriggling and hip hoisting neatly done by one Flossie Winters, 23-year-old delineator of ancient Egyptian dances, so shocked two Puritan-minded cops here Saturday (28) that they took the young lady to the clink.

Flossie was charged with indecent exposure, later fined $50 and 30 days in county jail. George Dixon, her manager, got a similar fine and sentence.

It all happened at a carnival playing at the foot of B street. Time sentences were suspended and the fines were paid.

Expect to make this real 49'er, cut loose convention with estimated 5,000 here for the affair. Plenty of money being spent by old timers of Alaska in making this one bi event.

Both the Senate and Assembly have passed the bill which enables the State Fair to receive Federal PWA fund grants and other aid for the creation of the Industrial Exhibit Authority.

B'way Niteries Praying for Good Ol' Prohi Days; Ain't No Drinkin'

Folks around Broadway ain't drinking like they used to. Likker wholesalers aver that repeal bids fair to make America far more temperate a nation than ever in the era of Volsteadism's 13 years. It may not be as temperate as before the Prohibition Act, but drinking is decidedly falling off as a fashionable indoor sport.

Ask the Broadway nitery entrepreneurs. The only break they get is that the smart spots still can get $10 a quart for vintage champagne with dinner extra—but then the vintage must be the mccoy and the brand the ultimate in quality.

The likker wholesalers have been widely advertising their brands of late. It's now reached the stage of quality and selectivity of choice. The retailers know that from the lethargic pace of the movement of their wet stocks.

Bargain hunters are pushovers for the department stores principally. The big stores buy up carloads of California vintage prod-

'Show's a Flop, but Bar's A Hit,' Forrest's Dilemma

Most unusual booking proposals have been made concerning the Forrest, only legit house on Broadway with a bar directly connected with the foyer. Doorway leads from the rear of the orchestra floor to the booze emporium which is part of the Forrest hotel in the same building.

Number of managers have offered to spot shows in the Forrest, provided the attraction gets the same percentage of bar receipts as its share of the box office gross. House and hotel have turned down all such proffers.

'Show is a flop but the bar's a it,' was the comment on several recent premieres at the Forrest.

Applications for licenses to sell liquor in New York theatres have been rejected by the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, with the exception of the Metropolitan opera house. No explanation for that grant has been given.

3,000,000 Advance Sale Of Tickets for Fair

Chicago, May 7.

Chi is rubbing its palms with boom-town glee in anticipation of the World's Fair reopening.

To date 3,000,000 tickets at 50c (no reduction from last year as was expected) have been sold in advance, against the opening stanza's 1,500,000 ducats at this time last year. Ditto hotel demands are much better booked up.

Nite life in the Loop looks to benefit especially.

Minneapolis, May 7.

Central Labor Union here staged 'Precedent,' a play dealing with the Mooney-Billings bombing case, at the Shubert theatre in an effort to induce the local city council to adopt a resolution asking the governor of California to pardon the two men.

FIVE 15c DUAL GRINDERS ON 42D ST.

There are now five 15c double feature film grinds in the one block on 42d street, west of Broadway, New York. Six more are one block away, making 11 inkpots right at the crossroads to battle it out with the regular Broadway first-run houses. Also in the one 42d street block are two burlesque houses, a third is to open shortly, and a vaudefilm policy is also being set for another house.

Selwyn and Times Square went pictures last week as the latest additions. Lyric is being assembled for a grind vaudfilm, legit stock, while a stock burlesk troupe is going into the Apollo. Other film houses using double feature pictures are the Wallack, Harris and Liberty, while burlesque occupies the Eltinge and Republic.

Only house retaining its original legit policy on what was once the most famous show block in the world is the New Amsterdam.

RE: BOULDER DAM

Hollywood, May

First of the Boulder Dam stories likely to get into picture form is Warners 'The Cinch.' Over a year ago, studios were all steamed up over Boulder Dam plots and every lot had one in preparation. Then interest dropped, and most of them were shelved.

James Cagney stars in 'The Cinch.' Story is by Dan Templin, and Sy Bartlett adapts.

YANKEE NETWORK SOLICITS FAN AID

Goes Direct to Public as Newspapers Bar Radio Reporters from Official News Sources — Hearing Draws Crowds

BLIND TESTIFY

Boston, May 7.

In a dramatic counter-attack against the newspaper fraternity of Boston, which has fought, blocked, hoaxed, and embarrassed the Yankee Network in its efforts to gather news for broadcast purposes the general public has been asked to defend the regional network's efforts to give them information on current events. And the public has responded in numbers and with enthusiasm. So much so that the precedent may have influence far beyond the purely local issue involved.

It tends to establish the fact that when enemies of radio put broadcasting in a spot stations and webs can call upon their fans to participate in mass meeting protests that

Mexican Stage Actors Get an Idea; Want to Ban Pix, Radio After 8 P.M.

Mexico City, May 7.

After several days of verbal run-around, convention of Mexican actors and allied unions, in session here to seek means for reviving the stage's past glory and prosperity, concluded that pictures and radio are the theatre's two greatest foes.

Convention adopted resolutions urging President Rodriguez to prohibit cinemas from functioning after 8 p.m. and to otherwise regulate their operation 'so that they will not interfere with national culture, which is expounded by the theatre.'

President is also asked to prevent two more old guard stage houses here, the Iris and the Politeama, from going cinema, advising him that since 1923 most houses that were built primarily for stage shows have been converted into film cathedrals.

Committees have been appointed to figure out the best means for curbing activities of the radio and sporting exhibitions, such as prize and bull fights. Favors urging government regulation prohibiting ether studios to function after 9 p.m. daily.

Conclave also has under consideration a proposition to force theatre owners to reduce rentals and cut sharing terms contending that these levies are so high companies only geat meager picking of the gate. Said that some shows here gross but $15 a night, but have to pay $30 rent and give house 10% of box office receipts besides.

20 EX-CONS IN 'BIG HOUSE' UNIT

Omaha, May 7.

Wiley Langford, chief auditor of the Nebraska state penitentiary, is playing the patron saint for troupe of 20 former inmates of various prisons who left Omaha last week as a regulation vaude unit on a tour which is planned to stop at the Century of Progress.

First stop will be Aurora, Ill., and the second Waukegan. Bookings are through William Morris office, and biz end is in the hands of Joe Marion, former musical comedy player here. Polishing and routining of the act were supervised by Eddie Perrigo, Omaha maestro, and m.c. and leader's job is taken by Jack Scott.

All but three of the troupe have 'done time,' and one has been with 'Pretty Boy' Floyd. Attention of prison reformists and sociologists is centered on the experiment, as the whole enterprise was engineered as an opportunity for the boys to make good on their own, with Langford as backer.

Act is known as 'The Convict Band and Big House Follies,' and carries an instrumentation of three saxes, three brasses, fiddle, guitar, bass, drums and piano.

Robt. E. Lee Forgiven

Washington, May 7.

CBS is sending out announcements of airing of shindig on May 18 in U. S. Capital at which Virginia will present to the nation statues of George Washington and Robert E. Lee. No mention is made, however, of fact that both busts have been in Statuary Hall for 20 years.

Reason for delayed acceptance of marbles lay in fact that some Congressmen were sore at the Confederacy and Washington couldn't be accepted without Lee.

KNOW NO VAUDE

Says M-G As Studio Changes Stage Background for Film

Hollywood, May 7.

Present generation of film audiences don't know anything about vaudeville, thinks Metro. This was explanation given for changing the vaude background of 'Excess Baggage' to a radio background. Studio is remaking the stage hit, which was based on lives of a couple of smalltime players.

Radio, sez studio, is better known to audiences, while vaude is an alien subject. John Larkin is adapting the Jack McGowan play.

Writers Who Juggle the Classic Usually Miss the Ball, Says Cukor on Adapting

By CECELIA AGER

'When adaptations of first rate literature fail as pictures,' said George Cukor, before his departure last week for England to search for actors who conjure up precisely the immortal characters in 'David Copperfield,' and to steep himself in the atmosphere of the book, 'it's because they've tried to improve upon the original text. They fail because they are re-writing rather than what they should be doing—a strict adaptation of the thing for the picture medium.

'Nothing you can invent is as good as the text, when you're working on a text that has proven its worth with time or acclaim. If you do an important thing, do it as it is. Stick with its weaknesses of story as well as its strength. Look into the thing, you're doing, find your dialog there, your structure. Abide by its plot, imbue yourself with its meaning, be guided by its intent. Thus can you transfer it to the screen and capture the mood, the importance of the original. Thus your adaptation will resent the power of the origi

Application of Attorneys Loeb, Walker & Loeb to have released the remaining 50% of Stuart Erwin's salary at Metro, tied up through attachment in the action for unpaid commissions brought by the Harry Wurtzel agency, was denied by Superior Court Judge Charles L. Bogue.

Court ruled that a contract between an agent and a client represents a personal service and is therefore valid and binding. Suit seeks to recover $8,250 in unpaid commissions from Erwin, and grows out of a reputed breach of contract.

Gettin' Even

Studio p.a., author of pulp mag detective stories on the side, having a private chuckle at expense of execs he doesn't like by using their names for his villains.

He also names streets, towns and hangouts after personages in the studio, while his detectives are called after studio cops. He just twists them slightly.

Nobody on the lot reads the pulp mags, so to date he's had the last and only laugh.

Par's Eastern Prod. Is on a Rental From Erpi to Help Pay Off $1,900,000

Paramount's eastern production plans are more a method of painless payments on its $1,900,000 debt to the Erpi than any harbinger of real production impetus for New York. At the same time credence was given this belief in electric circles.

The Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur production deal, whereby four pictures produced at Astoria will be distributed by Paramount, is reported in Par headquarters to have some unique twists. Usually when Erpi, known in production by the corporate title of Eastern Service Studios, finances pictures made in the Astoria plant the electric advances 50% of the budget and charges 6% interest for the money. With Hecht-MacArthur and Paramount it is reported that the electric will also probably be cut in for a percentage of the net profits on all of these pictures and that the same will go toward reducing the big Par equipment debt with Erpi.

Paramountites make no effort to disguise relations with the electric as being essentially with the debt in mind. The same is true in a more evasive manner in electric fields. Before the year is out Par may have totaled a production out-

Mae Murray Settled, But She Thinks She Should Be Paid More

John P. O'Brien, former New York Mayor, will represent Mae Murray in a New York supreme court action against Tiffany Pictures. Miss Murray is asking for $300,000 in the New York suit, and $1,000,000 in a similar action filed in California.

Suit arises out of an old contract Miss Murray had with Tiffany about 10 years ago when she made a few pictures for them on a percentage basis. In 1924 the company settled with her paying her $12,500 and Robert Z. Leonard, director, $12,500 more. She then signed an unconditional release absolving the picture company of any future claims.

Miss Murray now contends she should have received considerable more money at the time and that her release was signed under duress.

Tiffany has since gone out of business.

COAST AGENTS PACT OKAYED

Los Angeles, May 7.

While the State Labor Commission is sitting tight on its decision not to relinquish any of its recently adopted agency regulations, Deputy Commissioner Thomas Barker has authorized inclusion of an additional clause providing that the bureau may be named by the courts as an arbitration commissioner in dealing with agent-artist controversies.

With such a provision written into contracts, either the agent or the actor may initiate arbitration action through Superior Court, and finding of facts by the Labor Bureau would then become final, subject only to the court's formal okay or review on legal points.

Amended contract provision would also enable agents to retain their rights of filing attachments in court against recalcitrant clients —a procedure the agents regarded as dubious under the original regulation setup requiring all controversies to go directly to the Labor Commission. It was to retain this right of attachment that the agents contended most hotly with the state department in the formulation of the new contract rules.

Arbitration amendment proposal came from Attorneys David Tannenbaum and Samuel S. Zagon and Harold E. Aaron, representing together a dozen agencies.

Additional clause in no wise minimizes the regulatory powers of the state or takes from it the fundamental authority to deal with controversies as the primary agency under the Private Employment Agency Act by which agents are licensed, Attorney Charles F. Lowy of the Labor Commission emphasizes.

Films Grooming 60 Others for Future Stardom— H'wood Five More Than Season Before — Vaudeville Contributed Nothing

28 FALLEN STARS

Thirty-five players, comprising 19 men and 16 women, reached stardom in the various branches of show business during the 1933-34 season, just ending. There were 22 new ones in pictures, 10 in radio and three in legit.

Number is about average for a theatrical year in those combined fields. But vaudeville, formerly the most fertile of star spawning grounds, was completely sterile as a star producer. Ditto burlesque.

Stardom as credited in this annual tabulation is gained when the player rates personal billing over the title of his or her picture, program or show. Majority on the '33-'34 new star list had previously rated as names in one or more show branches, but had not attained stardom before. Also included are those who starred previously in other theatrical fields and repeated in a new (for them) field. In the latter class falls George M. Cohan, a star of the theatre for three decades, who became a new star for radio during the season.

In contrast to the 22 new planets in the Hollywood firmament, 28 oldsters became fallen stars during the

Radio Station Helps Crystallize Sentiment for Sunday Films

Charlotte, N. C., May 7.

WBT took the initiative here in crystallizing sentiment in the Sunday films controversy and the city council took a special poll that the station made as indicative of the wishes of the citizens. Final action has not been taken on the ordinance.

In a special 'Man on the Street' broadcast, Grady Cole asked citizens if they were for or against Sunday films. The majority registered as favoring Sunday shows. In order that no stooges might be planted by either side in the municipal dispute, the station merely announced a special broadcast and no one, not even Mr. Cole, knew what question he would ask passerby until he was given a memorandum by Manager W. A. Schudt, Jr. as he went to the street for the spot.

When the matter went before the council the station was given permission to install a wire and broadcast the entire discussion from the council chamber, the first time such a broadcast has been made in Charlotte. Mayor Arthur H. Wearn gave the station public recognition for its service.

Dictaphone records were made of 'Man on the Street' program and these were played before the council.

Throughout, the station made it plain that it was taking no sides in the matter.

Congressional Changes in Bankruptcy Laws Expected to Aid Film Industry In Debt Matters and Fixed Charges

Washington, May 7.

Sweeping changes in the nation's bankruptcy laws to simplify and facilitate reorganization and avoid receiverships for corporations were virtually agreed upon in Congress last week. Final action on the measure, passed by the House last session, is expected before adjournment.

While the statute revision comes too late to be of benefit to concerns in the film business, there is general expectation various picture companies will take advantage of provisions intended to permit scaling down of corporate indebtedness and lowering of other fixed charges. The bill in these respects is almost identical with legislation approved more than a year ago to relieve railroads, farmers and individuals.

An early end to the alleged 'receivership racket' in Manhattan is one of the novel objectives of the measure. With Congressional sentiment strongly against the practice of appointing Irving Trust as receiver for all bankruptcy proceedings in the southern district of New York, sponsors of the bill intend to write into the law requirements that appointments as trustees and receivers shall be equitably distrib-

'Blue Angel' O.K.'d By Pennsy Censors After Three Years

ittsburgh, May 7.

After holding up 'Blue Angel,' German-made picture with Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich, for more than three years, Pennsylvania censors have finally okayed it with certain eliminations, and film will probably be booked into several spots in this territory.

When submitted originally to censors, 'Blue Angel' was so badly mutilated by the scissors fraternity that Paramount refused to put it on the market.

With Dietrich now established on this side of the pond, sales angle is figured doubled.

'Angel' was made in 1929 and released by Par originally for the U. S. late in 1930.

FOX AND PAR, B'KLYN, SHUTTING FOR SUMMER

On top of giving Alex Oumansky, the stager, his notice, the Fox, Brooklyn, decided to call it quits and has posted notice to close for the summer on May 17. That's the same date the Par, rooklyn, goes dark.

After posting notice to close the Brooklyn Par efforts were made to make a summer deal on rent but it went floppo, so darkening stands.

Old Pathe-Lloyd Comedy Reissues In Court Tangle

Stuart Webb, president of Pathe, will appear in N. Y. Supreme Court today (Tuesday) in a legal action involving the rights to synchronization of the old Pathe-Harold Lloyd films.

Trouble started after Pathe had entered into a contract with Embassy Pictures, whereby the latter was to get about 40 of the old Lloyd shorts and features. Embassy wanted to dialog or sound them for reissue, guaranteeing to take at least 10 of the 40. After having finished two of the pictures and started work on a third the Harold Lloyd Corp. wrote Pathe informing them that Pathe had distribution rights to the films, but not reissue rights. Nathan Burkan, attorney for Lloyd, wrote all companies and people involved cautioning them to lay off.

Although Webb for Pathe insisted that the Lloyd company was mistaken and he and Embassy felt that they could go ahead on their deal, Pathe later changed its mind just to play safe and issued a replevin against Embassy on the pictures already completed.

Embassy, through its attorneys, Fitelson & Mayers, is now asking for a mandatory injunction against Pathe restricting them from interference in the distribution of the pictures. Examination before trial of Webb is scheduled for today.

GTE Reorg. Looks to Go Thru Despite Revival of Old Wm. Fox-Chase Feud

Wilmington, May

trong Fox opposition to the Hastings plan for reorganizing General Theatres Equipment on a basis of Chase participation developed when the plan came up for hearing in Chancery Court, but it boils down to a pretty definite conclusion here now that the plan will go through.

Debenture holders and representatives of All-Continent, Inc., the William Fox holding corporation, minority creditors of GTE, were the only ones in opposition, and legalers, while not anticipating the court's decision, do not feel it necessary to toss coins as to the outcome.

All-Continent is a GTE creditor for about $2,000,000 whereas Chase National Bank has a $20,000,000 claim. The feature and issue in the Hastings plan is that Chase National will reduce its claims by $5,000,000, with GTE agreeing to allow the remainder and to drop any claims it may have against Chase National and affiliates.

Specifically what these GTE claims against Chase may be was not brought out at the hearing, but the minority creditors, including All-Continent, contended the claims represent potential assets which

KEOUGH'S O.O.

Huddling on Erpi and With Zukor and Trustee Leake

Austin Keough, general Paramount attorney, is on the Coast and will likely stay for a month or more, chiefly studying the Par studio's end of the Erpi claim against the Par company, amounting roughly to $1,900,000.

Figured this will take Keough three weeks and another week will be spent discussing general home office policies with Adolph Zukor, when latter hits the Coast this week. Additionally Eugene W. Leake, one of the Par trustees, presently on the way to California, will also consume part of Keough's time.

Col's Same 36 for '35

Convention date and spot not set, but it may be Atlantic City.

Ouster Proceedings Against Par Trustees Taken to U.S. Supreme Ct.

ZIRN'S APPEALS

After U.S. Supreme Court Writ, N.Y. Appeal Up Also

Provided permission is given to argue an appeal before U. S. Supreme Court on a petition to oust the three trustees in Paramount on grounds of disqualification and an improper election, case of Sam Zirn will not come up for argument until October or later. Expectations are that this decision will be made by June 4 before the court recesses for the summer.

Another appeal by Zirn through the State courts, will come up for consideration May 21 when the Albany Court of Appeals reconvenes after a brief adjournment. Decision is expected 10 days later.

In this case Zirn is attempting to overrule points of law and technicalities which brought an adverse decision in the Appellate Division and Supreme Court recently. This is whether or not a non-judgment creditor such as a bondholder has the right to bring suit which would hold directors of Paramount responsible for the bank-film-hocking deal, among others.

Coast Labor Asks Par, Col. Boycott On Building Act.

Los Angeles, May 7.

Nationwide labor boycott against Paramount and Columbia pictures threatens as the result of action by the Los Angeles Building Trades Council in placing both studios on the official unfair list, for alleged underpayment of laborers employed by contractors on building work now in progress on the two lots.

Final decision rests with the Central Labor Council, which has designated its chairman, Harry Sherman, and its secretary, J. W. Buzzell, a committee to confer with studio execs before promulgating the boycott.

Labor council charges that contractors employed by both Paramount and Columbia to erect structures on the lots were forced to pay their workers an extremely low wage rate, because studios awarded contracts on open bidding that permitted alleged irresponsible bidders to compete.

No wage specifications were included in any of the bids, with the exception that the Paramount jobs specified that the two crafts who are parties to the basic studio agreement—carpenters and electricians—must receive the prescribed pay for their work.

Plasterers employed on the several jobs are said to have received wages considerably below the pay provided for in the new code, which became operative March 22. Contract for the plastering work was signed three days prior.

Building Trades Council, after its unanimous action in declaring both studios unfair to organized labor, referred the matter to the parent body, the Central Labor Council, which has final jurisdiction.

Shorts' Producer Hopes For and Sees Duals' K.O.

Hollywood, May 7.

Returning Saturday (5) from a two-week trip to New York, Henry Ginsberg, v.p. and general manager of Hal Roach Studios, stated he was optimistic on outlook of the shorts market outlook for the coming year.

Ginsberg predicted the entire abolishment of dual features throughout the country within the next six months. He claimed his jaunt East was for preliminary discussions with Metro sales execs on the Roach comedy program for the coming year.

Hal Roach studios reopened today (Monday) after several weeks' layoff.

Studio put a Thelma Todd-Patsy Kelly two reeler before cameras and another by the same pair will wash up the current year's schedule.

Washington, May 7.

Efforts to oust the Paramount trustees were carried to the U. S. Supreme Court last week following failures in the lower Federal Courts to have Charles D. Hilles, Eugene W. Leake and Charles E. Richardson removed.

Petition for review of the lower court proceedings was filed by Norman E. Bensinger and Rose Friedman, creditors. They contend the trio were disqualified from acting as trustees because of other business connections. Petition pointed out that Hilles is a director of the Bankers Trust Co., which handled financial biz for Par; that Leake is connected with Chase National, which controls Fox; and that Richardson was an official of Fox.

Par's Politics

Paramount affairs have become politically acrobatic the last few weeks, as trustees and creditors are known to be at least privately to be looking in opposite directions. One of the trustees may depart from the fold, voluntarily, according to current Wall Street talk. This will not affect the company's proposed reorganization plans now in swing. That goes on regardless.

Whether the suit which the Paramount trustees announced they would institute against certain directors of Paramount will be eventually prosecuted is one of those things. Idea looks to be that the trustees' action is mostly a technical one. It had been figured that if the trustees didn't cite their

Catholic Church Extends Campaign For Clean Films

Albany, May 7.

The campaign of the Catholic church against improper motion pictures is branching out. After announcement of this drive came word that Catholics had been urged to appeal to the Federal Radio Commission, urging more time for religious broadcasts.

Now the attack is directed against bathing beauty contests, allegedly an offshoot of films.

Los Angeles, May 7.

Catholics were called on to boycott pictures which condone sex, scoff at the sanctity of marriage and the home and which glorify crime in a resolution unanimously passed by more than 800 women, delegates to the Catholic Action Week conference held here.

Resolution was presented by Mrs. Thomas Hearn of Beverly Hills, picture chairman of the National Committee of Catholic Women.

Chicago, May 7.

Film row in this territory is beginning to notice a publication called the Michigan Catholic, which is getting a terrific circulation throughout the midwest due to its picture comments. Publication is getting fast reports on pictures and is printing early recommendatfons and non-recommendations for the various parishes. Not only is the paper printing the viewpoints of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae but also its own reports.

First exchange to step in with a constructive idea towards combatting this attitude towards films is the RKO exchange here. Jack Osserman, manager, has arranged a flock of free showings of 'Little Women' and 'Three Little Pigs' a straight picture show to a number of Catholic schools, to convents and seminaries to demonstrate to these institutions that the film industry produces pictures without anything objectionable.

Fox Convention Switches to Waldorf

Fox has changed its mind about the gesture to the Skourases in picking the St. Moritz hotel for this year's sales convention. Now it the Waldorf.

Company couldn't get the space it desired at the St. Moritz. Skourases hold a mortgage on the hostelry.

Fox convention will be held three days starting May 30.

H'WOOD'S WORLD GOOD-WILL

Catholic OK on German Films In Austrian Conclave Surprises in View of Nazi Bloc; Pan U. S. Pix

Vienna, April 25.

American pictures took a healthy socking around, and German films 'of the new order' a hearty endorsement at a special meeting here of film committee of the Catholic Church of Austria.

Most important decision reached was that it is necessary to prevent performance in Austria of pictures 'whose characteristics are inner mendacity and falsehood.' Rigid censorship along these lines was requested and the government requested to take a severe attitude against films which might tend to destroy and to imperil belief, morals or love for the home country. Entire attitude was so fascistic and pro-Nazi as to be surprising here in view of the difficulties the Catholic Church is having in Germany at present.

Spirit and tendency of the new German pictures was heartily endorsed and presented as a model of what is needed. American pictures generally panned, especially because of the gangster angle.

It was pointed out that due to the reduction of German production of late American films had gained considerable strength in Austria during the past season and 'this invasion' is now welcome, it was said because the 'greater percentage of American films is antagonistic to the christian moral code and its effects are destructive to the moral principles of the christian view of the world.'

Went on to say that the greater portion of American films choose subjects of morbid, abnormal and criminal character, causing a devastation of the moral code. New German pictures, on the contrary, it was said, has taken the action away from saloons, gangster quarters, hotel rooms and boudoirs and has placed them in the world of 'fresh and youthful optimism and sound moral attitude.'

KENT BACK IN N. Y. FOR FOX SALES CONV.

Hollywood, May 7.

Sidney R. Kent, Fox Film prexy, after three weeks at the studio, returned east to make preparations for the sales convention in New York.

On the new program of 50, Sol Wurtzel will produce 12 pictures. All the other pictures on the program will be made at the Fox Hills studio under the Winnie Sheehan wing by the several producers there.

Kent will return here in about a month, Mrs. Kent remaining here in the meantime.

Hollywood, May 7.

Coast delegation going east for the Fox convention May 22 will include Gabe Yorke and and Jack Dillon, Los Angeles exchange manager.

Expected also that some of the associate producers will attend the get-together.

2 Chi 'Hitler' Pic Suits

Chicago, May 7.

Two suits are the outgrowth of the censorship of the 'Hitler's Reign of Terror' picture here. Sam Cummins has filed suit against the German consul here for $250,000 for damages sustained when the picture was pulled off the screen and sliced up.

That suit and another against Mayor Kelly have been filed through attorney Phil R. Davis. Suit against the mayor is a petition for an injunction restraining the city from censoring the print. Injunction plea is based on a contention of freedom of the press and speech.

JESSE LASKY'S EIGHT

'Proud Princess,' on is Next Year's Program

Hollywood, May 7.

On completion of the current 'Grand Canary,' Jesse Lasky finishes his slate for the present year's Fox schedule. He will make eight for the new program starting with 'Proud Princess,' by Edward Sheldon and Dorothy Donnelly. Charles Boyer will have top male spot in this.

Second on the slate is 'Heldorado,' Arizona ghost town yarn, written by Frank Dazey, which Ernest Pascal will adapt. His on-and-off 'Red Heads on Parade,' will be third on the list; John Galsworthy's Apple Tree,' to be directed by Frank Tuttle, fourth, and 'Casanova, the Immortal Lover,' fifth.

Rockefeller-RKO Deal on R.C. Music Hall to Continue

It's reasonably certai the Rockefellers and RKO will continue their present association on the Radio City Music Hall, and that a new deal will be consummated satisfactorily between the parties at the expiration of the present agreement in September. However, the RKO Center is to be devoted to other things and taken out of pictures very shortly. Centre theatre will probably go legit. Max Gordon or H. B. Franklin are mentioned in this connection.

Loew's had at various times offered to take over operation of the Radio City Music Hall, even offering to operate with RKO in association, but the thing got nowhere.

The Centre eating up so much of the Music Hall's possible weekly surplus, there's a chance also that the Rockefellers may decide, with RKO's consent to lease the smaller theatre to an independent operator.

WB-ERPI'S $5,000,000 BUT STILL NO TAKERS

Western Electric and Erpi officials are still talking turkey to Warner Bros. on that $5,000,000 settlement. This sum is not entirely cash, so far as can be gleaned but a sum total of conditions with cash concessions, all aggregating to this figure. The matter undoubtedly will be concluded within a couple of weeks or more.

It is not likely that rpi will proceed towards a settlement with General Talking Pictures (DeForst) until certain conditions the Warner situation are ironed out. In the meantime, that Warner- rpi settlement talk is holding up the scheduled trial of the monopoly charges against Erpi by Warners, General Talking Pictures (DeForest), and Duovac, in Wilmington.

CAMPAIGN TO SET U. S. PIX ABROAD

Hays Organization Behind World-Wide Propaganda Movement on Behalf of American Films

INT'L EDUCATION

With world-wide power which the Hays organization is seeking, seeds for which are now being openly sown in Europe, both major Hollywood and sound equipment manufacturers are looking forward next fall to the commencement of a new era for U.S. pictures abroad.

The Hays expansion program is predicated on two premises. The first is the adoption of Hays public relations system, with which the producers' association has been experimenting and building for the past decade, until, according to spokesmen, it believes the time is now ripe for international appraisal and endorsement.

The second is visual education. American producers figure themselves farther advanced in school technique and appreciation, strictly so far as production of classroom subjects is concerned, than any other country.

Out of the international education conference held in Rome from April 19-25 Haysites are hopeful that many things will happen. Primarily, they see the elimination of duty as among the greatest boons to a real school film impetus.

Multi-lingual problems, a serious obstruction to the international picture classroom even a year ago, are now regarded as obviated by the advancement in sound technique. A subject produced anywhere can easily and economically have its sound track changed to accommodate any country in pictures which aim to be as standard as present class textbooks. Were the specialized pictures as transitory and shortlived as entertainment subjects, then the visual field, it is conceded, might become hopelessly involved.

Europe affords a far more fertile field for classroom pictures right

Zukor to Stay 6-8 Mos. on Coast O.O.'ing Production; Schaefer Gen'l Mgr. East Adds Kohn's Duties

To the Point

When a top executive of a major company resigned, an interested party from a competitor firm phoned to inquire what the resignation made the second man in charge.

'It makes him worried,' said the secretary.

Adolph Zukor goes to the today (Tuesday) and will stay from six to eight months, concentrating on Par production. In the east George J. Schaefer will be in charge over all Par activities as general manager, an office he has held for the better part of a year. This realignment of duties follows the resignation of Ralph Kohn as head of the theatre end.

Manny Cohen continues in charge on the Coast and is to have the full time of Zukor to lean upon for guidance.

Although it is known S. A. Lynch was close to succeeding Kohn, temporarily at least, charge of all Par theatre activity, the post was denied him on Saturday (5) when Schaefer was elected president of Famous Theatres Corp., theatre holding company of Par and Paramount Theatres Service Corp., subsidiary in charge of operation, servicing, etc.

This is the post Kohn held over theatres. Kohn's vacancy on the boards of the two main theatre subsidiaries of Paramount Publix was also filed by spotting Schaefer on both. At the same time Walter B. Cokell, Par treasurer, was named to

U BUYS MAGYAR TALKER, 100% U. S. REMAKE

Universal has decided to make an American version of 'Czi i,' Hungarian talker which it produced in Budapest last year starring Francisca Gaal. Film will be remade entirely in Hollywood, and the original previously intended for distribution in foreign language houses in the U.S., has been taken off the market.

Undecided who will take Miss Gaal's role in Hollywood. U originally intended bringing her over for it, but thinks she isn't ready yet, and is grooming her abroad for a while longer.

Universal City, May 7.

German-made 'What Women Dream Of' has been bought by Universal and will be re-filmed for the regular program. U did this several times before, making over 'Mystery of the Blue Room,' 'Countess of Monte Cristo,' and 'Little Man, What Now,' among others.

William Hurlburt is writing new story and Ernst L. Frank directs. It's a comedy about a kleptomaniac.

KOHN AND RKO TALKING DEAL

It is quite probable that Ralph A. Kohn, resigned head of the Par theatre sector, may go over to RKO. His capacity in that company in the event of his joining would be financial. The matter is known to be under formal discussion by the firm involved. Such an appointment would be made by M. H. Aylesworth.

Kohn, who has spent 21 years in the film industry and about all of this time with Paramount, had been treasurer of the Par company for many years until that firm's bankruptcy about a year ago. Later he was made head of the Par theatres, from which job he resigned a week ago. He was officially vice-president of the parent company and its subsids.

Kohn was never an operator in the strict sense, nor has he considered himself as such.

He began his film career as a lawyer under Elek John Ludvigh, when the latter represented all or nearly all of the film companies, in the pioneer days of the business. Gradually Kohn moved up in Par affairs until his career was climaxed as theatre operating head.

As treasurer of Par his voice figured largely in all of Par's policies, for several years, and his associations throughout the industry and in the banking world are known to be widespread.

Kohn is understood to have been tendered other propositions, including one from Fox. Sidney R. Kent, a former associate of his in Par, is president of Fox.

McDonough as Center of RKO-Meehan Pout with Zohbel New Theatre Prez

Rift between RKO and the Meehan group appears to center around J. R. McDonough, exec. v.p. McDonough is said to have the intention of giving picture scripts his personal o.o. to strengthen the RKO studio end and is presently on the Coast. With McDonough away, the technical chieftain next in charge is a Meehan man, Malcolm Kingsbury, so far as the KAO branch goes.

It is known that the Meehan group does not like the shifting of McDonough to the Coast, feeling that running the studio and theatres may be too much.

Some confusion was recently added to the situation by mistaking Paul Mazur for Major Thompson. A report was around that Thompson had offered to resign. This is officially denied. Mazur is the Lehman banker who recently tendered his resignation from B. F. Keith, but that board is not inclined to accept and hopes Mazur will stick.

Meehan faction is said to approve the Nate Blumberg and Major Thompson operating team and for the present Bob Sisk will continue to head all advertising and publicity for RKO. The severence or division of his duties, recommended by the Meehan forces, will not transpire for maybe a month. It's

Selznick's Quickie

Myron Selznick sailed for London Friday (5) on a last minute decision, joining a party headed by his brother David. He flew in from the coast just in time to catch the boat.

Leland Hayward came east with Selznick, but will return to Hollywood about Thursday (10) to sit in at the helm of the Joyce-Selznick office during the month that Myron is abroad, as Frank Joyce is still east.

Selznick's hurry trek is for the purpose of getting his London office working. He will also handle a Lewis Milestone deal with Alexander Korda for one picture.

MAY PROLONG ROXY RECEIVERSHIP 6 MOS.

Reorganization plan for the Roxy, New York, in which S. L. Rothafel would figure, so far hasn't come through, according to indications. There has been nothing official and the situation remains as was.

Question of continuing the present receivership comes up before Federal Judge Caffey June 15. With no plan so far, it looks assured that the receivership under Howard S. Cullman will be prolonged for another term of six months, anyway.

Earnings Reports Help Film Stocks In Off Week; Par Bond Rise Features

After selling off for 10 successive days, the market rallied feebly Thursday and Friday only to sell off on volume again Saturday. Result was that whole board made a rather sorry picture at close and Dow-Jones industrial averages just above 98-point resistance level. With virtually all issues selling downwards, amusement group did not fare half badly and some stocks even ended the week with small net gains.

With heavy selling yesterday on most active trading since February, amusement shares and bonds suffered setbacks ranging to a high of 2⅞, drop taken by Eastman Kodak. Loew's went off a point and a half. Warner bonds, in which speculation was heavy, fell two points.

Cantor on Stand

Los Angeles, May 7.

After weeks of delays, trial of the Superior court action of Samuel Goldwyn against Warner in his attempt to force the latter studio to release Busby Berkeley, dance director, to work on the new Eddie Cantor picture, started Friday afternoon with Cantor on the stand throughout the session.

Actor testified that he came here on April 18 under instructions from Goldwyn, and pursuant to his contract ready to start work, but that refusal of Warners to release Berkeley has resulted in his marking time ever since.

Cantor testified also as an expert witness as to what constituted rehearsals, and it is expected Goldwyn will introduce other similar testimony when hearing is resumed today (Monday).

Washington, May 7.

New efforts to relax restrictions on circulation of films showing prize fights were made in Congress last week, but appear unlikely to get anywhere.

Similar to other bills sponsored in previous Congresses, Senator Barbour of New Jersey authored a measure divesting such pictures of their present interstate character which would allow shipment to states outside that where the fight was staged.

Fox Asks N. Y. Police to Arrest 'Don L. Watson'

Fox Films New York police department to est a gent Don L. Watson on charges of falsely representing himself as a Fox talent scout to picture aspirants. The man, it is alleged, has been operating around New York for the past month.

He seems to specialize on vaudeville actors, building them up for a 'screen test'. Bob Hope and Frank Lynch of Kellar Sisters and Lynch were among the victims. Neither was taken for any coin by the impersantor, but said they went for several swell dinners for Mr. Watson, who lets his 'discoveries' pick up the checks.

Q.T. NIX ON SEVERAL N. Y. AMUS. BILLS

Albany, May 7.

The New York State Legislature, winding up a hectic session with battles over liquor control and revenue-raising measures, only raised the curtain an inch on proposed legislation for the amusement industry. In other words, all the bills died in the committees to which they were referred.

Bills which did not pass were:

Repeal film censorship, but retains the tax of $3 per 1,000 feet of film and reduces the fee on duplicates from $2 to $1.50. Introduced by Assemblyman Herbert J. Brownell, Jr., N. Y. Republican.

Repeal censorship of newsreels and the fee imposed on them and educational films and changing regulation of the picture industry from the State Department of Education to the State Department of Audit and Control. Sponsored by Assemblyman Irving D. Neustein, N. Y., Democrat.

A 10% tax on gross receipts of theatres and other amusement enterprises to provide funds for relief purposes. Introduced by Senator John L. Buckley, N. Y., Democrat.

Change in the Wales immoral theatre padlock law to place the responsibility upon the manager or producer instead of the theatre owner. Sponsored by Assemblyman Brownell.

State control of booking agencies with $5,000 bond and $500 yearly license fee required from each agency; ban on splitting commissions; creation of State Bureau of Theatrical Booking Agencies. Sponsored by Senator Albert Wald, N. Y., Democrat.

State control of general employment agencies and explained as incidentally being intended to prevent them from chiseling upon regular theatrical booking agencies by engaging entertainers and then sending them to immoral places or, as it was said, to any places or for any purposes which a regular theatrical agent would not handle. This bill passed the Assembly, but was defeated in the Senate. Sponsored in Assembly by Harold C. Ostertag, and in Senate by Joseph R. Hanley, western New York Republicans.

STIFF UNION PICKETING SETBACK

Milwaukee, May 7.

Theate operator union heads who have been striving for 100% A. F. L. representation in Wisconsin theatres after swinging every Milwaukee house into line received their first serious setback in federal court here. Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger today signed an injunction halting the unions from picketing the Rex theatre, Sheboygan.

Some months ago union officials demanded that they be given the right to organize operators in the Rex, a non-union house. The management permitted the organizers to talk to his operators. The latter refused to join the IATSE. According to the manager of the Rex, the unions then demanded he discharge his operators and replace them with IATSE members. This the theatre owner refused and picketing, with as many as 20 men in line at a time, started.

William B. Rubin, union attorney, demurred when the court asked the union officials to cease picketing by 'gentleman's agreement.' He further argued the court had no jurisdiction in the case.

The court waved Rubin aside and issued the injunction which makes it imperative that picketing stop at once.

Union leaders said they were merely attempting to force the theatre to pay wage scales called for under the NRA. The court held that the wages paid by the theatre met with NRA requirements and that the owners were not obliged to hire union help. He pointed out that if the theatre management discharged its present employees on the mere excuse that they were not IATSE members, the NRA code would be violated.

Rubin said the case would go to the Circuit Court of Appeals. He admitted the order was the "stiffest setback the theatrical crafts of the nation have had."

Censor Cuts 30-40% Fewer This Year, Studios Watching Pix at Source

Hollywood, May 7.

Reports from censor boards all over the country relayed to the studios here prove that eliminations from films of dirt and crime material totaled between 30% and 40% fewer cuts for the first four months of 1934 as contrasted with the like period last year.

This is not due to a growing laxity on the part of the censor boards. To the contrary a check-up very conclusively proves that in all sections the boards have grown more severe in their viewing, due to the added pressure applied by religious forces.

Studios are realizing that it is senseless to permit questionable material to slip through in view of the almost certain fact that this will be removed in territories which represent around 75% of the rentals.

Even the 'tough spots,' such as Kansas, Pennsylvania and New York, are making fewer eliminations.

Par Makes a Dollar-for-Dollar Exchange with Par B'way Corp. For $8,875,000 in Defaulted Bonds

Paramount Broadway Corp. has received what looks like a 100% settlement, according to analysis, from the Paramount trustees. There is no indication so far whether the same 100% principle will be followed with other Par creditors' claims. Charles E. Richardson, of Par's three trustees, worked out the Broadway Par Corp. deal.

The settlement made along reorganization lines calls for a dollar-for-dollar exchange of the defaulted bonds amounting to $8,875,000. New bonds to the same amount are to be issued by a reorganized firm. Additionally, Paramount-Publix is under agreement upon its own reorganization to take a 10-year lease on the Paramount Building, owned by the Paramount Broadway Corp.

This building together with the Paramount theatre, in the Times Square area, also owned by the Broadway Paramount Corp., it is understood could have been bought in under settlement for around $4,500,000 cash. This would have been around 50% of the settlement price as affected by the trustees.

The question of settling for such a large amount of cash, however, was one which wasn't considered for long; although under a cash settlement, Paramount could have owned both theatre and building outright.

New Par Co's Guarantee

On the new deal and settlement, the new Paramount-Publix company, upon reorganization of the old one, must guarantee the new bonds through a sinking fund. This is to be done by the new P-P advancing certain payments. Should these guarantees not be forthcoming, as stipulated by such advance payments required, the Broadway Paramount Corp. gets 50% indemnity of the common stock of this latter company, in which all the common stock is presently owned by Paramount-Publix.

Under the deal the Paramount people take an indeterminate lease on the Paramount theatre. This lease expires only after half of the $8,875,000 in new bonds are retired. The first half of this $8,875,000 in new bonds will carry 3½% interest. The second half is at 5½%, same as the old bonds. However, if the money is at hand, the first half later begets additional interest until the 5½%.

Rents which Paramount pays on the building or on the theatre are not given in the announcements of the deal. However, under the deal Paramount and Broadway Paramount Corp. make reciprocal conditions releasing one another from certain claims arising out of the trustees occupying space in the building.

Also, Chemical Bank is released from any claim which may arise out of the bank receiving interest around Jan. 1, 1933, on certain of the bonds in question. This was only around three weeks before the original Par receivership occurred. There had been a question whether such payment of interest to Chemical Bank constituted a preferential payment, under the receivership laws.

Chemical holds around $2,200,000 of the Paramount Broadway Corp. bonds. Chemical Bank also sat prominently in selecting the Par trustees, as a creditor of Par.

Chi Censorship Confab

Chicago, May 7.

C. C. Pettijohn is due in town for a three-way get-together with Mayor Kelly and Henry Herbel, Universal branch manager and Film Board head, about the problem of censorship.

One of the items the trio will talk about will be the possible reduction of censorship reel fees for additional prints. Present scale is one dollar a reel for all additional reels besides the original print. Industry would like to clip this down to 50c a reel.

NW ALLIED'S 45G WAR CHEST TO FIGHT CODE

Minneapolis, May 7.

Raising a 'war' fund of $45,000 to finance a united move during the year against the film code, rentals, percentages, guarantees and other alleged 'evils,' Northwest Allied States has employed F. W. Murphy, prominent attorney and Democrat, on a full-time basis as general counsel.

Approximately 200 Minnesota exhibitors, or about 90% of the state's independent theatre owners, have joined in the present campaign and agreed to an assessment of 1c a seat per week to underwrite the cost. Only a comparative few of the smaller small-town exhibitors balked at the cost of membership and decided to stay out. Murphy's salary and his proposed activities will cost approximately $25,000 for the next 12 months and Steffes declared that almost double this amount was assured by pledged dues.

NRA FINDS FOX-WC GUILTY

Code Endorsed 90%, Could Be 99%; Dues Coming In; CA Costs Held Low

he film code is scoring a bull's-eye. Non-signers in hundreds are voluntarily mailing in checks although not billed, and ignored as unnaturalized by the Code Authority, hence NRA aides aver that if the Government were to reopen code enlistments fully 2,500 would bring filmdom's endorsement of the Eagle up to 99% instead of around 90%.

That not more than 200 complaints have been filed with grievance boards all over the country is a surprise to high codists. They were certain that all dockets would be full and by this time running into thousands of cases. The Code Authority, as well, expected that this Friday it would have to dedicate its entire session listening to appeals from the field. On Monday, however, only one appeal, the Milwaukee case, was on the C.A. calender.

That exhibs and others in the field may be waiting until the general machinery has proven itself, before submitting their own compaints, and that the deluge is liable to come within the next few weeks, are impressions current in C.A. headquarters.

NRA dues on Monday from theatres totalled approximately $20,000 with another $60,000 to come between now and the deadline on May

Chicago, May 7.

Board of directors of Allied theatres owners will hold an executive session here May 12-13. Meeting will be headed by Abram Myers. Last meeting was held in December.

Allied will attempt to establish a branch in every state. It now has affiliate associations in some 26 states. Exec meeting will name a chairman in each state not now a member of Allied with the chairman given full power to organize an Allied group.

Possibility of Allied once more making a tie-up with a producing outfit is up again, similar to the abortive attempt of the organization to work with the now defunct Tiffany production outfit three years ago.

MINNEAPOLIS THEATRE BUILDING IN SNAG

Minneapolis, May 7.

An 'orgy' of theatre building here is being held up by city and state officials. The city council is still withholding permits from Publix and the Lyndale Amusement company, chain operators, for the construction of three new houses in one residential ward in opposition to a new theatre to be erected in a nearby suburb for Ben Friedman, former Publix partner and official. Application of Leo Aved for another neighborhood theatre in another part of town also is being held up for the aldermen who, however, granted a permit to Harry Dickerman, a competitor, who now has two houses.

State fire marshal has not yet sanctioned the construction of Art Johnson's new sure-seater newsreel theatre, Time, in the loop. Otherwise, Art is all set and ready to go.

At a public hearing before the city council license committee on the Publix and Lyndale company applications for neighborhood theatre permits in the 13th ward, 15 speakers, including three clergymen, spoke against the theatres. Five speakers favored the projects. The committee took the matter under advisement and will announce its decision May 9.

So. Cal. Zoning

Los Angeles, May 7.

Zoning-clearance board for the Southern California territory following three meetings last week has started laying the groundwork on which zoning for the balance of this season and for 1935 will be based.

Zoning based b.o. admission will be the basis for the future deliberations of the board, which resumes its tri-weekly sessions today (Monday).

NRA Is 1 but Not The Major Cause For Cut Budgets

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America is cutting its organization maintenance costs from $100,000 a year, not so long ago, to exactly $15,000 for 1934. With such a budget its yearly costs are less than some of the state and even city exhibitor associations.

At the present rate the average member theatre will pay dues of only $3.50 per annum, little more than one-fourth the minimum money paid by an exhibitor flier of the permanent Blue Eagle.

All officers of the organization, including Ed Kuykendall, president, are now sans salary. In other years this group had to meet fancy traveling expense vouchers and high counsel fees.

While the MPTOA financial retrenchment is the most drastic of any trade association in the business, other organizations also are clipping their '34 budgets, some voluntarily and others by force of necessity through inability to collect dues from its majority membership.

The Hays Office is also watching the dollars. There are no indications that it will restore any of the cuts to its personnel. Elimination of the Film Boards, even in their disintegrated state during the past two years, is expected to slash over $100,000 annually from the Haysian budget. Furthermore, Hays is watching tours and traveling expenses of his lieutenants. The reason why one of his men, scheduled to attend the MPTOA convention, didn't go was simply because of the carfare money.

NRA costs in the business are partly credited with precipitating this shearing of strictly trade association expenditures. The Eagle's first demand of approximately $180,000 for the first year is admitted by codists 'just an estimate' which may expand considerably before 1934 is over.

New Sound Group

Hollywood, May 7.

American Society of Sound Engineers has taken offices in Hollywood and Harold V. Smith starts today (Monday) as excecutive manager of the organization. Smith recently resigned as business representative of International Sound Technicians, local 695, IATSE.

The newly formed group is the outgrowth of soundmen's opposition to any affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, or units of the latter. First move will likely be combatting producer contract with International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers which gives the latter union jurisdiction over soundmen working in the studios.

CODE DECISION FOR L. A. INDIE

Coast Grievance Board Upholds Garfield Theatre's Monopoly Charge Against F-WC's Alhambra—Orders Circuit Split Major Product with Cistrand

APPEAL LIKELY

Los Angeles, May 7.

NRA Grievance Board for this territory found Fox-West Coast guilty of violating the Motion Picture Industry Code by reason of its monopoly buy of major film product in the Alhambra and adjacent territory for the '33-'34 season, and was ordered to make available, starting May 17, to the Garfield theatre 20 first-run feature productions selected from four major distributors.

Board apportioned the split as five features from Paramount, two from Metro, five from Fox and eight from Vitagraph (Warner).

Grievance board award finds that Cistrand-Principal Theatres, operating the Garfield, is without sufficient quality product to operate without financial hurt to its business, and in order to correct the unfair practises of the respondent, F-WC, ordered immediate relief as stipulated.

Award further orders the Garfield to assume and to pay any and all license fees pertaining to the '33-'34 season contracts relating to the 20 pictures on the same terms and conditions as entered into by the Principal and Fox-WC with the distributing companies.

Far-Reaching

This award of the grievance board is regarded as of far-reaching importance, and one that will have a marked bearing on future cases of alleged overbuying of film product by which competing houses are deprived of quality first run product for successful operation.

It is probable that the decision will be appealed, as otherwise hundreds of complaints would reach the grievance boards on similar contentions throughout the country.

First award handed down by the Los Angeles board, following its initial session early last week, was to declare the Jay-Ben Corp. and Harry Goldfarb, operating the National, in National City, to be guilty of violating the code by resorting to two-for-one admissions, and gold giveaways.

Defendants were ordered to discontinue the practice or be penal-

Darrow Report, Requests Changes; Blast at Block Booking, Reaches Prez; Rosy Resignation Report?

File Coast Charges

Los Angeles, May 7.

Charges of violating provisions of the picture code have been filed with NRA compliance board by Projectionists union 150, naming Ben N. Berinstein, operating the Wiltern, and Jesse Young, of the Washington, Pasadena, both indie nabes.

Berinstein bases his objection to using union operators to inability to pay $60.17 per man on a two-men-a-shift basis, with a swing man at $7.65. He offered to use two union men, one on a shift, at $75 weekly, but offer was rejected by projectionists local, on the ground that 43 other houses locally in the same classification as the Wiltern, are operating under the two-men-a-shift setup.

FLINN LINES UP MIDWEST'S SECS

Chicago, May 7.

John C. Flinn spent all Friday (4) and half of Saturday getting the local code board secretaries set. Had some 12 secs in town to give them their instructions. Made a plea for the local boards to make their own decisions quickly and more definitely for their own communities without shirking the responsibility and shifting everything to New York.

Grievance board's first meeting got to no decision on its first case, that of the Annetta theatre against the Schoenstadt theatres and against Paramount pictures. Trial was halted when the Schoenstadt attorney brought up the point that the code designated Dec. 7, 1933, as the initial date of authority for the boards, while the alleged injury in this case occurred previous to that date. Annetta theatre's grievance is that it has been shut out on product and that the local Paramount exchange refused to okay a contract for product after the home office had okayed it.

Zoning board meeting was postponed due to the John C. Flinn arrival and at the next meeting on Thursday (10) will issue orders for the publication of the zoning setup of the entire territory. Following publication the code will sit back and wait for complaints, if any.

Washington, May 7.

blistering denunciation of NRA and several trade codes, the Clarence Darrow report on charges of monopoly and oppression of small business under Recovery Administration finally, officially, and formally reached the White House Friday (4). Bulky document, burning up film code and industry leaders, is due for publication sometime this week.

Toned down in many particulars to avoid embarrassing the Roosevelt administration, the voluminuous report calls for drastic changes in the film pact, blasts block booking and recommends specific deletions and amendments. Document also slams Divisional Administrator Sol Rosenblatt in serious fashion.

Resignation for Rosy was more or less looked for here today following revelation that code reviewers have denounced film pact negotiator not only for conduct in connection with the agreement and the industry, but also for his refusal to appear for examination at tempestuous review hearings.

President's decision to publish findings and recommendations was a stunning surprise to friends of recovery outfit who expected the document to be pigeonholed. Con-

AGENTS FAVOR ARBITRATIONS

Hollywood, May 7.

Newly organized Code Agency committee holds its first meeting for actual deliberations tomorrow (Tuesday). They'll discuss a set of regulations for agents under code provisions.

Committee will tackle the provision regarding relations between client and agent. Arriving at a tentative set of regulations a public hearing will be called so those interested can say their piece. Suggested regulations, plus recommendations submitted at the public hearing will then be forwarded to the Code Authority for sanction before the permanent rules become effective.

Similar procedure will be followed in the matter of regulations affecting agents' contact with the studios.

Committee is working toward some system of arbitration within the industry whereby commission squabbles and other matters between agents and clients can be kept out of the courts. It is likely that the committee's deliberations will result in the setting up of some kind of code arbitration unit, similar to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences conciliation board, through which almost every agency kick can be aired without recourse to litigation.

C.A. Ducks Out on Extra Headaches, Fears Possible Union Angle

Report on the Code Authority is that despite the work of the code extra committee on the Coast, the C. A. will never stand for the extra list available to the studios being sliced to 1,500, fearing that to do so would bring about strong unionization of those picked as 'official extras.'

Insiders report C. A. members as stating that far too much stress has been placed on the extra situation and that inasmuch as only around 1,500 on the roster at Central Casting Bureau worked 26 or more days last year that a tempest has been stirred up.

As the C. A. members are reported to view the situation the restricting of calls to a chosen 1,500 as suggested by the Coast code committee, would immediately result in putting that group in such a powerful position that unionization couldn't help but follow and the studios would be more or less at the mercy of their dictates, and thus defeat the purposes of NRA by stirring up possible trouble.

It is understood that the C. A. is pretty well satisfied with the extra situation as it now exists. While never perhaps going on record, as opposed to the slicing down to an official number it will ostensibly postpone such action from time to time and never let it matcrialize.

Another phase that is said to have the C. A. willing to play a hands-off policy with extras is that production circles do not feel that they could get along with such a restricted number as always from time to time there would be calls for casual atmosphere players for big mob scenes and for types that could not be included on the limited list, due to sparcity of calls for such extras.

SOUNDPROOFED ROOM OK, FRISCO C.A. STARTS

San Francisco, May 7.

With a soundproof confab room completed, the clearance and zoning, and grievance committees of the Code Authority have gotten located in the RKO Golden Gate building and start their meetings this week.

Rowena Foley has folded up the Film Board of Trade offices, of which she was formerly secretary to sec for the code authorities, who report a huge stack of complaints awaiting the first conference.

'Sorrel,' $5,400, Weak; 'Cheer' $13,000; '20 Million' Day-and-Date's $24,000; Heat and No Tourists Hurts L. A.

Los Angeles, May 7.

There still is a lament that warm weather and lack of tourists are the ingredients keeping the b.o. totals down. However, take in general is much better than that of the previous week with two musicals, though not breaking house records, giving the theatres they are playing in better takes than they have had in the past several weeks.

'Stand Up and Cheer' at the State and '20,000,000 Sweethearts' in the two Warner houses are running a neck and neck race to even take honors on the week, with the Warner picture probably holding over, however for a full second stanza, while 'Cheer' comes out at the end of eight days.

Paramount opened rather dully with Ted Lewis on return stage date to balance off 'Double Door' with take looking as though it will come around the $16,000 mark against a better than $22,000 take Lewis had on his recent date here.

Chinese still managing to hold up remarkably well with 'Rothschild' in its fifth week and take around the $17,000 figure.

'Sorrell and Son' at the UA and 'Where Sinners Meet' couple of rather meek b.o. entries so far as take is concerned.

Estimates For This Week

Chinese (Grauman) (2,028; 55-$1.65)—'House of Rothschild' (20th Century) and stage show (5th week). Still holding up in nice shape and ending stanza with an easy $17,000. Last week picked up great over week end for fourth stanza and trekked in with $18,400.

Downtown (WB) (1,800; 25-35-40-55)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Heavy campaign of exploitation helping loads on this one which is a cinch for around $11,500 on first week. Last week 'Gambling Lady' (WB) went off over the week end and came through with a final $5,000, which is no profit.

Hollywood (WB) (2,756; 25-35-40-55)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Off to flying start and had stars of pic on personal appearance and looks like sure $12,500 which is great after the off profit trade had last week. Take for 'Gambling Lady' (WB) last week was none to forte at $5,200.

Los Angeles (Wm. Fox) (2,800; 15-25)—'Love Birds' (U) and 'The Quitter' (Chesterfield) split. Trade bit off this week and will not get over the $3,200 mark. Last week 'City Limits' (Mono) and 'Lets Be Ritzy' (U), did durn well with an even $4,400.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-40)—'Black Cat' (U) and 'Cheaters' (Liberty), split. May be the Cat is doing no good but trade is just nowhere in sight with house being lucky to hit an even $1,700. Last week 'Half a Sinner' (U) and 'Whirlpool' (Col) just could get nowhere at all with final count around $1,550. Fault lies in fact house sells cat in bag so far as marquee is concerned as pic is not advertised there.

Paramount (Partmar) (3,595; 30-40-55)—'Double Door' (Par) and stage show. Opening to around $800 less than he did last time he was here, Ted Lewis with his outfit figured to carry pic to heavy take will come through with around $16,000. Last week 'She Made Her Bed' (Par) had Olsen and Johnson as stage pilots helped take lot to around $17,800 but reported as no profit on account of O&J share of take, for their bit.

RKO (2,950; 25-35-40)—'Where Sinners Meet' (RKO). Rather an invisible opening and may come home with $4,000 at best. Last week 'Spitfire' (RKO). Not a glamorous dough getter; very disappointing, just over the $5,000 mark.

State (Loew-Fox) (2,024; 30-40-55)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). With smash campaign behind it this musical sure of around $13,000 for an eight-day stay which is better take than other musicals have been getting in the house. Last week 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox), just an out and out Brody with a gross take of $2,150 for four days it sojourned here.

United Artists (Grauman) (2,100; 30-40-55)—'Sorrell and Son' (UA). Town not strong on remakes so take for the English importation will not run over $5,400. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), for final days as figured came home with an even $7,600.

NEW ORLEANS BIZ OKE

'Viva ,' $10,000—'Cheer' Shows to $9,000

New Orleans, May 7.

Local temples displaying profitable tendencies, with 'Viva Villa' at Loew's State awarded the major intake. 'Villa' will romp into something over $10,000. Saenger started riotously with 'Stand Up and Cheer,' but then floundered and will get around $9,000. Orpheum hurt by clickless 'Upper World' disclosing inconsequential blather. Foreheads are low indeed that admit of its possible mental assimilation.

Estimates for the Week

Saenger (3,568; 40)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Started big but flopped suddenly and will hit a meager $9,000. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) banged over $11,000 for Bing.

Loew's State (3,218; 40)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Getting nice play and $10,000 is safe. Last week 'Rothschild' (UA) did smashing $13,000.

Orpheum (2,400; 35) — 'Upper World' (WB). Will not hit $6,000. Last week 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) ascended to $7,000, building daily.

Tudor (700; 30)—'Son of Kong' (Radio). Youngsters bringing along their parents, which means $3,000. Last week 'Sons of Desert' (MG) not so hot at $2,000.

St. Charles (2,200; 25)—'Son He Gave Me' (Indie) should do $3,000. Last week 'Tillie and Gus' (Par) to a couple of gees.

KATE SMITH AND 'HALF A SINNER' $13,000 S.F.

San Francisco, May 7.

It takes something super-colossal to get 'em into the theatres these days, with the result that business around town has drooped sadly these past few weeks. Just where it has gone, no one can say, but a safe conjecture is that the current film duals are filling the folks so full of show at such little money that one or two a month is enough.

Warm weather and sock biz for the Barnes Circus is hurting pictures this week.

This week is largely the Warfield's where Metro's 'Viva Villa' stands ready to hit a high attendance mark. Only two pictures, 'Smilin' Thru' and 'Riptide,' both Norma Shearers for Metro, have hit the high mark of $27,000, only $1,500 over what 'Villa' should get.

Kate Smith is in-personing at the Orpheum, and hefty radio songstress is being counted upon to pull the customers.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Leo) (5,000; 25-35)—'Quitter' (Chester and Cheater) (Liberty), split, with vaude. About $7,600 is likely figure. Last week light with Jack Holt in 'Whirlpool' (Col) and 'Secret Sinners' (Ma.), split, getting $8,500.

Geary (Lurie) (1,800; 50-75-$1-$1.65)—'Rothschild' (UA) (3d week). Arliss continues to pull and $7,500 for this stanza is very hotcha. Second week got $8,500.

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,844; 25-35-40—'Til Tell World' (U) and vaude. Lee Tracy some draw, and $11,500 is much better than past few weeks. 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) getting slightly under $9,500 last week.

Orpheum (F&M) (2,400; 25-35-55) 'Half a Sinner' (U) and stage show with Kate Smith unit. Radio performer a b. o. draw and $13,000 okay with picture more help than usual. Last week 'Success at Any Price' (Radio), with young Fairbanks, and 'Century of Progress Revue' on stage started lightly and built up to pretty good $10,000.

Paramount (F-WC) (2,400; 25-35-40)—'Such Women' (Fox) and 'Smarty' (WB), split. Baxter a draw and $12,000 good. Last week saw $11,500 on 'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG) and 'Harold Teen' (WB), split.

St. Francis (F-WC) (1,500; 25-35-40)—'Honorable Guy' (WB) and 'Witching Hour' (Par), split. Joe Brown fans mostly for $5,000 take. Last week $6,500 on 'Journal of Crime' (WB) and 'Laughing Boy' (MG).

Warfield (F-WC) (2,700; 35-45-65)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Berry pic heaviest puller in a year along with 'Smilin' Thru' and 'Riptide,' both Shearers, and $26,500 is apparent. Last week saw $19,000 on 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), which built up after a slow start.

'ROTHSCHILD' $3,200; 'X' $2,300, LINCOLN

Lincoln, May 7.

Current draft is to be 'House of Rothschild,' with which the Stuart should push over 3 Gs, since there's been a big national ad campaign in the papers for a week ahead. 'Mr. X' gets the Lincoln's sheeting, and is expected to pound right along because of Montgomery's appeal to the gals hereabouts.

State has stepped out of the realm of competition definitely now. With a back breaking load of no adequate number of seats, a too high adm. and no ads in the papers, it got the added straw last week when the blue beaks forced the city council to smother the engagement of 'Elysia' five hours after it opened to biz about 400% above the average. Although the whole town interested itself in the fight, the ministerial association was able to bring enough political pressure to bear to squelch it. Move is under way to use the picture as an opening attraction at Capitol Beach, amusement park, which will open soon, to cash in on the newspaper publicity of the caustic remarks made about it by the ministers.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (Livingston) (850; 10-15)—'Uncertain Lady' (U) and 'Sweetheart of Sigma Chi' (Mono). Dualled for about $1,100 which is okay. Last week 'Search for Beauty' (Par) and 'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U) got up pretty near $1,000 which is all right.

Colonial (LTC) (750; 10-15)—'All Quiet' (U). Is to run all week and the take should near $900. Last week 'Sing and Like It' (Col) with 'One Is Guilty' (U) dualled first half and 'Crime Doctor' (U) split; $900 satisfied.

Lincoln (LTC) (1,400; 10-15-25)—'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG). In line for nice $2,600. Last week 'Gambling Lady' (WB) was considered lucky with $2,300.

Orpheum (LTC) (1,200; 10-15-25-40)—'A Modern Hero' (WB). With a last half pic change and the Marie Purl unit on stage, split, for $2,100, oke. Last week 'Forgotten Men' (Jewel) and 'Such Women Are Dangerous' (Fox) with 3-act vaude bill took strongly all week for $2,300.

Stuart (LTC) (1,900; 10-25-40)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) is the likely b. o. power; $3,200 expected. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' did a v. n. $3,100.

No Summer Slump In Wash., Altho Too Nice Weather Felt

Washington, May 7.

Boys are confident summer slump hasn't officially debutted yet, but first really warm spell is hurting plenty with amusement parks opening and roads clogged with wildflower gazers. Weather has lopped 20% off week-end grosses and maybe more.

Loew's gave 'Rothschild' first of season's big premieres with band, celebrities blabbing over p.a. system, et al. Pic opened big and looks like it will hold up nicely, especially in face of newsreel shots of officials at premiere. Reel has lock of names like Secretary Roper and Daniel Frohman praising Arliss to skies and is being shown in two other local Loew houses.

Estimate for This Week

Earle (WB) (2,424; 25-35-40-60), 'Upperworld' (WB) and vaude. Emile Boreo on stage. Looks like light $12,500. Last week '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) and vaude; pic gets credit for big $21,000.

Fox (Loew) (3,424; 25-35-60), 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and vaude. Phil Cook, Tony Wons, George Hall's orchestra and radio stage bill getting the biz, although pic satisfying when they get inside. Looks like o.k. $19,000. Last week 'Forsaking All Others' (Par) good $22,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,830; 25-35-60), '20th Century' (Col). Even lukewarm Barrymore fans going for this one. Headed for nice $10,000. Last week 'This Man Is Mine' (RKO) surprised with nice reception by critics and turned in good $9,000.

Palace (Loew) (2,363; 25-35-60), 'Rothschild' (UA). Started off with first big premiere of season and looks like very big $25,000. Last week 'Tarzan' (MG) got nice $9,500 for second week.

Metropolitan (WB) (1,583; 25-40), 'Flying Down to Rio' (RKO). Revival may get fair $3,000. Last week 'Come on Marines' (Par) satisfactory $4,000.

Rialto (U) (1,853; 25-35-40-50), 'Uncertain Lady' (U). Looks like satisfactory $3,000. Last week 'Tell the World' (U) helped by bally in local UP sheet collected good $5,000.

Columbia (Loew) (1,263; 25-40), 'Coming Out Party' (Fox). Probably light $2,800. Last week 'Men in White' (MG) repeat from big week at Fox got beautiful $6,000.

George Olsen Starts Slow but Grows In Favor with Minneapolis Swedes; '20 Million Sweethearts' at $9,000

NEW HAVEN GROSSES

'Rothschild' Headed For Splendid $13,500

New Haven, May 7.

Warm weather beginning to get in its dirty work, with matinees starting to fade.

After kicking around Poli's for a month, 'Palooka' finally opened at the College, boosted by heavy ballyhoo including personal appearance of Ham Fisher.

Estimates for This Week

Paramount (Publix) (2,348; 35-50)—'Witching Hour' (Par) and 'Stolen Sweets' (Ches). Not too hot around $5,500. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'Two Alone' (RKO). Biggest week in months at $10,200.

Poli's (Poli) (3,040; 35-50)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Five shows daily, with plenty week-end turnaways, should vault this one to magnificent $13,500. Last week 'Viva Villa' (MG) and 'Finishing School' (RKO). Lead the town with big $10,700.

Roger Sherman (WB) (2,200; 35-50)—'Registered Nurse' (WB) and 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (Radio). Just an ordinary week in view. Around $5,200. Last week '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). At $6,300, not at all bad in face of competish.

College (Poli) (1,565; 25-40)—'Palooka' (UA) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox). Should poll a good $4,600. Last week 'Looking for Trouble (UA) and 'Ninth Guest' (Col). No kicks at $4,400.

'LAUGHING BOY,' $5,000, N. S. G. IN SEATTLE

Seattle, May 7.

Music Hall opened this week by John Hamrick, giving this indie showman three first-run houses in the town. This is the former Roxy, and prior to that, the Fox. Cozy, homey house and with right bookings, advertising and management stands a chance to show returns. 'The House of Rothschild' is opening pix, with 'The Big Bad Wolf' (Disney) billed as 'added attraction' and successor to 'Three Little Pigs.' Conservative opening given. 'Rothschild' being shown here at reg admish prices, which is something.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (1,000; 25)—'The Crime Doctor' (Radio) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) dual. At new low price, two-bits any time, getting along for expected $3,200, good. Last week, 'Finishing School' (Radio) and 'Heat Lightning' (WB), $3,100.

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,800; 15-25)—'Queen Christina' (MGM) and 'Dark Hazard' (FN) two good ones, big from start, opening noon mat 1,000 in audience to see KOL's 'Carnival Hour' broadcast from stage. Week's biz looks like $4,300, snappy. Last week, 'Going Hollywood' (MGM) and 'Six of a Kind' (Par) dual, $3,600, good.

Fifth Avenue (Evergreen) (2,400; 25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Giving big billing to Bing, looks to do around $7,200. Last week, 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MGM), no appeal for the average class of this clientele, and weak at slow $4,800.

Liberty (J-vH) (1,900; 15-25-35)—'It Happened One Night' (Col). Final eight days, $3,500. Last week, tenth of same film, $4,400, very okey.

Music Box (Hamrick) (950; 25-35) — 'Catherine the Great' (UA). Into second week, indicated around $2,500 not warranting holdover. Good. Last week, same film, $4,700, good.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,300; 25-40)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Billed as 'important picture of decade' with no fanfare opening, but heavy advertising, $11,000 is smacko. Last week, dark.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,106; 25-35) — 'Laughing Boy' (MGM). Novarro in first big letters, then Velez, and top billing also for vaude acts, which have been meaning something here; expected to do $5,000. That's poor. Last week, 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and stage, dandy $6,900.

Minneapolis, May 7.

Caliber of current and underlined entertainment leaves little to be desired, but box office results still afford just cause for complaint.

In this largest of all Scandinavian communities, one naturally would think that names like Olsen, which really mean something in the entertainment firmament, would spell box office power. But it apparently just isn't so. Local Swedes, who constitute the major portion of the population here, apparently don't keep very close track of their own people's stage, screen and radio accomplishments or, if they do, they don't have much yen to see them perform when such attendance involves forking across dough.

The latest to suffer from this seeming apathy is George Olsen and his orchestra, who opening encountered a most disappointing response at the State. Of course, Olsen's laurels have been garnered almost entirely in the east but his mild reception comes on the heels of the cold shoulder that Olsen and Johnson, Greta Garbo and Gloria Swanson have been getting here lately. However, critics and customers are waxing so enthusiastic over Olsen and his music and Miss Shutta and her singing that it's a thousand to one shot that biz will build strongly during the week.

Estimates for This Week

Minnesota (Publix) (4,200; 25-35-40)—'Gambling Lady' (WB). A good picture as films go and well liked by patrons, but is getting very little attention from the public. Miss Stanwyck no magnet here. May not go above $4,000. Poor. Last week, 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), $6,000. Fair.

Orpheum (Singer) (2,890; 25-35-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN). A smash hit here. Exciting raves galore and bound to benefit from word-of-mouth boosting by pleased customers. Despite lack of cast names, going along at a fast clip. Opened two days ahead of schedule due to pulling of 'Glamour' after fifth day and should get at least $9,000 for the seven days. Big. Last week, 'Glamour' (U), departed after five days, $1,500. Poor.

State (Publix) (2,200; 25-35-55)—'You're Telling Me' (Par) and George Olsen and orchestra and Ethel Shutta on stage. Only stage show in town and first one here in a number of weeks. Olsen and Shutta names not so well-known here, however, and offering got off to a weak start. Customers and critics shouting praises and patronage is certain to climb throughout week. Picture okeh, but no box-office help. Disappointing opening may prevent gross from topping $10,000, which is below what attraction merits. Last week, 'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG), $5,000. Pretty good.

World (Steffes) (350; 25-35-50-75)—'Henry VIII' (UA). Sixth and last week. Went over with a bang here and made plenty of dough for this sure-seater. About $2,000 indicated. Good. Last week, $2,100. Fine.

Uptown (Publix) (1,200; 25-35)—'Bolero' (Par). Looks like about $2,000. Fair. Last week, 'As Earth Turns' (WB), $2,800. Good.

Lyric (Publix) (1,300; 20-25) — 'Come on Marines' (Par). Dandy type of picture and swell cast for this house. May hit fine $3,000. Last week, 'Lazy River' (MG), $1,800. Light.

Grand (Publix) (1,100; 15-25) — 'David Harum' (Fox). Second loop run. Should reach good $1,900. Last week, 'Queen Christina' (MG), second loop run. $2,000. Good.

Aster (Publix) (900; 15-25) — 'Carolina' (Fox), 'Hips, Hips, Hooray' (Radio), third and second loop runs, respectively, and 'I Believed in You' (Fox), first run. Perhaps $1,000. Pretty good. Last week, 'Son of a Sailor' (FN), second loop run, and 'Ever Since Eve' (Fox), first run, $800. Light.

Jones' 15 Chapters

Hollywood, May 7.

Popularity of his last serial is prompting Universal to increase Buck Jones' new cliffhanger, 'Redhead From Sundog,' from the usu 12 to 15 chapters.

Janet Chandler is the lead, with Grant Withers, Margaret Lamar, Richard Kramer, William Desmond and Walter Miller set in the cast. Serial is scheduled to start on May 14, under supervision of Henry MacRae, Louis Friedlander directing. 'Redhead' was scripted by Ella O'Neill from the W. C. Tuttle tale.

Roxy Gang with Flapper Film N.S.G.; 'Hitler's Reign,' Only $2,000, Bad; '20th Century,' Palace, Chi, $21,000

Chicago, May 7.

Chicago is now suffering from a condition of box-office lassitude brought about by two factors, the entrance of an upping May thermometer and the business calm awaiting the arrival of the World's Fair storm. Everybody is busy painting houses, remodeling fronts, stocking in new merchandise and generally getting ready for the World's Fair mobs and so no one has any time for entertainment.

This is even the case of the theatres themselves. They are not half so intent on doing business today as in sprucing up their houses so they will do extra good business when the Fair mobs hit the burg.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B & K) (3,940; 35-55-75) —'Twenty Million Sweethearts' (WB) and Roxy and gang on the stage. Gross is disappointing this week. Wrong combination. People who like Roxy gang don't like film and vice versa. B. & K. has a habit of making booking judgments in this fashion. They imagine by the 'strategy' of booking diametrically opposed attractions they will bring in both types of fans. But history has proven that they succeed only in keeping both sets of theatregoers out of the house. Hardly looks better than $27,000, mangy, this week. Last week 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) held nicely to $32,900.

McVickers (B & K) (2,284; 25-35-65)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Picture not getting anywhere. One week only. 'Viva Villa' (MG) set to replace. May top $10,000 but not by much, which is box-office malnutrition. 'Tarzan and Mate' (MG) took $15,800 for its 10-day ride, sad.

Majestic (Jones) (1,650; 25-35-40) —'Hitler's Reign' (Cummins). Ready to blow after three weeks. Whole booking was ruined by a flood of mistakes made by Sam Cummins on legal angles and on advertising. Had a chance for money but muffed all along the line. The word for this one is 'flaco.' Under $2,000 now and out. House will close for a week and plans to open on May 18 with a vaudfilm policy at 15c and 25c.

Oriental (B & K) (3,200; 25-35-40)—'Lazy River' (MG) and vaude. Down to $11,000. Reputed $6,000 in red ink. Last week hardly better at $12,100 for 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U).

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 35-55-83)—'Twentieth Century' (Col) and vaude. Overhead hops on Winchell's in-person salary ($7,000); may take $21,000. Last week 'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col) managed $17,300.

Roosevelt (B & K) (1,500; 25-35-45)—'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG). House has perked lately and has spruced at the box-office. Currently maybe $7,000, good enough for this house to make money. Last week 'Six of a Kind' (Par) held to $6,100, on the edge.

State-Lake (Jones) (2,700; 25-35-40)—'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U) and vaude. Look for $13,000. Last week 'Keep 'em Rolling' (Radio) okay at $11,100.

United Artists (B & K-UA) (1,700; 35-45-85)—'Rothschild' (UA). May stay four weeks at pace. Sure fire click throughout though a tendency towards weakness in the afternoons. Last week socking $25,800 for opener and looks capable of sticking to $16,000 for the follow-up session.

'CHEER,' $11,000, FAIR; HEAT SOCKS NEWARK

Newark, May 7.

It wasn't going to be a good week anyway with only Proctor's having a good start but all hopes were smashed when a tropical wave hit amidships with grosses now depending entirely on the temperature. Anyway, the week end has been sunk. Proctor's may come in with $11,000 or a little more and the rest will be nowhere.

'Damaged Lives' at the Shubert is proving no sensation and while it is holding over, that will be all. The last week for the Broad is announced.

Estimates for This Week

Branford (WB) (2,966; 15-65)—'Glamour' (U) and 'Modern Hero' (WB). Passable around $6,500. Last week 'Registered Nurse' (FN) and 'Love Birds' (U) okay with $8,900.

Capitol (WB) (1,200; 15-25-35-50)—'Riptide' (MG) and 'Melody in Spring' (Par). Shearer should pull something on second run but in this heat not much over $3,000. Last week 'Jimmy the Gent' (WB) and 'Good Dame' (Par) weak at $3,600.

Little (Franklin) (299; 35-50)—'Ja, Treu ist die Soldatenliebe' (Kinematrade) and 'Traum von Scheonbrunn' (General). Nothing here. Maybe $400. Last week 'Die Tochter des Regiments' (General) and 'Der Brave Suender' (Assoc. Kinema). Anny Ondra meant nothing and bad at $400.

Loew's State (2,780; 15-75)—'Looking for Trouble' (UA) and 'Hollywood Music Box Revue.' No pull even at the opening and will be bad at $9,000. Last week 'Tarzan' failed to beat its path $14,000.

Paramount (Adams-Par) (2,248; 15-99) 'Witching Hour' (Par) and 'Sweet and Lowdown.' Hasn't appealed and will be bad at $8,000. Last week 'Crime Doctor' (RKO) with Ozzie Nelson near a good $15,000.

Proctor's (RKO) (2,300; 35-40-55-60-75-85)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and vode. Opened nicely with the Rex Cole Mountaineers drawing in some and maybe good under the conditions at $11,000 or even better.

Terminal (Skouras) 1,900; 15-25-40)—'No Greater Glory' (Col) and 'Finishing School' (Radio) with 'Backstage Mystery' (Capitol) and 'Bottoms Up' (Fox). Probably $3,500. Last week 'Three on Honeymoon' (Fox) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox) with 'Hell on Earth' (Aeolian) and 'Spitfire' (Radio) okay at $4,300.

'Viva Villa,' $16,000; 'Vanities' Unit, $10,000; Providence Is Ducky

Providence, May 7.

Main stem appears to be in a fairly good condition in spite of a very confusing start. Plenty of drawing attractions, and with half a break grosses should be in the higher brackets before the final tally is made.

Fay's and Loew's State, both combo houses, are the big noises. Fay's is plenty forte with Earl Carroll's 'Vanities' on the stage. Doing four shows daily, and with the aid of lifted prices house is looking to breaking records with a nifty $16,000 gross.

Estimates for This Week

Fay's (2,000; 25-35-40)—'Registered Nurse' (FN), and 'Vanities' on stage. Revue is doing all the plugging this week. Prices have been made uniform all over the house for this week only, management doing away with lower scale entirely, with four shows daily, and the slight tilt indications are house can gross at least $10,000 or more with the proper breaks. Last week, 'Romance in Trinidad' (Fox), and 'Harlemania' revue was the best thing in town at $7,300, swell.

Loew's State (3,700; 15-25-40)—'Viva Villa' and vaudeville. Wallace Beery has plenty of box office friends in this town. He will draw where the vaude won't. Though opening was tepid week-end climb indicates house should have no difficulty in getting at least $16,000. Last week, 'Sorrell and Son' (MG) was plenty bad news at $8,000.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 15-25-40)—'Bottoms Up' (Fox), and 'Crosby Case' (U). Has a slight edge over opposish on same street, but gross will not be anything sensational, apparently. Just now the outlook augurs no more than $5,500, so-so. Last week, 'The Earth Turns' and 'Love Birds' (U); it's a toss-up as to which picture did the pulling for a weak $4,800.

Paramount (2,200; 15-25-40)—'You're Telling Me' (Par), and 'Wharf Angel' (Par). Though the cricks have been very nice, there's nothing to indicate that this week will shake off the spell of lethargy house has been in the grip of for the last couple of months; at the most $4,000, tepid. Last week, 'Trumpet Blows' (Par), and 'Twin Husband' (Chest), was sour grapes, too, at $3,900.

RKO Ibee (2,200; 15-25-40)—'20th Century' (Col), and 'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col). If the fans don't buy the house isn't to blame as the ballyhoo was right. Indications are for at least $7,000; okay. Last week, 'Where Sinners Meet' (Radio), and 'I'll Tell the World' (U) started off well, but took a terrific slide to a very poor $3,500.

RKO Victory (1,600; 10-15-25)—'Voice in the Night' (Col), and 'Spitfire' (Radio). House back again to split week after three weeks' try at full week programs; no more than $1,200 for four days. Last week, 'Crime Doctor' (Radio), and 'Social Register' (Col), didn't stand up so well at $2,200 for the week.

Tacoma Fairish

Tacoma, May 7.

Wide open bust in price war spreads into the suburbans, with all nabors cutting back to the old dime prices.

Estimates for This Week

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,400; 15-25)—'Bolero' (Par) and 'This Man is Mine' (Radio) dual. Maybe okay $2,000. Last week, first of dual-low price policy, 'Melody in Spring' (Par) and 'As Earth Turns' (WB) oke, $3,100.

Roxy (J-vH) (1,300; 15-25)—'Tarzan' (MGM) and 'Poor Rich' (U), dual. Penciled for full week. Look for $2,800, fair. Last week, 'Men in White' (MG) four days, good, $1,900; 'I'll Tell the World' (U), heavy billing for this new Lee Tracy pix, and 'S.O.S. Iceberg' (U), dual, $1,400, good, for week's $3,300, okay.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (750; 15-25)—'Forgotten Men' (Jewel) and 'Search for Beauty' (Par) dual, first half; then 'Good Dame' (Par) and 'Funny Little Bunny' played up for last half. Expected $1,600. Last week, 'Lone Cowboy' (Par) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) dual, split with 'Wharf Angel' (Par) for steady $1,600. Oke.

'Villa' Balto's Big One at $19,500; '20th' 15G, Mild

Baltimore, May 7.

Bevy of b. o. beacons are brightening the burg currently. Only, but big, factor detracting from biz is the excessively humid weather. 'Viva Villa' at the Century is topping the town and by a considerable margin. House has shaved its vaudeville and is opening hour earlier each a. m. to facilitate handling of throngs. At pace evinced over week-end, looks like a grand $19,500 week.

At the indie vaudfilmer, Hipp, '20th Century' and stage-show embracing Georgie Price drifted slowly over the week-end and disappointed.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew-UA) (3,000; 25-35-40-55-66)—'Viva Villa' (MG) and four acts. Ushers rode herd each eve over first three day's gallop, and the mats are holding well. Snagging kingly $19,500. Last week (Rothschild' (UA) big at $24,000. Lobby-lockouts every night caused turnaways to be represented, in cold cash, estimated $3,000 loss.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,500; 25-35-40-55-66)—'20th Century' (Col) and stage show. Building slowly. Price on stage. Pocketing $15,000, under initial hopes. Last week 'Finishing School' (Radio) and 'Bottoms Up' $14,000.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 25-30-35-40-50)—'Cheer' (Fox). Slew of names, fact it's the only tune-show on tap currently, regal reception from reviewers—all factors merge and house is sailing to slashing $6,000, which augurs holdover. Last week 'Men Are Dangerous' (Fox), nice at $4,000.

Stanley (WB) (3,450; 15-25-40)—'Good Dame' (Par). Fluttering to poor $8,000. Last week 'Sweethearts' (FN) mild at $11,000.

Valencia (Loew-UA) (1,000; 35-40-55) (2-a-day) 'Rothschild' (UA). New policy offed bit lamely. Ad space in dailies has been trebled. Might build, but a bettering of mild $3,200 appears highly dubious. Last week grind 'Damaged Lives' (Indie) grabbed oke $3,200 on second session. Fortnight total, $9,200.

'SCANDALS,' 'CARGO,' 'GLORY' O.K. IN B'HAM

Birmingham, May 7.

Bill of fare is more encouraging this week.

Alabama, Empire and Ritz will do the larger part of the biz this week.

Estimates for This Week

Jabama (Wilby) (2,800; 30-35-40) — 'Scandals' (Fox). Despite week-end rain, away to a jam-up good start and a neat plie, around $8,200. Last week, 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and Ray Teal stage show for four days, followed by 'Trumpet Blows' (Par) for rest week, $6,500; fair.

Ritz (Wilby) (1,600; 25) — 'Wild Cargo' (Radio). Looks like a fair repeat of 'Bring 'Em Back' and close to $3,000. Last week, 'Death Takes a Holiday' (Par), $2,500.

Empire (ETAC) (1,100; 25)—'No Greater Glory' (Col). Away to a juicy start and stands a chance for a second week, $3,500. Last week, 'Easy to Love' (WB), $2,000.

Strand (Wilby) (800; 25)—'Hold That Girl' (Fox). Moderate $1,000. Last week, 'Massacre' (FN) one of best of the year here, $1,500.

Summer Heat Socks Broadway But 'Century' $70,000 at M. H., Cap $44,000, Par Near New Low advance dose summer weather, arriving Saturday (5) and continuing to yesterday (Monday), is having an immediate effect on Broadway grosses. Some of the theatres put their cooling systems into operation in an effort to compete with the beaches.

Saturday's business wasn't so bad but on Sunday New York was virtually deserted.

As a result the Music Hall, Capitol and Rivoli are dividing the business this week with the Strand fourth best on its second week of 'Twenty Million Sweethearts.'

Hall, set back by the weather after a good start with 'Twentieth Century, has a chance for $70,000 which is okay considering. The Cap ought to get $44,000 on 'Manhattan Melodrama.' House will chance a holdover with the Gable-Powell picture plus Lanny Ross and Jack Benny on the stage.

A total of four weeks is looked for on 'We're Not Dressing' which points to $21,000 this week, its second, at the Rivoli. House is so rigged up now that a month's run is not fantastic.

Strand will probably be just short of $20,000 on its holdover and will try a third week.

The Hitler item at the Mayfair, 'Hitler's Reign of Terror,' opened strong but after two days and bad reviews the cork was out. First week was $14,000, higher than the house has done in a long time, and spot is spending a reported $2,500 on ads for the holdover.

Among the theatres taking it on the chin this week, the Paramount is winging more than the others. With 'Double Door,' may sink to its record low of $14,000. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, booked on a personal with this picture, cancelled a few days before opening date.

'Viva Villa' closed at the Criterion Sunday night (6) after a final week (third) of $6,800, but at the Astor 'Rothschild' continues stoutly. Last week, its seventh, take was $21,500

Estimates For This Week

Astor (1,012; $1.10-$1.65-$2)—'Rothschild' (UA) (8th week). Arliss picture $21,500 last week and maintaining its fine strength. First five days this week $15,500.

Capitol (5,400; 35-75-85-$1.10)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and stage show, Jack Benny and Lanny Ross on personals contributing to draft that augurs $44,000, good. Decision on holdover reached yesterday afternoon (Monday). Last week, second of 'Tarzan,' $21,000, a precipitous dive from the initial $48,000.

Casino (2,100; 25-35-55)—'Whirlpool' (Col) and vaude. Business better than on first week of combination shows and perhaps $7,000. Last week 'Finishing School (Radio) only $6,000.

Criterion (875; $1.10-$1.65-$2)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Closed Sunday night (6) getting but $6,800 on its final week of a 3½ weeks' run. House dark.

Mayfair (2,200; 35-55-65)—'Hitler's Reign of Terror' (Jewel) (2nd week). Started its holdover yesterday (Monday) after first seven days of $14,000; under expectations, but okay for house.

Palace (1,700; 35-50-66-75) 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and vaude. May stretch to $12,000, a little over average. Last week, one day of 'Earth Turns' (WB) and six of 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) under $11,000.

Paramount (3,664; 35-55-75-99) 'Double Door' (Par) and stage show. A brutal $15,000 or under, dangerously close to the $14,000 low of house. Last week 'Witching Hour' (Par) with George Jessel and Ethel Merman on the stage, just under $20,000.

Radio City Music Hall (6,945; 40-60-85-99-$1.65) 'Twentieth Century' (Col) and stage show. May hurdle $70,000, okay, but won't hold over. Heat may cost this house $10,000. Last week, second of 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) better than anticipated, $60,000.

Rialto (2,000; 40-55-75-85) 'Success at Any Price' (Radio). Will be lucky to hit $7,500. Last week 'She Made Her Bed' (WB) $8,000, all right for house.

Rivoli (2,200; 40-55-75-85), 'We're Not Dressing' (UA) (2d week). Holding up well and will be near $21,000. First week a big $31,600.

RKO Center (3,525; 25-40), 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) four days, and 'Trumpet Blows' (Par), three days. Doubleton unlikely to mount sour $6,000. 'Lost Patrol' (Radio) and 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) previous week, $7,000.

Roxy (6,200; 25-35-55-65), 'No Greater Glory' (Col) and stage show. About $19,000 presaged, mild. Last week $21,000 on Crime' (WB).

Strand (2,900; 35-55-75-85), '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) (2d week). Holds a third week after business on second week that indicates just under $20,000. Initial seven days, $26,200.

State (2,300; 35-55-75), 'Gambling Lady' (WB) and vaude. Not so much likely this week, maybe $15,000. Last week personal of Joe Penner, with 'Catherine' (UA) on screen, a good $27,000.

K. C. Gives $13,000 to See Home Girl, Sally Rand; 'Cheer' $7,000

Kansas City, May 6.

Biggest surprise of the year was given the independent exhibitors when the Royal, Paramount's little second stringer, announced Saturday it was showing 'The House of Rothschild,' which closed the night before at Loew's Midland.

Not a word of the showing of the picture at the Royal was given out until the ads appeared in the morning papers Saturday morning, and the managers are dizzy trying to figure out 'how come,' as never before has a picture shown at the Midland been released to opposition without due protection. The Royal is showing the picture for 25 and 40 cents, the same prices charged during the original run at the Midland. The 40-cent night scale at the Midland for the 'Rothschild' picture was only temporary as the 25-cent price for all seats at any time is back again for 'Viva Villa,' now showing.

Mainstreet, with Sally Rand's unit and 'Journal of a Crime' is trying a new scale of prices: 25 cents until nine o'clock, 35 cents until six, then balcony, 35, and lower floor, 50 cents, tax included. Previously the scale has been 25 and 40 cents for straight pictures and 25, 40 and 60 when stage shows were offered.

As this is Sally Rand's real home, where she, as Billy Beck, broke into the show business, and where she was raised and schooled, it is expected she will draw heavily for the full week.

Estimates for This Week

Mainstreet (RKO) (3,200; 25-35-50)—'Journal of a Crime' (FN), and Sally Rand unit. Management gave all the space to 'The Kansas City girl who made the World's Fair Famous' and she in return gave the house a great opening and week-end business expected to draw pretty close to $13,000, big. Last week, 'Los Patrol' (Radio) and 'Sing and Like It' (Radio), $5,000.

Midland (Loew's) (4,000; 25) — 'Viva Villa' (MG). Splurged heavily in the papers and with Wallace Beery's name in big type, this one had the lines forming early. In for a good week for around $15,000. Last week, 'House of Rothschild' (UA), turned in $16,000; good.

Newman (Par) (1,800; 25) — 'Melody in Spring' (Par) and 'The Women in His Life' (Metro). First time the house has shown a Metro picture for years, but the billing was given to the Lanny Ross musical. Expected to hold up nicely at the bargain prices for around $8,000. Last week, 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'You Can't Buy Everything' (Par). Bing Crosby certainly had 'em coming steadily and the checkup was reported as $10,000.

Tower (Rewot) (2,400; 25)—'Success at Any Price' (Radio) and stage show. House is getting a nice week end play, especially from the vaudeville lovers. In spite of strong opposition should take about $4,500. Last week, 'Let's Fall in Love' (Col) and stage show, got $5,000.

Royal (Par) (800; 25-40)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Following without a break from the Midland the picture is expected to get around $2,000. Last week the second of 'Narcotic' (Ind), $1,200.

Uptown (Fox) (2,040; 25-40) — 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Right down the alley for the youngsters and they gave it a regular play. Indications are for around $7,000. Last week, 'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox), $2,500.

'ROTHSCHILD' AT $17,500 TOPS PTSBG.

Pittsburgh, May

With mid-summer weather sending them out on the open road and daylight saving keeping those remaining on the porch until it's too late to make any difference, the Main Stem is having quite a time of it this week. Only the time they're having doesn't happen to be a very good one.

What there is, and admittedly there isn't much, is going to Arliss and 'House of Rothschild' at Penn. Flicker has had a great campaign, word-of-mouth is all-rave and story has been running in serial form for last month in 'Post-Gazette,' all contriving to furnish a b. o. sock. With all this, getaway was rather disappointing, but shot into high gear at night and should collect $17,500 anyway.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea-Hyde) (1, ; 15-25-40)—'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG). Okay mystery meller, but seems Bob Montgomery on his own still can't bring 'em in. Title believed harmful, too, in view of star's admitted femme following. Maybe $5,000, maybe not. Last week 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) at $6,200 left no room for complaints.

Penn (Loew's-UA) (3,300; 25-35-50)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Mats n.s.h., but big nights should make neat $17,500 a clinch. Notices all raves and swell campaign behind it, in addition. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG) at $11,000 one of season's major disappointments.

Pitt (Shafer) (1,600; 15-25-40)—'Stolen Sweets' (indie) and 'Spic and Span Revuette' on stage. Picking up a bit, not because bill deserves it, but because house this week has the only stage show in town. Prospects for fairly bright $6,750. Last week 'Ever Since Eve' (Fox) and Herman Timberg's 'Temptations' just so-so at $6,100.

Regent (WB) (900; 25-35)—'Once to Every Woman' (Col) and 'Goodbye Love' (Radio). House was expected to pick up with closing of downtown Davis, which used to play 'em day and date with Regent, but so far business increase has failed to materialize. If anything, it's fallen off slightly. Looks like $1,500 this week. Last week 'Chance at Heaven' (RKO) and 'Two Alone' (RKO) around $1,550.

Stanley (WB) (3,600; 25-35-50)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Selling Dick Powell, house's former m.c., above picture and while $10,500 in five days is just fair, it's still a pretty good tribute to Powell in face of such otherwise miserable business conditions. Last week 'Sisters Under the Skin' and Sally Rand unit, in five days, gave house an even break at $17,000.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 25-40)—'I'll Tell the World' (U). Feeling pinch same as rest of 'em and will be lucky to scrape through with $4,000, which, to put it mildly, isn't so hot. Last week 'Lost Patrol' (Radio) best here in some time at $6,800.

Mono Wins Out in Bid for Stratton-Porter Yarns

Hollywood, May 7.

Concluding negotiations carried on for almost a year, and marking the end of hot finish competition by several majors, Trem Carr has copped two Gene Stratton-Porter classics, 'Keeper of the Bees' and 'Girl of the Limberlost' for Monogram.

Bidding for the yarns was intensified recently as a result of the best seller statistics carried by the magazine 'Time' which showed the Stratton-Porter duo well up in the first 20 of favorites sustained over a period of years.

RKO had the silent rights, but they reverted to Mrs. Porter's estate about five years ago. 'Keeper of the Bees' will be first in production by Monogram, scheduled to start in June.

Burr Sells Col.

Hollywood, May 7.

Charles Burr, acting for Johnny Hines, has sold Columbia the story, 'The Girl Friend,' a musical done for years on Broadway. Columbia barely beat Warners to the post for the property, former's interest having been whetted by the fact that Rogers and Hart, who wrote the music for Columbia's recent 'Let's Fall in Love,' also did the songs for ' irl Friend.'

Musical was originally bought by Paramount for Eddie Cantor and was sold to Hines when Cantor left that studio.

Philadelphia Brightens

'Rothschild' a Smacko—'Villa' $15,500—'Upper World' and Vaude, $14,000

Philadelphia, May 7.

All indications point to some swell business in the downtown picture houses this week. In fact, unless signs fail, it should be the best stanza in a couple of months.

Aldine is hitting on all cylinders still with 'House of Rothschild.' In fact, Wednesday, last day of the first full week of this Arliss picture, was bigger than the opening day and since then, despite heavy rains (Thursday and Friday) attendance has held up consistently. With the week-end bringing better weather, 'Rothschild' figures to get $17,000 or better on its second week, as against the first week's $23,000—record biz for the Aldine.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (1,300; 40-55-65)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Still a sensation, and even bad weather at start of second week failed to dent trade a great deal. $17,000 not too optimistic. Last week, $23,000—breaking house record.

Arcadia (600; 25-40-50) — 'Show Off' (Par). Second downtown showing. Should get a fair $2,100. Last week 'Scandals' (Fox). Third downtown showing, and not so forte at $1,800.

Boyd (2,400; 40-55-65)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Plenty of campaign and good but not sensational start. Should get $15,500 and hold for second week. Last week 'Melody in Spring' (Par). Pretty flat at $10,000, despite fine notices.

Earle (2,000; 40-55-65)—'Upper World' (WB) and vaude. Not a name on the eight-act bill. Start slow, and combination will be lucky to get $14,000. Last week 'Success at Any Price' (Radio) and vaude, George Price headlining. Off from house's recent pace. $17,000.

Fox (3,000; 30-40-60) — 'Now I'll Tell' (Fox) and stage show. Sally O'Neil in Lindsay's 'Town Topics' revue headlining. With better weather a fairly good $16,000 is indicated. Last week 'Such Women Are Dangerous' (Fox) and stage show. First part of week good, but rains hurt. Got expected $15,000, anyway.

Karlton (1,100; 30-40-50)—'Let's Be Ritzy' (U). Ordinary $3,000 expected. Last week 'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U). A couple of hundred dollars under the figure. $2,800.

Stanley (3,700; 40-55-65)—'Tarzan' (MG). Plenty of ballyhoo, but Friday start was somewhat under expectations. Saturday better, however, and pix should gross $15,000 and hold. Last week '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Only $4,000 in last three days. Rather flat nine-day stay.

Stanton (1,700; 30-40-55)—'I'll Tell the World' (U). Opening today (Monday) as house changes opening date from Saturday. Last week 'Trumpet Blows' (Par). Only $7,000 in seven days—not so hot.

'DRESSING'-SWANSON STAND OUT IN DETROIT

Detroit, May 7.

Outstanding films in two first-run houses are fighting the weather for the business this week. Unusual summer heat wave is pulling them out into the open, with the b.o. doing a runner-up.

Fox with 'Crazy Quilt' on stage and '20th Century' on screen is running third, with 'Rothschild' at the United Artists and 'We're Not Dressing' on screen at the Michigan, coupled with Gloria Swanson in person taking a strong lead. Other houses have less to offer, with the Fisher taking a second week of '20 Million Sweethearts' and the Downtown playing 'Murder in Trinidad.' State closed Thursday (3) for the summer.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Ind) (5,100; 15-25-35-40-55) '20th Century' (Col) and stage show not so good at $19,000. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and stage, mild at $20,000.

Michigan (Par) (4,045; 15-25-35-40-55) 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and Gloria Swanson in person. Look to $24,000, fine. Last week '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) and stage fair, $21,000.

United Artists (Par) (2,018; 15-25-35-40-55) 'Rothschild' (WB). Bang up biz, $23,000. Last week 'Men in White (MG) nice $7,500.

Downtown (RKO) (2,665; 15-25-35-40) 'Murder in Trinidad' (Col). Blah $2,000 suggested. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col) fair $6,000 for 10 days.

Fisher (Par) (2,750; 15-25-35-40) '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Only $3,000, poor, in sight. Last week 'Harold Teen' (Par) mild $4,000.

'Honorable Guy' Plus 'Harlem Secrets' Unit, $6,700, Indianapolis

Indianapolis, May 7.

Exceptionally heavy night business more than made up for slack matinee trade and put George Arliss in 'House of Rothschild' into the big money class locally at Loew's Palace with a swift pace that indicates a smacko gross of $10,000. The only other house in town that attracted any attention at all over the week-end was the Lyric, with Joe E. Brown proving a magnet in 'Very Honorable Guy' on the screen, while the 'Secrets of a Harem' unit on the stage helped enough to insure a take of $6,700. This means a neat profit.

Estimates for This Week

Apollo (Fourth Ave.) (1,100; 20-25-40)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Disappointing, with no better than a lukewarm $4,000 showing up. Last week 'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox) was a mediocre at $3,250.

Circle (Katz-Feld) (2,600; 25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Hold-over seems to be unwarranted, with biz lagging to $3,000. Last week the same picture was very sweet with a gross of $7,600.

Indiana (Katz-Feld) (3,100; 20-25-40)—'Massacre' (FN) and 'Crime Doctor' (Radio) dualed. Won't hit more than a dreary $2,500. Last week was brutal at $2,000 with 'Come On, Marines' (Par) and 'His Double Life' (Par).

Lyric (Olson) (2,000; 20-25-40)—'Very Honorable Guy' (FN) and 'Secrets of Harem' unit on stage. Doing very much all right at $6,700. Last week 'Glamour' (U) and vaude was just fair at $5,750.

Palace (Loew's) (2,800; 25-40)—'Rothschild' (20th Cent). Best in months, with take of $10,000 looming up. Last week 'Tarzan' (MG) was good at $7,000.

OMAHA FAIRLY GOOD; 'ROTHSCHILD' $6,500

Omaha, May 7.

Possibilities continue even up at the b. o.'s with somewhat better attractions in all houses to offset the incoming gusts of warmer weather. Paramount stands by its reinstated single feature policy with 'Rothschild,' and will probably not find the going lucrative as Arliss is a hard number to sell in this town.

Brandeis moves opening up to Thursday to be day and date with Hollywood on 'Twenty Million Sweethearts,' and with the eight day run should find $6,000.

Outside competition negligible as the only other theatrical attraction of the week is a single performance of the University of Nebraska's Kosmet Klub's 'The Campus Cop' at Central high. This all-male musical comedy would hardly cut in except that it is a benefit for the Bee-News free milk and ice fund and was plugged the limit.

Last week was disappointing all around and hard to account for except that too much was expected.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (Singer) (1,200; 20-25-35)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN). Carries a running mate in 'A Very Honorable Guy' (FN). In on an eight day run and the beneficiary of a special advance campaign, pix should bring another of those top weeks, around $6,000. Last week 'Lost Patrol' (Radio) and 'Journal of a Crime' (FN) tumbled below expectations under $4,000.

Paramount (Blank) (2,766; 25-40)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Continues the single trail started last week, $6,500, good. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MGM) shouldered the task of returning from a double to a single feature program. Considerably under $7,000.

Orpheum (Blank) (2,976; 25-40) 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Doubled with 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox) as a partner. Looks to live up to its two precedents with a strong campaign behind it. $6,250, good. Last week 'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Registered Nurse' (FN) on a dual bill, saw commendable week being somewhere near what was expected of them, $6,750.

World (Blank) (2,100; 25-35)—'Dark Hazard' (FN). Doubled with 'She Made Her Bed' (Par) will hold around average probably bettering last week's fare. $4,000, fair enough. Last week 'Looking for Trouble' (UA) twin billed with 'Midnight' (U) did passable, nearly reaching $4,000.

'Madame Spy,' Vaude, 11G; Montreal Sees Some Biz

Montreal, May 7.

A couple of hold-overs, the last wee' of vaudeville at Loew's and a stand-out pic at Palace with out-of-ordinary ballyhoo and tie ups indicate that most of the cash of s'ow-shoppers will go to those two houses with the edge for the Palace. Moving troubles now over, but summer weather and advent of baseball here will depress grosses.

Estimates for This Week

Palace (FP) (2,700; 50)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox). Despite perfect weather and baseball this should top the town at $11,000. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) and 'Sing and Like It' (Radio). Poor biz at $6,500.

Capitol (FP) (2,700; 50)—'Riptide' (MG) and 'Hold That Girl' (Fox) (2nd week). After a very good first week at $10,500 should gross another $7,500 currently.

Loew's (FP) (3,200; 65)—'Madame Spy' (U) and last week of vaude. The vaude will bring 'em in with probability of $11,000. Last week 'From Headquarters' (WB) and vaude did well at $10,000.

Princess (CT) (1,900; 50)—'Rothschild' (UA) and 'Chance at Heaven' (Radio) (2nd week). Headed main stems last week with $12,000 and should get further $8,000 currently.

Cinema de Paris (France-Film) (600; 50)—'Les Thenardiers', 3rd week. Still attracting biz, $1,200 after $1,500 last week.

'GLAMOUR,' OKE $15,000, IN ST. L.

St. Louis, May 7.

With two holdovers on the film programs and nothing particularly outstanding in the newcomers, there'll be no smashing of box office records this week. Loew's will get some more profit out of the second week of 'Rothschild' and Shubert may, too, out of Dick Powell and his fellow singers.

'All Quiet' revival at the St. Louis is attracting little attention and after it is over the house will go dark for another spell. Missouri is merely straining along.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Skouras) (3,000; 25-35-55)—'Glamour' (U) and Ed Lowry on stage. Good $15,000. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) got about the same.

Fox (F. & M.) (5,000; 25-35-55)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox). Around $16,000. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (RKO) and 'One Is Guilty' (Col) reported at $12,000.

State (Loew's) (3,000; 25-35-55)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (2d week). Headed for nice $14,000 after opening $22,000, swell.

Missouri (Skouras) (3,500; 25-40)—'I'll Tell the World' (U) and 'Witching Hour' (Par). Figure $7,000. Last week 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and 'Cross Streets' near same tally.

St. Louis' (F. & M) (4,000; 25-40)—'All Quiet' (U) and 'Night and Day.' Expect $4,000, poor. Last week 'Sisters Under Skin' (Col) and 'Waltz Time' (British) also weak, $4,000.

Shubert (Warners) (2,000; 25-40)—'Twenty Million Sweethearts' (WB) (2d week). Sporting $8,000, Last week, same film, $12,000.

DENVER IS ALIBI TOWN; 'WITCHING HOUR' 4G'S

Denver, May 7.

Only first-run reporting good business is the Aladdin with 'Rothschild' to be held third week. Looks to double average second week. Elitch Amusement park opened Saturday and packed. Hurting film houses. Old Town Hall with 'Ten Nights in Barroom' sold out day in advance. Big crowd around outside did share hurting cinema palaces. Roads to mountains lined with cars, golf courses packed, Saturday and Sunday biggest days this year.

Estimates For This Week

Aladdin (Huffman) (1,500; 25-35-50)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (2d week). Holding another week, Getting $6,000 for second, excellent. Last week 'House of Rothschild' (UA) on its opening week of an indefinite run, played to capacity or near-capacity much of the time, closing with about $9,000 in the till. Premier with reserved seats sell out and with all the upper crust present. Arliss is a natural for the Aladdin and its choice clientele.

Denham (Hellborn) (1,500; 25-40)—'Witching Hour' (Par). Poor draft. Around $4,000. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) did so well it was held an extra day. Excellent selling campaign by Manager Hellborn. Finished with $7,500.

Denver (Huffman) (2,500; 25-35-50)—'Stan'l Up and Cheer' (Fox). Just average at $6,000. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG) got $7,000.

Orpheum (Huffman) (2,600; 25-35-55)—'A Very Honorable Guy' (FN). Fanchon & Marco stage show. Hitting around $7,000. Last week 'This Man is Mine (Radio) finished with $7,500.

Paramount (Huffman) (2,000; 25-40)—'Laughing Boy' (MG). Yanked after three days with 'Three on Honeymoon' (Par) following. Maybe $2,000. Last week 'Lazy River' (MG) and 'The Show Off' (MG), did only fair and closed with $2,000.

Hub Highly Competitive; 'Cheer' 17½G; 'Sweethearts,' $40,000; 'Villa,' $11,000

Shea's with 'Meller' And Unit, $17,000 Buffalo's Exception

Buffalo, May 7.

With exception of Shea's Buffalo, business was off all around last week. The stage show at this de luxe spot helped keep takings up and excellent figures were the result. Current takings look generally under the figures for the last fortnight. Century goes back to a single feature policy for this week only.

Great Lakes remains closed, with no announcement as to reopening.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Shea) (3,600; 30-40-55)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MGM) and 'The New Revue' on stage. Getting good start and probably will scale slightly under preceding week's figure at better than $17,000. Last week, 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), and 'The New Yorkers,' unit, good, over $18,000.

Hipp (Shea) (2,400; 25-40)—'Cheer' (Fox). Plenty in publicity and opening business indicates $10,000. Last week, 'Tarzan' (MG), fell off from the estimates, but okay at $8,600.

Century (Shea) (3,400; 25)—'Journal of Crime' (WB). Looks like slow business and will probably not get more than $5,000. Last week, 'Harold Teen' (WB), and 'Lazy River' (MG) failed to develop business despite good anticipations.

Lafayette (Ind.) (3,400; 25)—'Crosby Case' (U), and 'In the Money' (Invincible). Indications that this will be merely an average double feature week, probably $6,000. Last week, 'No Greater Glory' (Col), and 'Charming Deceiver' (Maj), had too much class for the fans and takings fell under $7,000.

ALL 'BOARD FOR CONEY; B'KLYN HOUSES SLUMP

Brooklyn, May 7.

Picture houses in the downtown area are hurt this week by the weather but the Met and Albee will come out okay. Week-end was brutal, with the major portion of the citizenry traipsing to Coney Island for its breath of air and free flashes on Surf avenue.

Paramount is due to close in two weeks. Fox, two blocks away, has a notice on the board that it will shut its doors same time.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus is in town and constitutes another major headache for theatre managers, who are scratching their noodles over poor box office attendance.

Strand cropped its prices this week to a top of 40c and low of two bits. Attendance better with new setup.

Estimates for This Week

Paramount (Par) (4,000; 25-35-50-65)—'Double Door' (Par) and stage show featuring Ethel Merman. Looks like only $9,000, new low. Last week 'Witching Hour' (Par) did $15,000, brodie.

Fox (Conco) (4,000; 25-35-50)—'3 on a Honeymoon' (Fox) and stage show. Falling to a poor $10,500. Last week 'I'll Tell the World' (Fox), $14,500.

Albee (RKO) (3,500; 25-35-50)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Radio) and vaude featuring Aunt Jemima. Picture helpful. Around $17,000, oke. Last week 'As the Earth Turns' (WB) $14,000, weak.

Loew's Metropolitan (Loew) (3,000, 25-35-50)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and vaude featuring Charlie Foy. No great shakes at $20,000 but above average. Last week 'Looking For Trouble' (UA) no better at $14,000.

Strand (WB) 2,000; 25-35-40)—'Twenty Million Sweethearts' (FN). Mebbe $8,000, fairly good at low scale. Last week 'Modern Hero' (WB) $5,500, blah.

Boston, May 7.

With circus opposish ended, Hub show biz breathes the relief sigh, and now only baseball and good weather lure of out-of-doors are to be combated. Plenty pep in this week end's ballyhoo, biggest 'ad' pay-off in about four annums, with Fox, Warners, M-G-M, and Columbia contributing smash space in the papers. Town sure ought to be show-conscious.

Estimates for This Week

Keith's (RKO) (4,000; 25-35-40)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Opening 10 p. m., 3d, with grand ballyhoo fireworks by Charlie Koerner, should get through a seven-day period with $17,500. 'Catherine the Great' (UA), which was in nine days (lacking one show), got $14,000.

Boston (RKO) (4,000; 25-35-40)—'No Greater Glory' (Col), and 'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col). Price down, house advertising 1,500 seats all times at 25 cents, children any time, 15 cents. Only trouble with current bill is that both flickers drippy on sentiment, with very little comedy. Low admish may bring $13,500, gilt-edged. Last week, spot gala at $14,500 with 'Crime Doctor' (Radio), and 'Finishing School' (Radio).

Orpheum (Loew) (3,000; 30-40-50)—'Tarzan' (MG), and vaude. Building to excellent intake, probably $15,000. Last week, 'Men in White' (MG), and vaude, film bringing in the femmes. The brass ring at $15,500.

State (Loew) (3,000; 30-40-50)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Grand splurge by the two Joe's, Brennan and Di Pesa, on advance; good notices on the action stuff from the crix, and mighty pleasing to males. Lack of femme lure looks to hold it down to $11,000, or thereabouts, but very nifty profit at that. Last week, 'Sorrell & Son' (UA) took it on the chin at $8,500.

Met (M&P) (4,330; 30-50-65)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN). Set for reported $40,000. Last week, 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), and Thurston on stage combined for $34,500, fine.

Paramount (M&P) (1,800; 35-45-55)—'Merry Wives of Reno' (WB), and 'Double Door' (Par). Doing fair, and set to garner $7,500. Last week, spot was off at $6,000, with 'As the Earth Turns' (WB), and 'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox).

Tremont (Isaacs) (1,600; 25-30-40)—'Waltz Time' (British), Evelyn Laye import. Estimated $3,500. Last week, same film, $3,800.

Beer, Pretzels, Talking Shorts, Port. Opposish; 'Wild Cargo' 5G, Oke

Portland, Ore., May 7.

'House of Rothschild' (UA) at the United Artist continued to be the best seller. 'Wild Cargo' at the Music Box has had a big publicity campaign, but the b.o. result is doubtful. One such pic, 'Devil Tiger,' shown at the Paramount, was a terrific flop.

Old American reopened under new management with 'Murder at the Crossroads.' This house will hold the large following built up by Ned Lynch.

Sensational business being done at the Columbia Gardens, just opened: Shorts on the daylight screen combined with beer and pretzels is a novelty for Portland. Rather good music and vaude acts round out the bill.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (2,000; 25-40)—'Come on Marines' (Par). Will do well for perhaps $4,500. Last week, 'Death Takes a Holiday' (Par) $5,700. Pretty good.

United Artist (Parker) (1,000; 25-40—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (3rd up). Slowing down slightly, but doing the big biz of the burg, $4,600. Last week, same pic, $7,200.

Paramount (FWC) (3,000; 25-40)—'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Whirlpool' (Col). Combo program should do $3,400. Last week 'We're No. Dressing' (Par) and 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox) dual, registered $3,800.

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,400; 25-35)—'Wild Cargo' (Radio). Has had big exploitation and may get the expected, but Portland turned thumbs down on one animal pic and may do the same with this, perhaps $5,000. Last week 'Gambling Lady' (WB) and 'World Fair Follies' (stage show) did spiffy $6,700.

Pantages (S&M) (1,800; 15-25)—'Manhattan Love Song' (Mono) and vaude. Mig't get $2,000. Last week 'One Year Later' (Maj) and vaude, just so-so. Don Raymond, local who made good, got little extra sugar for the b.o. $2,200.

Oriental (Hamrick) (2,500; 25-35)—'Nana' (UA). First single shown here for some time. Not so hot. $1,800. Last week 'Wharf Angel' (Par) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U). Around $2,300.

French Film House Grosses Drop 13%, but U.S. Originals Pick Up

, April 28.

Combined grosses of 228 film houses in Paris totaled $21,735,050 in 1933, a decline of 2.75% under 1932 and 9.5% under 1931. Number of theatres in 1932, however, was 195 and in 1931, 198.

This amounts to a drop of 13.5% in average annual revenue per seat for the town, which is blamed on the increase in the number of theatres.

Analysis of statistics reveals that naborhoods with low overheads are gaining, and the biggest losers are the deluxers. Notable increase is observed in business done by newsreel hous , in spite of the fact that a lot of new ones were started. This is an indication of the tendency of the public toward cheap admission houses.

Another feature of the figures is that chains, which run programs dictated by controlling producers, are having tougher sledding than the independents who can pick their own, as a result of the increasing select vity of the public.

A cut in admission prices is predicted, as well as a reduction in the rate of opening new cinemas.

Of the 1933 grosses, a total of $4,863,000, or more than 22%, was paid by the theatres in taxes.

Rex Leader

iggest annual gross in town was registered by the 4,000 seater Rex, with $1,790,000, followed by Paramoun with $1,500,000 and Gaumont Palace with a bad $969,000. Paramount figure represents a drop from $1,866,000 in 1932, figured at current exchange rates, which isn't bad, everything considered.

The leader of the houses specializing in foreign language films is George Hirch's Apollo, which uses Warner pics on double bills, and which did more than $422,000 in 1933, about triple of its 1932 gross. Increase in the pull of American pictures in the original is even better illustrated by the record of the Lord Byron, tiny United Artists showcase, which did $226,000 on only 450 seats, and follows immediately after the Apollo in the list of specialized houses. Apollo is eigth in the list of all Paris houses and Lord Byron tenth.

After the Lord Byron in the specialized list comes the Studio de l'Etoile, which shows German films, the Edouard VII, former Fox showcase, and Studio Caumartin, which broke a world endurance record with 'Back Street.'

All grosses are calculated at present dollar rates, and actually represent higher dollar earnings, since the rate was 25 instead of 15 during part of 1933.

CHURCH FOLK WANT CANADA SUNDAY BAN

Toronto, May 7.

Reform element's latest move, and a further headache for theatre managers, is pressure being brought to bear upon Prime Minister Henry by the Presbyterian Church in Canada for banning of Sunday night shows. Claim is that the peasants are out of church at 10:00 p. m. and then proceed in hundreds to a picture house, according to evidence of individual ministers have watched departure their flocks.

Resolution to the Prime Minister contends that 'there is a tendency in the down-town area to break down the sanctity of the Sabbath.'

Fact that theatre employees should work seven nights a week was deplored also, although overtime rates have brought no complaints from cashiers, ushers or projectionists.

Mayor Stewart of Toronto has also been approached to close all shows commencing at five minutes after Sunday midnight.

Eckman, Krisel in N. Y. On Seasonal Confabs

Sam Eckman, Jr., Metro head in England, is 'in New York for a h.o. confab. Expects to stay here about three weeks.

I. Krisel, United Artists' chief in China, is also in New York for his annual o.o.

Radio Gets Fast Start On Par's Distribution

Paris, April 28.

Radio Pictures is getting off with a bang on its new French release plan.

'Flying Down to Rio' opened Friday (27) at the Elysees-Gaumont under title of 'Carioca,' and 'Little Women' is booked for a charity gala sendoff at the Edouard VII May 4 for the benefit of the highly social Junior Guild of the American Cathedral Church of the Holy Trinity.

Both these showcases as among the best in town.

CZECH'S IF MONEY ON FILM SUBSIDIES

Prague, April 24.

New type of government subsidy is being broached here for films. Regular quota system will be contingent permits to all film producers.

Proposition is to offer two contingent permits to all film producer for each picture, after the first, if the pictures are considered good. Then, on top of that, producers will be given a subsidy. If, however, the film turned out is not considered good enough by the government, producer gets nothing and must continue on his own until he makes a film voted okay. Idea is that the subsidy money is to be used for the next picture, rather than to stagger along with on the first thing that comes along.

German Pics Up

Berlin, April 25.

Twenty-five feature films were first-run here during March as compared with 14 during February.

Of these 25 feature films 15 were German and 10 foreign, 4 of which latter were of American origin, 2 French, 1 British, 1 Czecho-Slovakian and 1 Hungarian.

Par Trustees

own intention to sue, certain creditors would.

The resignation of Ralph A. Kohn is generally looked upon throughout the trade as the outcome of the trustees' intention to sue the directorate. As such, Kohn's resignation looks like a compromise effort by the trustees so far as a new deal for Par goes.

It is handed that while Trustees Hilles and Leake may be willing to re-create things at Par, at the suggestion of bankers and creditors, C. E. Richardson, on the other hand figures things should stand as is. Hilles, of course, is completely new to the film biz and Leake's activities have been limited to his presidency of Film Securities Corp., one-time holder of Loew stock under the now famous Chase-Fox-Loew deal.

Richardson Knows

Richardson, on the other hand, has had certain inside experience in the industry. He was on the original financial promotion of the Roxy theatre some seven years ago and later, through Chase Bank, came into the Fox picture, as Chase's internal watcher on Fox finances during Harley L. Clarke's journey into Fox. Richardson stepped out of Fox to become trustee at Par, on the stated inside recommendation of Fox Film officials through J. E. Otterson of Electrical Research Products and Bill Greaves, of Allied Owners. Both the latter firms are large claim holders against Par. This was after Chase picked S. R. Kent to head Fox Film.

However, Richardson had already resigned as treasurer of Fox, so that in going to Par he made his own business detour. Chemical Bank is generally considered sponsor for Leake. Chemical figures largely in connection with the Paramount Broadway Corp., with whom the trustees have made complete settlement, subject to the Court's approval.

'Thunder Over Mexico' Okayed by Mex Gov't

Mexico City, May 4.

Civic picture censors have approved 'Thunder Over Mexico' after some protests. Film is scheduled for exhibition early in May at the Teatro Principal. House thus debuts as a cinema after 200 years of stage shows.

Censors and high government officials viewed the version of Serge Eisenstein's epic of Mexico before it was okayed.

Lack of Name Stars In New German Pics Helps U.S. in Sweden

Stockholm, April 25.

Swedish motion picture business made considerable progress during 1933. Number of Swedish language films produced during the year was relatively small, but the number of copies of these films distributed was notably larger.

Swedish pictures, chiefly because they are in the native language, attract the general public to a much greater extent than films of foreign origin, regardless of the quality of the latter. Leading Swedish producer during 1933 produced films in the Swedish language only, with the exception of one, which was also made in a Norwegian version.

American pictures, which had lost some ground in the Swedish market to German pictures in 1931 and 1932 showed a remarkable gain in popularity compared with German pictures in 1933. Swed sh point of view finds German pictures now too much influenced by new political ideas in Germany and the disappearance from German films of well-known actors because of the anti-Jew thing also handicaps German films.

All American-made films distributed in Sweden in 1933 were in their original language, with sub-titles in Swedish.

TOUGH IMPORT LAW STOPS BULGAR BIZ

Sofia, April 24.

Effects of the import restrictions on motion pictures, established during 1933 in Bulgaria, were increasingly felt and the import trade is almost at a standstill. Due to lack of new films local picture houses are showing old programs, while many theatres have temporarily closed.

At the end of 1933 there were 88 sound equipped picture theatres in the country, as compared with 109 picture houses at the end of 1932. Average seating capacity of theatres is from 300 to 500, and entrance prices range from 5 to 42c. for the large theatres, 5 to 21c for those of medium size, and 4 to 16c for the smaller houses.

Due to lack of capital and competent native artists, no films were produced in Bulgaria during 1933, and as there are no studios equipped for film production, it is not probable that any films will be produced during 1934.

Yank Pics Up in Hague

The Hague, April 26.

1933 was characterized by the very notable gain made in the number of American film showings in this country.

Although a considerable portion of this regained popularity can be termed accidental (the boycott of German films having created a demand for American films in their stead) it is true, nevertheless, that American films also regained considerable of their lost prestige due to the releasing of a number of films which appealed highly to the Dutch public.

ENGAGEMENT CANCELLED

London, April 28.

Father of Victoria Hopper, after one week, has officially announced the engagement between the youthful actress and Basil Dean, manager and director, was cancelled 'by mutual consent.'

Declined to make any further statement.

Decline of Dollar Helps Pic Biz In Orient, but General Trade Off

Shanghai, April 18.

Decline in the American dollar has considerably eased the situation in respect importation of films. As income from the films is in local currency, local companies renting them do not have so much difficulty in meeting drafts drawn on them which are in U. S. dollars. Also, on percentage pictures, ducers are getting more S. dollars.

Business in 1933 was not as good as in 1932 because the Chinese seem to be feeling the depression more keenly. Attendance at theatres all over China has declined considerably, consequently, gross receipts have been less and as most pictures are on a percentage with theatres, the income of the distribs is proportionately less.

Chinese films are making considerable headway, in fact, it is becoming very difficult to release foreign films to third and fourth-run houses. Only action or comedy pictures make any money in these houses, and there are comparatively few of these available.

Manchurian situation has caused considerable loss of business, both in Manchuria and the immediate territory. Business in North China is very bad and the cause may attributed to the trouble in Manchuria. Business does not seem to be improving in the outports; in fact, it seems to be the reverse. In the last few weeks of the year, requests have come to distributors to allow theatres to play a picture three days instead of four, and three-day pictures only two days.

Shanghai has too many theatres, and none of the first-run houses doing the amount of businesss they should.

British films have cut into the business, some in Hongkong, but not to any great extent. They are a factor of comparatively little consequence in Shanghai.

EXHIB'S REVENGE

No Tax Cut So Chancellor Cut Out of News Reels

London, April 28.

Manchester branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association has requested all members to cut out of the current news-reel the showing of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

This is designed as a protest against Chancellor Chamberlain's failure to reduce the entertainment tax. It is said similar action will be taken in the branches embracing Sheffield, Newcastle and Scotland.

So far Chancellor Chamberlain's not reported worrying much.

FOX'S EUROPEAN MEET FOR PRODUCT SETUPS

, April 28.

Fox European managers have returned to their posts after a 10-day conference here with Clayton Sheehan, at which plans for next year were mapped out. Among the pix the crowd looked over were 'Stand Up and Cheer,' George White's 'Scandals' and 'Bottoms Up.'

Those who attended were Carl Nielsen, Scandinavi ; Bruno Fux, Italy; John Mansfield, Balkans and Near East; Peter Brinck, Germany; Carlo Bavetta, France, Belgium, Switzerland and North Africa; Walter Hutchinson, British Isles, and Sydney Haren, Spain.

Fox plans to dub 12 to 15 pictures in France for next season, unless the quota or tax laws make it too expensive or impossible, and also to distribute local mades of which at least three will come from Fred Bacos and more from other producers.

In Spain the total releases planned run up to 40, and in Italy 25. In Germany, considered as a less interesting market, currently, emphasis is placed on local mades, of which four are already prepared and four will come to replace eight American films on the schedule.

Scandinavia, which required no dubbing because natives know all English, will eat up 30 to 40 pictures. Least interesting of Continental markets to Fox is south central Europe, because of language difficulties a.d quotas.

RKO Exec Switch

Sisk's own choice to devote his time to the picture end when the time comes. McDonough, however, is reported to feel that Sisk should remain in control over both departments.

McDonough already has withdrawn as president of RKO theatres, because of his picture company duties. Herman Zohbel replaces him in that capacity. Miller Walker takes Zohbel's place as treasurer of the RKO theatres.

Outside of KAO, the RKO theatre group numbers around 35 theatres. McDonough, for the time being, continues as president of KAO and retains his place as executive v.p. of the parent RKO company, so that in a measure he is still top man next to M. H. Aylesworth.

Heralding of the Zohbel change has been made through notices that he is to be president having been issued to the RKO staff. Zohbel currently retains his post as treasurer of various RKO subsids as formerly.

After the RKO receivership and the bankruptcy of RKO southern and western houses, Zohbel, as trustee, headed both latter outfits for some months.

J. R. McDonough is now on the RKO payroll. That would indicate that McDonough's higherups at RCA have willed that he will henceforth remain at RKO or that McDonough personally has expressed his preference for the picture biz.

OPPOSITION CROWDING SCHLESINGER GROUP

By H. HANSON

Capetown, April 8.

Several cinema owners are breaking away from the African Theatres Trust and securing their programs elsewhere. There has been a rising tide of complaints regarding the attitude taken by the Schlesinger combine in its methods.

Cinema owners paying Schesinger's for pictures are frequently faced by opposition opened up by African Theatres in the same vicinity.

South African office of Metro is doing a big business in film hire, especially since increasing its local product by adding the United Artists list, and is earning the confidence of showmen. With the new concern, Independent Film Distributors, coming into the market also, there is a strong likelihood of new headaches for African Theatres.

Barkas Back

G. De Gruchy Barkas, here on behalf of Gaumont-British in connection with a proposed production of the 'Life Story of Cecil Rhodes,' has completed all preliminary details for the coming technical staff and artists and gone back to England.

'Catherine' Oke

'Catherine the Great' (UA) has been doing exceptionally fine business at the Union Theatres' Royal, here. Capacity business the entire past week and looks like continui a bit.

'Stranger's Return' (Radio) is the next offering penciled in.

Aztec Pix in Mexico

Mexico City, May 2.

Ancient Aztec legends are being used as picture plots by Cultural Films, S.A., a native producer.

Company is making a series of such subjects, first of which is 'Tletonatiuh' ('Son of Fire'), a tale of doings in 1427. Production is being directed by Manuel R. Ojeda. Ross Fisher, late of Hollywood, is cameraman.

Double Featuring, Prod. Shortage Worry Japan; Silents Still Lead

By BURTON CRANE

Tokyo, April

Double-featuring and shortage of product is playing hob with run pretensions of Tokyo Shochiku has three (sometimes rst-runners in the city. Nippon Gekijo and Hibiya Gekijo, new houses, are first-runners or nothyear year turned talkers. Add to these imports from abroad and you have only 326 features, some of them pretty bad. With double features, each chain or big house needs at least 100 a year on a weekly-change basis. Thus, with 326 available, 400 definitely needed and 500 wanted, plenty of dogs have been wished on the public in recent weeks.

First-run rentals naturally have rushed upward, but film exchange men here declare that second-run revenue has eased off.

Shochiku remains in the best position, of course, since it has so many houses, but Paramount worked out a system for the Hibiya Gekijo which may be the solution for others. It sold a bloc of 12 films to this relatively small house under an arrangement which allowed the house to dispose of second-run rights to three other theatres, house to make the bargains and collect the cash. Hibiya Gekijo was so crazy for decent product, after playing a flock of European turkeys and American programmers, that it paid a price bettering what Shochiku was accustomed to pay for similar pictures. Started the new policy with 'Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen' (Par) and 'The Bowery' (UA) to best business since it opened. Both pix held over for a second week.

No Hurry

Japanese producers refuse to be rushed into this talker thing. Can't be sure the market exists. Last year total attendance at Japan's film houses was only 175,041,793, which means the average house played to fewer than 102,000 persons at admissions averaging below 12c. A gross of $11,900 a year will pay for mighty few expensive talker installations.

So far only 391 are wired, including all the big houses but, if they're going to continue making money, the big producers must continue to make silents for the 1,300-odd houses which haven't been able to afford it. Last year turned out but 38 talkers and 17 sound-effect features, compared to 20 and 21, respectively, in 1932. This year's schedule calls for 78, but the start has been slow.

Result of all this is that the best theatres all have to play imported film, unless they want to use Japanese dumbies. Nikkatsu has been doing a good bit of this, but is understood to be about to inaugurate a new policy. Audiences which have grown used to talk on screens don't seem to like silents so much as they did. Imports last year were: Paramount, 60; Metro, 45; Universal, 34; Fox, 31; Warners-First National, 30; United Artists, 23; RKO, 12; Tobis, 12; Columbia, 10; Soviet, 4; Independent German, Independent American, 2; French, 2; British, 2; Italian, 1—total, 271.

Jap Producti

Last year Japanese production of silent features fell 27%. In 1932 production of features was 570, including 41 sound films. Last year it was 452, including 55 sound.

Average production cost for a silent feature is said to be below $5,000. Talkers cost about twice as much. Producers work on a stock company basis, in two divisions. One division does modern stuff, mostly about dance hall hostesses or bar girls getting tangled up with college boys, heavy on the heart throbs and sacrifice motifs. The other does old-fashioned sword-fighting melodramas, as close as you can get to a horse opera with neither a horse or a six-gun. Strangely enough, the cut-and-slash features outnumbered the modern pictures last year, rising 43 over 1932.

Last year 'King Kong' (Radio) and 'Magura' were the biggest hits among the imports. 'Maedchen in Uniform' was a surprise sensation. This year 'The Invisible Man' (U) has been the best. This year's record should also include 'City Lights' (UA), which didn't make much money for the first-runners, due to high rentals, but seems to be mopping up for the nabe houses, who still love Chaplin. Currently playing in 17 Tokyo locations.

NEW SPANISH CUSTOM NSG FOR U. S. PIX

Madrid, April 25.

Newest European quota headache for American filmers will probably come from here. Talk for past year of a quota law restricting entrance of foreign language films, with especial reference to the Americans, seems to be coming to a head. Definite quota law proposal has now been put forth by the Cinematographic Council and likely to be made law shortly, council being officially appointed by the government.

Law as proposed is a tricky one in that it would completely bar the showing of pictures with superimposed titles, as well as pictures dubbed outside of Spain. That, on the face of it, doesn't seem too tough, but actually is a complete body blow since showing of English language films without titles is hopeless, there not being enough available customers who understand the language.

Several of the more important European powers have enacted laws within the past couple of years to bar dubbed product not made within the countries, so that phase of the proposed law is not unexpected. Several U. S. companies, as a matter of fact, already have the nucleus of dubbing plants here. If, however, they must dub all their films to show them it will be considerable of a blow since the market isn't figured big enough to allow of that.

There is a further clause proposed to the effect that at least 5% of the films shown in theatres in Spain must be original Spanish productions, meaning that foreign companies will have to do a bit of producing here to fill out their programs.

London, May 7.

British International has named Lou Metzger as its new representative for the U. S. Metzger is now in London but will return to New York within a week or two to assume activities.

HUNNIA BUSY; PROD. SET FOR THREE MOS.

Budapest, April 26.

Work is scheduled at Hunnia Studios for the coming three months at least.

Universal, with Joe Pasternak acting production manager, is now at work on 'Spring Parade', new Francy Gaal picture. Although Vienna is within easy reach, Pasternak prefers to build a Vienna set at the Budapest studio than to take shots in Vienna itself because sound equipment is better here and production appreciably cheaper. No Hungarian version will be made.

Next on schedule is another musical, a screen version of 'Homely Girl', operetta by Vadnay and Markush. Irene Biller is to play the lead. She's acted in pictures in Hollywood. Total expense is figured at less than $30,000. Geze Czlfra will direct.

'Romance of Ida', which cost $25,000 and was finished in a fortnight, is doing good business, which is making angels keen on having a shot at film biz. 'Ida' is a pretty weak picture, but attracts patronage because it's a home-made article with actors popular from the stage.

After 'Homely Girl', Irene Biller may play the lead in 'New Relative', adapted from successful play by Kalman Csatho, ith Bela Gal directing.

Istvan Szekely will probably direct 'Purple Acacias' with his wife, Irene Agay, in the star part after that. This will be an adaptation of Erno Szep's novel.

Another picture, 'Liszt Rhapsody', of topical interest on account of that composer's contenary, will probably be made at Hungaria Studios.

U. S. EASING UP ON FOREIGN PIX IMPORTS

New and highly important ruling has been made by the U. S. Treasury Department as regards the importation of films. New rule gives importers in the U. S. permission to bring in films under a six months' exhibition bond without the payment of duty or other charges. In the past pictures could be screened under bond but no more than that, involving considerable expense and difficulty to the importers as well as the European producers.

As a result of a plea by Gaumont-British, permit is now extended under section 308 of the 1930 Tariff Act. This six-month stanza, furthermore, may be prolonged another half year occasionally by special permission.

Pictures brought in under the new ruling, to be considered solely as samples, cannot under any circumstance be sold and must be exported before the expiration of the bond under customs' supervision. During the interim the importer may keep it and screen it as often as he wishes to prospective distributors for the purpose of accepting orders for other copies of it or making distribution deals of any sort.

Decision is expected to have a far-reaching effect, as previously importers and foreign producers have limited themselves on picture importations to avoid unnecessary costs. Prints have frequently come over and been shipped back several times, being shown only once under bond at the custom office. Also frequently foreign producers have gone to the expense of paying duty and other charges and bringing a film in which was found later to be unsalable.

With the advent of the Hitler regime in Germany especially the situation became difficult for the U. S. importers since the market European films dropped considerably, lessening cash availability.

Showdown on French Quota Fight Nearing; Delac's Tariff Increase Idea, from 26c to $6.60 a Meter

April 28.

Uneasy feeling of American distribs here grows more intense as showdown on current quota fight approaches and French producers' determination to combat American competition by any means gathers force. Plans for next season's releases, which should be maturing now, are being held in the indefinite stage because no one can tell how many films it will be possible to put on the French market, nor how much they will cost.

Latest modification of the quota system to be suggested in feelers sent out by the French trade leaders involves multiplying the customs duty on imported film 25 times for all pix over a certain number brought into France. Proposition was put forth by Charles Delac, head of the Chambre Syndicale, in informal conversation.

Delac proposes that American producers split 100 films among them next year for France, and that the limiting be done by increasing the assessment of $1.40 a meter on imported film to $33 a meter for all film over the 100. Importers pay 20% ad valorem over the assessment, so that the duty paid on excess film under this arrangement would be $6.60, instead of a little over 26 cents, per meter. This, the French figure, with considerable justification, would keep the extra films out of the country.

Easy To Do

Idea could be put into effect without new legislation because the Chambre Syndicale can recommend to the customs authorities the value to be set on imported film for customs purposes. Delac would thus be called in as an expert appraiser.

Total imports that he favors for next year is 125 films, the 25 to be split among German and English producers and the rest going to America. American trade wants at least 200 all to itself, and figures it needs that much in order to do business properly.

In return for the acceptance of a reduction and his tariff scheme, Delac—still unofficially—offers to put an end to dual billing, which has started to become a real nightmare to the American distribs here. In the provinces particularly the exhibs are insisting on second features. For American concerns with full distributing branches here who supply complete programs, this is a terrible smack to profits. They can't get any bigger return from two features, a newsreel and a short, than they used to get from a one-feature program, because most of their booking is on a percentage basis.

Delac offers to end this as a reply to the American argument that a larger quota is necessary because of the dual bill movement. As a concession it wouldn't cost the French much, of course, since their own producers are suffering as much from the movement as are the Amercans.

Besides the able diplomatic combat being discreetly waged by the Hays office, the American reps who are in a position to do so are threatening to cut down their local production if importing is reduced. One outfit plans to sponsor the spending of about $8,000,000 on local mades this year, which won't come through if the imported product to drape around these pix is cut down, they threaten. Americans also point out the large sums spent in dubbing in France—more than $10,000 a picture.

French viewpoint is expressed in the annual report to stockholders of Pathe by Bernard Natan, which says, 'You ought to know about foreign competition—it is formidable. We are submerged by American films.'

French View

A stockholder asked Natan at the annual meeting what the quota was doing about this, to which Natan replied:

'The quota's a joke. It is badly organized and the system is badly carried out, in the interests of no one knows whom. Maybe it is going to be changed. Let's hope so.'

According to those who are in the midst of the fight, the whole quota situation in E better handled if the entire continent was taken as a unit, as to policy, by the companies involved.

As is, agents in countries like Spain or Czechoslovakia, are fighting the quota menace on their own. Each is jealous of the other and of other agents of the same company, and in consequence the industry does not present a united front. If continental managers, who are becoming more and more concentrated in Paris, could handle the fight all together, dictating policies for the industry as a whole to outlying agents, it is now considered that the struggle would be easier.

PATHE-NATAN'S ALLIANCE WITH FOX

Paris, April 28.

Removal of Fred Bacos' business from Paramount's Joinville studios in favor of Pathe is not only based on a better rental price offered by Pathe, but is another symptom of the sort of loose alliance between Fox, which distributes Bacos' production, and Bernard Natan, Pathe chief.

Fox is a tenant of Pathe's Marignan building on the Champs Elysees, and has been placing a number of films lately in Pathe houses, including Lilian Harvey's 'Suzanne,' now in its fifth week at the Imperial, and recently Pommer's 'Man Stolen' at the Marignan, all Pathe Paris houses. Marignan was also used for a press showing of the second Pommer picture, 'Liliom.'

Big idea, from Fox's viewpoint, seems to be to place a maximum of next season's releases in the Pathe chain. Paramount previously had been ogling Pathe, but Fox used the studio angle to get an in. Nothing is fixed nor exclusive about the relationship, however.

HITLER COMPLICATION IN GERMAN PIC SUIT

Because an American exhib contracted for a German film prior to the advent of the Hitler regime and he couldn't use it afterward is no reason for his not paying for the picture, it was decided in a New York court last week by Judge Kahn in City Court, New York.

Judge Kahn found for Praesantz, and Attorney Mayer, with a view to good sportmanship settled with Goldberg for $1,000.

Point was brought up in a suit by Praesentz Film Co. of Germany, a company incorporated in Switzerland, against European Film Co., of 154 West 55th St., New York. William Goldberg, head of European, had contracted for U. S. distribution rights to 'Tannenburg,' German film, but with the Hitler thing he felt that the market for German dialog films had fallen too much. He had agreed to pay a minimum of $1,500 for the picture against a percentage.

In the court action Goldberg pleaded that the film, as he received it, was mutilated and had been changed in several technical sequences from the manner in which he had originally seen and bought it.

Counsel for the German firm, Bert Mayer of Fitelson & Mayer, told the judge that despite the legal arguments, Goldberg was trying to rid himself of the film because of the anti-German feeling in this country. He went on to explain that he sympathized with Goldberg's situation but that the German firm involved also is of Jewish origin and needs the money now, plus the fact that notwithstanding what situations arose after purchase the contract had been legally made in good faith by Praesants film.

20TH CENTURY

Columbia production and release. John Barrymore starred; Carole Lombard featured. Directed by Howard Hawks. Adapted by Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht from stage play adapted by them from story by Charles Milholland. Gene Havlick, film editor. Joseph August, photog. At Music Hall, New York, week May 3. Running time, 91 mins.

Oscar Jaffee.....John Barrymore

O'Malley.....Roscoe Karns

John Barrymore, who stars, is quoted in the Music Hall's house ads as saying, 'I've never done anything I like as well... a role that comes once in an actor's lifetime.' Which is wholly believable; the role as it shows up on the screen, and after the cutting that must have been done, still looks like a field day for the profile guy.

It's Barrymore's picture, no doubt of that, with something left over for Carole Lombard, who manages to shine despite practically stooging. But whether it will prove a customer-s picture on general release seems doubtful. For all its good points, and it has sevcral, there are numerous bad ones, and the latter tends to make it a long shot for grosses outside the large cities that that boast a cosmopolitan clientele. For the rest of the country it will need extra campaigning. The laughs are certainly there, but they must have selling.

Bad point No. 1 is the very nature of its plot, a departure in detail but not in theory from the legit original of last season, which had a fair run on Broadway. '20th Century' appears limited to two minor groups of auditors—the theatrical bunch that has known counterparts of Oscar Jaffee, eccentric impresario (played by Barrymore), and that portion of the lay public that appreciates and understands trade satire. The first group never supported any show venture, stage or screen, and the latter is too much in the minority to count at the box office.

Good points are the breathless pace of the picture, probably due equally to the adaptation by MacArthur-Hecht and the direction of Howard Hawks—and Barrymore. Give Barrymore a chance to go off his nut, not too much, but just enough, and it's a pleasure. Producer Jaffee, who not only goes off his nut, but stays off for 91 solid minutes, is a character that's right up his foyer.

In the show the action commenced on the train and remained there, but for the finale in Grand Central terminal. In the picture it doesn't board the train until about the third reel. For the first section the Hecht-MacArthur team performed some expert plot-grafting and the result is that the addition to the original classes with the original itself. But while successful in the manner that it blends with the original, the additional literature is unsuccessful in that it fails to bring the original down to the level of average comprehension.

In the first half the authors paint their puppets and plant their dynamite, meanwhile keeping it interesting (for those who will get it) with racy dialog, fast action and biting satire. On the train the theme is carried out, only the action is still speedier.

For those not knowing in advance what it's all about, the action, despite its quality of pace, is likely to prove confusing to anyone walking in after the beginning of the picture. Because a large percentage of picture house patrons walk in at any point in the running, this picture's drawbacks in that respect are bound to cause trouble.

Those who see the picture from the beginning probably will find a reasonable amount of sense in the subsequent happenings. At the opening the characters are drawn logically and clearly enough. They're a pack of legits led by a wild-eyed gent, who in any line of endeavor other than theatrical producing and directing would surely be classed as a madman. There's no midway explanation for the wild man's antics. If they don't get the characterizing at the start, they won't get it at all.

Lily Garland (Lombard) walks out on Producer Jaffee to go Hollywood shortly after he makes her, double, and that happens early in the picture. From then on it's a chase. Jaffee goes broke trying to land another Lily Garland and Lily goes big in Hollywood. The way Jaffee and his boys try to frame Lily into comine back into the legit fold paves the road for some of the craziest trouping since 'Dr. Dippy's Sanitarium' was mothballed with other noted full stage dramatic sketches of the past. Barrymore is given the opportunity to do such things as imitate a camel while describing a scene in the 'Passion Play' he's going to put on.

Miss Lombard, looking very well, must take Barrymore's abuse as his mistress and hand-made star for the first few hundred feet, but when she goes temperamental herself she's permitted to do some head-to-head temperament punching with him. But the beautifully dialoged scrapping scenes may prove too insidestuffy.

There's fine support for Barrymore from Walter Connolly, Roscoe Karns and Etienne Girador. Karns has the press agent part which had the cream tag lines in the stage version, but which has shrunk away from Bill Frawley, Raiph Forbes too tough for the star. Ralph Forbes as an American society boy and exfootballer, talks too much English for his assignment and strikes the only sour note on the casting sheet. Bige.

DOUBLE DOOR

Paramount production and release. Features Mary Morris, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor and Sir Guy Standing. Directed by Charles Vidor. Play from which this film was taken was a mild success early in the current season, which may help it somewhat in New York. It won't help much, however, and nothing will help it outside of New York. It's a dull, drab, and extremely incredible yarn.

Idea of presenting a female menace is a pretty good one and, had it been carried out more successfully, might have been an interesting novelty for screen purposes. But no attempt was made to give it any light or comedy relief for even a moment—picture is heavy from the first foot—and performers are all permitted to overstrain for effects. Having, of course, the opposite effect of arousing incredibility, to which, added the film has not a single draw name for marquee purposes.

Story has to do with a bitter, heartless spinster occupying a Fifth Avenue mansion and objecting to the intrusion of outsiders into her family life. Her brother marries a girl and the spinster takes it upon herself to make the girl so unhappy and uncomfortable as to almost drive her insane. Eventually it leads to the big scene in which she locks the girl up in a secret vault and leaves her there to die. Of course, she's found in the nick of time and the spinster defeated in her designs and thoroughly that she commits suicide.

That's the story and there isn't a single moment of levity or light. Mary Morris, who did the main part in the stage version, also does it on the screen. She's a capable schooled performer but constantly underlines her performance so much that she's not believable except in a few moments. What acting honors there are go to Evelyn Venable as the outside girl. Anne Revere as the younger spinster sister, Kent Taylor as the boy and Colin Tapley as the fiendly physician all overact. Sir Guy Standing handles a smaller role as the family lawyer credibly and Halliwell Hobbes shines in a short character bit.

Production is fairly pretentious but here, too, the film falls down, photography being extremely poor and cutting far from perfect. Kauf.

EVERGREEN

(BRITISH MADE)

London, April 24.

Gaumont-British production and release. Directed by Victor Saville. In cast: Jessie Matthews, Sonnie Hale, Betty Balfour. Running time, 92 mins. Previewed Prince Edward theatre, London, April 23.

There are those who have never regarded Jessie Matthews, Sonnie Hale or Ivor MacLaren as film artists—merely musical comedy players who were utilized as flicker luminaries on the strength of their stage reputations. Their performances in 'Evergreen' entirely dispsates such an erroneous opinion, however, and forever.

Jessie Matthews has the name part which she created on the stage at the Adelphi. The screen adaptation and dialog, by Emlyn Williams is, for picture purposes, a better story than the stage version. It is more definite and coherent. Benn Levy and Larry Hart wrote the original musical for C. B. Cochran.

In 1909 (this is the plot) Harriet Green is London's pet singing comedienne, making her farewell appearance at the old Tivoli prior to her marriage to a marquis. That night the father of her child, whom she believed to be dead, turns up and demands blackmail. She places the baby girl in the charge of a faithful maid and disappears.

Twenty-five years later the daughter seeks a job in the chorus and is recognized by the mother's old understudy, now the widow of an ancient lord. Daughter is foisted on the public as the original Harriet Green and starred in an elaborate musical. This gives scope for Edwardian and modern costuming and ample advantage was taken of the opportunities.

An intelligent and munificent bid to compete with recent Hollywood musical talkies was attempted, and the effort succeeded to a greater degree than anything of the kind essayed in an English studio.

But it is the astonishingly competent performances by the principals that is most impressive. They embrace, in addition to the first named, Betty Balfour and Barry MacKay, and all good.

A strong contender for American recognition. At the trade show, the unusual interruption of a burst of applause occurred three times. Jolo.

NO GREATER GLORY

Columbia production and release. Directed by Frank Borzage. Ferenc Molnar, story; Jo Swerling, screen play; Louis Borzage, asst. dir.; Jos. August, camera. At the Roxy, N. Y., one week commencing May 4. Running time, 78 mins.

Nemecek.....George Breakston

Race.....Egon Brecher

Back in 1929 a German-made version of Ferenc Molnar's book, 'The Paul Street Boys,' was released under that title, first showing at the 55th Street Cinema. It made quite a stir in the art circles, and since then several proposals have been made to offer an English version. It remained for Columbia, probably under the urge of Frank Capra, to take a sporting chance that it might be the enormous hit anticipated. It was make or break, and outside of some unimportant rentals it probably will be the latter. Molnar, in the original text, may have written another 'Liliom,' but it did not translate that way.

Arty pictures have seldom registered strong scores at the box office, and this story seems to have more than the usual obstacles to hurdle. The chief is that it's a story of and by boys, the few adults figuring only as a background. The youngsters work hard, but even the more experienced seem unable to bring real appeal. Moreover, it is but feebly able to get over the presumptive argument that there is no greater glory than to die for one's country. In this instance it is a lumber yard, used by the Paul Street Boys as a playground, coveted by a rival gang, whose own rendezvous is threatened. The objective is unimportant to the adult mind because the children fail to convey the suggestion of the deadly earnestness with which they engage in this war in miniature. Moreover, the American mind is not steeped with the militarism inherent in the German lads through generations of forced-draft patriotism. It is out of sympathy with this important phase, which motivates the mimic struggle. The scenarist has been able to do nothing to plant this idea and even the reliable Frank Borzage has been unable to imbue the story with the charm which alone could save it.

For a moment at the opening it would seem that the desired atmosphere would be created as the schoolmaster, in the ranks, and wounded, rails against war. But the next scene finds him in the more modern day once more preaching the glories of war to a roomful of lads who do not need his urge. It was born within them.

After that it becomes merely a recording of the progress of two neighborhood gangs, using the word in its better sense. There is a traitor within the ranks who betrays their secrets, but who recants and is taken back into full confidence, but the story centers around a neurotic boy whose ambition is to be an officer, but whose stature keeps him in the ranks; the lone private. In an effort to win his rank he goes with two older boys to recapture the Paul Street flag. He is drenched, first in a stream, then in a fountain bowl, and, finally, in a torrential rain. He develops a cold which turns into pneumonia. The boys, regretful, give him his coveted promotion, and the boy, delirious, struggles from his bed to take part in the decisive fight. He dies as he wrests the Paul Street flag from the not unwilling hands of the opposition leader. As the little soldiers sound taps for their dead comrade a steam shovel bites into their playground. They have lost the ground for which they fought. The struggle was in vain. Deep symbolism, but to the average mind, not attuned to the symbolic, it puts a final touch of futility to what has seemed a rather senseless story, since throughout both author and scenarists have struggled for symbolism rather than for frank boy-spirit.

Production has been handsomely made, though with one or two obvious studio sets that are unconvincing. Practically all of the Hollywood boy stars have been enlisted, and they try hard to respond to the director, but without result. It is too seldom that they are permitted to act like real boys. The dialog must cater to the general idea of the theme.

George Breakston is effective, in a way, as the young hero who gives his life to 'the cause,' but he is shown to react through hysteria, and this militates against the value of his part. Jimmy Butler and Frankie Darro are the most nearly human of the group, with Jackie Searle once more the victim of his ability to play the youthful sneak convincingly.

Adult roles are admirably played, but they amount to nothing. It's all up to the boys—and they can't overcome their handicaps. Chic.

Manhattan Melodrama

Cosmopolitan production and Metro release. Stars Clark Gable, William Powell and Myrna Loy. David O. Selznick, producer. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Story by Arthur Caesar; screen play, Oliver H. P. Running time, 93 mins.

'Manhattan Melodrama' is big boxoffice. Apart from the Gable-Powell stellar duo and Myrna Loy, who does an excellent job as the principal femme, the Arthur Caesar story is replete with punchy popularly-appealing ingredients. The fast, crisp, intelligent dialog further enhances it.

That it is possibly a bit verbose in its unfolding; that the basic situation is obviously not an entirely original thought; that the melodramatics are at times synthetic—all this must go by the boards in view of the technical fortifications in this flicker. Sometimes is that good that it is almost wholly unbelievable. Most often it is totally real and realistic; and those times where the tongue-in-cheek impression arises are agreeably eased over because the auditor would want it so.

True there is much to 'Manhattan Melodrama' that's very ten-twenthirt. True also that from the time of the memorable S. S. Slocum disaster in 1904 up until the action becomes contemporaneous there seems to be some extraneous footage, but the wisdom of sparing the audience even with those 93 minutes in mind—becomes evident when the climatic situation is projected. That's when the district attorney must send his boyhood pal to the electric chair.

There are a couple of spots where perhaps Gable as the too suave scoundrel is glorified a bit, but there are also many offsetting speeches by Powell as the D.A. as he charges the jury to remember that there's no longer a public sympathy with the bootleggers because of the popular opinion against the Volstead act; that with repeal there's no necessity for any aggrandizement of the outlaw any longer.

There are also a couple of somewhat banal spots such as Papa Rosen (George Sidney) adopting the two tough mick kids (Gable and Powell) because his own Morris was drowned in the Slocum disaster. Or, for example, where Papa Rosen in the first is derided the Russian red agitator (and gets trampled to death by the riot squad for his patriotism) but it all combines into good b.o.

The footage breathes prime regard for benefit of box office and such it bids fair to achieve.

The realism is impressed via the inclusion of contemporaneous public figures, names, places, sports occasions and the like.

The captiousness embraces such incidents as the Governor's wife (Loy) visiting the prisoner (Gable) in the Tombs. Or the inevitable 'Last Mile' business in the death house with the colored convict, the surcharged atmosphere of bravado, etc. But in toto 'Manhattan Melo-

Miniature Reviews

'20th Century' (Col). Smart comedy, made so by Hecht-MacArthur script and John Barrymore's keen performance, but probably too smart for general consumption.

'Double Door' (Par). Heavy drama from the stage and not likely to get anywhere at the b.o. because overstrained.

'No Greater Glory' (Col). An unsuccessful effort to Americanize an old German production. Lacks the anticipated appeal. Not for the general trade, but a prospective hit in the arties.

'Manhattan Melodrama' (Metro). Action meller of the big town with Gable, Powell and Myrna Loy for marquee draft and a commercial semi-gangster-politico yarn to outfit them.

The Poor ich (U). Promising comedy well played, but doomed to the family trade by overstress. Should please there.

'Success at Any Price' (Radio). Good dialog job and some laughs soften the complaints against this draggy story. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. tops cast.

'Three On A Honeymoon' (Fox). ZaZu Pitts goes a long way, but not quite far enough to boost this final one across.

'Orders Is Orders' (G-B). Despite Greenwood-Gleason's importation, this British-made is better histrionically from its native end, but otherwise inferior for American consumption.

'Whirlpool' (Col). The Jack Holt name isn't the biggest b.o. lure in the business but here he's in a good little father-daughter story that will entertain. Ending may disappoint most, however.

'Unknown Valley' (Col). A pleasent surprise from Buck Jones. Different and better entertainment than the average western.

Talking Shorts

'THE NEW HIGHWAY'
10 Mins.
Westminster Cinema, N. Y.
Gainsborough-GB

This is really a commercial short. It's a free ad for Imperial Airways and patently subsidized by that well-organized aerial passenger service. To the credit of Gainsborough, which produced, and Gaumont-British, which releases, it must be said that it's done with as much restraint as possible. What's more, it's all very interesting whether it concerns Imperial Airways or whether it's a visualization of how TWA (in America) or any other passenger flight service maintains contact with the ground guides for purposes of safety and general efficiency.

That commercial shorts such as this are a usual thing in England is because they can't get any money for shorts as ordinary film-booked material. They are thrown in as a unit with the feature. Hence, as at this N. Y. theatre devoted to an all-British film policy, G-B books in the features and the supporting show of shorts. Abel.

LITTLE JACK LITTLE REVUE
Singing, Musical
8 Mins.
Rialto, N. Y.
Paramount

Entertaining, compact little short under a reel's length in which the talent is Littie Jack Little, Gypsy Nina and the Do-Re-Mi Girls. Can keep company with the best.

Little Jack Little opens with a few of his own compositions, sandwiching a piano bit. He photographs well and records' sweetly. Do-Re-Mi Girls follow him in an Hawaiian pop, short cutting to scenery of the islands for atmosphere. This is also done for the close when all of the talent works on 'Something About a Soldier' and scenes of military parades are effectively brought into play.

In between Little sings 'I Raise My Hat' and Miss Nina chortles 'Champagne Waltz,' playing her own accordion solo. C.-ar.

'OXFORD'
Educational
5 Mins.
Westminster Cinema, N. Y.
Gaumont-British

Uninspired travelog into England's most historic university with the audible commentary mildly interesting. British-made, this world-famed institution of learning could be made a highly marketable short subject, but not as under the G-B treatment and that inept British Acoustic sound.

Viewed at this all-British film house it's suited chiefly for that policy. Abel.

VOYAGEUR TRAILS
Scenic
10 Mins.
Westminster Cinema, N. Y.
Canadian Govt.

This is a cuffo short for any theatre. It's an official Canadian Govt. scenic for obvious purposes of tourist propaganda. Actually it's a passive scenic that's not likely to inspire any great yearn for the Canadian fish-streams depicted, as that's not sufficiently specific a geographic appeal.

Cinephone sound and inept oratory in the off-screen spieling. Abel.

ELMER STEPS OUT

Comedy

Columbia

Old hoke of mixing monkeys for children in one of those family mix-ups which Sennett made famous in the silent days. This one isn't so good, despite Walter Catlett's strong efforts. Photography is simple. Not for particular audiences, but the minor programs can't be hurt with it. Shan.

drama' will never bore, and please generally.

Gable and Powell and Miss Loy are thoroughly believable in most spots. Leo Carrillo is best of the supporting cast as the east side padre. Nat Pendleton as the dumb lug henchman is one of those characterizations not as effective here for the comedy relief as in the past. Ditto for his dumb Dora girl-friend. Mickey Rooney and Jimmy Butler in the juve portions are tiptop. Shirley Ross is the colored warbler who handles the lone Rodgers-Hart song in the picture (which means little) in the Cotton Club setting.

3 ON A HONEYMOON

Fox production and release. Directed by James Tinling. Sally Eilers, ZaSu Pitts, featured. Adapted by Edward T. Lowe, Douglass Doty and Raymond Van Sickle from novel 'Promenade Deck,' by Ishbel Ross. Dances by Dave Gould. Joseph Valentine, photog. At Fox, Brooklyn, week May 4. Running time, 70 minutes.

Joan Foster	Sally Eilers
Alice Mudge	ZaSu Pitts
'Ma' Gillespie	enrietta Crosman
Dick Charlton	Charles Starrett
Millicent Wells	Irene Hervey
Chuck Wells	John Mack Brown
Ezra MacDuff	Russell Simpson
Phil Lang	Cornelius Keefe

ZaSu Pitts almost but not quite saves this one with the laughs she creates, but a complete save is too much to ask even of that first class comedienne. 'Three On a Honeymoon,' whose title is a misnomer, doesn't get bevond the double bill level.

Story is a reminder of most of the details contained in the numerous takeoffs on the 'Grand Hotel' plot method. A quasi-character study and, like two or three of its predecessors, laid on an ocean liner. Some of the details are too remindful for comfort.

Sally Eilers, as the spoiled daughter of a steamship magnate, is the motivating character. There really is a pair of honeymooners, as the title states, but there's lots more than three on the cruise. Almost the whole passenger list somehow becomes involved in the honeymoon. At the finish there are two more honeymoon couples, Miss Eilers pairing off with the handsome Second Officer (Charles Starrett), while Miss Pitts and Russell Simpson hook up for comedy purposes.

It's all about the spoiled and tomboyish young lady's trip to get away from a nagging step mother, and the efforts of the young ship's officer to carry out an assignment—that of chaperoning the boss' daughter. There's some crook stuff and a suicide during the trip, not very exciting, but all under the heading of necessary padding.

Misses Eilers and Pitts, co-featured, are pretty and comical, respectively. Henrietta Crosman, a proficient comedy sideline sitter-inner through considerable past experience with such roles, again sits in as the sporting old lady who keeps the several sets of lovers in good humor with her wise cracks, and patches up their little quarrels. When Miss Crosman refuses to accept the lovers' spats seriously, she voices the likely sentiment of the picture's audiences.

There's a brief but interesting display of the ship's mechanical departments, but otherwise the photography sticks to formula for boat dramas. One of the two scenes off the ship is set in an Algerian cafe, where a coochi dancing girl performs some well staged dance formations, and an unbilled brunet sings the chorus of a song. Bige.

ORDERS IS ORDERS

(BRITISH MADE)

Gaumont-British production and release starring Charlotte Greenwood and James Gleason; Cyril Maude featureed. Directed by Walter Forde. Story by Ian Hay and Anthony Armstrong; screen play, Sidney Gilliat and Leslie Arliss; additional dialog by Gleason. Unit production manager, Victor Peers; assistant directors, Bryan Wallace, Frank Cohen; camera, Glen MacWilliams. At Westminster Cinema, N. Y., week May 2. Running time, 60 mins.

Waggermeyer	James Gleason
The Colonel	Cyril Maude

British-made patently primed for the U. S. market but nix for this side despite its obvious Anglo-American hybridizing. Will not do for anything but the arties or a house such as the Westminster Cinema (former Charles Hopkins legit house on West 49th, N. Y.) with its all-British film policy.

It had a good idea which never materialized. Probably read great on paper but never was fruitfully capitalized. Idea of a Hollywood film company moving into a British barracks for a cinematic location was designed to satirize Hollywood's bombast and fumbles, but evolved into a pointless and very obvious farce.

Motivation by which the Hollywood film company on location near the barracks is enabled to turn His Majesty's army topsy-turvy is very Macksennett. The o. k. to 'go as far as you like' refers to another military problem—that of combatting the marauding rats on the commissary. Instead the colonel in charge of the Royal Loamshires figures that the brigadier-general has approved the idea of the American film company using the British troops as on-the-cuff extras for the military picture being made.

Rest of the comedy is a film-within-a-film. Some of the comedy comes from the screen dialog of the daily rushes, seemingly replying impudently to the colonel's interrogations.

Best that can be said for this G-B is that Cyril Maude and most of the native cast eclipse the American imported. Maude is particularly staple as the colonel. Ian Hunter and Cedric Hardwicke likewise register and, if never before in Hollywood, suggest west coast possibilities. Jane Carr as the femme lead is as light as her assignment, that of the colonel's daughter.

Gleason is the slangy, impudent, boorish, hoggish director from Hollywood who, given a barracks, takes the whole British army. Miss Greenwood is cast as his wise-woman and general assistant. She, too, wears the same burlesque-checkered suits that her director-boss wears and is always on tap with a gramophone to appropriately set the motif and locale of any action, be it Bombay, Moorish or British. It's all to accompanying disk recordings.

The satirizing on American film manners and methods, if not particularly complimentary, is done with restraint and little offense. As is obvious, the G-B hope was that via the importation of the Greenwood-Gleason stellar duo and its subject matter it would find a more extensive Anglo-American market. But the idea died aborning at Shepherd's Bush Studios, London, where the film was shot under Walter Forde's direction.

As is a common fault with almost every British-make, the sound is bad. It's bad not alone because the English dialect is basically foreign to the American ear, but it's technically poor. The sound crane seldom seems to move with the action so that walking to or away from any given position always brings a diminuation of sound one way or the other. Abel.

WHIRLPOOL

Columbia production and release. Stars Jack Holt, with Jean Arthur, Donald Cook, Allen Jenkins and Lila Lee in support. Directed by Woy William Neill. Story by Howard Emmett Rogers. Adaptation by Dorothy Howell and Ethel Hill. Film editor, Richard Cahoon. Photography by Benjamin Kline. At Casino, N. Y., week starting Friday, May 4. Running time, 60 mins.

Buck Rankin	Jack Holt

Majority audience interest may find disappointment with the ending but little else about 'Whirlpool' is likely to displease anyone. Based on one of the most surefire father and daughter stories ever screened, with heart interest running high throughout, it is a piece of film merchandise that's well above fair in entertainment appeal.

Since the Jack Holt name isn't powerful enough on box office section to pull a poor picture to over-average business, a well-directed exploitation campaign would be advisable.

Jack Holt's fans will like him as the hard-luck hero in this one in which he knows the manly thing to do. Although picture starts out with Holt as a carnival owner who has plenty of grifting and rough stuff on his shoulders, bad character is quickly disposed of and the foundation laid for some heart interest that ought to have the ladies handkerchief-minded.

Going up for a 20-year stretch after an ill-fated fight on the carny lot just after Holt has married and is ready to jump the outdoor show business, the story has Holt writing a phoney letter to his wife which suggests he's committed suicide. She remarries and a daughter by her first husband grows to womanhood.

Story has both meat and effective development, taking Holt into the night club business after his discharge and mixing him with his daughter by accident. While father and daughter have a field day of it prior to his decision to skip because of a gangster trial at which he doesn't want to testify, the mother never knows her former spouse is alive.

The average scenarist and director would have insisted on bringing in the mother somehow. Fact that in 'Whirlpool' this isn't done is greatly in its favor, but whether the fans won't be disappointed that Holt has to kill another man and then himself for the finish is something else again.

Picture justifies this finish because a vengeful racketeer lawyer has discovered the Buck Sheldon of the present was the Buck Rankin of the past and is threatening to spread it on newsprint paper. He's murdered and that evidence is destroyed, but someone forgot about the girl who tipped the lawyer off on the secret.

Holt gives a fine performance, graying up after 20 years behind bars, while for high sympathetic and heart interest, Jean Arthur is what the doctor ordered. Mother is played by Lila Lee, while comedy responsibility rests mainly with Allen Jenkins, a good type for spot assisted hero.

Nice cutting job sustains a good pace and maintains action without leaving anything of importance missing or upsetting continuity. Some camera work to suggest march of years in one case and a night of gaiety in another, has been effectively spliced in. Char.

Success at Any Price

Radio production and release. Features Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Genevieve Tobin, Colleen Moore, Frank Morgan. Directed by J. Walter Ruben. From play by John Howard Lawson; adaptation by Lawson and Howard J. Green. Photography, Henry W. Gerrard. At Rialto, N. Y., week May 2. Running time, 74 mins.

Joe Martin	Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.
Agnes Carter	Genevieve Tobin
Raymond Merritt	Frank Morgan
Sarah Griswold	Colleen Moore
Fisher	Edward Everett Horton
Jeffery Halliburton	Allen Vincent
Dinah	Nydia Westman
Hadfield	Henry Kolker

He crushes everything around him in an Horatio Algerish climb to wealth and business heighths, then tries to commit suicide for a happy recovery fade in the arms of the gal who waits for a building or something to hit him. The hero of 'Success At Any Price' is an uninteresting, conceited person, but the picture around him can be endured. The dialog makes that possible.

John Howard Lawson and Howard J. Green, writing the dialog, supplied the only punch the exhibs. again they demonstrate the value of words, notably where the action offers little, as in this case.

'Success' is episodic, unreasonable and anything but audience proof in treatment of its plot. At the outset it makes Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., an unsympathetic character to do anything from which he never recovers. In the first couple reels or so, the lack of sympathetic interest isn't so pointed, but before the final spool is reached it has become acute after he determinedly tramps on the necks of everyone, including those who have befriended him.

An effort is made a little beyond middle to inject a feeling of commiseration for the hero because of his wife's peccadilloes and the shattered dream of babies, but it's doubtful if the average audience won't feel he had this coming to him.

Picture is draggy throughout and in plot a pipe dream of the first order. Somebody more matured in the Fairbanks spot would have made a little more believable.

Frank Morgan and Genevieve Tobin are both excellent in assignments of a character that are not really up to their standard, while Colleen Moore rates a weak third among those supporting young Fairbanks. Miss Moore does the office secretary who waits for her Algy boy friend to topple from his high horse.

Nydia Westman proves a good comedy type as another office slavey, a loquacious, gum-chewing girl who reminds a little of Daphne Pollard. Char.

dropped only .54 in comparison with a dip of 4.70 in Dow-Jones industrial averages. Industrial averages stood at 93.20 at close Saturday where it showed a drop of 8.35 points in two weeks. It is a well known axiom in the street that stock prices do not advance while commodities are selling off, and that usually prices of issues on stock exchange follow those of commodities in case of a big dip. These factors, coupled with feeling that peak of spring activity has been reached, aided in decline of stock market in recent days.

Rails closed at 45.68 and utilities at 23.16. Which means that these two groups together with industrial group may test the March 27 lows within the next week or two. Lowest point for industrial averages in March was 97.41 and the Dow-Jones averages hit 97.70 Saturday, which is the low of the current reaction. Stiffening of demand for several amusement stocks helped group as a whole Saturday. In fact, Loew's reached high of week at 33⅜ during the day, while Paramount certificates also climbed to week's peak.

Warner rothers common stock slipped a little behind amusement group and was weak most of time. Radio Preferred B dropped to 27⅞ before meeting support though it came back near end of week. Fox A closed near bottom but did not fare so badly considering its recent climb. Loew's common stock was about the steadiest of amusement issues. Though it slumped with remainder of group, it managed to close at 32⅝ and never dropped below 31.

That the market has reached a critical level is admitted by even the most optimistic. If stocks sell off in heavily increased volume one of these days, many think that this may mark the end of present decline in prices. Despite fairly optimistic forecasts for summer theatre business, statistics show that amusement stocks seldom go up during the last part of May or in June. In fact, vast majority of June months have witnessed slumps in prices of amusement issues. This is supposed to reflect falling off in boxoffice receipts for summer months.

Latter part of July and August has generally seen a reversal of trend, for then prices of amusement stocks begin to reflect increased fall business or hopes for a pick-up in theatre attendance.

Earnings Reports

Film company issues were helped by favorable earnings reports. Radio Corp. reported $1,335,725 net in first quarter, comparing with a net loss of $478,13 in 1933. Fox Film showed a net profit of $805,376, after taxes and charges, compared with a net loss of $557,122 for the March quarter of previous year. Radio Preferred B apparently had discounted favorable report in last two weeks when it soared to new highs nearly every day. However, it rallied strongly on issuance of report. Radio common also was extremely active. Both stocks closed week with only fractional losses, despite general market weakness. Fox A stock held fairly steady until last part of week, having had its move upwards in advance of favorable earnings report.

Steadiness in Loew's probably may be attributed to report for 28 weeks ending March 15, which showed increase in profits over same period a year ago amounting to $1,960,191. Report showed net profit, after depreciation, taxes and subsidiaries preferred dividend of $3,973,472, or $2.38 a share on common stock, against $1.04 per period in 1933.

Recent activity at high levels by Loew's stock may in part be accounted for in reported action of Western Electric Company in disposing of 164,000 Loew shares in open market. Western Electric obtained this stock when Film Securities Corp. defaulted on notes held by 17 banks and corporations last year.

Eastman Kodak, common, lost 4¾ points net during week. This decline is pertinent because directors of the company meet this week to vote on dividend. Present rate is $3 monthly, and at present prices stock only yields 3.3%. Eastman stock closed at 90¼, and was at 89 at one time during week. However, this issue recently climbed to a new 1934 high at 96½, and decline this week cannot be viewed as indicating any change in dividend rate. If change is made it is believed it would be increased.

Loew's preferred dropped 3¼ points, Universal preferred, 1 point, and Warner preferred lost 2 points net. Otherwise prices of common stocks in film group on big board dipped only fractionally, Saturday close showed.

Rise of Paramount- roadway 5½s to new high at 47 and 10¼ points net during week was feature of bond market. Approval of reorganization plan which includes retirement of these bonds prompt remarkable climb of these liens. Paramount-Broadway bonds made net highs nearly every day starting Tuesday. Paramount-Famous-Lasky 6s and Paramount-Publix 5½s also were active and sought on Tuesday and again Saturday. These liens and certificates for same showed net gains of 1¼ to 2 points on week. Showing in Paramount bond group was all the more prominent for the reason that other picture company liens fell off.

Pathe 7s lost 2¼ points net after developing weakness Saturday. They closed at 95¼. General Theatre Equipment 6s lost 1¼ after climbing to 11⅛. Loew 6s managed to remain above 100 and lost half a point to close at 100½.

While market may decline further, there is nothing in selling of stocks to indicate that Wall Street expects a drastic exchange control bill from Congress. If control measure actually is passed at this session, those watching prices fail to see any real prospect for a drastic law.

Summary for week ending Saturday, May 5

MUSIC HALL, N.Y.

Teacups and other pieces of pottery come to life once more in a 'Dresden China' ballet on the Music Hall stage. Some day those teacups are just not going to come to life. But if a customer ever sees that happen, the customer probably will learn that he got into the wrong theatre. Because on the Music Hall stage teacups always come to life.

Life within a teacup as illustrated by the ballet provides the first of three items in the current week's episodic stage presentation, entitled 'Romantic Deflt.' Second, billed as B on the program, is called 'The Fisherman' and serves as an introduction to what in the outdoors is known as the blowoff, but in the Music Hall is referred to as the piece de resistance. 'The Fisherman' is performed in what constitutes 'one' at the Music Hall, but which would be the whole darn stage in almost any other theatre.

After Edwina Eustis, tall contralto, and the male ensemble for the 'The Fisherman' introduction, garbed in Dutch fishwomen and blue oilskins, respectively, the whole stage staff of 100 or more paint human color schemes on the full rostrum.

Scene is a beaut, exceptionally so even at the Music Hall, where scenic sightliness is the usual thing. The locale is the Netherlands and the set presents a public square. In the background is a structure that at first appears to be a hangman's scaffold, but later proves to be a harmless drawbridge. Instead of a hanging, the audience sees a novelty entrance by the Rockettes. The pony line, girls disguised as tulips, ride in on a prop boat that moves as though the canal water has St. Vitus dance.

Rockettes, ballet and singing corps all on for the big scene. Plus Eddie Miller and Evelyn Duerler, who double in delivering the theme song, 'My Man is a Fisherman,' or something like that. They're a splendidly voiced lead pair, particularly Miller whose fine voice has filled all the Broadway film Palaces, and fills the expansive music hall just as though it were the Palace. The amplification helps here, of course, but Miller's voice is a natural.

Miller, who appears in the stage finale in costume, also makes an earlier appearance in the pit to lend the overture a vocal windup. The overture this week, and a departure, is a medley of popular tunes.

CAPITOL, N. Y.

A good show this week at the Cap. Oke both ways, stage and screen. Biz strong opening night with a line out for the last show and the inside tapes up. The Gable-Powell-Loy marquee pull in 'Manhattan Melodrama' (Metro), combined with the film's basic audience appeal, may warrant another holdover session at this house. Picture is there and the stage show ditto.

This lineup seemingly substantiates Louis K. Sidney's boxoffice theory that the time to give 'em a wow show is when the picture is good; not merely when the flicker is poor. It's sound judgment and may do much for general benefit of everybody's boxoffice to wean the now too-wise public away from the idea that when the rostrum fodder is highly delectable there must be something wrong with the feature. And since it's still the celluloid that pulls 'em, after all in a picture house—for the obvious reason that it's a cinema first and a music hall second—this policy if adhered to should have very vital b.o. reflexes in the future for all theatre operators.

Jack Benny and his revue topline and Lanny Ross bottom-lines. And in between, there's Cardini, that corking card manipulator from the Casino de Paree who achieves an individual click all his own that's on a par with Benny, Ross, et al.

Per usual Mary Livingston (Sadie Benny) foils for her husband's suave comedy, while Lanny Ross contributes the vocal and romantic interest. The Maxwell House tenor on the strength of his lone Par flicker, 'Melody in Spring' (or maybe it's apart from that), seemingly has achieved no little b.o. pull by himself. The femme salvos opening night attested to that. Ditto for the Benny-Livingston act, indicating the strong dial-inners' turn-out. So much so that Benny wondered how come so many were away from their radios tonight (Friday) which is when he's on for General Tires at 10:30 p.m. (The way the last show broke Benny-Livingston must have made it to the NBC studio by a traffic ticket).

One of the funniest interludes is that hoke trio, the 3 Chicken Sisters, a broken-down Cherry Sis combo. They call themselves Chico, Henno and Coopo, and admit they copped the idea of the billing from the Marx Bros. One is Keresmithish in build, the middle 'un a fresh gal, and the quiet end girl speaks like a Hester street hillbilly. Withal Benny has primed 'em well.

The 24 Chester Hale Girls go through some interesting Harlemania and semi-Oriental impressionistic terps in great style and seemed to mean more on this bill than usual.

Plenty of show but doesn't seem to bother. Feature runs 93 minutes and stage show another hour; altogether over two and a half hours of entertainment (including the usual newsreel and the NVA trailer and basket-passing) but no bore. Possibly if the turnover becomes a problem that hoke Clyde Beatty routine by Benny could be chopped; not especially funny. Abel.

ALHAMBRA, LONDON

London, April 24.

Bobby Howes is the headline attraction here. Outside of having played some years ago in an act called We Five (Howes, Roy Royston, Laddie Cliff, Claude Hulbert and Bobbie Comber) this is his first vaudeville date.

Howes was originally slated to open for John Southern at the Victoria Palace, but Southern ducked when he found the musical comedy and screen star with the 'trimmings' would run him into around $4,500 per week.

As a whole, his effort is disappointing, and looks like it was put together hurriedly. Using the house gals for background, Howes sings a number which does not mean a thing. His next is a comedy offering, which is better. Then he goes into one with a straight man, both doing a couple of A.K.'s over a pot of beer. This is a bit done in one of Charlot's shows, by Herbert Mundin. For a finish, full stage is used, with 32 gals and 18 men dressed as cops, and the comedian affects a comedy cop. Reception was excellent, and act will pull them in. Understood Howes gets $2,500, with Sir Oswald Stoll paying all the extras.

Supporting bill has too many single men acts, which detract from the headliner.

Scott Sanders in a comedy cabby scene is funny in spots, but is on too early to get full effect of the offering.

Malinoff's Russian canine actors look very much like Marinoff's dogs that played the Palladium some months ago. Might be a misspelling. Dogs did not seem to work too freely, with backstage crew not helping any.

Jack Barty offers a similar vehicle to the one he has been doing for years, with only change a few digs at Hollywood, always sure of a laugh here.

Jack Francois in some eccentric stepping and taps has a nice personality.

Charlie Higgins in crude makeup does comedy numbers that are too long. Supported by Bert Bray in cross-fire comedy talk, but very little that's new.

Renee and Godfrey, brother and sister team, with man dancing while playing violin and woman specializing in good toe work.

Houston Sisters, back together again after Renee's film debut, clown a lot, but seem to have no definite vehicle. Act is disjointed.

Sonia and Vernon, man-woman act, doing some dancing with xylophone accompaniment, make a good opener.

Gordon Ray Gals, permanent house troupe, are on and off, too frequently.

ORPHEUM, LINCOLN

Lincoln, May 4.

A whirlwind gymnastics combined with the ordinary in dancing makes this week's Orph bill something like the house trade likes to see. Although there's only three acts on the bill for a fast 35 minutes, it moves and the neighbors applaud. A direct contrast to the previous canto and a strong argument from this section for vaude shows that appeal to the eye, rather than the ear.

Danny and Edith, colored dance team, execute the usual fast and difficult tap steps, but add novelty to it by skipping rope all the time. This pair opened and stopped the show.

Sanna and Loomis, comedy dancing, deuced with the same tempo and scored on Sanna's monkey impersonation and sojourn over the seats. These boys have acrobatics down to a fine art, keeping away from the ordinary toe clicking. Do challenges on the encore.

Five Roses, the old DeCardo turn with new faces, shut the bill with the novelty barrel and teeter board offering. There's a kid in the act who does a triple from the board to a shoulder chair and with a little more stage presence, he'll slay family trade. Big stunt is a four-barrel high climb by one blindfolded and a jump into one on the board for a rain of the flipping company in every direction.

'Such Women Are Dangerous' (Fox), the pic, with an NVA short, Universal news and comedy. Biz good. Barney.

STATE, N. Y.

Anatole Friedland's tab version of 'Fifty Thousand Frenchmen,' which has been making the rounds since the tail end of 1933 and rated among the initial unit crop, spans the stretch between showings of 'Gambling Lady' (WB) and retails a diverting mixture of impersonations and dancing. Friday's early evening attendance found the excerpts from the musical's book depressingly dull but heaps to get excited about in the mimicry of Venita Gould and the loose-jointed leg roustabouting dished out by Al Norman and the two youngsters who help give solid substance to his act.

It takes the production about 15 minutes to unload its vapid chatter about the peekaboo side of Paris but once this is out of the way the going is easy on the eye and the ear. Stepping phase of the proceedings reaches its climax with a fan dance by Dorothy Morgan. Number is effectively cued up to by the line and the girl with the ostrich appurtenances regales with a tease exhibit that's one-sided enough to call for no complaints from either the customers or the extra-censorial elements. Other tootsie specialists that make pleasant points of interest for both the eye and sense of rhythm are Peggy Alexander, Betty Castle, Dot Shennahan and Alice Daily.

With the musical's book offering nothing to make risible hey-hey about the laugh load of the show revolves pretty much around what Al Norman can excite from a monolog and his crossfire with the two boys, planted in the audience. Norman also gives them something to chuckle about when he turns to impersonation. But it was the takeoffs fashioned by Miss Gould that endowed the Friday evening occasion with its high points of approval. The bits she pulled out of her kit in the finale scene tied up everything. She could have gone up for another half hour and held them intact.

'Fifty Million Frenchmen' follows a sockerino week with Joe Penner. Business Friday evening was away back to normal. Odec.

FOX, BROOKLYN

There was sorrow backstage Friday night, but the audience didn't see it. Two weeks' notice was issued to the whole staff that afternoon, upon the management deciding to close up. However, the Fox isn't alone in the rocking boat. The neighboring Paramount also folds in two weeks.

Two closings, eliminating more than 7,000 seats in downtown Brooklyn, will ease up the highly competitive situation in the business district of that borough which, if classing as a city instead of just part of New York, would rate among the first four cities of the country with its more than 2,000,000 people. Should the Fox and Paramount stay shut for any length of time it will be soft pickins for the Metropolitan (Loew) and Albee (RKO). Also a break for the Strand (Warners), which serves its pictures straight.

Stage show with the picture 'Three on A Honeymoon' (Fox) is average this week, so was business Friday evening. That means everything light. Band presentation, economically booked and staged, is about as much as can be had or expected under the money circumstances.

It's strange indeed that this show should now rate as second grade entertainment, when in retrospect it compares with anything that was in vogue five or six years ago. In those red hot band presentation days, of which Paul Ash is the symbol, the Fox's current show would have been called and accepted as corking amusement. But the cycle has passed for big city amusement purposes.

But for a preceding dance by the 22-girl line, Doyle and Donnelly were practically opening the show, yet they overcame that and held their margin all the way as the standout turn on the show. A straight talking comedy act, Doyle and Donnelly might have been accorded a better position for the show's sake more than their own. It appears some stagers appear to prefer eating their desert first because that happens to be their favorite course, but that doesn't always go so well with the customers or the show.

Doyle and Donnelly are assisted by a cute looking girl, Mary Ann, who does the foiling while the boys talk and sing. Turn is youthful looking and a fast working entry.

Bert Frohman, who's been in here for a run as m.c., drew applause upon his entrance, denoting he's accumulated some popularity. He sings, talks, dances and leads the orchestra, showing up well in all departments. For his singing Frohman drags out a piano accompanist, making two on this bill. Other is used by Phil Duey, who gets the feature billing this week as a 'radio star.' That rating may be only the theatre's own opinion, although Duey sings well and the audience liked him. But he'll have to get a rep before 'radio star' next to his name means what it says.

Jack Starns' novelty blacked-out adagio turn and Arnaut Bros. are the other current specialists and land their usual returns. Arnauts did a lot of unnecessary stalling in the early moments, making it tough for their whistling number and the latter needed all of its natural class to surmount the handicap.

Girl line in its three numbers looks nice on costuming and danced well, too. Last winter the Fox liners were classed as stumblers rather than precision dancers, but that appears to have been corrected for they're working very neatly now, starting and finishing together. A pair of 'em, blonde and brunet, step out to form a threesome with Frohman. With the rest of the girls backing them up, this home-made specialty combination brought the show to a fast finish.

Band's one instrumental specialty, conducted by Frohman, was announced as an arrangement by Willie Kreager. That Kreager, an excellent comedy director, was assigned to just sitting among the musicians without playing or leading, didn't look or sound logical. Bige.

HIPP, BALTIMORE

Baltimore, May 4.

Paucity of patrons in pews opening show, opening day, had the managerial brows knitted into knots. Poorest inaug of any week in months, but factor that really stupefied was the line-up on tap. Has been long time since Iz Rappaport has doled devotees a double-barrelled top-notch fare. Usually house totes a sock in one mitt and feints with the other; but currently the Hipp stands two-fisted before the b.o. with chin well up, '20th Century' (Col) is unspooling in the booth and Georgie Price leads a four-act parade across the rostrum. But no business.

Price is not W. K. in these parts; majority of locals have a smattering remembrance of his ether chores, but it's highly dubious he can wreak a real raid on the burg's box office. His stint, next-to-close, offs sluggishly through a stalling that doesn't click. It's an immediate barrier to beat, but he hops it by hurrying into succession of chants that sweeps mountingly.

Preceding act, Keller Sisters and Lynch, spanned 11 mins. with harmony. As customary, cinched. Shut, Charley Ahearn and his Millionaires. This vet hokum hotch-potch fared but fairly. Lasted bit too long for audience, it seemed. The six stooges as burlesk-trampy as of yore, and the single girl, seemingly present to supply the femme touch, is oke in her concessions, though that grass-skirt squirm might be tempered trifle, out of deference to family trade the Hipp largely carries.

Opener, mild, dance flash, George Andre Four. The group's togged in avian costumery, rather a novelty, and parade pretty standard routine, but oke on summation. It's a close repeater for an act at this house. Scharper.

PALACE, N. Y.

Unusually well-balanced quintet of turns will entertain most customers once they're inside. But probably not much on getting them inside. With the weak 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) on the screen, the Palace hardly figures to have a profitable week. Pic just completed a forced two weeks at the Music Hall.

Stage drafting power is centered on Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey, from the radio world. They are delivering 100%, in the trey spot here, with Miss Bailey's rendition of Ravel's 'Bolero' to a symphonic arrangement clearly stopping the show Friday evening. It's a pronounced sock, as are her other two songs, and Sims piano solo. Speed of the turn, however, can be greatly enhanced by a trimming of the introductions and a slight tapering off of the gushy personality stuff.

Opening the layout are The Three Cossacks, a fast and colorful skating turn entailing two men and a girl on a small, raised platform. Following them are Ames and Arno, mixed knockabout comedy team, who were mildly funny when caught, or at least the audience received them so—probably due to two or three old wheezes sprung by the eccentric gal.

Harry Burns, next-to-closing, and Mattison's Rhythms, closing, wind the show up to a highly satisfactory finish. Burns' Wop dialectic material, with two girls and an accented straight man in assistance, garnered a load of deserved laughs, the intimacy of the house lending itself nicely to the hokey turn.

In the 'Rhythms' act a flock of good young talent is uncovered in the five boys and three girls. This goes double for one lanky kid, who, while evidently having studied Hal LeRoy very closely, shows promise of reaching an eminent position in his field very shortly. All he needs is a little more grace and ease in delivery and a haircut. Rest of them are also dancers, except an exotic bit of femininity who sings. Speed is the keynote of this flash and it holds it all the way.

PARAMOUNT, B'KLYN

They brought Ethel Merman over here after a week at the Times Square Par, booked in a few acts around her and padded it all out into a 56-minute unit that anything but resembles Cunningham of Kansas. He could beat this show on speed with both legs busted. Miss Merman heads the lineup and is on twice, but someone overlooked the real talents of Chaney and Fox, the class dancing team, so spotted them in a short position about middle and then forgot about them.

But two of the other acts have a field day of it, the stooge turn of Tommy Mack and the team of Bellet and Lamb. Latter must be working out some new material. They'd stayed around long enough at the Saturday matinee show to indicate that, and meanwhile, people were going out for a smoke until the show started up again.

Team drew the fancied next to closing spot, whereas the Tommy Mack act, on second, was much better on laughs. Mack act, however, is too long for picture house purposes, also.

Miss Merman does a medley of pops and 'Love Thy Neighbor' from 'We're Not Dressing,' with Johnny Green pianoing. Green, a song-writer, conducts the orchestra this week in a group of his own numbers, topping it all with some fast ivory pounding.

Down at the close with the stage set as a barroom of another day and a miniature rostrum in the background, Miss Merman fits into a number built around 'Eadie Was a Lady.' It's not as compact as it could be, but Miss Merman's voice and sales ability excel here as earlier.

Hal Menken's rhythmic dance on the stairs and drums provides a snappy opening, the girls preceding him in stair dances and to provide background. One girl was out of the line Saturday afternoon, 23 appearing. A ballet number is built for Chaney and Fox, but it's nothing much.

Business brutal Saturday afternoon. Picture, 'Double Door' (Par), day and dating with N. Y. Par.

In the special short for NVA week Walter Huston uses the word 'contribute' twice, but pronounces it two different ways. Cutting also bad. Char.

LONDON PALLADIUM

London, April 24.

Opening the bill, not counting the Sherman-Fisher troupe of house gals, a permanent here, were Grace and Paul Hartman. Act traveled 6,000 miles from Hollywood to get first spot at this ace house and was canceled after first showing. That's show business.

Two of the headliners are Harry Roy and his band, from the Mayfair hotel, and Elsie Carlisle and Sam Browne. Both can thank radio for their coveted positions. Former, less than two years ago, was getting $1,250 at the London Pavilion for four-a-day. Now getting $2,750, and asking more. Latter duo got a break with Ambrose's band when they were crooners in chief for this outfit and a regular ether act relayed from the hotel. Now as a vaudeville offerings they are collecting $750 per.

Roy is youthful, full of vitality, has a good aggregation, and plenty of comedy. Boys look like they are enjoying their work, with personality oozing out of them. Stayed 30 minutes, and will return here after three weeks, by actual demand.

Carlisle and Browne croon their way into popularity, with audience asking for songs they made popular on the air. Nevertheless, they stayed too long, with best part of offering being Bert Read and Slim Wilson, two pianists from the Ambrose orchestra.

Important American importation is Miss Gene Dennis. There is novelty about this simple and good looking gal. Not the type of act ideally suited for this house, with use of the 'mike' not helpful. Not presented to the best advantage, either. Male announcer, reading from a slip of paper a speech about this psychic's accomplishments, does not convey realism. It is in her favor that house gave her undivided attention despite this lack of salesmanship.

Will Fyffe, in two numbers, first as an octogenarian and then as old salt, registered his usual quota of laughs.

Brookins and Van, darkies, do an act modelled on the lines of Moss and Frye and Buck and Bubbles. Typically negroid, with that nonchalant style which greatly appeals here. Can do with a few new gags, though.

With the Two Schenks in the house, but not playing, due to length of program, Vic Oliver and Margot Crangle actually closed the bill. Act is a holdover, due to sail back to New York, but were prevailed upon by management to stay another week. With laughs at a discount, they filled a dire need. Held house intact, despite their oft-repeated vehicle.

Openers, second show, were Three Auroras (holdover), balancers on cycles, and Freddie, Phyllis and Ann in Condos brothers' routine, deputizing for the Hartmans.

PARAMOUNT, N. Y.

Back to vaude at the Par this week, show being tabbed frankly 'Spring Varieties' and acts run off in a regulation vaude manner. Six acts plus the line of girls. Except that everybody works only a few minutes here and there, and the headliner, Milton Berle, works about 35 or 40 minutes. Say anything you want to about the Berle, you can't deny him one thing—he works hard.

At the Par Friday night, with as many empty seats as occupied ones, Berle's hard work seemed to get him places, too. The response was long, and sincere and the customers seemed eager to recall him even after the final curtains were pulled and it was evident the picture was about to start. Maybe that needs explained, however, by a knowledge on the part of the audience of what the picture, 'Double Door' was like.

Girls are on fore and aft, and both times in cutely staged numbers. Especially is the opening stanza effective, set being a luscious one with gigantic chandelier and silver fountains, girls in springy white clothes dancing to Mendelsohn's 'Spring Song.' Orchestra managed to get it somewhat off-key and in a strange orchestration but the girls romped prettily about without worrying.

Moore and Revel follow in one pleasantly enough with their drunk dance. Took some pratfalls and got some laughs. Gertrude Niessen follows with two songs. She's been playing Broadway house so much of late that she's almost become a stock company on her own. Still effective piping, however, and she could well have done a third number.

Berle lad bows in here and starts right in, never leaving the stage again except for a few minutes. His stories and mannerisms are still the same, still filched from anywhere at all, still a bit too raw in spots, but still effective. There's a freshness about him that intrigues and holds. Berle has a gag writer, now on salary, a good one, but doesn't bother using too many new gags—it might spoil his reputation.

After about ten minutes of chatter, Berle brings out the Nicholas Brothers, youngster colored tappers, who do themselves proud as usual. Then Berle joins them for a final challenge which surprises by his capable use of his tootsies. He ought to do more dancing in the future, no sense forgetting it.

Norman Prescott, mind worker, follows, and again Berle is on stage, Berle being Prescott's stooge. Prescott is a very clever mentalist, working through the audience for some good effects. Berle has been taught to get his signals and handles them all cleverly with some neat gagging.

Milton comes back again for some more talk and winds up with his radio takeoff, a very funny bit. Has a new ending for this now, blacking up rapidly on stage for a Cantor imitation. He doesn't sing any of his parodies during this show, which is a blessing, and, all in all, impresses about as well as, or better than, ever. Although the show might have been a better one had he worked less and some of the other acts more.

Girls finish off with another Springy number, this time in sports outfits.

No overture this week and no shorts, but newsreel pads the show out to about 140 minutes, fair enough. Kauf.

ROXY, N. Y.

It's an off week, artistically, at the Roxy, but as usual untrained juveniles, frankly offered as such, win greater applause than more practised performers. Audiences everywhere fail for the kid stuff, and here they get—and apparently enjoy—a whole mess of it. It's a Fanchon & Marco unit, 'Tomorrow's Stars,' which suggests a greater optimism than these veteran producers usually show. But it seems to be holding the crowd nicely for 55 minutes.

Opens with boys and girls dancing before the bandstand in a more elaborate setting than usual. Wesley Eddy, the house m.c., on to launch the first turn, Lane and Buddy, who do a taps on top of a pair of prop drums and then use the stage for the second number. Not bad dancers and they get the show off to a good start. Followed by Tom, Dick and Harry in a mild mayhem sequence, formless and with little humor. It's a poor imitation of a dozen similar acts, without the spontaniety, yet they get off for a big hand after staying on for an overlong session. Then Gilbert Diaz bobs up to the mike to sing 'Love Thy Neighbor' and 'This Little Pig,' in a cross between a croon and a shout. His voice is unplaced and unrellable, but he has a nice smile and an assured air and the audience took to him.

First touch of professionalism comes with the Foster girls in backless costumes, very short skirts and trunks of equal and sometimes too much brevity. They work with Eddy in a familiar bit in which they are supposed to hait when he blows a whistle, which, of course, is at the most inopportune time. They fall down and sprawl their legs around, and the audience fairly rocks with glee.

Gladys Beck does three numbers in an assured mezzo-contralto, suffering from a poor selection of numbers. Rather too ostentatiously led to the mike to emphasize her blindness and create the kind applause appeal. She does not need this faking, for she can get over without stalling. Jack Liss and a small band work on a band platform in the old orchestra pit; the stand looking rather dimimutive in the wide open spaces. They play well for youngsters, though young Diaz horns in on the middle of three selections.

Closer is Chuck and Chuckles, two negro boys, who are burdened with the billing, 'Vest Pocket Edition of Buck and Bubbles,' which only serves to emphasize how thoroughly lacking they are in the qualities which make the established team a draw. They do a little good dancing, but not much, and for the most part they fall short in every department, particularly the talking. Eddy announces the line girls will show their versatility in a military drill and they come on in blue chiffon over hip length shirts, which permits a very ample display of their rather ample versatilities. Wind up with beating the drums and then everyone on to take the curtain bow.

Film is 'No Greater Glory' (Col), with a Mickey Mouse, a travelogue, which dwells at undue length on the Taj Mahal, and the newsreel. Complete show runs two hours and 55 minutes. Chic.

ORPHEUM, DENVER

Denver, May 2.

Denver is apparently finding out what is the matter with vaudeville. One answer is the Brown Derby Revue. A group of doubles for stars make up the show—or at least try to make it up. They sit there, around tables, the setting supposed to simulate that of the Brown Derby in Hollywood. They sit there until called upon to do their trained seal act, and the best thing some of them do is to walk back to their chairs. Local theatre-men bemoan the fact they can't get better acts, but their hands are tied and they have to take what they can get most of the time.

Some of the acts, when they get out of the double stuff and do somethings, such as a dance act, fan dance, or similar, get places. Reception of this unit by Denver audiences disproves the assertion that Denver audiences are cold. They were generous beyond what was deserved.

Denver did not fall for the Hollywood premiere stuff. At eight o'clock on the opening night, when the doubles were to enter in style, being driven up in limousines, about a hundred were in front of the theatre. Denver wants entertainment and not lobby ballyhoo. Doubles do not interest them.

Show opens with Gene Morgan, boss of the outfit and m.c., telling his story, and by the way, he talks too much. Folks at a vaudeville house don't want a lecture, they want to see or hear folks do something. Doubles are dancing to give it the Brown Derby atmosphere.

For initial routine line dressed as daisies, with huge flower hats and pink dresses slit to hips to make dancing easier. The Moore twins, being Gary Cooper's double, do a twin dancing act that gets a hand. Miss Blair tells the m.c. a story that never got a giggle. She's Joan Blondell's double. The Johnson Bros., not doubles for anyone, play some 'atmosphere' music and are applauded freely. Greta Garbo's double and Gene Morgan put on a restaurant argument and fight, and Mae West's double swings her hips and says 'come up and see me some time.' Benny Standish, Buzz Berkeley's assistant, does a number being taught to girls in a picture in Hollywood. (That's what he said.) The m.c. and John Gilbert tortured the audience with one of those gags where the answer is forgotten—when they finally get to it. Travis and Sharpe, billed as stunt men, do some strong-arm stuff, but Loraine Lloyd, Joan Crawford's double, copped top spot with her impersonations of a number of stars.

Line in white satin collars, brassieres and trunks trimmed in black, do a fast short routine for finish. The line can always be counted to put pep even in an otherwise dead stageshow. Orchestra under capable direction of Milt Franklin, gave the layout strong support.

With 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) on screen, biz fair. Rose.

CASINO, N. Y.

Casino has the edge on the Palace in at least one respect. It's a more modern, better appointed and finer theatre. But here as three blocks down the street at the Palace the show consists of acts that have been seen considerably if not too much and too often.

On pictures up here it's catch-as-catch-can. House is playing stuff product first run, while the Palace gave that up to go second run following the Music Hall on RKO, Fox, Universal and Columbia pictures playing there, as well as second run on half of the Par product after it's played the Paramount.

While chances are Palace in long run will be playing better box office pictures, now and then the Casino may hit something pretty good if willing to outbid the Roxy, Rialto and Mayfair, all in the field for what's loose.

This week 'Whirlpool' (Col) is rolling past the projection lenses. It's a fairly good picture and Friday night was apparently drawing rather well.

Lineup in order played Friday evening is Jeannie Lang and Three Rascals, Carlton Emmy and his dogs, California Revels, Gordon and Sibley and Arthur Petley and Co. Each of these acts is okay with other company but together they don't add up to much of a show. No outstanding punch in any of the five slots, which is where the trouble lies.

Bert Gordon, with Olive Sibley, in this side of the close, is not only old stuff by now but neither his present act and material makes the act what is used to be.

On laughs, Emmy's dog act tops Gordon. It's better than it ever was. Petley's efforts for laughs are minor in connection with the casting trampoline act he and his three comrades offer, which leaves the show weak in the comedy division to begin with.

California Revels is the fastest interlude on the bill. It's a dance flash of six people which ranks high in talent and staging. One of the mistakes avoided is trying to do too much and taking too long to do it.

Songs to a mike, assisted by three lads, one of whom pianos, is what Jeannie Lang has put in her act. The girl has an odd personality and forces it but on selling songs, she has a way that takes. A pleasing little act.

The ushers and other attendants up here are very polite, thank you. Char.

ORIENTAL, CHI

Chicago, May 4.

Since the opening of this house in March as a vaudfilm spot at 40c top, the Oriental has dropped from a $17,000 gross to under $11,000, and it's still dropping. There must be a reason. And the reason may be that the shows haven't held up to the Oriental standard.

This is due to the fact that the house has lacked a booking head with real authority. Every act routed into the spot has to have at least five to six okays. Nobody knows who's on the bill or what's set. Conflictions and doubling result. Acts that are right here in Chicago are booked by New York sources with the costs on the acts being 30% to 50% more though this method.

House started out to be booked singly but now okays are necessary from execs ranging from Walter Immerman and John Balaban to Lou Lipstone, Nate Platt, Nat Elliott, Morris Silver, Sam Bramson and Charlie Cottle. This is costing B. & K. money at the box-office and in the overhead, and if allowed to continue might result in the closing of this house, as it closed the Tivoli, unless the Fair comes to the rescue.

On the show this week four of the six turns are novelty acts, and the headliner, Solly Ward, doesn't rate headlining such a theatre. Ward fits as an act. Opening was Walter Neilson, cyclist. He was novelty No. 1 for the opening spot and does an excellent job of it. He cycles on everything from a toothpick to a parrei-top and had this audience in his hand throughout. Vox and Walters are the ventriloqual duo now working with a dirigible backdrop.

In the third spot is an act labelled the Three Racket Cheers, three men in an attempt at comedy. Their idea is hitting each other on the head with hats. It's okay once or twice, but later gets annoying. No material, no routine and no act. Vaude end finished with a genuine act, Stan Kavanaugh.

Stage show opened with a Walter Craig, out of the band, warbling a la Crosby, and he does well with those pipes. Has the quality this audience likes and had to give 'em two encores.

Kirk and Lawrence were brought back to town with the novelty horse act. Act goes nicely in a presentation, better than as a straight vaude turn. It's all up to the man's horseback riding mimicry. That's all there is to the act, but it's enough. Ward closed the show. In between there was the line of girls, gone sloppy again.

CENTURY, BALTO.

Baltimore, May 4.

Fortnight ago, with 'Tarzan' (MG), consuming 107 mins., house cancelled Arthur La Fleur's novelty act to compress vaude running time. Currently, 'Viva Villa' (MG) shades 'Tarzan's' time by five mins., so once again an act is sacrificed and, oddly enough, it's La Fleur's. Had been penciled in. And is again; so if the town is patient it'll be vouchsafed a gander. Anyway, La Fleur is garnering a wealth of advance billing.

Just four acts and, on collation, measure up decidedly to the mustard. Opener, Adair and Richards (New Acts). Dance flash that equalizes its lack of elan and speed with a deluge of color and flash.

Deuce, Rio Bros. Quartet has a nice opening bit that intros a single on rostrum announcing initiash of Spanish armies. Gets started, is interrupted by another Schnozzola from audience, who mounts stage crying 'fraud.' Then another wades up with same story; then another. Bit terminates with foursome arguing and yelling and heaving in unison. Also, they contrib a snappy precision acro-trick dance; plus some slow-motion antics. A joint imitash of a 'goose' isn't in best of taste, considering this house's clientele, and furthermore, it's old here.

Roy Smeck stepped out in 'one' and held down the trey for 10 mins., saddling over au fond. Fingers a classy rep of guitars and banjos. His 'Grass Shack' strumming is stretched overlong.

Harry Howard closes well with his conglomeration of stoogery. Looked like legalized lunacy to the customers at outset, but once caught up, mob rolled rightly. Howard mainly relies on his stooges' insane succession of costumes and on turn's lightning pace. Has four men, including lilliputian, stooging, plus single femme. Along about midway a languid, indifferent pooch walk on and makes a stooge out of Howard. Scharper.

NEWSREELS

(EMBASSY, N. Y.)

While newsreel circles are buzzing about what's going to happen when Hearst gets on his own, there's little in the current program make-up to show that any of the reels are fortifying against possible competition.

Paramount carries off honors for the week with eight bonafide news clips in a house reputably partial to Pathe. The Rooster reel is second with four such subjects, while Universal and Hearst tag with two each.

Altogether that's hardly a showing for the representative screen news of the week—a grand total of 16 clips. It only bears out complaints thrust at the reels for their lethargy and indicates stronger than any wordy description the need for a hypo.

Looking at the programs this week even phlegmatic observers of the reels cannot picture camera crews cutting each other's hoses and fighting for first position, let alone rushing the negative back to Dad Dilly's for the flash that formerly meant a scoop.

It's over a week since the officer who was shot in the Dillinger hunt was buried. Universal, grouped into this subject a new interview with Dilly's father which is the big laugh of the week. Not only that, a lot of people are heartily applauding Dad Dilly's commentary that his boy might make a good cop.

The fleet in Panama is also stale news. Paramount had it in detail last week, and now Fathe is following with a rehash.

For three or four consecutive weeks attendees have been looking at Philadelphia police battling around knitting mill strikers. For a third time, at least, Par shows a woman being handed into the paddy wagon.

Among Paramount's good ones is the first real study of Insull since he left Greece. He submits to a close-up on board ship, and it looks as though a Par crew is making the voyage with him. Par cameras even managed to board the train. But Insull lets the reporter do all talking.

Same reel gets a darb on the Russia rescue off Nome. Views of the ship which marooned 102 people on the ice are included. Subject represents some real reel initiative.

Details of the Trotsky story, showing the Russian and reviewing his French hide-away are Par's. Dog brought to life by science is an unusual. Pathe gets a statement from the surgeon-scientist which is liable to send many fans home under the delusion they can forget the undertaker.

A silent Universal camera review passes at work in the Arizona landscaping. Incidentally, the U reel fails to mention anything about the $5,000 capture reward it posted in a publicity story with the wire services.

While reporters were interviewing Schwab camera crews were recording questions and answers. Acquittal of Bishop Cannon on election charges, but failure to mention anything about his reported forced retirement, were Par's. Hearst shows some signs of life with a booze fire in Kentucky and Gov. Pinchot taking flying lessons.

Other subjects: New Blue Eagle. May Day, skiing, King George and a Japanese spokesman, more Texas wrestling, English. American and Spanish armies old and young lion tamers. European tourists, Mrs. Roosevelt and a cute little girl, King Leopold, college athletics, new Italian cruiser. Waly.

Cukor Says

offer in its screen version the quality that made it great. Respect the original, and its adaptation will move the screen audience as the work itself has gripped its readers.'

First Job

Cukor's first job in Hollywood was dialog director for 'Quiet,' Lewis Milestone taught him, whenever a problem arose, to look into the book for its solution, to find in the book its answer, never to outside the text. That is the most valuable lesson Cukor's received in pictures, he says. The Academy award the adaptors of 'Little Women' made Cukor particularly happy because the adaptation of 'Little Women' was precisely that—an adaptation.

Through weakness and strength it adhered to the book. Though they were told that it was poor dramatic structure for Beth to die twice, that the Professor couldn't appear only in the last third of the picture, that these, amongst other points of the story, would have to be changed for pictures, still the adaptation clung to the original, disregarded the conventional taboos—and the results were, Cukor admits, most gratifying.

To Cukor, the importance of the success of 'Henry the Eighth' and 'Little Women' is thus: As both classics and successes, they're a wedge to the literature of all the world. They've shown the picture industry that with an equipment of two hands and 10 fingers it's been operating with only the knuckle of one thumb. These pictures open the gates to the classics of all time, the great things that have been written through the ages, show to the industry that it doesn't have to contrive and sweat out pigmy stories, that a gold mine awaits.

'How much easier it is to do a great work!' exclaimed Cukor, stirred by the prospect. 'How much more interesting for the director, the cast—and the audience! A gold mine—but look out for the pitfalls! What pitfalls? Well, first of all, most of the classics have to be done in costume, and there's something about a costume that kindles t' e ham in an actor, makes him carry on like he's doing opera in English, gets his reading very sonorous, his gestures sweeping.

Stop Kidding

'Then you've got to beat down a tendency to kid it. 'Dear, dear, isn't this quaint,' everybody's apt to murmur, and get cute. Watch out for that. It's only natural, but don't let it get in front of the cameras while they're grinding. Blow it off beforehand. Above everything, a classic must be done with sincerity and respect.'

Cukor, a very responsive fellow, though before 'Little Women' they used to say he had no heart and so selected him to do brittle plays and drawing room stuff, is thrilled by the scope of pictures, believes that the only thing that communicates itself to all peoples is emotion—which pictures are so expert at getting over—maintains that the universality of pictures—their wide audience—is not a limitation—insists that censorship is not a limitation either, 'you can do anything you want and they can't catch you. It's all in the way you do it,' and confesses a whole-hearted allegiance to pictures now that he knows them and loves them, even though he first went out to do them, as a stage director, with bit of condescension and a big hankering for the dough.

'A director has so much more to say in pictures than in the theatre, a so much more challenging assignment. Which assignment I believe he should approach, not with the idea of stamping his own personality upon it—although I grant you that is better for his own commercial interests—but with the endeavor to tell that particular story as that particular story should be told, with a respect for that story that makes its own mood triumphant.'

EXPLOITATION

By Epes W. Sargent

Much for Little

Omaha.

As the highlight of an especially heavy campaign on 'Twenty Million Sweethearts,' Louise Cotter, of the Brandeis arranged a telephone interview for Jake Rachman (Jack Reel) with Dick Powell, the star of the show. Stunt is after all just another variation of securing a picture player's confirmation of the worth of the film, yet it contained a more newsy angle than the usual run of pub stunt, as it was hot and came through a newspaperman direct. It broke near a half column in advance of opening, and for only the price of a night-rate station-to-station call. And arrangements were completed with only three telegrams exchanged between the theatre and the studio pub department.

With this as the ace gag, Miss Cotter built up a nice campaign using several commercial tie-ups. Of these the best was with Western Union, which provided a mammoth telegram to be signed by sweethearts only and sent to Powell day of opening. Others included the run of fashions, cosmetics, music and photo line-ups with the town's biggest department store.

Leon Blumberg, as a special pub man sent out by Warners, lent a hand and was surprised at the reception as he had only to listen to the daily's cricks tell him how well the show clicks. To cash in on this heavy plugging theatre opened Thursday, day early, to be day-and-date with Hollywood opening.

Railroads Will Help

Lou Goldberg, of Columbia, points with pride to the fact that Col's 'Twentieth Century' is going to the Chicago Fair, and at no cost to Col. The New York Central has been making a display in Grand Central station, N. Y., for the showing of the pic at the Music Hall. Chief item is the rear-end of its train of the same name with wax figures of John Barrymore and Carole Lombard. This is in the concourse where everyone can see. It has attracted much attention, chiefly because of the excellence of the figures. Railroad will take it to Chi to form part of its exhibit.

Road also contributed several sections of its handsome changeable ad sign. These were all for the feature and the Music Hall, without reference to the train. Also produced a 22x28 poster which has been sent to all stations and agencies.

Tie-in, however, should not be confined to the railroad. It can be linked to other roads with such suggestions as what the Century is to the Central the Chief is to the local line. Way paved for plenty of gratis publicity.

Lobby Floor Posters

There has been so much interest shown recently in the 8- or 24-sheet poster pasted to the floor of the lobby that Edgar Hart, who was one of the first to use the idea and probably the originator was asked for the complete dope.

He writes that for ordinary use it is sufficient to use poster paste to put the paper down, either covering with shellac or water glass when it has dried. To remove the covering, it is softened with wood alcohol and the paper thoroughly soaked in a solution of salt and with scouring powder. A brush may be used, but a broad-bladed paper scraper, similar to a putty knife, but wider, will be found useful.

Paper pasted down with water glass solution will give longer wear, but it takes more alcohol to remove it, often requiring a second application. As with the pasted paper, the salt and scouring powder solution should be used for a chaser.

Hart, by the way, is leaving Columbus RKO house and heading back to San Diego, his home, unless someone ropes him on the way.

Lattice Work

Already they are digging out the lattices down south, for nothing helps more as a hot weather suggestion than the white and green lattice across the lobby front to convey the suggestion of a shaded bower instead of a stuffy theatre. The lattices will surge north as the warm weather creeps along, and all should be ready in June.

Care should be taken that the lattice does not impede the free passage of patrons. It should run to a narrow drop at the sides and can be dipped in the center in front of the box office, if that's where the b.o. is located, but even there it should not come down too far.

Can be dressed with artificial vines, if they are given a freshing dip in a dye bath when they become sun-faded. If real foliage is desired, professional decorators generally use hop vines as being the most rapid in growth. The dirt should be rich and kept fertilized as the vines will need plenty of food to attain a proper growth.

The effect can be enhanced with potted plants, but just the lattice will prove a big ticket seller this side of the Arctic Circle. If rough lath is used for construction, plane off the fur, or rough fiber. The saving in the paint required will well repay the cost of the labor required, and the job will be better in that the smooth surface will not catch the dirt as easily.

Keeps the Score

Manager in a minor league town started off the season with a unique score board in his lobby. He had a glass-faced rack, made large enough to contain baseballs, using the dollar a dozen sort. Each time the home team wins, a gilded ball is placed in the rack with the date, the opposing team and the score. Each loss is marked by a black ball, with the similar data. The result is a day-by-day record of the team that tells it all at a glance. Last year he worked a similar scheme and during a hot finish some people actually paid admission to the theatre, looked at the scoreboard and went out without seeing the picture. In addition to the ball rack there is space for the standing of all the teams, the percentages being figured in advance and posted as soon as the results are known.

Capitalizes interest in the game and works so well that the head man is figuring on adding the individual playing scores. Draws the fans and helps the evening business. Rack is in a long lobby inside the gate, and sufficiently remote from the auditorium not to disturb the fans when argument grows heated.

Looks like a great gag for a lounge, where the idea can be elaborated.

'Taran' in Balto

Baltimore.

To entice kid interest in 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG), Herb Morgan, Loew's local pub man, conducted contest in conjunction with a daily that invited the youngsters to pen stories of narrow escapes they had actually effected when faced by danger. Chiefly yarns of evasion of clutches of wild, blood-bent animals sought. Dough and ducts held out as incentives.

Probably, after glancing at some of the stories submitted, the kids wrestled more with imaginative powers than with memory; but that proved okay. The very nature of the flick is prone to inspire kids to thoughts of super-human physical accomplishment. And after scribbling down their braveries, most of the youths journeyed downtown to the Century to see what Tarzan had on the ball that their imagination hadn't.

First Fake Tip

Fake racing info used to sprout every spring when they brought the gee-gees up from the New Orleans mud to the Baltimore mire. Took all forms from the full racing slip to the dodger. Recently the idea has been dropped in favor of putting up a cup supposedly donated by a star for some overnight event.

Paramount goes back to the old times with a pink flyer touting 'Little Miss Marker,' Damon Runyon's story of the child pledged with a bookmaker. Worded and set to look like a hot tip. Packet was airmailed to be inserted in each race program for the Kentucky Derby, and after so long an interval looked brand new.

Stunt is good from now until the nags hoof it around the ovals at the county fairs. Keep it in mind.

Home-Made Zoo

Los Angeles.

In an attempt to build up juve patronage, Manager Hi Peskay, of the F-WC Golden Gate, hit upon the idea of transforming a portion of the spacious patio of his theatre into a miniature menagerie. Boys and girls in the neighborhood were invited to bring their pets and display them in attractively constructed cages, and in return they received a free admission to the current show.

Much word of mouth advertising with plenty of good will building for the house.

Shifting Heads

Washington.

Local Warner Bros. exploiteers copped a flock of space in Herald in addition to getting best belly laughs in months thru contest on 'Twenty Million Sweethearts.' Paper carried heads of Dick Powell, Ginger Rogers and Allan Jenkins for three days in lay-out. Idea was that fans should cut out heads and paste 'em in any picture thruout paper of that day.

Contest was billed as Silly Photo Game. Prizes went to funniest composites. Stuff which came included everything from Powell's face on pic of society dame holding baby to Ginger on a cow's body.

Practical

Approached by a man on the street for a handout, Louis Saidenberg, of the Strand theatre, Knoxville, found that the four-year-old boy with him was a spelling phenomenon. Instead of slipping the father a quarter, Saidenberg put the youngster on as an attraction and not only gave the youngster a chance but made a little extra coin for himself, as well.

Same spirit which induced the judge of the Juvenile court to write the paper an appreciation of Saidenberg's efforts to cater to the family trade; the letter drawing a two-column boxed head.

Radio Hook Works

Washington.

Local WB office is putting over most effective theatre-radio stunt tried here in years. Plan ties in with Women's Radio Hour on WJSV six days a week. Program takes up one phase of housekeeping every day with talks, etc., on various angles of cooking, managing kids, et al. Femmes are invited to send in own suggestions and hints and best are awarded passes to WB theatres.

Clever side of the idea is way it builds up neighborhood spots on WB chain. Plug at start and finish of hour lists attractions at outlying houses in addition to two downtown

Los Angeles.

Wiltern, formerly Warner's Westspots. Girls are requested to specify which theatre is in their locale when they send in entries. This also keeps all winners from flocking to mainstem theatres. WB is handing out 10 ducats per program but nothing in proportion to dames who make the effort.

Exclusive 'Mate' Tie-up

Los Angeles.

For first time in several years, Bullocks, ace downtown department store, gave up one of its street windows for a display of jungle trophies and photographs for exploitation of 'Tarzan and His Mate.'

Loew's State responsible for the tieup. Outside ballyhoo included a huge glass cage on a truck, in which were enclosed a man made up as Tarzan, plus a lot of monkeys for atmosphere.

Color Ads

Omaha.

Innovation in local advertising was inaugurated here by Joe Rosenfield, city manager of the A. H. Blank theatres. Paramount, of which Rosenfield is also manager, took colored ads in both of the city's dailies on the opening of 'Tarzan and His Mate.' Ads in color have been used by national advertisers before, but not by locals. Figured 'Tarzan' just suits use of the flash.

R. J. Harrington, former assistant manager at Liberty, Portland, succeeds Henry Ross as assistant to Jim Clemmer, at Fifth Avenue.

Shirts and Films

Showmanship has now entered commercial business. Through a heavy exploitation campaign lined out along ordinary film fashion, Norman D. Waters is applying showmanship to the business of selling shirts, nurse's uniforms, hats, etc.

Waters has prepared a complete press book, similar to those gotten out by film companies on separate pictures, for a special 'Sorreil and Son' shirt, a 'Melody in Spring' shirt, and a 'Men in White' nurse's uniform. On each of those the press book is varied and contains a number of different possible aids for selling the item. Paid for by the wholesaler and distributed gratis to the retailer is the idea. In the past, different merchandisers tied up with picture companies on separate items they allowed the picture companies to do all the work of advertising, via photographs, window cards or similarly. By Waters' scheme the storekeepers do their own building-up, thus making sure of greater results, and at the same time giving the picture companies greater results.

On the 'Sorrell and Son' item, a package of a father and son shirt is being made up for combination sale. By tie-up with Famous Music, publishers of the song, 'Melody in Spring' is exploited in a handsome 10-page color book, with the front cover of the title song appropriated as front cover of the press book. Also several tie-ups were made on this film on the Lanny Ross name. For instance, one of the stunts is with a chain of New York chain stores in which a triple tieup had free dishing out of Maxwell House coffee to customers.

Clocks for 'Hour'

Clock stunts are indicated for 'The Witching Hour,' the best of these being that originated by the late Ralph Ruffner a lot of years ago. Ruffner contacted the makers of a clock being advertised by name and obtained the loan of a couple of hundred clocks, which were hung from the lobby ceiling. They were timed to ring alarms at five-minute intervals. As each alarm rang intermittently for 15 minutes, there were three at it at once. That was a good gag for the silent days, but can be used now only if it will not interrupt the sounding of the picture.

Second best bet is the clock which should run down some time the opening day, with the question as to how long it will run with one winding, or a fast and a slow clock, with an estimate on the difference in time at the Witching Hour, which is two o'clock.

Stores can be tied into clock sales, they can be offered as prizes in any form of contest or worked on a reverse contest, and given to the school child most frequently late in a given month and therefore, presumably, most in need of an alarm clock. In this gag it is merely announced that the clock will be awarded some child, with condition not announced in advance. Presentation can be made on the stage, with the reason first told then.

Plugging 'Rothschild'

Portland, O.

Ted Gamble, Parker manager, turned his exploitation and publicity department loose on the advance of 'House of Rothschild' (UA) now playing at the United Artists. He began by holding a preview for men and women of local Jewry, including Gov. Julius L. Meier, Rabbi Henry J. Berkowitz and heads of various Jewish organizations, all of whom expressed themselves very much in favor of the pic. The results of this preview was all organizations volunteered help and announcements were made in all synagogues. A tie-up with the local Jewish paper helped.

Other features of the campaign were: Thirty days of announcements daily over two radio stations. Two weeks of big billboard display and street car advertising. Art and advertising every day in newspapers for over two weeks. Series of stories written by Arliss in a local sheet. The climax was two four-page sections in two dailies of adv. and plenty of art.

Prices were raised from 40 to 55 cents.

Catalina Promenade

Hollywood.

Forecourt of the Fox-West Coast Egyptian here has been transformed by Manager Sugarman into an El Paseo del Enchanto, which to the layman means the enchanted promenade, wherein strolling troubadours play for the benefit of passersby, while along the sidewallis are located basket weavers, silversmiths, leather workers and lace workers.

Entire display was transplanted from Catalina Island, and also includes a sculptor who models tiny figures out of Catalina clay.

the boards of both theatre companies.

Famous Theatres Corp., formed when Par purchased the bankrupt Publix Enterprises' assets, takes the place of Publix in the Par organization, uniting all its theatre interests.

Dept. As

Aside from Schaefer's selection for the presidency over theatres, the department remains as it is with Sam Dembow, Jr., and Y. Frank Freeman v.p.'s with equal power but differing duties. Dembow heads all operation, partnership contact, film buying and stage booking, while Freeman is in charge of real estate, insurance, taxes and such matters.

In addition to acting as top theatre head, Schaefer continues other duties as general manager, post into which the trustees placed him some time ago. He also remains as v.p. of distribution and like Kohn will not have theatre matters as his only duty.

Kohn was v.p. of numerous subsidiaries, notably Paramount Pictures Corp. This is the principal subsid of P-P which in turn branches out into Paramount Productions, Inc., Paramount Distributing Corp. and Paramount International. He was also v.p. of Par Productions, Inc.

Kohn's resignation came on top of leave obtained by trustees to sue him and other individuals in and out of Par for recovery of over $12,000,000 on stock repurchases. He was treasurer of Par at the time these stock repurchases and the $13,000,000 film-hocking deal were made.

Trustees are reported to have given Kohn no reason other than that his resignation would be for the good of the estate and to the benefit of the creditors. He had been with Par 21 years, coming out of a law office to join the firm when it was young.

Schaefer's naming of Neil Agnew to the created post of general sales manager, realigning the distribution end, is to ease up on his own duties. These moves have been on the way for some time and the Kohn resignation was one of those things.

The Agnew move was not unexpected in trade circles, as Schaefer has been grooming Agnew for his new post for several months. Agnew's appointment now for the first time permits Schaefer to extend his own duties as originally planned.

Replacing Agnew in his old position will be Charles Reagan, of the Par Chicago exchange. Eddie Fontaine, of the Cleveland exchange, moves into Reagan's spot at Chicago.

Schaefer, who thus begins his actual duties as general manager, has been on the distribution end of the industry for some 15 years.

uted instead of confined to a single firm or group of firms or individuals.

Reduci

Intended to reduce the number of bankruptcies and provide a speedier method for readjusting debts, the bill permits groups of creditors or the corporation involved to present a plan of reorganization to Federal courts; the courts may approve the preliminary program, and subsequently, with consent of two-thirds of the creditors and half of the stockholders, place the scheme in operation. Trustees may be appointed or the prior management may continue in control, with courts continuing to exercise supervision of their operations.

Reorganization actions may be initiated by three or more creditors with aggregate claims of $1,000 or more, while a similar group or 5% of the stockholders may oppose any particular proposition.

Plans of reorganization shall include provisions modifying or altering rights of creditors or any class through issuance of new securities; may modify rights of stockholders in similar fashion; afford adequate protection for minority groups not accepting the proposal, either through transfer or sale, liquidation or otherwise.

Outstanding features are clauses specifying that plans may provide for mergers, sales of company properties consolidations; that the petition shall specify claims to be paid in cash in full, and that reorganization may include rejection of contracts, including leases, under certain conditions.

The provision relating to leases is expected to prove of greates value in the film industry, since it limits the amount of damages for cancellations. Grouping claims for contract abrogation as the seventh category of claims which may be allowed, this section as amended i. the Senate specifies that landlords may claim damages for injuries resulting from rejection of leases in an amount not exceeding the rent reserved by the lease for the next succeeding year plus an amount equal to accrued unpaid rent.

llowable Claims

Allowable claims include proven debts, which are fixed liabilities in writing; damages in court actions pending at the time of the filing of the reorganization or bankruptcy petition; claims existing before the petition was filed; open accounts or express or implied contracts; awards of accident or other commissions; rental claims.

Reorganization procedure following filing of a petition and plan calls for preliminary approval of the court and acceptance in writing by 66⅔% of the creditors and 50% of the stockholders. Courts may require corporations, either in support of their petitions or in opposition to creditors' petitions, to file detailed schedules of indebtedness, assets, stock and financial condition; names of stockholders and other pertinent information for use in determining the fairness of the plan.

Upon approval of the plan the court may continue the debtor in possession temporarily or name trustees, requiring bond; fix the compensation and expenses of all parties in proceedings; direct rejection of contracts; authorize issuance of new securities; refer controversial matters to special masters or referees in bankruptcy.

Prolonged discussion centered over provisions specifying the jurisdiction in which outsiders might petition for reorganizations, as the bill fixed the place as the court jurisdiction in which the principal place of business or principal assets were located during the preceding six months. Fearing this would deprive his home state of much legal business and complicate efforts of stockholders or creditors, Senator Hastings of Delaware proposed that the action might also be initiated in the jurisdiction in which the company was incorporated. Compromise permits actions to start in state where corporations were organized only when the 'principal place of business' is disputed.

Reputed Heiress' Film Plans Come to Halt

Los Angeles, May 7.

Picture production plans of Frances Taucher, reputed Chicago macaroni heiress, have apparently been halted. Miss Taucher, aged 35 and a native of Austria, is being held in the county jail here to await trial on charges of issuing bad checks and for grand theft.

Self-reputed heiress was brought back here from Chicago, after D. E. Lynde, on behalf of the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago and Ellsworth Metz of the Bank of America (Hollywood branch) had sworn to a complaint that she had deposited a $1,500 check drawn on the Chicago bank, and had received in cash thereon from the Hollywood bank the sum of $650, before it was learned that defendant did not have sufficient funds on deposit in Chicago to cover check.

Par Cutting Shorts From 229 to 100 for 1935; U Doing Ditto

Paramount is cutting its shorts lineup for 1934-'35 by more than 50%, as compared to this season and during the coming year will stick to one-reel subjects only, giving up two-reelers entirely.

Company will announce a total of only 100 shorts for the new season, as against the 229 on this year's schedule.

Lou Diamond, shorts head, has made arrangements for two new series, in addition to continuance of 'Popeye the Sailor.' Max Fleischer's Color Classics and 26 Paramount Varieties are the new series. Other shorts series continued by Par are the Grantland Rice Sportlights (13), Betty Boop cartoons (12), Paramount Headliners (18) and Paramount Pictorials (13).

Series dropped include 'Screen Songs,' 'Hollywood on Parade' and 'Screen Souvenirs' in addition to the independently produced Arvid E. Gillstrom and Phil L. Ryan two-reelers. Gillstrom series of 12 included six Harry Langdon and six Bing Crosby shorts, while the Ryan unit deal took in six Del Lord comedies and six Eugene Pallette-Walter Catlett two-reelers.

At the annual sales convention in Los Angeles, June 18, Par will announce between 30 and 35 pictures, with titles and, where possible, casts and directors, out of a total of 60 to be promised for the '34-'35 film year. Last year Par announced 47 out of a program of 60.

Not So Happy Hour

Syracuse, May 7.

Accused of malicious mischief in the alleged wrecking of equipment at the Happy Hour theatre, downtown subsequent run house, Joseph Fitzer, 32, lessee, is at liberty under $500 bail.

Fitzer was arrested after Victor W. Laniski, assistant manager, and Thomas Fava, janitor, made sworn statements, according to the police, that they saw their employer break part of the projector, rip the screen, tear down electric lights and smash an electric clock. The two are held without bail as material witnesses.

Bail for Fitzer was furnished by his brother, Mitchell, veteran Syracuse exhibitor and operator of the Riviera and Empire.

Fitzer claims the equipment is his property, but it is disputed by Mrs. Joseph B. Murphy, part owner with Jacob Walters and Dr. Walter Pendergast of the building.

Police on patrol duty discovered the theatre door opened, entered and found the vandalism.

Proj. Into Airdome Theatre from Next Door Cinema Booth

Calexico, Calif., May 7.

Believed to be the first instance where pictures shown in an airdome are projected from machines located in the booth of an adjoining theatre, Fox-West Coast inaugurated its new open air stadium here last Saturday night (22) with a double feature policy at 15c, excepting for 100 loges at two bits.

Airdome, a 1,050-seater, is built as one angle of an L, immediately adjoining the Fox Capitol. Apertures were cut in the booth wall next to the rear of the outdoor theatre, and two individual machines installed for projecting the pix on the outdoor screen.

By means of an opening in the wall of the theatre, patrons of the airdome may use the sanitary conveniences of the Capitol, which will only be operated Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Nightly performances are being given exclusively in the airdome.

F-WC airdome is reputed to be only one of its kind in operation that has individual seats and was constructed by the circuit at a cost of around $10,000.

L

Faced with tions from the organi assigning demand notes si cameramen for the union's relief fund. International Photographers, Local 659, International Alliance Theatrical Stage Employees attempted to step into the breach and save somethi the remaining shell by telling members the local would protect everyone against suits on the notes.

Batch of $10,000 in members' mand notes were handed over to business representative Howard Hurd in settlement of his contract with the organization when the executive board was unable to settle with Hurd in cash.

Storm hit the cameramen when all whose notes had been assigned to Hurd received letters from the law firm of Lewis & Taylor demanding payment. Attorney Lewi has been acting as legal representative for the soundmen's local of the IA.

Juggling of members' demand notes for monies advanced during last summer's strike to those who stayed out, sent the gang into action immediately. Various groups got together and decided to stand collectively in fighting any legal action instituted to effect collection of the various notes.

Members that have continued to pay dues since the strike were determined to resign from the union and have nothing to do with any labor organization that might come into the cameramen's field. Charges of racketeering, double-crossing, misappropriation of funds and selling out were flung around freely by the cameramen as a result of the deal made with Hurd and the assignment of notes in settlement of the latter's contract.

Okay Settlement

In trying to hold the union together, officials of the organization told note-signing members they would be protected against suits for collection of their notes, and the local would even pay off the notes for the cameramen if necessary. One union official, when questioned as to source of the cash that might be needed, stated the local could pay off the notes, but was unable to explain why cash and not notes had been handed to Hurd originally.

Hurd, former business representative and storm center of the entire controversy, could not be reached through several former phone numbers, and his house phone has been disconnected for over two weeks. A friend stated that he was probably out of town for his health.

Ace camermen who paid in a large portion of the money for the charity and relief fund through assessment of 5% of salaries over a period of two years, are holding undercover meetings to discuss ways and means to start legal action against present and former officials of the union. Claim is made that the motion originally passed by the membership creating the fund specifically stated that the latter was not to be used for the payment of any salaries or other expenses of the organization, but was to be used solely for relief of members in the form of loans.

These tabulations are compiled from information supplied by the various production companies and checked up as soon as possible after release. Listing is given when release dates are definitely set. Titles are retained for six months. Managers who receive service subsequent to that period should preserve a copy of the calendar for reference.

The running time as given here is presumably that of the projection room showings and can only approximate the actual release length in those states or communities where local or state censorship may result in deletions. Running time in the reviews as given in 'Variety' carry the actual time clocked in the theatre after passage by the New York state censorship, since pictures are reviewed only in actual theatre showings.

While every effort is made to hold this list accurate, the information supplied may not always be correct, even though official. To obtain the fullest degree of accuracy, 'Variety' will appreciate the co-operation of all managers who may note discrepancies.

B'WAY THEATRE STENCHERS' MYSTERY

A development ascribed to the continued cross-picketing in the tussle for New York control between Local 306 (the IATSE union) and the State-chartered Allied Operators appears to be a campaign of molestation to force the theatres into action of some kind.

Several Broadway houses are reported to have been stench-bombed, but all are trying to keep it quiet so that the public will not be scared away. Moreover, neither managers nor union officials can say positively what's causing the danger by way of stenching or other dirty work, but the presumption is that it grows out of the union war.

Theatres themselves have no controversy at the present time with any unions.

Presumption in theatre and union circles is that leaders of the 306-Allied fight are a little piqued that the theatres aren't minding the cross-picketing as openly and frankly as two years ago.

Pittsburgh, May 7.

Bombing situation becoming critical here, with four more indie houses getting the works last week, making it a dozen in all. Vandals are no longer sticking to sulphurous smoke bombs but going in now for dynamite, and with disastrous results.

Theatres wrecked in most recent outbreak were New Oakland, in Oakland district; Atlas, on Northside; Colony, Stowe Township; and Arcadia, Northside. It was the second time both the New Oakland and Arcadia had been bombed, eight having been seriously injured in the first bombing.

Police assigned to cases were doubled in numbers and making thorough check of all dynamite sales in district. All of the blasts last week were made by time bombs and went off at practically the same time in the morning.

Situation has not only indies but also circuits plenty worried because business as a result has fallen way off all over town, particularly in unborhood districts. Customers now asking if it's safe before they go in and so far none of the criminals have been apprehended.

Police watch being maintained nightly now over most of indie-owned houses, indicating seriousness of situation.

F&M OPERATES ST. L. POOL AUGUST 1

St. Louis, May 7.

Fanchon & Marco assume operation of the Missouri, Ambassador and the Grand Central theatres around Aug. 1. Legal tangle which has been surrounding the reorganization plan for the three former Skouras theatres, now in bankruptcy, has finally been cleared. After refusing to allow Warners to intervene previously, Judge Davis last week additionally okayed the reorganization plan submitted.

Notice of the Court's approval of the plan already has gone forth to non-depositing bondholders. Allan Snyder, successful bidder-inner the properties, will likely take charge around 60 days after foreclosure at which time F&M begins to operate the houses.

Fanchon & Marco already operating the Fox and the St. Louis theatres, downtown, under the Snyder deal, will have operating control of the town's five principal de luxers. Only exception is Loew's, which is the sixth. Warners, talked of as having two theatres, actually has only the recently acquired Shubert-Rialto, former legit spot. Warners had bought up RKO and Paramount product and now has no outlet for same.

In getting operating control of the Missouri, Ambassador and the Grand Central theatres, besides the Fox and the St. Louis, it means that Fanchon & Marco practically becomes the dominating theatre influence in this key town.

Question of stage shows is one of those things Labor costs mostly look to keep the shows out, as the local union laws compel the theatres to two crews of seven stagehands for stage shows, one for matinees and one for nights. Scale runs to around $75 per man, which means it takes around $900 for stagehands weekly.

5th Loop Legit Spot Deserts as Princess Goes to Pic Policy

Will open shortly at 15c. and 25c. House needs sound and treatment before opening, which is expected by June 1. This makes the fifth legit theatre within the year to go to pictures. The others are the Woods, Adelphi, Garrick and Apollo. Albert Goldman negotiated the lease, which is for 10 years.

FILM CARRIER SANS LICENSE NOT GUILTY

Mason City, Ia., May 7.

Rosenstein, Des Moines, Iowa, operating a motion picture circuit delivery system out of the capital city and serving more than a dozen exhibitors in as many towns, was found not guilty of contempt of court through violation of an injunction seeking to restrain him from operating his carrier delivery system.

Rosenstein had been enjoined from operating a film delivery service to north Iowa motion picture theatres through an association because he had failed to obtain the necessary state trucking certificate and pay the required tax. He has taken the stand that he is not a public carrier within the meaning of the state legislature act and that he has only a set, given number of clients whom he serves through the medium of a distributing organization.

License Angles on 'Voodoo,' Hitler Pix Are Worrying Indie Distribs

Considerable agitation in film row on the recent wave of film license revocations in the Middle West. Most outstanding examples are that of 'Hitler's Reign of Terror,' in Chicago, and 'Drums of Voodoo' in Detroit.

In both instances the films were passed by the censor board and allowed to open. Resultant difficulties with disturbing fans caused police to clamp down and revoke the permits, although in both cases after a couple of days of dickering the films were permitted to reopen in cut versions.

From the standpoint of film companies, especially independents with limited bankrolls, the situation is a highly dangerous one. If it is possible to revoke licenses after opening propaganda and publicity have started, the smallies figure, their investments are never safe. They fear, also, that it sets a highly dangerous precedent in that it gives police and reform societies throughout the country ideas and eventually may foment an endless chain of trouble-breeders for films. Argument is that if censoring is necessary at all, the passage of a film by the censor board ought to guarantee it from further interference.

Thus far situation has not yet become a major company worry, with that, too, one of the indie complaints, since they argue the indies are not sufficiently organized or financed to take on any heavy legal campaign to fight the thing.

Balto City Council Rules City Is Over-Theatred

Baltimore, May 7.

The City Council has thumbdowned the application of Frank Durkee (Durkee Amus. Enterprise which operates largest string of nabe picture house) to erect an 800-seat house in the residential-zoned Forest Park sector. Council stated the town was already over-seated and felt it was dealing for the good of the general exhib biz.

Durkee sought to build across street from the Gwynn, 800-seat split-week grind, which Robert Kantner Corp. unveiled last November. Until the Gwyn threw open doors, immediate vicinity had had no house within two-mile radius.

RECOGNITION OF 118 IS STILL OPEN ISSUE

Pending a check of lists to determine whether the Theatre Amusement Employees Union, Local 118, was entitled to recognition, a dispute arose during the past week at Loew's Metropolitan, between management and ushers which resulted in a sharp order from Sol A. Rosenblatt to mediate the controversy. Three ushers were fired at the Met and the others walked out with them, leaving the house un-serviced. Whole crew was back in 50 minutes and both sides are under orders to straighten out the matter.

Trouble occurred at a time when lists of all services employees in RKO and Loew theatres is being compiled. When this is completed it will be checked with a membership list of Local 118 and if the union has a majority representation among RKO and Loew service staffs, it has been agreed both sides will sit down to negotiate an agreement and scale. This may occur within a week or 10 days.

Meanwhile, 118 has agreed there will be no attempt to strike anywhere.

Restore 10% Cut

Minneapolis, May 7.

ooth operators, seeking a wage increase, are getting back a 10 per cent cut which they took voluntarily more than a year ago. A settlement already has been reached for St. Paul independent houses and a similar one is expected for Minneapolis within the next week.

Booth operators in St. Paul loop houses will receive from $56.00 to $58 a week, or $2.50 more than they have been getting the past year. A tilt in the neighborhood theatres will jump the scale from $41.50 to $43 a week immediately. Additional increases of $1.50 a week each is provided to take effect Nov. 1, 1934, and May , 1935.

Operators were asking $60 a week for the loop theatres, but finally compromised.

San Francisco, May 7.

Frisco's price and double billing war is being carried into another ditch when, on May 23, RKO sends its local Golden Gate and the Los Angeles Hill Street into double features, along with stage shows.

Present price of 25, 35 and 40c remains, Golden Gate's stage show with Horace Heidt continuing, at least for a time. Heidt, who has been there some weeks may bow out later. In that event he will be replaced either by another band or vaude acts.

Midwest Exchanges Ban Twin Bills, 10c Admish in 1934-35 Pix Deals

Chicago, May 7.

Pending final code decision of setup here the picture companies are all selling 1934-1935 product on the same basis as last year and with the same additional clauses. Which means that the major distributors are rubber-stamping all contracts that their pictures must not be coupled in a double feature program. And that their pictures may not be sold to the public at 10c or less.

Both exhibs and exchanges are agreed on this selling basis, figuring that if the Code Authority rules that these clauses are no go the clauses will become automatically ineffective.

Surprisingly, even those exchanges and exhibs which were loudly yelling for twin-bills and dime admissions about a month ago are also agreed on this selling method. Last month the breakaway exhibs were insisting that they would not signature contracts which contain double feature or admission bans. But now they admit that, in the final instance, the solution must be left to the code board. Code group is now ready to accept complaints on contract and release systems and it's up to those squawking exhibs to take their case to the authority for final decision.

Toronto Stenching Case Stymied, Witness Flits

Toronto, May 7.

isappearance of Albert Gold, principal Crown witness in the stench-bomb trial of Lew Kendall and Fred Pitton, resulted in the dismissal of the jury and the postponement of the trial of the forenamed duo on charges of 'perjury and the perverting of justice.' Judge O'Connell stated that evidence had shown that the international union of which Kendall is a member had provided funds for Kendall's defense and intimated that the union in question might have had something to do with Gold's disappearance.

Charges arose out of the bombing of the Dovercourt theatre, reputedly the unit of a rival chain. Gold had previously signed in an affidavit to police that he had been approached by Kendall, rival theatre owner, to stench-bomb the Dovercourt and had been promised $500. Gold protested to police when Fred Pitton, pay-off man, gave Gold only $125.

Pittsburgh Stations' 2-Day Bonanza As Newspaper Workers Go on Strike

Pittsburgh, May 7.

Pittsburgh radio stations had a gold mine week-end when mailers of three local newspapers went on strike, tying up circulation all over town for two full days. Business rolled into broadcasting outfits for 48 hours, and announcements went sailing out over waves almost continuously.

Came at a strategic moment, too, with town's leading department stores all going in for May sales advertising splurge. When mercantile establishments learned about newspaper situation—Press had a 72-page paper first day of strike and Sun-Tele 56 pages—advertising managers hot-footed it to ether factories with steady stream of announcements and kept the staffs going full blast for two days.

All five of town's stations got in on the gravy and profits for period went zooming. Stores, getting rebate on newspaper space, sunk it all into radio and kept clamoring for more but it was first come, first served, with everybody yelling for time.

Newspaper mailers, striking for return of 10 percent cut they accepted last May, finally agreed to arbitrate their differences and went back to work after couple of days. Almost impossible to get a paper during tenure of walkout. Morning daily, with a circulation of 200,000, managed to get only about 20,000 on the streets one day and none of that in downtown sector.

Dixie Belle Gin Knows What It Doesn't Want; 85 Auditions Nixed

hiladelphia, May 7.

Dixie Belle Gin, after auditioning five big shows at WCAU, with Philly talent, decided that it wanted a name or nothing. Audition was the largest ever staged at the station, with over 85 artists totaling the aggregation.

Client seems set on a musical show, with comedy, but insists that the comic be a top-notcher. Talent suggestions made so far included Georgie Price, Tom Howard, Block and Sully, all getting a nay. Gin outfit wants a star not associated with the product of a former sponsor. Thing has become a gag around town, since the client's demands seem impossible, although dough hasn't entered as a hindering factor. Agency is considering everything in sight but illinger and One-Eyed Connelly.

WCAU has commissioned H. Bart McHugh, artist bureau head, to New York this week for a complete talent search.

Chicago had a parallel case to Dixie gin in Schlitz beer. Schlitz is now on the air but it took a year of auditioni

NO MOSCOW PROGRAM

Anti-Propaganda Treaty Clause Stops CBS Pick-up

Washington, May 7.

Real reason CBS failed in its attempts to stage broadcast of Red Day celebration from Moscow last Tuesday (1) was recognition treaty which stipulates that no Communist propaganda shall enter U. S. from Soviet.

CBS suggested idea to Moscow weeks ago but received no reply till a few days before they hoped to air the show. When answer came it said all Moscow stations were too busy to co-operate.

CBS ANNOUNCER COVERS UP NBC MISHAP

Philadelphia, May 7.

Courtesy of a WCAU-CBS announcer saved the rival NBC web from an embarrassment.

NBC had the exclusive pickup, through its local WLIT, to carry Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's speech at 1:30 in the Scottish Rites Temple, but later agreed to allow WCAU a wire for a Columbia connection. When the time arrived for the program to take the air, Alan Scott of WCAU was the only announcer within hailing distance, and the NBC word-slinger was nowhere to be found.

Scott stalled through ten seconds of preliminary spiel to give NBC in New York a chance to synchronize its opening announcement from the Radio City studio. Ordinarily he could have taken advantage of CBS' ten-second jump on National by giving Mrs. Roosevelt the mike at usual time, which would have brought NBC into her speech after she had started.

RADIO LEGISLATION EXPIRES IN ALBANY

Albany, May 7.

roposal for a 5% tax on gross receipts of radio stations didn't get to first base in the session of the New York State Legislature. Sponsored by Senator Thomas F. Burchill, New York Democrat, the tax would have affected every person, firm, association or enterprise in the state engaged in conducting broadcasting facilities. Burchill proposed that 90% of the revenue should be used for relief purposes until the emergency has ceased and then be turned into the state's general fund.

Harold E. Smith, general manager of Station WOKO, Albany, directed a vigorous fight on behalf of the broadcasters against the bill.

Another measure that also died in committee was that proposed by Assemblyman Daniel J. O'Mara, Rochester Republican, and which was said to be aimed at the radio activities of Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing Prison. It provided for the removal from public office or employment any person who produced, uttered or published, whether under his own or an assumed name, and whether in print or by radio broadcast or otherwise, in any speech, article or broadcast, which dramatized or eulogized individually or as a class any criminal person or persons, fictional or real.

ATTACK RADIO IN THE SENATE

Church and Educational Groups Harp on 'Freedom of Speech'—Demand Arbitrary Allotment of One-Fourth of All Stations to Schools, Religion, Farmers, Labor and Non-Profit Broadcasters

A MENACE

Washington, May 7.

Legislative fight of major proportions will center around the Dill communications control bill expected to come up for Senate consideration this week. Preparations for contest indicate both critics and friends of broadcasting anticipate stubborn struggle over radio provisions.

Inevitable fight has been itensified by injection of two-pointed freedom of speech issue. Senators Wagner of New York and Hatfield of West Virginia sponsored amendment resulting from controversy between Paulist Fathers and CBS which would require allocation of one-quarter of broadcast facilities to 'educational, religious, agricultural, labor, co-operative, and similar non-profit-making associations.'

Frantic efforts to mobilize strength to defeat this amendment occupied industry lobbyists all last week. National Association of Broadcasters were in panic checking off names of Senators and trying to pull wires and get votes.

Controversy may involve unprecedented test of power of radio to direct public opinion and nation-wide appeal to listeners to stand by present setup. Broadcasters last week threatened to call on audiences to write Senators as last-resort move to beat back assault on their rights.

Revised to meet various minor criticisms, but still containing numerous features repulsive to broadcast industry, measure far exceeds President Roosevelt's ideas for establishing a central communication-control body. Fight will involve efforts to restrict Dill proposals to conform with President's pronounced wishes.

Wagner-Hatfield amendment, most serious threat encountered in years of warfare with educational groups, has strong backing and was believed today to have better than a 50-50 chance of being adopted. Catholic church, National Grange, assorted radio-education groups, and many lesser but potent organizations are riding the bandwagon and threatening to apply heat to Senators who turn thumbs down on scheme.

Industry counter-attack presents novel aspect in that strong press support has been enlisted. Press associations and local bureaus appear to have tacit understanding to play down news about educators' activities and give far more prominent attention to stories about objectionable phases of Wagner-Hatfield amendment. Remarkable amount of newspaper support is considered one of the good-will consequences which followed burying of hatchet over news broadcasts.

Dispute over this issue will obscure several other controversies which were of major significance but less intelligible to layman. Freedom of speech strife is most pronounced in this particular case, with both groups using argument in favor of their causes. Educators claim present setup restrains free speech, while commercial broadcasters insist this would follow adoption of Wagner-Hatfield proposal. Industry so far has soft-pedaled this type of oratory.

Claims will be voiced during debate that approval of amendment would require 150 commercial oper-

20 Small Stations Keep Ignoring Air Code Authority and Washington Pretty Irked; May Crack Down

900 Miles for Lunch

Seattle, May 7.

Folks back East must think Oakland and Seattle are neighboring villages, instead of being some 900 miles apart.

A prominent manufacturer of Brattleboro, Vt., recently sent Tubby Quilliam, commercial manager of stations KOMO and KJR here, the following insistent telegram:

'Please meet with our representative in Oakland, Calif. today for lunch, discuss contract.'

Washington, May 7.

Roundup of code violators was set in motion last week by Radio Code Authority. Steps to cite recalcitrant stations to NRA compliance officials are expected in immediate future.

Campaign is aimed at approximately 20 small stations which have ignored series of requests for their rate cards and signified no intention of respecting fair trade practices of compact. This challenge to NRA and CA powers has codists in a stew and considerable difficulty may be encountered in straightening out difficulties.

Majority of offenders are low-power local stations which are regarded as serious nuisances despite their relative unimportance as individual members of industry. Leaders fear disregard of rate regulations will spread if these violators are not punished.

Final series of letters quoting code clause and threatening punitive action will go in mails late this week. Final check was under way today to make certain that no errors have occurred in compiling list. Call letters probably will be published if no responses are received in reasonable period.

Three-day CA session last week cleaned up mass of small details but reached few significant decisions on

Yes Men, Red Tape and Intrigue

Yes men, red tape, and intrigue go together. All business has known them. Broadcasting, in certain of its organizational units, particularly knows them. They're the triplets of discord, fear and jealousy; as insidious as the boll-weevil. Ultimately something has to be done about them.

To start with the yes man. A yes man is generally an executive. Not a subordinate solely obligated to carry out orders but an executive, top and bottom, paid on the theory that he has judgment and is capable of making decisions and giving orders in the best interests of his organization. When, for reasons best known to himself, such an executive finds it politic or sagacious to refrain from decisions, or to withhold opinions which he ought to give, a yes man is born.

A number of yes men in any one organization means yards of red tape. To sidestep responsibility the yes man substitutes flattery for fidelity. That is protective, but also just a symptom, not in itself a disease. First there is fear.

Narrow minded radio officials stifling ideas or initiative in subordinates, appropriating credit if an idea does succeed and discharging the author if it fails, dreading the very novelty that broadcasting's continued growth makes mandatory, are responsible for confusion and do-nothingism.

Broadcasting is entertainment. New ideas, new programs, new personalities, must be developed. Topical opportunities must be capitalized, public good-will serenaded. But essentially radio has to be entertaining. A hard job at best and an impossible job if showmanship is clogged with intrigue.

Clear thinking and cliques do not go nor can they grow together. Creative imagination lags when inter-office politics preoccupy many minds. Time thus spent is time wasted as concerns broadcasting improvement.

Yes men, red tape and intrigue pal together like headaches, indigestion and a grouch.

NEW TECHNIQUE FOR CROSSLEY REPORTS

Methods of gathering data for the Crossley Reports on program popularity will be changed as soon as the joint committee from the Association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies in charge of the service can decide along what lines to experiment. It is expected that at the next meeting of the group a sub-committee will be appointed to devise new twists for checking up on listener reaction as a step toward meeting some of the criticism that has been directed at these analyses of broadcasting.

Indications are that among the proposals will be one calling for the increase of the service's number of calls a year so as to get a more comprehensive picture of fan program leanings. Also that a proportion of these phone contacts be devoted to the coincidental method of listener toll-taking with the view of checking the results of these while-the-program-is-on calls against the tabulation of the recollective system, which is based on the idea of asking the fan what programs she had listened to the day before.

STUDEBAKER MUSICAL CHI PROGRAM ON CBS

Chicago, May 7.

Studebaker starts a 13-week ride on CBS out of the local headquarters on May 15 for a once-weekly 30-minute program. Will hit some 30 stations on the web coast-to-coast.

Account placed through the local Roche, Williams & Cunnynham agency. Studebaker has been using a number of spot schedules for local dealers, but Len Erickson of CBS demonstrated that a network run would cost hardly much more than the spot stuff.

MAX BAER
'Taxi' (Serial)
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WJZ, New York

In radio as upon the motion picture screen Max Baer, the prize-fighter, pleasantly reverses expectations by turning out to be quite passable as an actor. He was good enough on the inaugural program (4) of the B. F. Goodrich Tire special series to confuse listeners in the absence of a sufficiently explicit identification of the prize-fighter as the actor playing the lead. Goodrich better make especially clear in advance that the part of Al Harper is enacted by Baer. Otherwise many may be waiting for the narrative to end in order to hear him. Unexpected merit is that deceptive.

Intention of the sponsor is to weave the narrative into a continued story culminating June 14 in the broadcast of the Baer-Carnera fight. If Baer is the white-haired lad after that tussle the programs may be extended. A good showing with or without the championship may qualify him. Meanwhile, the programs are slated to run Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7:45 EDST over the NBC blue. Pick-ups from Baer's training camp at Asbury Park, N. J.

NBC cast the program and Chester Miller produced it for the sponsor. Script is by Len Holton. Miller and Holton are entitled to honor scrolls for their jobs. Script has crispness in the dialog, adroit dovetailing in handling and a multiplicity of characters with an economy of means. It is a well-thought out job of writing, the superiority of which as broadcast material is obvious. And quite likely the story could be developed and sold to Hollywood for a picture. For the first installment alone contained a full-born plot germ.

Action opens in a hamburger joint. Gertie, the nice girl behind the mustard jars, is daft on a handsome palooka (Max Baer) who drives a cab. He's been a little inconsiderate. Two bored society damsels finally land in the palooka's cab and in a hoydenish mood of irresponsibility one of the Park Avenue sirens commissions the stalwart cabbie to drive her to Miami, Florida, and to start pronto. That's the beginning of a story, which, is charted out with the same degree of cleverness as installment number one, will hang up a record for well-done radio production.

Difficulty in fixing the point between what the author means and what the producer means is always tough. Miller is the man that put the thing together and made a radio script with a prize-fighter stand out as a piece of absorbing narrative. His sense of pace, the universal smoothness apart from two or three minor verbal stumbles by Baer, all compliment his skill.

Goodrich looks to have a dandy bet here. Showmanship values are present. There's a good name (topical) in a good framework. And the commercial copy is held down to reasonable claims.

CBS had the first crack at auditioning the 'Taxi' script to prospective commercials but when it came to talking terms about broadcasting a round-by-round version of the Baer-Carnera go as climax of the affair Columbia found that it didn't have the required time available. Among those who heard the script before the Goodrich Tire directorate took it up were Lucky Strike, Gillette Razor, Lever Bros. and Dodge Motors.

For the air rights to the fight the Madison Square Garden Corp. and the leather-pushing principals will split among themselves $25,000. This figure is $12,000 better than the bid put in by Kraft-Phenix. As the lead player in the script series for the initial six weeks Baer is due to collect around $15,000. Land.

CAB CALLOWAY ORCHESTRA
Hi-de-Ho
10 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

That billing belongs. Cab Calloway dispenses hi-de-ho, wahwah, za-zu-zay. It is a unique kind of noise that bears but a superficial resemblance to orthodox music. It's lunatic jazz, the idiom of Harlem, poured into trumpets, zithers, and whathaveyou. It's as pungent as brandy and as hot. A large section of the citizenry are ga-ga over Calloway's wahwah.

While by way of an introduction to the report that the Calloway colored orchestra, just back from London bookings, appeared on the Rudy Vallee Fleischmann hour. And offered a characteristic sample of their stuff.

Calloway orchestra has made a couple of guest appearances, but has yet to attract direct sponsorship. It may be there's a bit too much pepper in the Calloway stew for radio. Yet reversely the band can answer the summons of any advertiser seeking an attraction of established popularity. Cab Calloway is one of the name attractions of the negro race. He and his aggregation of Harlem talent are standard theatrical bill-toppers. Type of rhythm and production numbers created by Calloway are unique and while they are not universally liked (nothing so radical could be) they have a numerous constituency. Land.

MAURY H. B. PAUL
With Freddy Martin Orchestra
Chatter, Band
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WABC, New York

Elizabeth Arden Cosmetic has Paul, who Hearst by-lines as Cholly Knickerbocker on the society page of the New York American, teamed with the Freddy Martin band over CBS over a Tuesday evening.

As one who has had his tux and notebook on the inside of many a shindig tossed by New York's 400 Maury Paul can relate some harrowing tales of social frustration.

If Mrs. Jones of Podunk listens in for this series she'll learn that others with millions at their command have suffered social defeat. All because of poorly planned parties. Maury Paul is adept at picturing the horrors of such catastrophies.

Paul tells of how one outlander after another coming into Manhattan with fortunes garnered from oil, cattle, fish or whatnot has found the social going tough for the simple reason that in planning her assault on society's ramparts she hadn't provided original novelties for the jaded spirits of Park Avenue and the East 50's. It isn't lavishness that turns the trick as much as it is a twist of the different, Paul assures 'em.

Paul relates how one hostess knocked 'em for a row of Social Registers by building her menu around the lowly hot dog, and another saved her debbe guests from boredom by loading the entertainment bill with hillbilly warblers. Other novel touches in the latter regard still untapped are the importation of a Minsky troupe for the evening, or a can-can heaver from Chicago's lower loop.

Sandwiching Maury Paul's homily are tunes by the Freddy Martin combo orchestrated in the soft, romantic manner that has become the fashion for all programs that have a cosmetic to sell. For the plug retailing there's a femme with a pleasing register. Theme of her rondelay is simply 'keep your skin young and smoother the Elizabeth Arden way.' A gift is offered for the writing. It's a bandeau to be worn while applying the cold cream. Along with it will come a booklet, 'The Quest of the Beautiful.'

ARTHUR BORAN
Impersonations
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Arthur Boran rates as one of the few impersonators who have found a distinctive niche for themselves in radio. This young fellow not only has an arresting flair for capturing the finer nuances of the voice personality that he is imitating but he knows how to arm himself with material that set the original off at his best. For the past two seasons Boran has been in pretty steady demand for guest appearances on commercials clearing through WOR and NBC and CBS hookups. Recently he did a set of five appearances on the Colgate House Party, Saturday evening stanza on the red (WEAF) link.

Kraft-Phenix last Thursday (3) had him also routined in a 'party' idea. Program confined him to a takeoff on Jimmy Durante and the conception that Boran poured into the mike was one that did swell both by Boran and that Schnozzola. As part of the proceedings Boran uncorked a monolog on the theme of reincarnation. It fitted the personality he set out to mimic and it was funny. Odec.

CARSTENS CORNERS
With Burton James Players
Serial
COMMERCIAL
KOMO, Seattle

Presentation of a series of comedy dramas entitled 'Carstens Corners' and presented by Carstens Packing Company, scheduled for 26 weeks, opened Monday (30). It is farce throughout, with homely philosophy scattered generously in the lines. Burton James of Playhouse Players heads a cast of excellent local talent.

Originally sketch was entitled 'Harper's Corners,' but was changed to tie in with the sponsor. Formerly 26 episodes were written for the now defunct American Broadcasting Company. Each cost the sum of $125—which was paid to Mitchell Sutherland, author.

Main characters are: Grandpa Prouty, deaf octogenarian; Chet Rochester, constable; Jeff Larabee, loquacious village barber around whose Elite barber shop most of the action revolves; Henry Carstens, proprietor of the Carstens House; his wife, Sophia; Aunt Sarah, village gossip; Mrs. J. Worthington Bangs, richest woman in Wales County; ruce Talbott, postmaster, etc.

Program is designed to create good will toward sponsor's product by providing mellow amusement. The judicious use of the sponsor's name—particularly Carstens Corners—by repetition—not too much—carries message forward more effectively than straight commercials. Commercial blurb is converted to a two minute skit at the conclusion of each program. Audience response so far very favorable and increased good will seems certain.

EVERETT MARSHALL'S VANITIES
With Elizabeth Lennox, Irving Kaufman, Ohman and Arden Song Revue
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WABC, New York

Everett Marshall gets a double break on this program. First he shows up exceptionally well as a performer. Second, the publicity edge in having the program named after him is one of the most fortunate set-ups a headliner just starting on the air ever got. And the more so, as on this type of air show it's not usual.

Marshall is well known on Broadway, has been in numerous operettas, and is currently in the Shubertized 'Ziegfeld Follies'. He commands a good figure. Although he has scrouped in vaudeville and presentation houses and made shorts for the screen, he is probably not a name to the public at large. He begins for the radio listeners pretty much an outsider. But for that matter, to the ether addicts so were other names of the legit theatre.

Especially find on this program are the vocal duets rendered by Marshall and Elizabeth Lennox. There is some preliminary conversational palaver to these songs. Talk in general isn't good. The effort to create romance is not particularly successful. Sponsor's thought evidently is to create a romantic team in Marshall and Lennox. This is an inspirational hunch, but some tinkerings and experimenting may be necessary to get the right aesthetic slant. Danger seems to be gushiness, which Marshall's personality just doesn't fit. He is strong on rugged individualism and shy on the gigolo gloss.

Incidentally, Miss Lennox, antecedents unreported, is splendid individually and in union. Irving Kaufman, veteran vaudeville singer, stood out also. He has a voice radio can use and if he has any program ideas to sell with it he might be a candidate again for a break in his own right.

Team called Romeo and Juliet is Kaufman and a femme foil. Do Negro dialect comedy. Only it isn't funny comedy and it doesn't hold attention. Rambling gab is weak and this interlude didn't fit with the rest of the program.

Full billing of the show is 'Everett Marshall's Broadway Vanities', Ohman and Arden are there. A program without Ohman and Arden would be quite a novelty.

Auspices might be reminded that Marshall is but little known to the hinterland and his reputation should not be over-presumed. Some of the lines handed Marshall proceed on the theory that he l. better known than he is. A tendency in consequence for Marshall to sound a bit egotistical ought to be halted. He will sell himself on performance, so needs none of this antiquated star-light.

Bisodol concentrates its commercial copy in the middle of the program. It's as windy as a Himalayan plateau. Paragraphs are used where sentences would suffice. Land.

'OLD HEIDELBERG'
With Cadets Quartet, Doris Lorraine, Gene and Charlie, Clarence Wheeler Orch., Tom Shirley Music
COMMERCIAL
15 Mins.
WBBM, Chicago

Blatz beer is paying for this 15-minute shot three times weekly on WBBM and once weekly on the Columbia links. Thursday and Sunday programs are strictly local, while the Tuesday broadcast shoves out over the web.

Show itself would be classified in vaudeville as family time, which would mean too good for the small time and not quite up to the smart style necessary to make it big time. And family time is probably just the right kind of time for Blatz beer and for this program. It's a home-folks program and this is by far the type of people the beer wants to reach.

There's plenty crowded into that 15-minute period, but it's all the same kind of entertainment. The Cadets sing and well, Gene and Charlie sing a semi-comedy tune, while Doris Lorraine sings, but not good enough. Miss Lorraine failed to sell her tunes. Over the loud-speaker her voice came in flat and without color. Even tunes inherently colorful, such as 'Two Hearts in Three-quarter Time,' were stiff and lifeless.

Standout were the Cadets for solid vocalizing of the 'Stout Hearted Men' variety and the Clarence Wheeler orchestra as a bang-up background and specialty ensemble. It shapes as an excellent job of these two items, the Cadets and the Wheeler group. Gene and Charlie had too little to do and picked an old tune, 'Honeymoon Hotel' for their so-so effort.

Show shapes as suitable from the sponsor's angle, without a chance of it making particular ripple in the radio sea. It is the type of show that though it will make only lukewarm friends, will not make any enemies. WBBM house talent. Gold.

EDDIE STANLEY
with Carol Dee
Comedy
COMMERCIAL
WEAF, New York

Eddie Stanley is from California. That's about all that his professional biography, as revealed to date consists of. He's been on the Rudy Vallee Fleishmann program twice, the second time (3) presumably by what used to be called popular request. It seems probable the lad will be on the way up if given a few more breaks such as Vallee handed him.

Stanley tells old jokes. Very old jokes. Tells them with a quasi-twang. Lots of vitality in his style. Speaks clearly. Every word registers. Speaks loudly. A lot louder than radio is accustomed to, but it's all part of his style and should not be changed.

That a young unknown can on merit stir up interest and get people asking, 'Who is that guy' and where did he learn his stuff' comes near to being one of those success stories that read so nice. That is, if the expected sequel materializes. And the afternoon generally follows the morning in any well-regulated system of logic. Stanley has what it takes.

Calculated to win over those who know the answers as well as the comic does is his smart stunt of kidding himself and his material. For instance, he cracks, 'just wanted to test your memory,' or 'it's your own fault—you laugh at 'em.'

Carol Dee is an able foil.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE OF THE AIR
COMMERCIAL
30 Mins.
WGY, Schenectady

Saturday morning program which youthful would-bes have broadcast over WGY for some time, is now sponsored by a Schenectady department store, with the starting time advanced to 10:30. Tom Lewis, who succeeded Roland Bradley (now of WEVD) as director of the Children's Theatre, now acts as m.c. and announcer.

From the viewpoint of the adult listener—omitting fond parents, relatives and friends of the performers—present programs pack no great punch. Doubtful whether they tote a wallop for juvenile dialers, either, although one can not be sure about this. Neither the recent talent nor the lay-out appears to be distinctive.

Of straight acting, the thing which with Bradley obtained splendid results on local kid programs, there has been none recently. Present stanzas unwind as a series of musical specialties, with pop vocals by little girls predominating. At the best the latter stuff is imitative; on the air it does not display girlhood or childhood in the most innocent and appealing aspects. Hardly edifying to hear a youngster in a quavering voice warble about love, often of the torch type.

Instrumental end of the program is stronger. A boy xylophonist, for instance, plays rather skillfully, and several other instrumentalists show competence. Incidentally, recent programs have been light on male talent. The lad, who m.c.'d with the confidence of an adult professional, is not appearing, nor is the boy with the appealing soprano. Tap dancing heard is okeh, although it does not click over the ether as in a theatre.

Tom Lewis, whose usual radio-stage activities are far removed from that of a 'father' to kids, guides the hopefuls here rather well. Program is weighed down with advertising. Junior dialers may not object to the plugging between each specialty, although some of the merchandise mentioned is certainly beyond their purses and desires. Jaco.

DOROTHY DIX DRAMAS
Sketch
15 Mi
Sustaining
WHAT, Philadelphia

This show is a tie-up with the Evening Public Ledger, which carries the lovelorn column. Program is strictly local, with original scripts written by studio's continuity crew.

Idea, presented daily at 1:30, is to dramatize the problems as coming through the mail, not strictly adhering to the Dix stuff as the paper carries it. Outstanding feature of the program is neatness in production and characterizations. Show neither burns a torch for lost loves, or laughs off difficulties, but handles each plot's basis frankly and cleverly.

Scenes are doved in and out primarily with music, but occasional narration by the announcer smooths over a rough spot. Dorothy Dix is not ghosted, but her advice to listeners is turned over the program as dramatization or through announcer's spiel. Cast suits the series admirably, although occasional romantic episodes leave one or two choice snickers, especially in the scenes which depict the home-life of a henpecked hubby. Show takes on all comers, from pessimistic swains to old gals in search of happy love affairs, and creates not a little local comment.

Station handles the program serviously, and obviously, so does the audience. It's one of the most popular script shows in Philly, and has been for more than a year.

SCHLITZ PRESENTS
Henry Busse, Kings Jesters, Roach, Jean Paul King
Band, Songs, Drama
30 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WABC, New York

With the switch of producing responsibility from the Stack-Goble agency to Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne and the realignment of the program's cast, Schlitz had made little progress in relieving what has become its Friday night headache. Revised frame, which made its debut last week-end (4) represented a hodge-podge of some 10 or more commercials current on the networks, minus form, coherence and personality. Behind the 'Program of the Week,' which the brewer dropped after three samples, there was at least something smacking of the different in program ideas.

Because of the previous producer's commitment last Friday's show went through with a dramatized excerpt from what was tagged as the 'picture of the week.' Film was Warner Bros. '20 Million Sweethearts' and the production given the bit here couldn't have reacted to the picture's favor. Voice doubling couldn't have been more farfetched or detrimental to the illusion, while the thing as a whole left a pretty blurred impression of what it was all about.

Other dramatic bit interpolated into the continuity was a recollection of last year's Kentucky Derby. Jean Paul King doubled from the plug reading assignment into the role of sideline describer of the event, and poured into his delivery a twittery modulation and enthusiasm that would have done honor to a crocheting contest between Clara, Lu 'n' Em.

Henry Busse gave his customary expert interpretation of Tin Pan Alley's latest, the Kings Jesters plied a harmony interlude with the suavity and lightness that it takes, while Doris Roach, whom Rudy Vallee introduced on his Thursday night stanza several weeks ago, showed a keen flair for cadence in her vocalizing of a fast number. In selecting the fadeout number by the band the new producing coterie in Chicago showed an arresting penchant for originality. Tune is 'When Day Is Done.' Fred Waring has been using it for the same purpose ever since he's been on the air. Odec.

ROSEWOOD AND IVORY
Margaret Chesick, George Fraser and Peter Marti
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WBT, Charlotte, N. C.

Captivating lyric soprano voice of Margaret Chesick and a background of piano (Fraser) and xylophone (Martin) make a spot that so intrigued Southern Public Utilities Company and listeners that it has been signed for a full year.

Program, created under the direction of the WBT program department, was sold to the utilities concern on a brief trial. It turned the trick so it was signed for a year, three 15-minute programs a week.

Martin and Fraser are both experienced showmen, having played in all manner of bands and orchestras for all types of shows from canvas to big time theatres, circus and minstrel to lavish revue. They know how to make the background with proper shadings for Miss Chesick.

Program goes on at 11:45 o'clock a. m., a good time to reach the housewives who are the real customers of the utility concern.

Title comes from wooden notes of Martin's xylophone and Fraser's ivory notes.

MARY BERGHOFF
With Connie Beaver
15 Mins.
COMMERCIAL
WOWO, Fort Wayne

Name of Berghoff is soundly impressed on the listener in this quarter hour, as soprano is wife of brewery head which has just introduced its newest brand, Berghoff Hofbrau, to public. 'Zwei Herzen' in German is the theme, with program devoted to popular and light classics. Reader copy is good, being mostly choice recipes for housewife of famous dishes created at the original Hofbrau house in Munich, where Berghoff beer first saw light.

Program was on air twice weekly at first, but last week company decided to increase with an extra Sunday hour. Connie Beaver is accompanist and supplements with solos now and then. Featured singer has rich voice, which relays well. Studio concentration on this one for a special summer run.

'Ma Fraser,' of the NBC network afternoon sketch, is now being introduced as 'America's Mother of the Air.' With the change in time, skit is hitting the air 15 minutes earlier.

Bob McCombs, organist of Criterion theatre, has been appointed music director and staff organist for KOMA, Oklahoma City.

CBS May Use Business Films

Broadcasting's Initial Employment of Promotional Supplement

CBS may resort to talking pictures as a sales promotion device. Network is tinkering around with the idea, undecided whether to depend for the pictorial effects on photos, action pictures or cartoons. Meanwhile it is having recorded on sound tracks the voices of its names, near-names and talent slated for a buildup.

In addition to using these sound films for time and talent selling purposes the web is figuring on developing from them a library of one reelers to do a job of institutional plugging. The reels would be circulated among advertising clubs, women's clubs and schools. CBS has already selected a title for one of these subjects. It's 'A Day Around the Columbia Studios.' Included would be not only flashes of artists before the mike, but shots of the production department at work preparing the programs. Another reel would deal with the technical twists involved in broadcasting.

Recording of the artists is limited to a few bars of song or a gag. Soundtracking is being done through Paramount.

MORE SYNCHING TIME BETWEEN WBBM-KFAB

Chicago, May 7.

Local CBS station, WBBM, has made another synchronizing deal with KFAB in Lincoln, Neb. Will synch with the station from 8:30 until midnight instead of simply from 10 p. m. on.

Which makes it just a little tougher for the local salesmen since it's necessary for the station to carry network programs for 90 minutes additional each evening.

No Dobbsie Renewals

San Francisco, May 7.

When its contract expires June 18 California Packing Co. will not renew with NBC and Capt. Dobbsie's transcontinental Del Monte Ship of Joy will go off the air.

Dobbsie's show, only cross-country commercial currently emanating from here, has been on since September with several renewals. Neither Calpack nor the McCann-Erickson agency has any plans for the summer.

Nothing definite for Dobbsie, who for five years had the Shell Oil account on the Don Lee and NBC chains.

Another account going off NBC is 'Dawn of Hollywood,' Tuesday night cosmetic show for the House of Seager, which bows out May 15.

Neal Barrett, general manager KOMA, Oklahoma City, now waxes his mustache at both ends.

Irene Beasely Summer Sub for Wendall Hall

Chicago, May 7.

Irene Beasley is set for the summer run for the Fitch air tonic show on NBC.

Replaces Wendell Hall, who has been the show for the past season and who is slated to return to the program this fall after a vacash.

Special Stage, Radio Show in WGN-B&K Deal

Chicago, May 7.

Arrangement has been made by WGN and Balaban & Katz circuit of theatres for a one weekly special broadcast from the stage of the Chicago, the ace B.&K. house.

Show will run from 9-9:30 p.m., with B.&K. producing a special radio-type show for these broadcasts. Not only will the show include the talent of the Chicago theatre, but of all available talent at the other B.&K. spots. It will be a public broadcast, with the event advertised to the public an an 'extra added attraction.' Quin Ryan, manager and chief voice of WGN, will be in on the first broadcasts anyway as m.c. to get the show started.

Brunton Buying KQW

San Francisco, May 7.

Deal is on the fire between Julius Brunton & Sons, owners of KJBS, to buy KQW in San Jose and San Francisco, from Fred Hart, owner. Papers expected to be signed by Ralph Brunton and Hart this week.

If completed, Brunton will move the Frisco studios of KQW to his present KJBS location and will link the pair of broadcasters into a two-station chain. KQW will give KJBS added coverage of the northern California territory.

Meanwhile Brunton is sliding out from under the Radio News Bureau in which he is affiliated with other stations throughout the country. Unable to get a satisfactory return from his heavy investment he has cut off one man and instead has subscribed to the Press Radio Service, meanwhile maintaining one man in Frisco and one in Sacramento for local news, and also the Dow-Jones ticker service. Does two broadcasts and spot announcements of his own gatherings and the Press Radio stuff at 12:30 a.m.

SUPER-POWER HAS A FOOTHOLD

Development of 500,000-Watt Station Outside RCA Control Deemed Salubrious from Corporation's Standpoint

SARNOFF'S SLANT

In the establishment of WLW, Cincinnati, as the highest powered station in the country, RCA has a partisan interest aside from the fact that its subsidiary, the Victor Co., did the equipment supplying for the 500,000-watt transmitter. With this indie outlet rating as the lone superpower broadcast source, RCA figures that much has been done towards diverting the curse of monopoly that has been fastened upon its other subsid, NBC. Also that the way is now open for NBC to do some promoting for super-power on its own accord.

David Sarnoff, who was among the dedicatory speakers for WLW last Wednesday night (2) has always been a strong advocate for super-powered transmitters. Through such setups (50,000-watts) it has been his opinion NBC-controlled stations in most instances overcome the problem of dead spots and kindred interferences.

Just prior to the organization of NBC the Westinghouse Co. had under consideration a plan of converting every one of its stations into broadcasting sources of the super-power type. It believed that with five or six transmitters strategically located and armed with super-power it would be able to cover the entire United States. Stations that Westinghouse had figured for power promotion along these lines are KDKA, Pittsburgh; WBZ-WBZA, Boston-Springfield; KYW, Chicago, and KFKX, Lincoln, Neb.

RCA has still another interest in WLW. Location of this outlet will lend itself ideally to the development of television, and it is believed that RCA will make heavy use of this that center when it is ready to debut picture-casting as a commercial medium.

NBC Pays Tribute

While NBC is supposed to resent WLW's ability to demand and get $990 an hour from the network and the probable increased card rate demands expected to be made shortly by WLW on the 500,000-watt basis, the larger significance of a super-power station outside NBC-RCA control is understood to mollify the network's pout.

Deduction has been made within broadcasting that WLW under its new signal strength is competing with the networks rather than with individual stations and that the very nature of WLW coverage is an anti-network argument that will be used plenty.

Chicago, May 7.

Indications are the Palmer House show will shift from the NBC basic web to the Quality Group of three major indies, WGN, WOR and WLW on May 29 at the expiration of the first 13 weeks of the Palmer House-NBC contract.

Hotel is understood plenty dissatisfied with the mail count on the show thus far, especially when comparing it with the click of the Floyd Gibbons programs last year. Mail count for the programs up to the present is reported at some 10,000, far under the Gibbons mail in 1933. Present NBC hookup of 17 stations does not include WLW, but NBC is now offering the hotel WLW for the second 13-week option if the hotel goes along.

Amos 'n' Andy appeared in person at Warner theatre, Oklahoma City, Saturday, May 5.

CBS 77%, NBC 40% Above April, 1933, Figures; Summer Prospects Still Good; Drop Not Alarming

April gave Columbia a record-breaking boost. Network last month grossed in time sales 77% more than it did for the corresponding 30-day period of 1933. Previous month also set a new April high for CBS. Tally from hookup facilities in the last lunar stretch came to $1,371,601, which was $13,000 better Columbia did for April, 1933.

NBC for April, '34, showed a jump of 40% over the same month of 1933, but continued to lag behind the network's 1932 grosses. However, the marginal drop between March and April indicated that NBC was having less difficulty than CBS in holding on to business as the warm spell approaches. In the case of NBC, the dip amounted to $105,000, while Columbia last month took in $153,000 less than it did in March.

NBC's time disposal business last month brought it $2,368,118. In April, '33, it did $1,690,177, while the '32 tally for the same month was $2,649,892. Judging from the small number of accounts it's slated to lose this month and the addition of such new business as Goodrich Tire's Max Baer script series and General Food's matinee Show Boat version, NBC should come through May with a similar 40% edge over the May, '33, level. In the latter month the network grossed $1,622,887.

Columbia's May, 1933, total was $624,256. Though the breakdown of NBC's total into the red (WEAF) and blue (WJZ) link allocations were not available last week, it is apparent that CBS in April continued to be the top grosses by network.

Los Angeles, May 7.

For the first four months of 1934, major broadcasting stations on the coast shows a substantial increase in dollar volume over the same period last year and also shows commercial increases over the first four months of 1932, considered the banner year.

In network business, from Pacific coast accounts, NBC is way ahead of CBS. If the former's business keeps up as started for the four months it looks as if NBC will do around $1,500,000 worth of business from west coast advertisers over the Coast chain and from Coast accounts sending their stuff east.

National accounts coming to the Coast either by transcontinental chain or by production on the west coast for release here run almost two to one over Columbia. At least four accounts using CBS in the east come into western territory over NBC.

WOMEN DISLIKE SPIELERS OF OWN SEX

Toronto, May 7.

Would-be Canadian femme announcers are out of luck, according to a survey of Toronto stations. Curiously enough, the feminine elements in Canadian radio audiences are the chief objectors.

When faced by a microphone, women have a tendency to talk in an unnatural voice and put on 'a sweet tea-party affectation,' according to Stanley Maxted, regional director of the Canadian Radio Commission.

'As a general rule, we have no objection to women announcers but we have found through observations of the past six years that a woman's voice is never successful on the air,' says Maxted. 'If we could find a woman who can talk perfectly natural on the air, we would do everything in our power to promote her.'

Claims Harry Sedgewick, managing director of CFRB; '70 per cent of our listeners are women; the men never complain about women announcers; complainants are always women. Their voices are clear but they are not acceptable to listeners unless they are confined to children's programs or descriptions of cosmetics or lingerie. In these instances, women announcers get by for it is not very convincing for a baritone voice to laud the qualities of ladies' personal garments.'

More Dough—Musicians

Los Angeles, May 7.

Musicians' local, 47, is attempting to penalize local stations which transport their staff orchestras to other spots to remote before free audiences.

Under new regulations stations using their bands for these outside affairs will be compelled to pay the men their usual studio time plus the one engagement rate for each out-of-station remote.

CBS Tells Atlantic City Commission Where the Money Goes on WPG

Atlantic City, May 7.

Columbia Broadcasting Company operated the city's radio station, WPG, for the seven months ending April 28, at a deficit of $16,382.29, the officials of CBS reported to the City Commission Thursday (3). This brings the total losses reported for the almost four years of operation of the station by CBS to $121,909 against a report of only one profit, $7,665, for a six months' period in 1933.

Under the terms of the lease all losses are cumulative in figuring the share paid to the city. City is to be paid 50% of profits, if any, whenever the profits amount to more than the accumulated deficit.

Station's report of income and expense for the period October 1, 1933, to April 28, 1934, follows:

Income: Broadcasting, $17,178.55; cash discount received, $19.76.

Income for acting as CBS representative in this territory and for originating commercial and sustaining programs, $9,000. Miscellaneous income, $38.69. Total, $26,237.

Director expense (cost of hookups; cost of talent to advertiser; remote expenses; commercial wire charges; time discount; advertising agency commission; program expense): $2,407.73.

Indirect expense: Transmitter expense; salaries, power, supplies, repairs, tubes, etc., $9,298.42.

Control: Electrical research products, salaries, repairs, etc., $5,102.60.

General expense: Salaries, executive traveling and miscellaneous, insurance, stationery, etc., $14,654.17.

Sales: Sales expense and commission, $1,565.52.

Program: Salaries, copyright license, $6,390.

Production: Salaries and production expense, $1,689.14.

Remote: Salaries, supplies, batteries, etc., for remote controls, $1,182.55.

Maintenance: Studio expense, ventilation, $329.18.

Total, $42,619.39. Loss, $16,382.39.

Cash, Not Thanks

Winnipeg, May 7.

Labelling the Canadian Radio Commission as a 'bunch of chiselers,' Winnipeg Musicians' Association, Local 190, refused to consider CRC request to pick up gratis the inaugural concert of the annual Music Festival.

Commish, beset by financial difficulties, had hoped to grab the concert, featuring Winnipeg Symphony orchestra and Winnipeg Male Voice choir. President of Winnipeg Symphony Association communicated with local 190, which said it was okay for the CRC to broadcast the concert so long as the musicians received recompense from the radio body.

CRC wouldn't pay anything for the privilege of broadcasting.

JAN SAVITT, AGE 23, HEADS WCAU MUSIC

Philadelphia, May 7.

Complete reorganization of WCAU musical department took place today (Monday) with Jan Savitt, of the Philadelphia orchestra, coming in as the outlet's new baton-wielder.

Savitt, with the Philly concert orchestra since he was 15, takes the reins at WCAU at the age of 23. With him comes Harold Anderson as staff arranger and librarian.

Action by the station replaces Paul Mason's house unit, which had resigned the week before, and culminates the difficulties which arose when the local musicians' union clamped down upon Philadelphia ether outlets for paying below scale.

It is expected that a wholesale cleaning of talent is due this week, since WCAU is planning a musical campaign to reach the top in competition with chain outlets over the country, and in anticipation of KYW's removal to Philly. Perking up of the entertainment facilities with this CBS key station should throw many chain shows its way, and be instrumental in having a number of network sustainings of the more important nature emanate from the station.

Savitt, as the new orchestra head, automatically takes over all commercials vacated by Mason's resignation.

Need Better Sales Copy—Gallup

Showmanship in Preparation of Advertising Blurbs Air's Great Demand

Radio's next step in the field research, avers George Gallup, be to find ways and means of im- research, avers George Gallup, will who directs the Young and Rubicam agency's research department, believes that a major part of the merchandise retailing on has been ineffective for the very reason that advertising has done little in studying and putting to use the new set of psychological factors presented by broadcasting.

Sponsor, says Gallup, has pretty well mastered what had been his first problem in the medium and that was the fashioning of entertainment that would assure their tuning in week after week. Job now confronting the fellow that pays the program bill is to determine how he can get his advertising message to the listener in a way that both overcomes mood resistance and sets up a mental association favorable to the particular product.

For years advertising in radio had contented itself with producing the required sales effect by the device of windy plugs and repetition of selling points. To get away from the dullness and resentment that this method produced commercials the past year or so have resorted to feeding it to them in dramatized or dialoged capsules. But all these efforts or experiments haven't even begun to attack the problem because the writers responsible still think in terms of print copy and have given minor thoought to the distinct psychological problems involving the auditory sense.

'Moon Dial' Wax Program At 10:30 P.M. on WJSV Solidly Commercial

Washington, May 7.

WJSV, local Columbia outlet, will make first local attempt at staging full hour of spot announcements with phonograph record fill-ins at night beginning May 14. Programs are mainstays of all stations in morning and afternoon, but all have steered away from clogging up after-dark hours with stuff.

Move was actuated by waiting list which has grown up for 'Sun Dial,' breakfast hour run by Arthur Godfrey. Circular letter sent to all advertisers argues that in summer nearly 20,000 auto radios are in operation in parks and highways and spot stuff at night is way to reach 'em.

Program will be labeled 'Moon Dial.' Scheduled for 10:30 to 11:30 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Philly Dailies Soften

Philadelphia, May 7.

That the Philly newspapers and local radio may soon go doveydovey received another boost this week when the Philadelphia Inquirer, morning daily of the Curtis-Martin house and recently combined with the Morning Ledger, bought daily spot announcements on WCAU and WFI.

First move in this connection was the institution of short-wave pages, some weekly and others daily, in the local press a month ago. Idea has been getting plenty of attention through circulation and reader response, and sheets are said to be contemplating regular broadcast columns. This is complete reversal of newspaper attitude, which has had the press dead against the air since six years ago.

RADIO SHOWMANSHIP

(Merchandizing and Program Tieups)

OUTSTANDING STUNTS:
MARY PICKFORD PRESENTATION.
CAMPBELL-EWALD AGCY., DETROIT

Selling the Directors

Detroit.

Campbell-Ewald Agency in presenting the proposed Mary Pickford program to Pontiac prepared a display similar to those used in theatre lobbies. Series of beaver board panels pasted solid with newspaper clippings about Mary Pickford brought out the inherent publicity possibilities of the star.

Hinged wall-books containing photographs and highlighting advantages of the program to the product were prepared. Whole thing worked into a Barnumesque presentation with lots of elegant photography, and lithography for the benefit of the executives and directors of the General Motors subsidiary.

Irtax Problems

New York.

LaFrance soap flakes continues to have a program of considerable innate dramatic tug in the ether version of timeless Beatrice Fairfax. However, Saturday (28) the case of the husband with social pretensions seemed a bit incredible.

No doubt there are husbands who want to put on the dog while wifey pulls the other way for simplicity and naturalness, but traditionally it's the feminine side of the house that's supposed to yearn for the swank while the old gent likes to flaunt suspenders and shoeless feet. Still, since the program obviously thrives by creating partisanship maybe the story was deliberately written that way.

Towels and Sox

New York.

Sliver Dust programs now goes beyond dish-towels for milady. Kitchen queens can still trade two box tops for a towel as heretofore, but now the sponsor has a super-offer. New premium is a pair of silk stockings, guaranteed to be in the latest fashionable shade and of $1 quality. To obtain same the housewife needs only wash enough pots, pans, dishes, floors, bathtubs, clothes and floors to use 10 boxes of Silver Dust. Tops of these cartons can be ransomed for the hosiery.

Paul Keast and Thelma Goodwin and an orchestra (CBS) contrive an enjoyable quarter-hour. Not a program to excite comment, but likely to hold the ears that pick it up.

Bank Wants Mortgages

Portland, Ore.

First National Bank, a consistent user of radio advertising, is sponsoring a 'renovizing' campaign to speed up building activity and to beautify homes.

A half hour broadcast over KEX from veranda of model house rebuilt on prominent downtown corner featured the introduction of star of the San Carlo Grand Opera company then playing in Portland.

Byrd-World's Fair Tie-Up

Chicago.

More button-pushing set for the opening of the World's Fair here on May 26. Latest remote control celebrant slated is Admiral Richard Byrd who will join in the general cheer on opening day by transmitting an electrical impulse from Little America in Antarctica to the loop. The impulse will shoot off some fireworks.

All this being readied by General Foods for the regular Saturday two-way broadcast. Regular New York assistants on the Byrd expedition broadcasts will come into Chicago for the event. Also in on the deal is the ship 'City of New York' which is on exhibit at the Fair.

Free Ducats For Kids

St. Paul.

Tilden Produce Co., local creamery, couples its radio and picture entertainment for listeners to its daily air program over KSTP.

Kids are urged to send in labels from Tilden's butter, each label to be accompanied by a joke. Ten best daily get two tickets to any show in the Twin Cities (St. Paul-Minneapolis). Stunt is one of the highlights of the daily KSTP Children's Hour program.

Interesting angle to showmen is that kids seldom pick ducats for the deluxers, preferring any house which happens to be showing a good comedy or a slam-bang western.

Book Giveaway, 7c Each

Chicago.

Dr. West toothpaste, 'Frank Merriwell,' platters will shortly start a new give-away test in Denver. Will offer kids a copy of one of the Frank Merriwell adventure books for two carton wrappers. Cost to advertiser on books is figured about seven cents apiece due to quantity.

Dr. West is now giving away live turtles to the youngsters and the campaign is reported okay but the toothpaste company is looking ahead to the day when turtle tide turns. Through the local J. Walter Thompson agency.

Grocery Store Idea

Kansas City.

A new program idea is being offered by the A-G (Associated Grocers) Musical Grocers over KMBC.

Daily morning spot presents a grocery store with Al and George, the proprietors; Olaf the butcher, Eimer the stock boy, Flash the delivery boy, and customers. The script is interrupted by songs, with lyrics adapted to the various products being advertised. Paul Henning and Gomer Cool are the authors.

ir For Chrysler

New York.

Chrysler Male Choir, consisting of workmen employed in the Plymouth, Dodge, DeSoto and Chrysler plants, will broadcast an hour's program over CBS tonight (Tuesday) starting at 9:30. Event will originate from Orchestra Hall, Detroit, with Thomas Lewis, 52-year-old ex-coal miner from Wales and amateur musician, the conductor.

Choir holds 185 voices, with the ages of the members ranging from 19 to 64 years.

Improved Weather Reports

Boston.

E. B. Rideout, WEEI meteorologist is now utilizing a different method of fact finding on which to base his forecast by taking via short wave the 9:05 a.m. and p.m. complete reports from station NAA, the U. S. Naval Observatory at Arlington, Va. Thus, with a member of the WEEI operating staff taking the code reports which are much more complete than the telegraphed information heretofore utilized, Rideout, without journeying twice daily to the local weather bureau, will have at an earlier hour strictly up-to-the minute data. The Arlington reports encompass such distant points as the Canal Zone and the Alaskan peninsular.

New technique in gathering information will not only furnish substantially more data for Rideout to work with but will speed up his specialized service to mercantile and other business which in increasing numbers, are finding it profitable to take his 'long range' (advance) forecasting dope sheets and last minute information on current conditions.

Launching Carstens

Tacoma.

Showmanship in a big way was used by the Carstens Packing Company in building up its program which started over the NBC regional hookup, Seattle, Spokane and Portland, Monday eve. With a sales force of over 100 in Oregon and Washington, hookup was made to include Tacoma, parent office and entire sales organization in Spokane, Portland, Seattle listened to an hour's audition and sales dynamite the Saturday before the program broke. Billboards, snipe posters on 148 trucks, 10,000 window strips, 50,000 stickers, 5,000 postal cards direct to meat dealers, told the story of the opening broadcast. This advance buildup was carried out in 6 days before the opening.

Postal wires were used with KOMO mechnicians carrying out all details of the remotes. It was estimated that over 1,200 people of the organization participated in this buildup for the program which will run for 26 weeks at half-hour periods. Ads were carried in every large newspaper in Oregon and Washington with the Oregonian in Portland breaking the Sunday before with 2 col cut in Sunday section.

ie-Up

New York.

Literary Guild helped celebrate the debut of T. S. Stribling's dramatic series, 'Conflict,' on CBS by putting out a special edition of the Guild's magazine, Wings, for distribution among listeners.

Issue contains a greeting from William S. Paley, an article on writing for radio by the novelist himself, and contributions by Carl Van Doren, Thomas L. Stix and Courtney Savage, CBS's chief dramatic director. Stix did the agenting for the Stribling script.

Day at WINS

New York.

As its contribution to National Youth Week WINS last Monday morning (30) not only devoted a quarter hour program to the event but assigned for the day honorary titles covering each job on the executive and operating staff to a group of youngsters selected through the co-operation of the Greater New York Forum for Character Building. Boys and girls, each under 18, were given an insight on the running of the business end of a station as well as the preparation of a program.

It was the first time that a stunt of the bosses for a day type had been pulled by an outlet in the New York area.

Window Shows

Portland,

Nate Cohn, manager of one of Portland's large furniture stores, thought up the idea a long time ago of featuring a children's broadcast from the store's windows. So successful has this weekly Saturday morning remote broadcast been, that in answer to numerous requests, this 'Star Window Theatre of the Air' has now begun a road tour of nearby towns.

First show sold out all seats two weeks in advance. Plan of program is to give Portland youngsters a chance to sing, play or recite, but they must have the stuff. Nate Cohn sees to that, for no one goes on the air without first being auditioned and approved.

Inside Stuff—Radio

With the formal getaway of WLW, Cincinnati, as the world's most powerful radio transmitter duly celebrated, Powel Crosley, and his broadcasting execs are huddling on increased commercial rates other changes and improvements in keeping with the station's New rates will become effective July 1, probably around $1,300.

While an affiliate of NBC, the 500,000 blaster will undoubtedly called upon to pipe independent programs with big league talent from New York and possibly Chicago, which will necessitate the setting up of private studios at those points. The addition of name talent to the Crosley staff is another matter of consideration. The expense of such acquisitions is difficult because of Cincy's location in a limited theatre field, which does not permit enough stage work for outstanding artists to bolster incomes over salaries for broadcasting.

Dedication of WLW as a 500,000-watter was held Wednesday (2) with a six-hour program that was started at 9 p. m. by President Roosevelt pressing a key in the White House which released the heavy power on the Crosley transmitter plant at Mason, O., 22 miles north of Cincinnati.

W. R. Hearst has issued orders to his papers to spread heavy on personality and stunt pictures involving radio programs. New York Journal is now carrying two pictures in its radio section daily and it is probable that the morning American will follow suit and boost the number of halftones from its present daily representation of one. Other New York sheets carrying a daily radio picture now are the World-Telegram and the Evening Post.

Sun, the Herald Tribune and the Times continue to reserve their photo layouts for radio to a single day of the week. With the Sun it's Saturday, and with the other two, Sunday. Both tabs, the Mirror and the News, are still maintaining a policy of thumbs down for mike personalities when it comes to puff pictures.

Contract for building new Philly Westinghouse outlet, KYW, awarded to Frank J. Larken Construction Company of Philadelphia.

Plans call for a transmitting station unlike any other ever built. Instead of the usual lattice work tower antenna which immediately identifies such a station, KYW will use tubular columns that taper from a 20-inch base to a 2-inch point. These bear a striking resemblance to a high flagpole, and eliminates the network of wires usually suspended from the top of one tower to the other. The columns themselves are the antenna for the station.

Top network execs in New York expressed themselves as distressed and contrite a week or so ago when an influential Manhattan attorney complained about the alleged unethical business practices of a network sales executive. Attorney complained on behalf of a woman film star.

Network sales exec, anxious to sell a different program, rapped the film star's voice and also told the automotive firm in question that the network could deliver the film star for $2,500, whereas the talking price for the contemplated radio program with the film star has been around $9,000.

Henri Damski, KOMO-KJR, Seattle, music director, is known for his baton-wielding ability. But his five-year-old son thinks more of his father when he has an oar in his hand.

Becalmed last week in the middle of Lake Washington when their outboard motor broke, the two made for shore, miles away, with Damski, Sr., rowing. Heavy weather arose, preventing aid from reaching them.

For hours Damski rowed, until, as the twilight faded, he gratefully reached shore. The kid was disappointed; he had wanted to make a night of it.

CBS claims contracts it already has for June, July and August constitute more than double the corresponding dollar-total for 1933—Network estimates that the time sales income for the summer of 1934 will show an increase of 125% over that of 1933.

Web states the figures upon which this percentage boost is based are not forecasts but are taken from the cold figures at the bottom of signed contracts for the summer.

Station W10XCT, Boston, newly licensed to the Yankee network for use in special events broadcasts, will be used for the first time when the Constitution returns to her home port of Boston some time this month.

Short wave transmitter will be taken aboard Old Ironsides before she reaches Boston harbor, and her progress up the channel will be described for the radio listeners.

Walter Craig reverses the orthodox sequence of copy writer turning radio showman. Craig, who has been radio writing, acting and producing for four years, is currently writing his first newsprint advertisements.

Street and Finney agency has commissioned Craig to compose blurbs for various kinds of pills.

Corporation Counsel Paul Windels of N. Y. has not completed his opinion on the theatre licensing law as affecting those radio studios in which broadcasts are given in front of audiences.

Texaco Undecided

Texaco hasn't decided whether it will bring Ed Wynn back to the air next fall. Meantime the refiner has advised NBC that it will withdraw from the Tuesday night spot May 29.

Wynn started for Texaco in April, 1932. He was off the air for three months last season.

WMAQ Gets 50,000 W.

Chicago, May 7.

WMAQ, NBC red outlet in Chicago, has been granted increase of power 50,000 watts, putting its power level with WENR and WGN.

Also appears that WJJD, the indie Ralph Atlass station, has won its fight to move main studios from Mooseheart to Chicago despite protests of every other major Chicago station with the exception of WBBM which is operated by Leslie Atlass, brother of Ralph. Protesting were WGN, WLS, WENR, WMAQ, WCFL, on grounds that further concentration of broadcast facilities in Chicago endangers the license renewal of all of them. However the commission examiner has recommended that the commission affirm its original grant of WJJD to move to Chicago since such a move will not in any way affect the coverage of any of the rival stations.

Move to WJJD was primarily to allow the use of the phrase WJJD 'Chicago' rather than WJJD Mooseheart.

MISHAP TAKES WINS OFF AIR FOR 3½ HRS.

WINS was forced off the air for three and a half hours late Friday afternoon (4) because of burned out transmitter tubes.

Electrical defect in the transmitter caused even the emergency set of tubes to blow out before the source of trouble was discovered. Station obtained a new set in time to finish out the last hour of day's schedule.

Molly Welbourne and Harry Royale are new artists at WHBC, Canton, O., having teamed up as Gertie and Elmer. They do song and patter for 15 minutes five days a week, with eight to ten spot adds interrupting their program. Welbourne formerly WJAS and KDKA, while Royale recently completed several weeks at WJAY, Cleveland.

Boston Public Defends Air

ill impress and influence politicians.

Among those who appeared in the State House hearings last week were blind citizens who protested upon behalf of the sightless populace who cannot get news from the daily press.

Determined newspaper opposition to the Yankee Network News Services base forced that organization to take its attle for full news facilities at the Massachusetts State House direct to the public, and to the Joint Committee on Rules of the State Senate and House. The public is being reached via the air.

After several weeks of indecision on the part of the Rules Committee, the State House Press Association assumed responsibility in the matter and voted to exclude the radio news service reporter from the press room at the State House. Dick Grant, editor-in-chief of the Yankee web's news service, immediately went on the air with a request for public support in breaking down the opposition. 'Get in touch with your State Senator or Representative,' he urged, 'and tell him that you want him to see to it that the radio news is given every facility in order to help it give the public news while it is news.'

Response was a tribute to the power of radio and to the interest of listeners in the welfare of the new service.

Telephone calls, letters, and telegrams poured in on the news service and on the salons. They came from merchants, floor-walkers, fishermen at sea, blind persons, shut-ins, farmers, others in every walk of life.

Representative John J. Craven of Boston, in whose thickly-populated district newspapers are sold on every street corner, was the first to respond to the public clamor. His answer was to file, on April 30, a resolution as follows:

'Resolved, That the Yankee Network News Service should be given the same privileges in the State House as any other news service.'

Also, Representative Horace Cahill of Braintree made a motion that Joint Rule No. 32 be amended as follows: 'That regular organized radio news services are entitled to the privilege of having their representative present in the galleries of the Senate and House and that the Massachusetts State House Press Association so amend its rules as to admit to its membership duly credited representatives of such regular organized radio news services.'

Joint Rules Committee, to which the order was referred, set Wednesday, May 2, as the date for a public hearing, and Grant urged his listeners to turn out for the hearing and support the measure. Rep. Craven spoke briefly over the Yankee web the preceding evening, saying that he had introduced the order for the purpose of preserving the freedom of speech in Massachusetts. 'It seems unbelievable that such a step should be necessary in a free American community in this day and age,' he said, 'but it is nevertheless a fact. And unless you show your interest in the preservation of that Constitutional freedom, your radio news program will be handicapped by discrimination.

S.R.O. at ing

Public hearing was another display of loyal following of the radio news. Originally scheduled for a room of generous size, where many important hearings in the Commonwealth's history have been held, it was quickly moved to the largest committee room available, and this was filled to overflowing in a few minutes and hundreds were turned away.

Rep. Craven opened the hearing with a short summary of his motives for filing the bill. He traced the growth of radio, and pointed out that news broadcasting was begun by the newspapers, but now the child was so big the parent was afraid of it and attempting to hamper its growth. Then he introduced Grant, who was accorded an ovation that would have warmed the heart of an opera star.

Yankee network editor reviewed the history of the State House difficulties, pointed out that the press room was public property, the equipment and telephone service were paid for by the public, and said he felt that there was no legitimate reason for excluding the radio news men.

R. L. Harlow, represented John Shepard 3d, president of the Yankee web, who was in Washington attending a meeting of the radio industry Code Authority, of which he is chairman. He quoted the Radio Act of 1927 as requiring radio stations to operate in the public convenience, interest, and necessity.

Rep. Donnelly, Lawrence, now in his third term, said he had received more requests from his constituents for support of the resolution than for all other reasons combined in his three terms. Rep. C. F. Pratt of Saugus ventured the prediction that, regardless of the outcome of the present matter, the time was not far off when microphones would be set up in General Court and entire sessions broadcast when important legislation was being debated.

Blind Man's Plea

Many others not in political life also spoke. Father John Boyko of Fall River delivered an eloquent plea for consideration for the blind; ex-Mayor Malcolm Nichols said he believed if the matter were put to a popular vote, radio news would be supported by a majority of 9 to 1; and Nicholas Sacco of Boston, blind for several years, added a dramatic touch when he rose from his seat in the corner, called attention to his condition, and asked consideration for himself and other so afflicted, who relied on the radio to keep them informed of world affairs.

Hearing lasted for nearly two hours, with the closing few minutes taken up by newspaper representatives opposing the order on various grounds, including the surprising one, which Grant was quick to refute, that radio furnished a bulletin service which did not require full facilities. Just why these facilities were not as important for bulletins as for lengthy stories was not made clear, but Grant was quick to reply that his service gave complete coverage of important stories, and carried as much State House news as at least one Boston daily paper.

Ignore NRA Code

miscellaneous matters up for discussion. Lots of talk and little action was way one member characterized meeting.

Subjects disposed of included Gen. Hugh Johnson's request for further cut in employees' hours and boost in survey of artists' wages and working conditions; and second part of report on technicians.

up Executive Officer James W. Baldwin, CA authorized transmittal of letter to Johnson terming idea of new hour slash and pay-raise impracticable under existing economic conditions.

Questionnaire to be sent to all stations in attempt to collect facts and figures about radio talent was revised by addition of numerous new questions, most of them proposed by Emily Holt, who sat in as representative of performers instead of in official Equity capacity. Questionnaire probably won't go out for another ten days or more, as considerable rewriting of tentative forms is necessary.

Report on second part of inquiry into working conditions and employee-employer relations of technicians is to go to NRA late this week or early next week. Pending finish of revision job, codists declined to give any low-down on contracts.

Baseball Exception

Waiver of code provision concerning rate maintenance was authorized to settle difficulties concerning baseball broadcasts. CA voted to inform all stations that because of uncertainty about time ball games run and impossibility of fixing specific rates now that contracts are in effect, clause requiring observance of published rates will be suspended for both game broadcasts and resumes.

Aside from settling present complicated situation, codists desired to try and work out satisfactory means of covering all sports broadcasts and handling cases of sponsored football, hockey, wrestling, and other event programs. Hope to reach understanding about handling of sponsored broadcasts before opening of football season.

Squabble over news broadcasts on West Coast, resulting from controversy between KNX and other stations which have subscribed to press-radio agreement was talked over but left unsettled. Despite feeling of various members that fight does not concern code, group decided to get more information before making up its mind.

Acting on basis of specific complaints against Hearst Los Angeles papers and Los Angeles stations, CA will call on competing broadcasters for answer to charges and detailed info about their tie-ups. Instead of dodging issue, codists in the end probably will decide that some action must be taken, although they have no idea at present of how to solve the problem.

Enemies of Radio Unite

ators to fold up, cost industry millions of dollars, and precipitate avalanche of legal actions. With only 96 channels and 550 commercial stations, industry figures withdrawal of quarter of assignments would necessitate junking half of investment in plant and equipment and tremendous outlay in readapting stations to new frequencies. Although no complete figures are available, leaders calculate revolutionary change would cost $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 plus untold legal costs for both industry and government.

Contending that supporters of the amendment already receive ample broadcast opportunities through arrangements with commercial stations and their independent outlets, N.A.B. sent summary of arguments to every Senator calling on solons to oppose idea and 'not to destroy the whole structure of American broadcasting by supporting a proposal regarding which the broadcasters have not even had an opportunity to be heard.'

No Vested Rights

Industry spokesmen face very real obstacle in conducting their fight, since both the existing law and Supreme Court rulings emphasize that licensees shall not be regarded as enjoying a vested right in their assignments. NAB executive pointed out this principle has kept industry constantly on defensive and at mercy of both commission and Congress, and situation would become worse instead of better if radical reallocation scheme goes over.

Principal arguments being used include contention that the reallocation job would be a burdensome task since amendment provides no way of evaluating claims of contesting non-profit stations and license.

While similar to campaigns of eductional groups which never had thrown a scare into industry in recent years, new movement is taken very seriously because of the unified support for the Wagner-Hatfield amendment. Animosity of Congress toward chains has swelled during past year, and Paulist-CBS, Coughlin-network, and other disputes over same issue have developed strong sentiment against alleged trusts.

Complicated situation also embroils Senator Dill's proposal to conduct special probe of American Telephone and Telegraph setup. Indications are that if communication control becomes fact before session ends inquiry resolution will be wastbasketed and job turned over to new regulatory outfit. But if Dill-Rayburn bills are caught in last-minute log-jam, then special committee will be turned loose on A.T.&.T., Western Electric, Erpi, and other phases of telephone monopoly.

Prospects that control legislation will be enacted before adjournment improved during past fortnight despite pressure from all sources for early windup of Congressional season. President reiterated his desire for some sort of communications supervision bill last week, and from present appearances at least stopgap measures will become law.

ADVERTISER WHO SANG ON OWN SHOW DIES

Kansas City, May 7.

John M. Hogan, Jr., radio singer and manufacturer of Sendol, who sang his own advertising programs, suffered a stroke of apoplexy Monday night after singing over WHB, and died the next morning in St. Joseph's hospital. Hogan was president of the Sendol Company, which he had built up in the few years.

Last year he sang an hour a week over WDAF as the 'Sendol Singer' specializing in old-time ballads. He was 40 years of age, and leaves his wife, his parents and seven brothers and sisters.

Gratis Chairs, Radios, for Invalids Is Program Aim

Charlotte, N. C., May 7.

Probably setting a record of some kind is the 'Old Wayside' program for invalids and shut-ins which is now rounding out eight years on WBT. Program is non-commercial on all counts. Nobody gets paid, including the station and Brown, himself a wheel-chair invalid.

Program, however, has raised thousands of dollars for the purchase of wheel chairs and radios for the crippled and blind within the listening area of WBT.

Bailey, ex reporter for dailies in the Southwest and Midwest, is now grinding continuity for Crosley's WLW and WSAI in Cincy.

Henry King moves into the Central Park Casino May 30. Eddie Duchin, present incumbent, shifts to the Dells, Chicago.

Bob Sutton writes 'Marco's Junior Revue' on KFWB for Marco Dog Foods. He is the son of the vaude team of Browne and La Velle.

Benny Rubi is going radio under Herman Bernie's direction.

MPPA to Publish Third Lyric Folio Despite Criticism

Music Publishers Protective Association will go through with its original plan of putting out a third edition of the lyric folio despite strong criticism. Issue will run to 500,000 copies. This will bring the total number of folios distributed by the MPPA to 1,400,000 copies.

John G. Paine, chairman of the MPPA board, asserts that the folio competition from legitimate sources has served to cut down the bootleg output by 75%. Formerly, the contraband element disposed of 3,000,000 copies every two weeks. Without revealing how he arrived at his figures, Paine stated that the bootleggers are now selling but 750,000 song sheets a week.

Paine holds that the MPPA folio has at least restricted the number of lyrics available to the public for a nickel. The bootleg folio contained anywhere from 150 to 200 lyrics, whereas the legitimate version gives them only 75 sets of verses.

Night Club Reviews

Town Hall Tavern, Denv.

Denver, May 2.

Louis Hellborn has leased the old Town Hall, down across the creek, cleaned it up, used a little paint, put in tables and chairs, and opened up 'The Old Town Hall Tavern,' with last century melodrama at 55 cents, including tax. This includes a beer on the house. Opening night was close to a sell-out.

'Ten Nights in a Bar Room' is the opener and will last for two or three weeks. Three professionals in the cast, and the rest local talent trying to get ahead. Play is done seriously, with no burlesque or hoke attempts, and the crowd gets a big kick out of it. They hiss and boo the villian, cheer the hero, pound on the tables and stomp the floor.

Place is dressed up with posters of old and forgotten melodramas, with pictures of actors and actresses of bygone days. Located in what is known as the Bowery of Denver, next door to a brewery, local citizens think they're slumming and taking their lives in their hands when they visit the place.

Only beer, wine, peanuts and sandwiches are being sold. On the opening night mostly beer, with practically no sandwiches.

Curtain goes up at 8:30. After the close of the play, dancing. 25 cents if you want to go in for latter only. Refreshments are economically priced, a big scuttle of beer at 50c, with no sandwiches above 40c. Rose.

L. A. LOCAL THIRD LARGEST

Los Angeles, May 7.

With a membership of 3,350 members, Musicians Protective local 47, of Los Angeles, is now third largest in the entire country. Chicago, with approximately twice as many members as Los Angeles, is topped by New York, which has about twice as many members as the Windy City local.

Auditions as Plug

Philadelphia, May 7.

Local song pluggers are taking a new twist in the competition for breaks on tunes. Boys are swarming into the program departments every time they smell a coming audition, since they figure that the audition show, if successful, will be the first program of the series to be aired.

Maybe a plug the initial stanza of a program counts double at the home office.

N. Y. HOTEL'S ROTATING CABARET-BAND REVUE

Show and service at the Terrace Room of the Hotel New Yorker is a smooth, tasteful presentation bespeaking the management's respect for soothing the customers while they dine. Terrace restaurant is housing Charlie Davis' band plus some extra and a show designed and booked by Fanchon & Marco. Scale is moderate, meeting anybody's purse. Place has jumped ahead as leading rendezvous under the Ralph Hitz management.

When caught, on a night early in the week, and when biz may be expected to be off, especially as the season runs into warm weather, the Terrace Room to the contrary was capacity. There's only one q.e.d. to be observed from this biz, and that is that the combo service and show as put forth under the Ralph Hitz management is successful.

Not to be compared with the N.T.G. nudes or the Casino de Paris things, because it's different at the Terrace Room. F. & M. show is among the first of the newly designed service of this show outfit for hotels. In originally for four weeks, it has been continued until it is now in its ninth semester.

Show has a line of 10 girls. They're lookers and a cheerful lot, who hand out good precision and altogether present an eyeful without any brash effects. On three times nightly, at dinner, supper and after theatre. Included among the talent are Wilbur Hall, comic instrumental trickster; the Zastros and Edward Brach, who dance together and with the line, besides Arline and Eddie Kinley. Davis carries additional talent for himself in Ruby Wright, a youthful pop coloratura; Bill Thorne, Frankie Parris and 'Coof' Morrison.

None of the turns consume more than what seems to be the necessary amount of performing time, thus not tying up the customers too much with show stuff.

Davis and his crew offer excellent dance music. He may be remembered from his picture house work and his crew is a youthful bunch of smart tune pushers. In his group is a lad who sings bass, and well.

Zastros offer a waltz very aptly among their numbers, and with Edward Brach also do a bit of commendable adagio. Good-looking trio and good performers. Arline and Kinley, on the other hand, head in for modern heel and toe work, with Kinley doing a Calloway take-off before the mike that's not so bad, besides. Shan.

MUSIC NOTES

Sanford Green, 18-year-old New Haven, Conn., composer, has placed his latest, 'Just As I Am,' with Santly Bros. Jack Manus is the lyricist. Same firm took Green's first pop tune two years ago.

Jack Mills has acquired the American rights to the score of British Gaumont's 'Come Along Sally.' Harry Woods did the writing, with the tunes including 'Riding on a Rainbow,' 'The Wind's in the West' and 'You Oughta See Sally on Sunday.'

Vincent Catanese has the dance combo assignment at the Post Lodge, Larchmont, N. Y.

Billy Chandler, formerly with Feist, has replaced Sam Wigler as Santly Bros'. professional manager.

Don Bigelow's orchestra at the Hotel Whitehall, New York, and broadcasting over NBC.

Six tunes by Herb Nacio Brown and Arthur Freed are included in Metro's 'Student Prince.'

ASCAP Entrance Nixed Agency-Pub By Director Group

Select Music Publications, Inc., has been tipped off by several publishers on the directorate of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers that any attempt by this firm to join the society will be stoutly resisted. Select Music is an adjunct of Rockwell-O'Keefe, Inc., artists' representatives, and among the acts handled by this office are Bing Crosby, Mill Bros., and the Casa Loma band.

Argument set up by publishers who served notice of membership opposition is that Select Music would be taking it from both ends. With the artists it books, Rockwell-O'Keefe would have no difficulty in getting plugs for its catalog, the publishers contend, and the plugs thus piled up would put Select Music at an advantage in the rating on the society's rolls against other firms less happily situated.

Thomas J. Rockwell and Corky O'Keefe declare, however, that if this is the sentiment that Select Music will have to contend with in trying to join the society, the objecting publishers can be assured that ASCAP will have no authority over Select's catalog, as long as they (Rockwell and O'Keefe) have anything to say about it.

Fisher Sues Rose

Songwriter Fred Fisher is suing songwriter-cabaret entrepreneur Billy Rose for 10% of his share in the Casino de Paree, N. Y., nitery, and would examine Rose before trial to determine how much he has grossed from the nite club. Fisher approximates it at $18,000 (at the rate of $1,000 a week as Rose's share for 18 weeks) and wants a percentage thereof, plus an accounting.

Suit is based on Fisher allegedly having negotiated Rose's hookup with the Casino, by introducing him to Yurmi Stern, president of the C. de P. syndicate.

Fisher's motion for examination of Rose before trial comes up tomorrow (Wednesday), while Rose at the same time is making a motion to dismiss the complaint.

Jimmy Grier and orchestra head a new floor show that got under way Saturday night (5) at the L. A. Biltmore Bowl.

Music Dealers Service, Inc., Denied Injunction Against Mayer, Et Al.

Temporary injunction sought by the Music Dealers Service, Inc., against Max Mayer was denied by Justice Frankenthaler in the New York Supreme Court last week. Attached to the denial was a proviso that Mayer be prepared to go to trial on the issues involved on May 15. Through the injunction proceedings the MDS wants the court to restrain Mayer and the group of nine major publishers who settled with him while the jobbers' anti-trust suit was in midtrial from carrying out the terms of the settlement agreement.

In moving that the settlement terms be declared a conspiracy in restraint of trade the MDS set up the contention that Mayer's counsel had terrified the publishers into withdrawing from the $1,250,000 action while it was being heard before Federal Judge Bryant the latter part of March. Papers in the MDS injunction proceedings also asked the court for a $100,000 judgment against Mayer on the ground that the settlement agreements he made with the nine publishers resulted in forcing the distributing combine out of business. Facilities of the MDS are now in the hands of Maurice Richmond, who is operating as an indie jobber under the corporate name of the Maurice Richmond Music Dealers Service. The three firms—Donaldson, Douglas & Gumble; DeSylvia, Brown & Henderson, and Leo Feist, Inc.—which stuck through the Federal trial to the finish, are clearing through Richmond exclusively.

Get oney Back

When the injunction petition came up for argument before Justice Frankenthaler four weeks ago only two of the publishers who settled with Mayer were represented by counsel. Mayer's trial lawyer, David A. Podell, declared at the time that even these two have committed themselves as taking a neutral attitude in the injunction proceedings, and charged that it was obvious the injunction action had Mayer as its single target and had also been started for the purpose of helping the nine publishers get their money back. Podell will represent Mayer also when the injunction charges lodged against the jobber come up for airing next Tuesday (15).

Judge Bryant in his decision held that Mayer had failed to prove his allegations of monopoly against the MDS. Settlement fees collected by Mayer's lawyers from the nine publishers who withdrew while this case was in midtrial aggregated $51,000.

COAKLEY NATION-WIDE

San Francisco, May 7.

NBC Artists Bureau has contracted the Palace Hotel dance band of Tom Coakley, and network is giving the ork a hefty ride and buildup. Coakley's outfit goes transcontinental Wednesday and Friday nights and Saturday afternoons, and gets the choicest spot on the Coast network every night at 10:15 p. m. following the popular Richfield Reporter.

Band also is on Hearst's KYA, affiliated with NBC, for a quarter hour shot nightly.

Coakley is adding several men and possibly another singer to the outfit this week, and has more transcription and Victor recordings coming up.

ROBBINS WANTS $2,500

Lew Leslie Alleged to Owe Sum Many Years

Robbins Music Corp. which loaned Lew Leslie $2,500 has filed attachment proceedings against the 'Blackbirds' producer in Chicago to recover. Robbins is seeking to examine Balaban & Katz, which booked the condensed version of Leslie's 'Blackbirds' revue ascertain if B&K owes Leslie any money. It is alleged that B&K advanced Leslie and owes him no balance.

Suit was first started in Canton, Ohio, but no levy of attachment could be made for the same reason that the cast had been paid off in advance.

The $2,500 loan was in connection with the initial Broadway production of Leslie's 'Blackbirds.' Robbins publishes the music of the score and on top of the usual financial arrangements the music pub firm also loaned some money to the producer.

Henry Ford, Petrillo At Odds Over Detroit Symph. Fair Booking

Chicago, May 7.

Jimmy Petrillo, of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, and Henry Ford, of the Ford Motor company, locked horns over the booking of the Detroit Symphony orchestra as an attraction for the Ford display at the World's Fair this summer.

Simply the spat is this: Ford wants to bring the entire ensemble of 70 Detroiters to Chicago, while Petrillo thinks that the concession should use some Chicago musicians in the group. Understood that Petrillo has made an offer of half-and-half, which means 35 Detroit musicians and 35 Chicago instrumentalizers.

SAM FOX IN COURT TO GET ASCAP BREAK

Sam and Harry Fox (Sam Fox Music Co.), who have taken their grievances against the ASCAP into court in a battle to set aside the articles of the association and to declare the board invalid, will seek to examine the officers of the Society tomorrow (Wednesday). A motion comes up then asking that Gene Buck, Louis Bernstein, Saul H. Bornstein and E. C. Mills, ASCAP's principal officers and general manager (Mills) be subjected to some 97 interrogators.

Attorney J. T. Abeles for the Fox Music Co. is taking his action into the foundation of the society on the allegation that since it operates for profit and is not a fraternal organization, any of its members (Fox being one) can demand that all books, papers, records, etc., be produced.

Sam Fox Music Pub. Co. wants to know how much money and to whom the Society loaned funds; how much is expended for operations (overhead is estimated at 31c. for every $1 collected), how much for lobbying expenses, etc.

Fox has been complaining of his inadequate rating in ASCAP. He's been asking for promotion, but instead suffered setbacks in classification from BB to class CC. Fox has an exclusive tieup with Fox Film for all its musicals which alone the publisher feels entitles him to plenty of points for advancement.

Earl Hines orchestra returns to the Grand Terrace cafe, Chicago on May 13, replacing Carrol Dickerson. WBBM is the ether wire in the spot.

So-Called Evil Finds Defenders Among Minor Music Firms—Claim Special Arrangement Offer Allows Them to Meet Major Competition

PRO AND CON

ications were given at a meeting of the Music Publishers Protective Association directorate last week that the clause against free special arrangements would meet with spirited opposition from several non-film company controlled publishers when the revamped music code comes up for open airing in Washington. These publishers will contend that the absolute ban on gratis special orchestrations will serve to place them at a disadvantage when competing with the publishing subsidiaries of the major picture producers.

Last week's meeting of the MMPA directors, however, voted its approval of the code as received recently from the legal department of the NRA. John Paine, chairman of the MPPA, is slated to call on Deputy NRA Administrator Williams in Washington today (Tuesday) and discuss the setting on a hearing date for the code.

That the free arrangements clause has aroused opposition in the trade was revealed for the first time during the MPPA meeting called to talk over the revamped document. Sentiment was expressed to the effect that several of the publishers not affiliated with picture companies have been cogiating over the situation this clause would develop and that they were beginning to realize that the restriction would not work out so favorably for the indie element of publisher.

Fact that they were able to offer free special arrangements as an inducement tended to help them meet the competition from producer-backed firms when it came to soliciting plugs. Latter publishing companies, argued the indie element, had the upper hand here both by the multiplicity of song output and the prestige that a picture tune carries. What chance, asked the indie publisher, has he with his two little songs in vying for the attention of an orchestra leader when a producer-affiliated firm can offer anywhere from six to 20 songs at one time, each carrying with it the glamour of a screen connection and a star, say, for instance, Bing Crosby or Dick Powell. The average orchestra leader, argued the indie publisher, will under such circumstances first look over the numbers with a picture source, and allowing what space he may have left on his repertoire to the songs of the publishers minus a picture company alliance.

By being able to offer free special orchestrations the indie publisher can meet this competition to some extent. With his one or two songs the arrangement costs would be within his means, while if the producer-backed firm attempted to make special orchestrations for every one of its new releases it would soon find itself deep in the red.

Paramount Threat

Lou Diamond, head of the Famous Music Corp, a Publix Paramount subsid, was among those who attended the MPPA meeting. Diamond spoke in favor of the suppression of all free special arrangements and served notice upon the group present that if the evil wasn't cut out Paramount with all its resources would stop at nothing in meeting this situation. He declared that his firm was in a position of expending as high as $250,000 for gratis special arrangements and he defied any indie publisher to attempt to meet this competition. He asserted that if the free thing was not stamped out his company could go into the field and offer orchestra leaders as high as $250 a plug. During the course of the wrangle that followed these remarks Diamond averred that with him the music publishing business was merely a medium for the exploitation of Paramount pictures.

One of the indie element of publishers present who declared in favor of the no free special arrangements clause was E. B. Marks. If the industry, asserted Marks, continued to pay orchestra leaders for arrangements the lid might as well be torn off and everybody go the limit. Marks warned them that if the practice wasn't firmly suppressed the publishers would be confronted with the self-destroying conditions that brought about the formation of the MPPA. Publishers at the time were free with their money in competing for plugs among vaude performers.

BONIFACES REBEL

Say They Will Ask Congress For Anti-ASCAP Rule

Atlantic City, May 7.

Thomas D. Green, president of the American Hotel Association, announced at the meeting of the New Jersey State Hotel Association at the Ambassador here last Thursday (3) that a campaign had been launched to bring about a modification of the radio music copyright law. Green said that a bill had been prepared and would probably be introduced in this session of Congress to bring about a revision in the charges that the hotels have to pay for the use of copyright music.

'The hotels feel that the rates now imposed upon them for their radio and orchestra music are unjust', said Green. 'According to the copyright act there is no limitation as to what the Society of Authors and Composers may for copyright music.'

Harry Somerville, of the Hotel Willard, Washington, D. C., is chairman of the legislative committee which will conduct the campaign. He said that chairmen and sub-chairmen had been appointed in every state in the Union. He added that an English concern, in addition to four or five other foreign societies, were also trying to tax American hotels.

Casino Paree Policy Goes Into Converted Mayfair, Baltimore

Baltimore, May 7.

Mayfair Gardens, uptown arena that in frosty weather serves as an ice-palace, is being converted into an approximation of the Casino de Paris, the big-scale nitery in New York. Workmen are transforming the spot into a tiered, uncolumned room that will accommodate nearly 2,000. An air-conditioning system is also being installed. Opening scheduled for May 17.

A local ork will supply the dansapation upon opening, but it is planned to pencil in name bands for one-night sit-ins when they're available. A floor show will roll thrice nightly, consisting of four standard vaude acts, plus line of 18 girls. New talent line-up weekly, booked out of New York. Jack Menton will manage.

BOOKED FOR ORIENT

Seattle, May 7.

Fay Courtney and her husband, Roy MacMicol, have sailed from here for Shanghai to open for the cafe circuit booked by Ed Fisher.

Harlan and Janet Milner are also set for the Orient.

Contracts binding them to membership in the organization for 10 years beyond of 1935 will be distributed among the writer and publisher factions by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers within the next two weeks. Final discussions on the terms of the new agreement are scheduled for the meeting to be held by the society's board of directors this Thursday (10). Decision to put out the new agreement was made at a gathering of the directorate last week.

Responsible to a considerable measure for the move to tie up the membership at this time is the suggestion made by the broadcasting interests that before continuing the negotiations for a new five-year contract between radio and music it would be mete for the society to have its writers and publishers extend their agreement with ASCAP over the period of years involved. Contract that ASCAP has with its members now expires December 31, 1935.

New contract that representations from the broadcasting and performing rights camps have been parleying about will include the unexpired term the present deal between these two interests have yet to go. This agreement is dated to August 31, 1935, and the revised five-year covenant would, it has been suggested, start from Sept. 1, 1934, providing the two factions by that time get together.

Flopped in 1933

Heads of the American Society distributed in early 1933 among the membership contracts calling for 10-year extensions beyond the end of 1935 but the move blew up because not a single publisher was willing to sign. Stumbling block here was a clause pertaining to the percentage of royalty splitting between the publisher and writer delegations, which the publishers charge was open to various interpretations because of the ambiguous verbiage. About 600 writer members did signature, but these contracts were several months later returned to them on the demand of Sigmund Romberg as head of the Songwriters' Protective Association.

ASCAP RATE COMMITTEE GIVEN MORE FREEDOM

Directorate of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, at a meeting held last week, agreed to allow the organization's rate committee more latitude in adjusting licensing fees of restaurants, cafes, etc. Under this dispensation, the committee can now work out compromises with recalcitrant spots without referring the matter to the Society's board of directors.

Still in process of settlement is the dispute that arose after the rate committee set $4,800 as the annual tax to be paid by the four leading Broadway spots, the Casino de Paree, Paradise, Hollywood and the Palais Royal.

Aaronsons Splitting

St. Louis, May 7.

The Irving Aaronsons are in the throes of a matrimonial split-up. The leader of Aaronson's Commanders is playing here at the Jefferson hotel and due for a Coast engagement.

His wife, Christine Marston, dancer, has just returned to New York, after engagements on the Riviera and in Paris.

Herbert Stothart has written music to Elizabeth Barrett Browning's poem 'Inclusions,' which will be used as a theme song for Metro's 'Barretts of Wimpole Street.' Song will be title 'Wilt Thou Take My Hand.'

35-Year-Old 5% Booking Commish Custom May Be Hit by N. Y. State Amendment Banning 'Kickbacks'

Possibility booking offices may shortly be restrained by law from exacting commission from the salaries of acts booked in affiliated theatres now looms in New York State. An amendment to the penal code, signed by Governor Lehman and passed by the Legislature, makes the 'kick back' a misdemeanor.

Law becomes effective next September. The question is whether it will apply to show business, particularly the vaudeville and radio branches, wherein commission charges by the employer or a representative of the employer is a common practice.

In the vaudeville business the commish charging has been a bone of contention for 35 years. A dispute over it caused the White Rats' strike against the managers, in general, and the U.B.O. (Keith's), in particular, in 1916. That strike lost by the actors, resulted in the White Rats' ultimate fading.

The question involved is over the right of the employer, as represented by the booking office, to charge the employee, as represented by the actor, a fee for giving him a job. In the case of the booking office, the booking office is in reality the employer, since it is theatre-affiliated. This probably would not apply to the strictly independent booking offices.

Radio Chains Involved

The major networks' (NBC-CBS) artist bureaus, both owned and operated by the broadcasting companies which employ the artists, also might classify as employers.

In vaudeville the common booking office commish fee is 5%. The money thus deducted from the acts' salaries is used for 'maintenance' purposes, that is, to pay for the booking office overhead. Although purely a department of the company itself, the actors have had to pay for its upkeep. In the old days the Keith (now RKO) booking office income on commissions ran as high as $10,000 a week. This affiliate of the circuit, in addition to paying for itself, returned to the circuit a huge profit every year. Now the commissions at RKO are down to $1,500 a week and less, and for a time up until recentiy the booking office was operating at a loss.

In radio the artist bureau commish deduction commonly runs as high as 15%. The networks describe this charge as necessary to compensate the artist bureau for 'services' rendered the artist.'

LaReine, Crippled, Directs Unit from Wheel Chair

Fred LaReine, former Broadway agent and actor, opens his 'Day at the Circus' unit for the summer at Revere Beach, Mass., May 19. Unit has been barnstorming in buses.

Flinn May Receive Vaude Committee's Report This Week

John C. Flinn, back from his trip to the Coast, will attempt to get around to a meeting some time this week with the permanent vaudeville code committee of three anent the latter's report on the variety situation. Committee consists of Sam Dembow of Paramount, Charlie Moskowitz of Loew's Leslie Thompson of RKO.

Committee was appointed following Administrator Rosenblatt's decision to let the vaude section of the code stand as is. Committee has been functioning for three weeks for the purpose of possibly easing up the code provisions where they pinch one faction or another.

Report of the committee on its findings thus far, along with any suggestions it can make as to correcting present code difficulties, will be made to Flinn.

SPIC AND SPAN

(PITT, PITTSBURGH)

ittsburgh, May 4.

This one simply won't do. It's a weak sister and only excuse is The Ingenues, all-femme band and for years a standard vaude flash act. That's precisely what it remains here, and additional talent that fills out to required unit running time is just so much excess.

Ingenues' instrumental combo all make for excellent audience stuff and idea of having flock of them play the same instruments in 'one' all through show is only novelty in entire unit. A dozen do a banjo chorus, several more pump a flock of concertinas, eight or nine come on for a sax ensemble and they wind up all fiddling a reprise to a harp solo. Ingenues' also have a singing trio, fair, and a couple of members who come down front for a little chatter, but shouldn't. One in particular, who does a whistling specialty, tried a few lines with the m.c. and couldn't be heard beyond first couple of rows.

Arrangements only average, and outfit not too strong on s.a., but they get by okay, chiefly on novelty.

Otherwise, 'Spic and Span' is dull, clumsily staged and cries aloud for some good comedy. Opens on full stage with Ingenues, followed by a fellow who starts as m.c. and winds up doing a stooge in the box turn in unit's early section. Gags are borrowed from everywhere and only laughs here were provided by an audience heckler who shot back the answers before stooge got around to them.

Following this a comedian by the name of Earl Faber takes over m.c. duties, and is on practically for the remainder of the show, which isn't exactly a break for the show. With him is a blonde dancer and a line of chatter than was old when Maggie was young.

Specialties also include Thelma Ray, brunet looker who registers mildly with a toe-tap dance, and a young trio, Kramer, Rich and Hardy in a turn that has a chance, but not in its present form. Right now, there's not enough precision to their spills and falls and girl member is just a little too boisterous. The Radioettes, three girls introduced as ex-WMCA stars, very ordinary with their harmony vocalizing and imitations of Joe Penner, Mae West and Boswells.

Unit winds up in rousing military drill number with girls' band pounding away briskly at flock of snare-heads. There's a chance for a unit around The Ingenues, but it'll take better surrounding talent. Cohen.

New Acts

RAMONA and JACK FULTON
Singing, Piano Solos
14 Mins.; Two and a Half
Earle, Wash.

This is one of those smooth class acts which presents a gal who can play the piano and vocalize and a guy who can sing, neither of whom tries to do anything else. Not flashy enough to rate top billing if pair went on cold, but with radio rep behind 'em they go over very nicely.

Ramona sits at piano except when she takes final bow. Fulton walks on for his numbers, with Ramona doing all the introducing. Act works in 2½, using grand piano, two mikes and nothing else but effective spots from booth and foots.

Open up with duet of 'Heat Wave,' Ramona plays and sings 'True' and 'Goopy Geer,' Fulton returns for 'Thousand Goodnights' and they double up on 'Let's Fall in Love.' Numbers are a nicely balanced giving Ramona plenty of chance for trick work on the ivory and comic vocals.

Duet vocals are handled well with Ramona taking every other line and Fulton handling the notes which are supposed to hit the roof. Plans are that pair, when they get into their stride, will pull in some banstering. This should be handled carefully or atmospherics is distinctly matter of singing, playing and getting off, and clicks as such.

PAUL RENARD GIRLS (4)
Jaw Act
6 Mins.; Full (Special)
Academy, N. Y.

Might be unfair to suggest that the finale number, which has the girls of this turn swinging by a jaw hold from a trick mechanism as the mechanism twirls around, if worked faster could be a climactic punch for almost any program. The girls do the trick okay, but it seems slow, and by that one improvement could jump the act from opening to closing. The mechanism is an oblong frame, with gadgets and loops usually used by trapezists, but the bottom has swivel with a rope. An off-stage pulls the rope and makes the mechanism whirl. Rest of what the girls do is the usual trapeze posing and jaw stuff. Opened okay when caught on a five-act layout.

The act may be foreign as the files don't record. The Paul Renard who titles the act may be the rope puller and general helper who offs and ons. Girls do all the performing. Hardly athletic type, thus making the act somewhat different. White gym costumes and bare-legged while performing under white lights throughout. Shan.

DAWN and DARROW REVUE (6)
Dance Flash
13 Mins.; One and Full (Special)
Loew's Orpheum, N. Y.

Nicely patterned dance flash. Its main punch is where the lad of this partnership has the girl lying horizontal on his upraised arms and he pinwheels about at a fast clip. Does this twice in different formations and hands the customers something to remember after leaving the theatre. That's showmanship. Particular apt for unit work. Caught as the finalist on a five-act program layout, and over.

This twirling stuff done in evening clothes and the Indian adagio turn done early in the act by the same pair of principals in white costumes against a scrim background depicting a lake front and moon setting are the highlights of the act. Rest, while not unusual, nevertheless perform tastefully. Three brunettes and a lad. Two of the girls duet, One solos with an eccentric acro. In the usual dance flash style these four do heel and toe routine, the solo girl doing an eccentric acro that takes. Additional attribute is that, with the Indian thing being a possible exception, other numbers are not overiong performed. Red spot for the Indian number is natural, while rest takes a white glow. Shan.

SHEPPARD, CARLETON, and PRITCHARD (5)
Dancing
12 Mins.; Full (Special)
Orpheum, N. Y.

Mixed quartet carries the heavy burden of this flash, with a third girl accompaning on the piano. It's a pleasant littie act, neatly mounted and dressed, with dancing the predominant note, although one of the gals sings pleasingly preceding her solo dance.

Hoofery ranges from regular heel and toe work to a stair dance by one of the girls. Interspersing is a comedy knockabout routine by one of the mixed teams, a solo acro dance by one of the girls, and the same from one of the lads. The boys are Sheppard and Pritchard, while the girls are the Carletons, apparently twins. Pianist is unbilled.

Hal LeRoy Tops Unit

RKO adds Hal LeRoy to the 'Sweet and Low' unit at the Palace, Chicago, next week. Dancer will top the billing.

Unit is the former Billy Rose's 'Crazy Quilt,' revised by the producer this season under the new title.

$2 'Amateur' Dates for Pro Acts Getting to Be a Regular Biz

The almost forgotten 'family time' is making a comeback—starting way down at the bottom via $30-budget 'amateur shows' which entail pro acts working at an average of $2 per.

It's way for acts to while away lay-off time, which has come a constant habit with some, while also affording nabe theatres stage shows at an almost insignificant cost. Some acts work as many as six 'amateur' shows a week, netting $12 with which to make a half-hearted attempt to kid the wolf at the door.

With the general decadence of vaude time, the 'novice' events have been growing in scope until at present some of the contest promoters are booking as high as 20 houses for 'amateur show' a week apiece. One of these is Will Green, who books the show, acts as m.c., and furnishes a piano player all for $30, out of which he pays four or five acts their $2 each.

Wi , lace, Show

Also out of the $30 the booker receives is supposed to come the prize money for the winners of the contests, which usually runs $5 for first, $3 for place, and $2 for show. But, says Green, the actual amateurs seldom win, and the pros, win or lose, do not collect more than the $2 they were promised in the first place.

It's a small-time biz on a small-profit basis, profits for the promoter seldom exceeding $10 per show. Once in a while, Green admitted, when a pro turn becomes a fav 'amateur' with the audiences of a certain house, he's got to raise the salary to $3, which cuts further into his net.

i's Downtowners

Chicago, May 7.

Vaude is going 'way back to find new sources of talent, inasmuch as family and small-time vaude are non-existent. It has gone back to the get-the-hook days, but with the hook, bringing back the amateur nights under new and fancier names.

These amateur nights are not only being run by cheap houses, but also by the cream theatres and circuits in the midwest. It has been revived only about a month now, but has clicked so soundly that the idea is spreading fast. It was begun by the Jones, Linick & Schaefer loop spot, the State-Lake, and marked the first time in the history of the town that a first-run loop house ran an amateur showing. Several acts have been discovered that would otherwise be still unknown.

B. & K. has installed amateur sessions at the Southtown and special afternoon shows at the loop Oriental, and is considering spreading the idea to other houses.

Penner's Vaude Dates Now Ex-Sundays Due To N. Y. Broadcasting

Joe Penner, after his next two weeks for Loew at the Valencia and Paradise in Greater New York, will take on some dates in Rochester, Albany, etc., with the proviso he can drop out of the Sunday shows because of his broadcasts.

Penner refuses to do any commercial etherizing on his regular Sunday night half-hour for Standard Brands away from the NBC studio in New York.

Last week at Loew's State, with $31,500 to shoot at before any percentage break, Penner did an okay $27,000 on the week in face of bad weather and other conditions. Good average for the house recently has been around $20,000.

Team's Speeding Troubles Also Troubled Par Staff

Paramount, New York, stage staff had a hectic time due to many mishaps the current week's opening day (Friday). Stage show ran more than 10 minutes short, instead of going overtime, the opening performance because of late arrival by the Nicholas Bros.

Colored team, driving in from Chicago to make the Broadway date, was pinched twice for speeding on the way and delayed each time. They arrived after the first show was over. But house found the show too short even after the Nicholases were in, so added Mack and LaVelle Friday night.

Sam Tishman Acquires 2d Illinois Grind House

Former Keith RKO vaudeville booker is leasing the Tivoli, Downers Grove, Ill., 1,400-seater and the only theatre in town. He'll retain the local Par, playing straight pictures in both houses.

AGENTS' 'AW NUTS!' TO MOSS

Str. Vaude Venture at Cosmo. Depends Strictly on Relatives

Emmett Moore, who heretofore has confined himself to puttering around with Irish minstrelsy and films, last Saturday (5) reopened the Cosmopolitan for what he heralded as a 'marathon show,' including vaudeville, grand opera, Irish minstrelsy, etc. Conglomeration was to run anywhere from three to six hours, and everybody on a co-op basis. What Moore ended with when he finally parted the traveler Saturday night was mostly a flock of amateurs.

At the show's start the count out front totaled less than $30. And this was after the house had been open two hours. Moore announced 6.30 p. m. as the show's starting time, but was close to 8.30 when he actually began to strut out his motley crew of adenoidal warblers, superannuated piccoli virtuosi, and bunion-afflicted buck and wing dancers, all of it pathetically honkeytonkish.

Even though most of them were in on paper, the customers started walking after the first item. After a half hour of the going, it was obvious what held the majority of the handful left. Their relatives or friends were still due to make their bow on the stage. Something went wrong with the pit combo that was also to have come in on the co-op idea, and the amateur retinue had to work to a piano. Included among Moore's flock was an elderly bagpiper named Minnie, and another lass in the sixties who caroled a meaningless ditty to the accompaniment of a toy accordion.

In the notices he sent around to the newspapers, Moore described his venture as a step towards relieving the plight of 'unemployed professional players who prefer work to charity.' The house, he further let it be known, had been given him for a small percentage of the gross. What the box office had taken in after the doors had been open three hours wasn't enough to pay for the electric juice consumed up to that point.

At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon (yesterday) Moore was still operating. There were 13 people in the house and he had added to his bill an elderly ventriloquist and a female impersonator.

Oumanskys Out of Fox, B'klyn; Flo Kelly Back

Alex Oumansky and his wife, Peggy, are dropping out of the Fox, Brooklyn, after the next show, Friday (11).

Flo Kelly comes back May 18.

Congressman Pollock

John Pollock is running for Congress on the Republican ticket in the Ninth District, New Jersey. Hopes to win the nomination in the primaries on May 15.

For years with the photograph bureau of Keith-Albee's publicity department, then later with RKO, Pollock for the past year has been lecturing to women's clubs on the theatre. He is a brother of Channing Pollock.

U. S. Team Cancelled

London, April 28.

Paul and Grace Hartman, American comedy dance team, were cancelled after the first show at the Palladium, April 23, and paid off for the two weeks' engagement.

Team has three more weeks in England for General Theatres and two in Paris.

Gardner's Band

Dave Gardner, m.c., who has been one of the cruise directors for National Tours on the S. S. Rotterdam and Statendam, is taking a band unto himself for vaudfilm-nitery engagements.

The Columbians combo and Gardner are merging.

HARRIS NAMED STAGE PROD. AT CHI PALACE

Chicago, May 7.

Through the recommendation of City Manager Jim Christy, the RKO Palace will install Will Harris as general stage director and producer. Harris, formerly presentation producer for Balaban & Katz, will supervise the vaude bill on dressing and costuming of acts, lighting and general production effects.

Also to direct girl lines if the tentative plan of the Palace to produce big shows for the World's Fair goes through.

AFA Gets Clubrooms; To Meet with Club Agents Over Ethics

American Federation of Actors, which thus far has operated out of a one-room office in the Edison hotel, is moving into its own clubrooms this week. Location is in the building at 156 West 44th street, New York.

Ralph Whitehead goes to Philadelphia later this week to attend an AFA organization meeting there, and for the purpose of setting up a Philly branch. Next week he'll travel to Washington and Boston on the same mission.

All club agents and bookers in New York have been asked to attend an AFA meeting May 16, at which the chances of a workable code of ethics for the club field will be discussed. AFA estimates there are 60 'reputable' club agents in town, and declares the majority of the better class agents in that field have signified willingness to cooperate with the actors' organization.

150 ATTEND TRIBUTE TO AGENT JOHN HYDE

What originally was intended as a small beefsteak affair for Johnny Hyde of the William Morris office, by a few of his friends and fellow-agents wound up as a tribute from a crowd of vaudevillians that jammed Cavanaugh's chop house banquet hall. It happened Wednesday night (2), with 150 attending.

Affair was sponsored by the Loew agents' association as a tribute to Hyde for his efforts in reorganizing that group of artists' reps. as a benevolent and social society. The Loew agents' movement was instrumental in dissolving the NATAR.

Hyde drew a roasting and a toasting from the master of ceremonies, Joe Laurie, Jr., and the several speakers. Among the latter were: J. H. Lubin, Sam Lyons, Henry Chesterfield, Ralph Whitehead, Abe Lastfogel, Jay Wolf and Joe Flaum. Telegrams were received from Cardinal Mundelein and Mayor Kelly of Chicago.

J. H. Lubin told of Hyde's start in the Loew office as a boy. Joe Schenck, retiring as the Loew booking manager to be succeeded by Mr. Lubin, brought Hyde into the office and recommended that he be given a job. Some years later William Morris asked Loew to release Hyde, then a booker, to permit him to join the Morris agency.

Hyde outlined in his speech the purpose of the Loew agents' association and the reasons for the Morris office's refusal to join the NATAR movement and subscribe to its 'code of ethics'. Regarding the latter, Hyde said, 'While the idea may have been nobly inspired, it would have led to grave consequences...the Morris office demurred because though the plan

Subpoenas Disregarded on Advice of Counsel—Moss' Compromise to Shut Eyes to Five Percent Maximum Commish in Employment Agency Law Laughed Off —Enlists B'way Association

$500 FINE

License Commissioner Paul Moss was given an 'or else' edict by the RKO, Loew and Indie vaude agents' counsel, Maurice Goodman and Harold Goldblatt, Friday (4) in the battle between the city official and the reps. on the former's demands that all theatrical agents must be licensed as employment agencies. The 'or else' was, in effect, that unless Commissioner Moss issued summonses he would not again get the opportunity to put the agents on the carpet, as he's trying to do by issuing subpoenas wholesale in the Broadway theatrical district.

The defi was hurled at Commissioner Moss after a few of the circuit and indie reps trekked downtown Friday morning after getting

12 ACTS WITH 20-MIN. 'PLAY'

Chamberlain Brown will open a combination of straight vaudeville and condensed plays in the Lyric on 42d street, New York, May 14. Plans to use 12 vaude acts and a 20-minute version of a play three times daily at a 25-50c scale, changing weekly.

First play will be Brown's own 'Idle Tongues' and will finale each show the first week.

Lyric, former legit house, has had a varied policy the last few years. Lately it has been operated on a lease by Harry and Joe Brandt as a grind pix spot. While the combo of vaude and condensed plays is new to New York and especially Broadway, the idea has been tried out of town.

Invite Mrs. Wm. Morris to Serve Without Pay as NVA San 'Mother'; Maybe $200,000 on Current Drive

rs. Emma Morris, widow of the much respected agent and showman, William Morris, has been invited by the NVA Fund board of directors to serve as the 'mother' of the NVA Sanatorium at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Invite comes through Harold Rodner, Warner exec, who is handling the NVA reorganization for the circuits. Believed that upon Rodner's return from a Coast trip Wednesday (9) Mrs. Morris will signify her acceptance.

Mrs. Morris will serve without salary, visiting the San daily and residing at the Morris summer home, Camp Intermission, about five miles from Saranac. As the San's 'mother' Mrs. Morris will be carrying on what she has been doing for the past six years, only henceforth it will be official.

The annual NVA drive for funds, which commenced Friday (4), will be the most successful in several years, according to indications up to yesterday (Monday). While collection figures aren't yet available, with no reports having been made that early by the theatres, it appears that last year's $120,000 gross may be almost doubled. This due to participation of close to twice as many theatres. Houses involved in the current countrywide drive number 2,487.

Music Hall Too

All theatres taking part are using the talking trailer supplied by the NVA Fund. Talent comprises Walter Huston, Jimmy Durante, Robert Montgomery, Block and Sully and Lanny Ross. It was made at the Fox studio, New York, on film contributed by Eastman and DuPont, and arranged by A.P.

For the first time every Times Square theatre in New York and all the important independent theatres in the country, are participating as well as the Radio City Music Hall. Last year the NVA collections were nixed at Radio City.

With the overhead cuts to be made at Saranac Lake and in New York, and particularly on the latter's social end, the NVA will need about $200,000 to operate for the coming fiscal year. It is anticipated this amount will be obtained from the drive alone without necessity of resorting to additional fund raising. The funds recently advanced to the NVA by the circuits, to carry the organization between Jan. 1, and the current drive, will surely be covered.

The New York benefit show at the Metropolitan Opera House usually staged on the Sunday night following the drive has been postponed until next fall.

Upon his return Rodner, it is expected, will also name the San's new medical head and supervisor who will top the medical staff as well as assume the duties of superintendent which Mrs. Katherine Murphy relinquished last week. Report is that the new head man will be a sanatorium expert and specialist from the Coast. Besides medical duties he will be required to bring down the NVA San's present $32 a week per capita cost.

Rodner may also announce changes in the New York administrative end. NVA Fund hopes to move out of the costly 46th street clubhouse and into cheaper quarters by the first of the month, whether or not disposing of the New York clubhouse by then.

Mrs. Morris has devoted half of her life to the care of patients at the NVA San. Although she has had no previous authority she became the patient's favorite visitor through her many kindnesses. As the San 'mother' she will look out for the patients' social welfare.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., May 7.

Patients at the NVA San are in good spirits once more. The tension which has prevailed here for the past seven years eased up last week upon the departure of Mrs. Katherine Murphy.

Herman Levine, auditor, representing Harold Rodner, of Warners, is here straightening out the San's administrative matters preparatory to the arrival of a new medical head.

N. Y. Agent Asked To Sue Demarest for Palladium Cancellation

George Black, general manager of General Theatres, Ltd., of England, has requested Dick Henry, New York agent, to bring suit against Bill Demarest for breach of a six-weeks contract for the Palladium, London, scheduled to start May 21. Demarest had been booked for the annual 'Crazy Show' at the house.

Comedian, now in California, notified Henry and subsequently Black that he could not fill the engagement, due to the illness of Ruth Mix, daughter of Tom Mix, and a member of his act. When Black cabled that the 'Crazy Show' had been written around Demarest and that the comedian should sail with another girl, or with none at all, Demarest answered he couldn't work with a partner other than Miss Mix.

Jans and Whalen were a last-minute choice to take Demarest's place, sailing Saturday (5) for England.

W&V OPENS 5 TOWNS IN PA.-VA. TO UNITS

Wilmer & Vincent has opened five towns to units, playing the minnie revues on straight percentage deals from the first dollar.

Towns and theatres, are the States in Easton and Harrisburg; Colonial, Allentown; Norva, Norfolk, and National, Richmond. With the exceptions of Norfolk and Richmond, full-week stands, the theatres are three-day splits.

Joe Eagen, W. & V.'s general manager, is doing the booking.

Actors, Turned Pinkerton, Catch Up With Manager's Double Entry System

Vaudevillians playing percentage dates in the sticks aren't picking up any fortunes, but they are getting a world of practical experience in bookkeeping and private detective work. The acts say that in many spots in the hinterlands it's necessary for an actor to be more than an actor in order to obtain the correct change and a square count on a percentage engagement.

Lots of the boys on the hoof, who formerly couldn't pick a number between three and five, are now expert mathematicians, having had to delve into the intricacies of trigonometry in order to protect themselves against a wrong shake. In addition to keeping an all-day eagle eye plastered on the box office and door, the actors and company managers have to watch for hidden trick on the part of the house management, they contend.

M'g'r's Chiseling Sister

One unit playing the south discovered a fast one two weeks ago, but not until it arrived in the next town 50 miles away; too late to have anything done about it. The house manager's sister played stock in the box office all week, but it was explained at the start that she always sat in the cage and nothing more was thought of it.

Troupe learned later that the sister had a duplicate roll of tickets in her pocketbook, which she held under the ticket window sill, every now and then slipping the cashier a ticket to sell. The duplicate numbered tickets were palmed by the ticket chopper at the door, and the corresponding money deducted from the gross. As the tickets totalled up even, no discrepancies were noticed.

Many units, to guard against such stunts, carry their own printed rolls of tickets, which they insist must be used in place of the theatre's duerts before they'll sign the contract. They figure this as the safest means to check the sales of tickets, with no chance of the house slipping in a dupe roll if it hasn't one that matches. Another precaution taken by the shows is to demand that the show-owned ticket rolls be changed in color several times daily.

Leonard Cowley is inhaling ozone in Asheville, North Carolina. Boy did plenty of curing here.

Little Marya Blake, who came back to ozone it up here, is progressing very nicely with pneumothorax.

Spring has collected its toll, only 'four 'up' patients left in the san, Tommy Vicks, James Marshall, Danny Murphy and Hazel Gladstone, balance of gang all in bed.

Local firemen putting on a 'Hollywood Follies' and it looks like a sell out.

Murray Salet has taken over the management of the Overlook Club.

Betty Huntington, that new arrival at the lodge, can be remembered having been with 'The Gingham Girl,' 'Fountaina,' Carlos Opera Co., and for years a feature with the 'London Foster Girls.'

Louis Cohen (Warner, ex-vaudeville artist, is a newcomer at the lodge. A little run down, ozoning will do the trick for him.

Jackie Roberts, of Seed and London, new arrival here, now on the observation ogling period.

Ben Schaffer went and done it again. Started on exercise and before he knew it he wasted about three days of energy and is back in bed.

Herman Warner and NVA executive, at the lodge looking over the situation and making minor changes.

Chester Rice, well-known p.a. and globe trotter, is back here summering at the Santononi apartments, a yearly event with Chester.

Dr. Edward Wells, noted knife wielder and ex-NVA operating medico, still has a yen for the theatrical curers, his latch string always hanging out for the show folks.

When Romeo Donatella left the lodge the medico told him to be careful as he still needed nursing treatment, so last week he ups and gets married to Mary lynn, ex-NVA nurse.

A flock of Brooklynites motored in on Salvadore R gone and the Italian curer thought that he was being taken for a ride, but after a formal introduction, all was okay.

A. Bernard Merry, composer of 'My Buddy,' is back ozoning at Tupper Lake, N. Y.

Pauline Price, who saw a mess of curing here at the lodge, left with that all okay paper. She will Brooklyn it while preparing to change that name from Miss to Mrs.

Bert Sch immer, a new arrival at the lodge, is on the ogling list. A little run down and a few dabs of Dr. Wilson's treatment will do the trick.

Dan Astella gets his fourth 'cut' in two years. Dr. Warriner Woodruff doing the carving.

George Harmon (Joy Bros. & Gloom) seems to be snapping out of the in-the-rut feeling. That little boy has seen plenty of in-bed sieging.

Jerome N. Sewards, New York lawyer, week-ending it at the Leonard Grotte's. Grotte has ozoned himself into a mess of okay reports.

A petition was sent to Mr. Harold Rodner, signed by the patients of the San, asking him to please consider the retaining of Dr. George Wilson as the medico-in-chief of this institution. A better man would be hard to find.

Among the downtown curers who are knocking off good reports are Frisco DeVere, Chris Hagedorn, Mannie Lowy and Johnny Montalese.

Please write to those you know in Saranac.

Units Bring Units

Adoption of a unit policy by the Paramount, Staten Island, forced the St. George, opposition indie booked by Arthur Fisher, to follow suit last week. Latter has always been a five-act vaudfilmer, while the Par until Tuesday (1) played straight pictures.

First unit for the St. George, 'Melody Mad Parade,' went in Saturday (5). Par is booked by Joe Feinberg.

Creedon's Colored Unit

Billy Creedon has produced a new, all-colored unit, 'A Nite in Harlem.' The 35-people cast is headed by Mae Brady and her all-girl band.

Splitting this week between Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

Publicity of income tax, subject to departmental regulations, becomes government policy again next year as result of Congressional approval of provision in new revenue law. Clause is compromise between extremists who wanted to revive the former statute and conservatives who oppose the practice in any form.

Makeshift provision, satisfactory to President Roosevelt, who never made use of discretionary powers given him last year to open up income statements to public examination, calls for filing of summarized statement along with formal returns. Citizens must state on separate blank their total gross income, statutory deductions, net income, credits against net, and tax liability.

Conceived as a means of curbing tax avoidance and exerting pressure to bring shearing of fat salaries, measure may lose most of its potency because of opposition of Treasury Department conservatives. Secretary Morgenthau and his chief aides are arrayed against the plan, but under terms of the compromise legislation have power to decide when and how these statements shall be examined by outsiders.

Suggestion is that the treasury will promulgate strict rules to prevent statements from being used to compile sucker lists or for other selfish purposes. Examination may be allowed only to persons with legitimate reasons and publication of information may be expressly forbidden.

A state right exchange man on the Coast gave a producer a new one in the matter of getting a picture for a projection room survey and then renting it out for previews. Man with his wife came to the producer saying they wanted to make a little money and would he let them have a certain picture to look at in their own projection room.

Picture was turned over to the pair and about five days later a friend of the producer inquired how much he was charging for a preview rental of the film. Producer stated he would not preview until he sold the rights. He was then told the picture had been shown in several spots during the week. At the end of a week the producer finally got his print back and inquired why the man had not looked at it in his own projection room. Answer was that the exchange man felt he would like several audience reactions before he bought and thought previews were best way to get them. Producer, however, got no revenue for these showings though the exchange man admitted he collected rentals.

The publicity head of a major Coast studio held a staff meeting recently, at which time he declared not one member of his department knew the first rudiments of publicity writing, and threatened to install a school for writing for the underlings. Gang were plenty burned, as most of the press agents had held top spots in both the publicity and newspaper fields for many years.

He further insisted that the company was not selling any of its personalities, and every person under contract, when mentioned in a story, was to be credited with the last four pictures he appeared in for the company—regardless of how long ago the pictures were released. Department members fought back with argument that newspaper and syndicate writers would not take publicity puffs of such an obvious nature and other studios would lick the tar out of them in stories planted with such a plan in operation.

N. . Daily News, which has been given to editorializing on show topics of late, minces no words in catechizing the Dickstein bills against foreign talent being imported into the U. S. This particular editorial was augmented by a cartoon which is a replica of an M.D.'s prescription, 'To cure the American movie industry of making the world's best pictures—bar out the best actors from other countries.'

Attitude of the N. Y. tabloid is that even if the Garbos, McLaglens, Colmans, Arlisses, Deitrichs, Brooks, et al. do come over, they make money not only for American producers but enable American supporting companies to flourish, they spend money in America, etc.

Ed (Bish) Lenihan, manager of the Rialto, N. Y., went to bat in court with a doctor who got his dates mixed and sought a fee for a visit he didn't make. Medico attended the Lenihan kids one day and looked over the Bish, too. After being paid his fee, the physician claimed he called to attend the manager the following day and sent another bill. Mrs. Lenihan was put on the stand, court asking whether the doctor did make a second visit. She answered:

'No, but he telephoned and asked: 'Well, how is the big donkey today?' Case dismissed.

Paramount lawyers are holding up the Fox West Coast deal for Par's Coast theatre properties until proper appraisals of these properties are had, although otherwise the deal for the FWC takeover is set. Fox is sending Dan Michalove to the Coast to make such appraisals in association with a couple of members from the Par home office who also have been sent to the Coast for this work.

The FWC-Par deal is a percentage arrangement, FWC to operate and Par shares in profits. Deal does not include the Paramount, Los Angeles, which remains under Fanchon & Marco operation.

Neil F. Agnew's appointment as general sales manager in Paramount under George J. Schaefer, v.p. of the distribution branch, was a created post to relieve Schaefer of much of the detail resultant from his increased duties as general manager of the entire company, taking in other subsidiaries. Agnew has been acting as assistant sales manager in charge of the western territory.

Many majors have decided on a Manhattan title cycle. Seems to trail 'Manhattan Melodrama' (M-G).

Radio has 'Romance of Manhattan' in script form, while Paramount is making 'Manhattan Merry-go-round'.

Fox is also working on a story with a Gotham title.

Going to the recent MPTOA convention at Los Angeles after disposing of his theatre holdings in Tulsa, Okla., F. R. Smith is staying in California and may locate there permanently.

Smith has leased or sold all of his picture houses and with his wife and daughter is living in Beverly Hills.

Aftermath reports that there were under 200 bona fide exhibs at the convention in L. A. have gotten back to MPTOA and they are registering indignation. They claim they have the stubs to prove 985 persons paid $10 a head at the dinner and that of these 425 were 'actual theatre owners'.

Capitol, N. Y., is running Hollywood preview reviews as trailers on incoming attractions.

First time a Broadway theatre has singled out Hollywood advance notices for builder-uppering. All are trade paper notices.

When Winnie Sheehan wants to forget about celluloid he hies himself up to Frisco and three friends. Producer goes north to discuss politics and economics with an undertaker, a priest and a grocer.

A divorcee who hit the Coast recently with plenty of publicity on her social affluence is evidently not so hot when it comes to meeting her obligations. A Beverly Hills cleaning establishment extended credit when it read about her standing, etc., and went the limit for a big account.

When the bill was presented stalling was the process and the cleaners finally cut off the account. And the young lady flitted east without remembering the amount.

Inside Stuff—Music

On the theory that the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has been operating on its own stringent lines, Federal Trade Commission investigators have been around New York interviewing outsiders on ASCAP's modus operandi.

Federal T. C. interest dwells on the proposition that it discourages new music publishers coming into the business as new firms must go on a compulsory one year's probatonary period, sans any remuneration. After year is up, the publishing firm is then given a classification rating. Meantime ASCAP has free use of these new firms' music catalogs, with no compensation to the publishers just starting in the business whether or not they turn out a flock of hits in that first year of operation.

N. Y. Daily Mirror's cable dispatch from London recounting that the Mills Brothers, their mother and several other colored people in England are having difficulty finding hotel accommodations is a total surprise on this side.

Irving Mills, who took the Calloway and Ellington orchestras to London, is repeating in August with Ellington. Mills is the former partner of Tommy Rockwell who took the Mills Bros., et al. over with him on this present trip. Rockwell's N. Y. reps are likewise surprised and know nothing beyond the Mirror's item.

Publishing firm with an extensive musical comedy and operetta brary has incurred the ill will of the ad agencies by its practice of refusing to extend the use of restricted numbers because the bandmen involved won't play the same house's pop releases. Radio department heads of these agencies are taking steps to prevail upon CBS and NBC to file a protest against what they term as 'unjustified obstructionism' with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Procedure that the general manager of the publishing firm pursues is invariably the same. When the society advises him that such-and-such band has through one of the networks asked permission to use a restricted tune from the firm's catalog he gets in touch with the band and puts on a plug for some of the numbers lately acquired. If the combo fails to agree to include in the proposed program at least one of the new tunes the bond hears from the network that the application to ASCAP for use of the restricted composition has been turned down.

Agencies declare they resent the attempt of this firm to use its restricted catalog as a club to obtain plugs and that if they cannot get satisfaction through the networks they will retaliate by banning the publisher's works entirely from their programs.

Musicians' Union, 47, at Los Angeles, is on the warpath against alleged chiselers within its ranks who are working below scale and through collusion with their bosses are hiding their real salaries.

Several offenders at niteries were on the carpet recently with one musician fined $250 and given 10 days to pay or be expelled. Officers say that similar penalties will be assessed in the future. Same union recently assessed $1,000 and $500 against two band leaders for paying below scale.

William H. Woodin, who died May 3 of nephritis, besides being a well-known industrialist and a member of the Roosevelt cabinet, also achieved note as a composer and was at times interested in the music publishing business. Among his best-known compositions are 'Chinese Magic,' 'Unknown Soldier' and 'Danse Tartare.'

Inside Stuff-Vaude

Two months ago Caroline Marsh, 19, couldn't get a job. Last week she tripled in vaudeville at Loew's State, New York, on the floor at the Casino de Paree, on the air on the Fleischmann (Rudy Vallee) program, and both Metro and Paramount booked her for screen tests.

Miss Marsh's fast rise came practically without previous experience. At the State, where she replaced the Saxon Sisters, forced out in the middle of the week by illness, Miss Marsh was facing her first theatre audience. Vallee broadcast was her first time on the air.

Miss Marsh comes from an Italian-American family of Brooklyn. She studied for opera, but a throat operation halted that. Her first public appearance was on a La Guardia campaign ballyhoo show during the New York elections last fall. Her first profesh engagement was in 48th street restaurant, and lasted six weeks.

Max Hart heard Miss Marsh sing at the restaurant and placed her under contract. Johnny Hyde of the Morris office, handling her bookings, engaged Al Siegel to coach her. Commencing last week she became Siegel's latest 'protege'.

When Mel Klee walked out of the Grand Opera House, N. Y., last week, it left Alex Hanlon, who books the spot, stranded for an act. Irving Yates impressed Ann Pritchard & Co. as a favor for Hanlon.

When the act got there, not knowing the house was non-union, it had difficulty having its scenery hung. It decided to play a cuffo first show in order to give the house a couple of extra hours to get a substitute act. Miss Pritchard, Jack Goldie and the Sibley Sisters in the revue got into costume only to be told 10 minutes before ready to go on that the house meantime had procured a single, so the on-the-cuff show wouldn't be necessary. It has cured Pritchard-Goldie Co. of doing any more favor shows.

In defeat there may be victory for Helen Kane's losing decision in the N. Y. Supreme Court against Paramount, alleging that the Max Fleischer-Betty Boop cartoons infringed on her singing style. Suit brought Miss Kane to the fore once again and she has a number of personal appearance bids.

New York tab papers made much of the Kane-Par suit and bookers figure Miss Kane is again b.o. timber. She has been in retirement more or less since marrying Max Hoffman, Jr.

Ned Alvord had a press agent's holiday in Japan where he splurged on colored booklets and gold-lettered billboard paper for the Marcus Show, cost being comparatively small. From the way he addressed correspondence to friends here it was indicated the cutaway kid also absorbed a working knowledge of the language.

Alvord claims that when the show returns from the Orient there will be added attractions from the various countries visited. Show will then have the new title of 'Marcus World O'Girls'.

Milton Berle is getting $2,500 this week at the Paramount, New York, and draws the same next week in Brooklyn. It's his highest New York salary thus far, and represents a substantial raise over the $750 he was getting less than two years ago.

Don Tracy's novel, 'Round Trip', which Vanguard is publishing May 24, has not been sold to Warner Brothers as reported. Book is now in the hands of several major companies but no deal completed as yet.

Loop Legit Sniffs Record Summer Season on Bustle of World Fair

Chicago, May 7.

Chicago is going heavily after legit biz this summer, with every available house being readied for a production during the World's Fair period. Shuberts are particularly active with plans and expect to have shows in four spots, Selwyn, Harris, Grand and Great Northern.

Particularly interesting is the Great Northern theatre, which has been considered a dead issue for the past three years. J. J. Shubert has been in town looking over the spot and it's understood a summer season of operettas and possibly Gilbert and Sullivan will go into the house. Grand Opera House will also play musical comedies and operettas. 'Gypsy Love,' set for the opener, next week.

Shuberts

Sam Gerson went to New York last week on several Shubert deals, particularly on rental propositions for the two Shubert leaseholds, the Selwyn and Harris. Harris is practically set for the Paul Ash presentation of the Fritz Blocki-Charlie Niggemeyer show, 'The Dashing Widow.' Originally scheduled with Peaches Browning in the lead, it will open without Miss Browning due to the fact that the under-cover angel on the show wouldn't put up coin if Miss Browning was assigned to the lead spot.

Also set is a new show with Irene Rich, coming into the Blackstone about June 1.

Besides the loop there are several Fair angles for legit attractions. In the bag are the Shakespeare tabs for the English Village, where they will give six shows daily, every show a different play.

At Belgian Village will be a dramatic school production of several Molière plays.

'Wings of a Century' concession will again deliver its regular dramatic show presentation of the progress of transportation.

SALMAGGI'S PHILLY TROUBLE WITH COIN

Philadelphia, May 7.

Alfredo Salmaggi's Chicago Opera Company has been running into plenty of squawls during the local engagement. Organization opened at the Shubert week before last, after two postponements, and played along until last Tuesday (1), which gave it a full week. Then, after two days' lay-off, they went to the Metropolitan and played one show Friday and two on Saturday.

In the meantime everybody was hollering for do-re-mi. One night back-stage disturbance became so strenuous that a riot call was sent in to City Hall. One of the baritones, De Muro, balked entirely and spent his time walking back and forth in front of the box office on the night he was supposed to sing in 'Aida.' Reports along the street had H. T. Craven (former critic here and local p.a. for the crowd) as being the only one to get any coin.

Arangement at the Shubert had been a week's rent down in advance to Max Rudnick, who has the house and has been running burlesque there. New terms couldn't be arrived at after the first actual week of playing and that's why the company moved to the Met. Continuance is very, very doubtful indeed.

Other outfit, the New York Opera Company, comes into the Academy of Music May 14.

Engagements

Wendy Atkin, Burford Hampden, Marcel Journet, Lillian Brennard Tonge, Philip Tonge, Jane Bramley, Leslie Barry and Walter Holbrook, 'The Wind and the Rain.' (Road company.)

Betzi Beaton, Bettina Hall and Robert Halliday, 'The Only Girl.'

Leonard Ceeley, Hannah Toback, 'Bitter Sweet' (revival).

Loretta Dennison, 'Follies.'

Roger Gerston (California Collegians), 'Roberta.'

Ralph Remley, 'Ah, Wilderness', El Capitan, L. A.

Queenie Smith, Leon Janney, Ann Dere, George Carleton, Frederick Forrester, Tucker McGuire, Sheila Trent and Jack Davis, 'Every Thursday'.

Trousdales Disband

Dallas, May 7.

losing their four-week stay at the Uptown, the Boyd B. Trousdale players disbanded for the season, Trousdale leaving for Chicago to look-see the fair.

Going to Dubuque, Ia., to join the Jack Ripley players were L. Lucille La Valliere, Jay R. Coggshall and Ted Hawkins. Ruth Whitworth and John Morris left a week ago for Des Moines. Betty Froman went to Minot, N. D.; Jerry Houck to Calmuth, Ia. Josephine Generro remains here for a few days before leaving to fill a contract with Station KIZ, Denver.

'Shall We Dance?', three-act play authored locally by North Bigbee and Walter Holbrook, was presented in its revised version by the troupe in closing its stay at the Uptown.

Piece, produced last year by the Oak Cliff little theatre of Dallas, was rewritten to shift its depression theme, but still retains its original emphasis on fast modern comedy.

Discrimination Is Charged by Colored Actors

Players in 'Stevedore,' which is attracting attention at the Civic Repertory theatre, N. Y., were asked to give a Sunday night performance in aid of the Stage Relief Fund, but the colored contingent in the cast protested on the grounds that their people have not benefited from the Fund. Stage Relief denied that the charge of discrimination was justified.

Relief heads stated that, while some colored actors have been assisted, applications from others had been rejected because the identities of the applicants could not be verified. Before aid is given, applicants are identified as authentic professionals by checkups with Equity, the Actors Fund, NVA and other relief bodies. There are few colored actors in Equity or the NVA.

To meet the problem a committee was named last winter to stage special benefit performances uptown for needy colored actors. Committee finally dissolved, claiming it could not get assurances of support in Harlem.

PLAYS OUT OF TOWN

AH, WILDERNESS
(WILL ROGERS)

San Francisco, April 30.

Henry Duffy production by arrangement with New York Theatre Guild, presented at the Curran, San Francisco, April 30. Staged and directed by Russell Fillmore, with Will Rogers starred.

Nat Miller	Will Rogers
Essie	Anne Shoemaker
Arthur	James Macklin
Richard	William Janney
Mildred	Charlotte Henry
Tommy	Jay Ward
Sid Davis	Ralph M. Remley
Lily Miller	Martha Mayo
David McComber	John H. Dilson
Muriel McComber	Mary Blackford
Wint Selby	Lex Lindsey
Belle	Helen Flint
Nora	Anne O'Neill
Bartender	Hal Price
Salesman	Clyde Dilson

With Will Rogers in person to play a role to the hilt, as well as to draw the business, Henry Duffy has gone the limit in providing the best all-round cast and production for 'Ah, Wilderness' that any of his Coast shows have enjoyed.

Rogers is more Rogers than Nat Miller, but the two characters are synonymous. He does his usual head-scratching, with the shy look and the hesitant drawling, and makes the part so enjoyable that the opening night's customers were the most enthusiastic anyone around the Curran could remember. And the house was jammed.

Will Rogers doing Eugene O'Neill is unique, to say the least, so much so that in his curtain speech the bard of Oklahoma said he was now ready to do 'Hamlet.' Two outstanders in the supporting cast were William Janney as Richard, the moon-struck adolescent, and Ralph M. Remley as Sid Davis, the bibulous family friend. Janney, picture juve, grew with the strokes the difficult portrayal. No less proficient was Remley, who tagged right along at Rogers' heels for the laughs, and did a workmanlike job throughout. Jay Ward as the kid brother was up fore, too.

Anne Sheemaker as Essie Miller and Martha Mayo as Lily Miller shared the femme honors, and James Macklin as Arthur was okay. Charlotte Henry, the Alice of Paramount's 'Alice in Wonderland,' still looked like that character. She needs a little more voice training for stage work. Lex Lindsey stood out in a brief bit, as did Helen Flint in the shady lady part.

Russell Fillmore's staging and direction were up to par, and costumes and settings effective and authentic. Bock.

I, MYSELF

Philadelphia, May 3.

New firm of Pearson-Baruch, Inc., presenting this try-out of a serious play by Adelyn Bushnell is somewhat of a tough spot here by reason of being stuck in the middle of the Erlanger theatre's season of cut-rate, Wee and Leventhal second company plays. 'I, Myself,' is a brand new play, definitely above the average of the theatre's attractions, and makes its appeal to a special, artistic clientele which it will hardly be able to reach in this city because of the booking peculiarities.

Charles Hopkins has done a swell job in directing this very serious and sometime morbid play and the cast, as a whole, does exceedingly well by it. Chances of box office

Inside Stuff—Legit

Max Gordon denies that ERPI owns half the picture rights of 'Dodsworth' or any part of his halt, rights reposing equally between himself and the authors—Sinclair Lewis, who wrote the book, and Sidney Howard, who adapted for the stage.

Gordon maintains that the picture firm loaned him $35,000, but all he agreed to do was to pay off and try and have the screen version filmed in ERPI's Long Island studio.

'Love Kills' drew something of a razzing on its premiere at the Forrest, N. Y., last week. Drama was presented by Ida Lublenski Ehrlich, wife of Dr. Simon Ehrlich. An industrious press agent stated that she wrote a play for the late Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. Mrs. Ehrlich was collaborator on 'Helena's Boys' in which Mrs. Fiske starred.

Show booked the house on a rental basis for one month, three weeks' rent being on the line in advance.

'Brain Sweat', the John Charles Brownell colored cast comedy, may reach the boards again next season. Managerial set-up, however, is expected to be different from the Henry R. Stern-James Montgomery combination which put the show on recently at the Longacre, N. Y., and yanked it in four days, although the show was regarded having a chance.

Stern and Montgomery's rights will expire June 2 unless they pay additional advance royalty to the author. Meantime the play is being considered for presentation in London.

Some doubt whether 'Annina', which starred Jeritza on tour this spring, will be among the fall entrants on Broadway. Business was extremely spotty after excellent attendance in the early weeks. Seemed the operatic star drew music lovers in Boston where the show grossed $28,000, and Philadelphia where the takings went around $22,000.

Yet Pittsburgh only grossed $13,000 despite an advance sale of $9,000. Chicago, too, was a disappointment.

Four weeks' run of 'Biography', starring Alice Brady, split between Los Angeles and San Francisco, netted the Coast producers around $200.

Two weeks in 'Frisco topped the L. A. gross by several grand, but not sufficient to warrant further play dates.

LOVE KILLS

Drama in three acts presented at the Forrest May 1 by Ida Lublenski Ehrlich; written by same; Vivian Gleesen and Marion Green featured; staged by Percival Vivian.

Douglas Cameron	Marion Green
Robert Barton	Harry Hanlon
Harry Deming	John Parrish
Pearl Barton	Vivian Gleesen
Arthur Coyle	Bram Nossen
Doctor	Hendrick Joyner

Weird dramatics, plus the weirdest acting yet, tabs this play among those which never should have reached the stage. That the author supplied the bankroll explains something.

First-nighters laughed at a suicide, and there were remarks from out front, also unexpected guffaws the cast, which doubtless Waring had a tough evening. Attempts at effects with back-stage spotlights seemed just as faulty as the show itself.

Young actress for whom much was claimed fluttered about the stage incredulously, impression being that she was either badly coached or is imbued with a Garbo complex.

Father's bank is tottering, but financial aid comes from another middle-aged male who admits he has millions to spare. So he lends a large chunk of coin to papa with the stipulation that his daughter Pearl become his bride. She does, giving her young man the air.

So a year or two elapses.

Chap she loved returns, accompanied by a rotter whom the husband objects to. Seems the man about town did one good deed—saved Pearl from a bawdy house, to which she was lured after missing her train. Realizing he is a no-good guy, the man takes poison and slowly expires, with his kisser buried in a cushion. Pearl flutters back and forth—she wanted to go, but he asked her to stay—instead of fetching a doctor.

Husband enters, demanding to know the story. She does and she doesn't tell it, through a curious switching on and off of spots that brought audience titters. While the guy is passing out Pearl soothingly says something about heaven taking care of him and a feminine voice in the audience cried: 'What about us?'

Anyhow, Pearl is kicked out, goes to live with her former suitor, who quickly tires of her, and she leaps from the window. To those who did not return for the last act it was reported they all brodied after her.

Vivian Giesen is the fluttering one. Marion Green, once a warbler, plays the rich husband. Four others complete the cast. One set which cost little. But the authoress-presenter put the rent in advance for several weeks. Ibee.

PICNIC

Comedy drama in three acts presented at the National, May 2, by Arthur J. Beckhard; written by Gretchen Damrosch; staged by Kaye Lowe.

Helene	Jean Adair
Lois	Esther Dale
Philip	Marvin Kline
Mademoiselle	Frieda Altman
Mona	Olive Corn
Larson	Jan Ulrich
Walter	Fred Leslie
Robert	Percy Waram
Guba	Millard Mitchell
Vera	Joana Roos
Mr. Mooney	High Rennie

Spring crop of plays continues as backward April's weather was. One or two were slightly warm but 'Picnic' is not included in these.

Arthur J. Beckhard bounced into the spotlight several seasons back by spearing a late season success, 'Another Language.' His attempts to follow suit failed to materialize twice this spring.

Gretchen Damrosch authored Beckhard's latest try, a drab story in which uninteresting people are concerned. There are a number of ideas propounded by the various sets of characters but the objective is pairing off two couples matrimonially inclined or otherwise, one being a May-November union.

Scene is a country home. Philip, son of the household, has been associating with radicals and is all for 'the cause,' motivated by anything that attracts the attention of the group. Vera, principal soap box speaker of the group, crashes a plate glass window with a stone and Philip invites her to the house to prevent getting pinched.

The greenness and tranquility of the countryside is all very new to Vera, but she gives a demonstration of speechmaking prowess while on a picnic arranged by Philip's mother, Helene. Latter, a cranky old girl, stops and scolds Vera, and, when she has to walk home, is more irascible.

Her middle-aged brother, Robert, is an attorney who blithely lets radical ideas roll off his knife. With Vera's arrival on the scene his days as a bachelor are over. She tells of hardships, her reason for joining the reds. But tasting the comforts of middle class luxury is enough to change her attitude on life. Vera tells Robert that she loves him and that's all he wants to know. Philip can't absorb the idea but they walk out, assigning him the care of his mother.

There is a buxom spinster, Lois, with something of a bankroll. Unable to grab a husband she annexes herself to Guba, an undernourished member of the group. Sensing that he won't have to battle with poverty, Guba exists with the sex-starved Lois, again despite Philip's objections.

Perhaps the main trouble with 'Picnic' is that it provides few laughs, nor is there a dramatic punch, besides which the story is not interesting. Joanna Roos seemed colorless as the supposedly fiery Vera. Percy Waram, Fred Leslie, Jean Adair and Esther Dale are present but the performance is a long, quiet evening of little diversion. Ibee.

JIG SAW

Comedy in three acts, presented at the Ethel Barrymore, April 30, by the Theatre Guild; written by Dawn Powell; staged by Philip Moeller; Ernest Truex and Spring Byington featured.

Rosa	Virginia Tracy
Porter	Albert Bergh
Bell Boy	James York
Letty Walters	Cora Witherspoon

Claire Burnell	Spring Byington
Nathan Gifford	Elliot Cabot
Frank Mason	Charles Richman
Julie	Gertrude Flynn

Fairish farce comedy diversion is 'Jig Saw,' which is the sixth and final presentation on the Theatre Guild's, current season production schedule. Some chance of going into the summer period because of its late start, but moderate money is indicated rather than standout grosses.

Guild usually completes schedule before the first of May.

WEE, LEVENTHAL OUT OF PROV., STOCK IN

Providence, May 7.

Modern Theatre, associated with Wee & Leventhal in the presentation of cut-rate road shows, quits the legit policy Saturday (12), this week's show, 'The Curtain Rises,' with Louise Groody, being the last. Failure of public to respond despite low prices is responsible for the break. Top price is 99 cents. House tried two for one's but no go. Papers very kind on advance publicity, but reviews for the greater part were lukewarm. Policy lasted four weeks, only, and followed a season of burlesque.

Management will make one last try Monday (14) to keep house open, swinging into dramatic stock with 55 cents as top price. If Providence doesn't support the new move, theatregoers will have to depend on the little theatre movements for their legit fare. Four weeks is the limit set for tryout of stock.

YIDDISH LEGIT P.A. TREASURERS UNIONIZE

Yiddish Theatrical Agents and Treasurers, newly formed union consisting of the front-of-the-house men in all Yiddish legit houses of the United States, has been recognized as a separate affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. Press agents are included in the membership.

Group is working on an agreement regarding wage scales and hours to go into effect for next season.

Union, known officially as Local 18032, is headed by Theodore Silbert. Other officers are Joseph Grossman, v.p.; Harry Kaufman, secretary, and Max Sager, treasurer.

'Biography,' Hampden Hub's Only Legit Fare

Boston, May 7.

lography,' at the Hollis, is the only legit hangover this week; and the newcomer tonight is Walter Hampden, holding Colonial open for one week. Hampden's advance sale looks as if he will come close to Helen Hayes' all-time drama record here, set last fall, when, in this same Colonial, largest legit spot here, she piled up $23,500 first week and same her second.

Hampden presents four plays, 'Richelieu' being the opener, then 'Servant in the House,' 'Hamlet' and 'Macbeth.'

Wee & Leventhal bring 'Green Bay Tree' to Hollis next Monday, first showing of that play here.

Equity Now Favors W. & L. Stock, Ironically Booted Into Success

Rotary stock is defined by Equity as an experimental phase of show business which may point the way to rejuvenation of the road, in some measure at least. Its development in the east is in a pro and con status but indications seem to favor this newest form of out of town bookings.

After several conferences between Equity leaders and Wee & Leventhal as the latter expanded their stock wheel, operating conditions have been agreed on and firm's rotary activities will extend through next season without any anticipated changes in the agreement.

Recognition of W.&L. and its increased activities is an ironic reaction to the firm's standing a year ago. At that time W.&L. was criticized by other showmen and their system of throwaways was blamed for much of the bad business on Broadway. Firm's cheap ticket plans were ousted by the legit code but actually the stock men were kicked into success, going out of town where the code failed to operate so far as their stocks were concerned.

Agreement with Equity stipulates that if an engagement is for less than four weeks, the management must pay for the actresses' wardrobe. Male members of casts, however, must supply their own clothes. Since the W.&L. shows play eight performances and pay for extra shows, there seems little difference between rotary stock and usual road attractions.

Real difference lies in the fact that as stock companies—there are five currently operating—fewer stage hands are required. Also there is a saving in transfer expense and thefe is no transportation costs on settings, each house supplying its own scenery. Shows, therefore, can operate to profit at modest grosses, averaging $5,000 weekly. Takings of $8,000 over a period of weeks in one stand are said to have returned a profit of $1,000 weekly to the firm.

Whereas, salaries originally paid By W.&L. in its revivals in New York were under the code minimum, it is now claimed that no actor is getting less than the code stipulates except several junior players, while the leads are being paid as much as and more than average Broadway shows are paying this season. That is the reason that Equity now rather favors the W.&L. activities, along with the fact that the firm is keeping actors engaged.

There have been some objections to the firm by some actors, but such contentions have not been upheld. Claims that cheap price admissions have 'ruined' several stands appear not to be taken seriously either, it being pointed out that the spots referred to were already bad and virtually showless.

Back stage labor appears to side with Equity in feeling that W.&L. is keeping people employed and for that reason went to bat for the company when it was proposed that the revised code rule out cheap ticket activities. How the new code will handle the matter has not been indicated.

Warners Backing White's 'Scandals' Summer Show?

Two listed summer major musicals for Broadway are George White's 'Scandals' and 'The Family Album,' latter to be presented by the Shuberts. 'Scandals' will be backed by Warners, it is understood.

White's revue is expected to establish Warners' Hollywood theatre as a legit house. Hollywood has been a problem since it opened, wide stage having been designed for wide screen, which failed to eventuate. Theatre is to be remodeled, according to plans.

Hollywood was mentioned for stage shows previously, but rental demands were too high.

Mixup on Pic Rights To 'Ladies,' but Metro Grabs It for $50,000

Delay in consummating the sale of the picture rights for 'No More Ladies,' Morosco, N. Y., narrowly averted charges being filed with the Dramatist's Guild against the Shuberts by A. E. Thomas, the author. Understood the mix-up was untangled, with Metro getting the rights for $50,000.

Purchase price was agreed on some time ago. It was reported, however, that when the contracts were about to be signed, the Shubert office sought to ring in the rights to another show, contrary to the Basic Minimum Agreement, which bans bloc sales. 'Blossom Time' was the show mentioned, but Metro refused to consider such a buy.

Following the author's appeal to the Guild for action, a different slant on the delay was brought out.

It appears now that the Shuberts sold the British stage rights for 'Ladies' to Gilbert Miller, with the latter insisting on dating the film's British release six months after January 31, 1935. Miller planned staging 'Ladies' over there this spring, but presentation was set back when Miller broke his leg.

'ROOMS' YANKED DURING REHEARSAL; PAY CLAIMS

'Furnished Rooms', legit show with an all-feminine production set-up, was withdrawn during rehearsals. Show is now slated for presentation by Edgar Allen. Originally interested were Ronnie Madison, M. S. Pasquier and A. R. Miller.

Cast was paid off, but three members who were let out during rehearsals have filed claims for two weeks' salary. Management claims the dismissals were within the seven-day probationary period, but the players say that clause was deleted from the contracts. Claims will be arbitrated.

WOT TO DO WITH LUC. BOYER IS THE PROBLEM

Paris, April 28.

Arch Selwyn and Harold B. Franklin have signed Lucienne Boyer, French singer, and will bring her to the U.S. in September. Understood deal is for $2,000 a week for Miss Boyer to sing in either a nitery or legit. If she can get any radio or other outside work, Selwyn and Franklin will cut into it for 50%.

Miss Boyer sings in both French and English and is the top nitery attraction locally.

Although Selwyn and ranklin have Miss Boyer and are bringing her to New York, they can't make up their minds what to do with her. They have a vague idea that she ought to fit into the New York scene somewhere but are spending their days trying to figure out just how. By September they think they may know.

Gordon's Answer

Paris, May 7.

Max Gordon heard about Jed Harris refusing to sail from New York on the same boat because of himself and Lee Shubert.

Gordon screamed: 'Can you imagine spending five days on a boat with Jed Harris with or without a hit?'

WILLIAM A. BRADY'S 5 PLAYS NEXT SEASON

With five plays on his production schedule, William A. Brady will be as active managerially as ever next season, he declares. Yet producer made no presentations for nearly a year because of the illness of his wife, Grace George, who has now recovered. Most of the interval was spent in Atlantic City and Palm Beach.

All the Brady attractions are of foreign authorship, principally British and, although he did not go abroad, he secured several plays which other American managers bid for on the spot.

Brady explained he was compelled to secure foreign product because the limited number of name American playwrights are either tied up with other managers or under contract to picture producers. After perusing all manner of scripts from unknowns during the season he came to the conclusion that even the lesser English plays are better than the welter of American pieces going the rounds of managers' offices.

Two plays already in the Brady office will be presented early in the new season, with three more in negotiation. Starting attraction will be 'Libel,' a London play. It is a first play by a British barrister, writing under the pseudonym of Ward Dorrance, but whose right name is Wolff. It will be followed by 'While Parents Sleep,' which Gilbert Miller had but dropped.

Two other managerial firms have announced foreign-written plays as the nucleus of their production schedules for next season. With Lee Shubert listing eight acquisitions from abroad and Arch Selwyn now teamed with Harold B. Franklin announcing at least four foreign shows, the fall period on Broadway should approximate 20 uch attractions.

Owen Davis is dramatising 'Too Many Boats,' novel of the Phillipines during the World War by Major Charles Clifford for Brady production.

Revised Legit Code Due This Week; Written Without Help of Show Biz

Two Quick Folds

Within a week's period two new shows opened on Broadway and stopped after the second performance. 'Late Wisdom' was the quick fold at the Mansfield, 'Picnic' following suit at the National. Notices drawn by both shows were uniformly adverse, with the presenters taking the cue.

Cast of 'Picnic' drew a week's salary in advance, the legit code making that requirement on managers after two weeks of rehearsal. Second week's salary was, therefore, due after the two-day date.

RELIEF FOR 300 COAST ACTORS HELD UP

Los Angeles, May 7.

Project approved by the State Emergency Relief Administration whereby 300 actors would be provided with work in southern California, with an assurance of at least 24 hours' work weekly, is being held up, pending outcome of the financial relief of Los Angeles county, contingent on bonds being approved for local relief work.

Unless this money is forthcoming SERA will be obliged to turn over to the county approximately $1,500,000 to be used for general welfare work, and the aid projects will of necessity be held up for the balance of May, at least.

Actors would be used in community drama work at standardized wages under the SERA project.

'Juliet' Tour

Burlington, Vt., May 7.

This city will see its first legit show in three years on May 10 when 'There's Always Juliet' plays at the Strong theatre.

Show stops off here one night and then goes to Montreal for a week at His Majesty's theatre, to be followed by a Canadian tour.

Mabel Taliaferro and Robert Ober head the company.

Revised legit code is due from deputy administrator William P. Farnsworth this week, but before it is sent to the President for signature, the Code Authority will peruse the document. Although there was no accord on several issues discussed at the open hearings in Washington last month, some differences are said to have been adjusted. Farnsworth is reported having advised the CA that no radical changes are expected, otherwise another hearing would be forced. Doubtful if a code not acceptable to show business would be forced upon it, regardless.

Authority, in session held last week, brought forth some frank comments in reference to the revamped code. Showmen wanted to know why, if the original code was written with the aid of the various legit interests working with Sol A. Rosenblatt, the revised code should be drawn without them.

Proceedure was regarded as tatorial, but the general membership of the CA withheld criticism until the new code is at hand. Revision is being drawn by Farnsworth and Philip Wittenberg, named as legal adviser to the CA by the deputy administrator. Wittenberg, too, proposed a ticket control plan which was under fire at the hearings. Whether any ticket plan has been made a part of the code is not definitely known.

Session's aim was to consider increasing the budget for next season. Increase suggested woul amount to about $10,000, which about doubles the budget for this season. It was charged by one committeeman that it looked like the government sought to create jobs for political reasons. That came up when Robert K. Straus of the NRA Compliance Board proposed an impartial chairman for the CA. However, that too, did not meet with the views of others on the committee.

Budget was put over until the code draft is at hand, although a committee was appointed. Possible changes in the make-up of the CA, expected to be outlined by the document, made it logical to consider the budget later. General idea is for the CA to engage an executive secretary under salary.

It was pointed out that the original code has been in operation eight months without labor problems being adjusted. Showmen are of the opinion that differences with the unions can now be more easily handled, but managers are hoping for quick decisions from Washington, instead of referring problems back to the CA, which procedure left questions up in the air during this season.

Further pointed out that the code is virtually confined to New York, whereas, it was designed to apply throughout the country. CA resolved to speed up the naming of regional boards to operate in zones in the various show sections.

Franklin-Selwyn-Cochran Deal

'Nymph Errant' and 'Conversation Piece' for N. Y. Only if Stars Are Available

Lond n, May 7.

Charles B. Cochran is not going to America this summer, after all. He was due to sail shortly, but will not go now until the autumn when, if present negotiations are consummated, he will present, by arrangement with Harold Franklin and Archie Selwyn, several of his current English successes on Broadway. These include 'Nymph Errant,' provided he can get Gertrude Lawrence for her original role.

At the present time Miss Lawrence is slated to co-star with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in a new play and it will be dependent on the success of this play. Miss Lawrence's contract for the new play is for three months only, but could be prolonged.

Definitely set for the new American managerial combination to do 'Conversation Piece,' provided Yvonne Printemps will appear in it. Negotiations are on at present, and there is every likelihood of its consummation. If Printemps doesn't go, however, the deal will be off.

There is every certainty Elisabeth Bergner will go over with her present success, 'Escape Me Never,' the run of which was interrupted at its height by the illness of the star through fish poisoning. It will probably be another fortnight before the theatre is reopened.

On arrival in New York, Cochran will look for material and novelties for a revue in London next season. Cole Porter will probably be associated with its authorship.

'Tavern' Nixed

Paris, April 28.

Arch Selwyn and Harold Franklin, who had a vague agreement to bring 'White Horse Tavern,' musical, to New York, lost their enthusiasm when they went to see the show in last week. The project is now cold.

Piece is now in its second year here at the Mogador, and shows no signs of stopping. Visiting producers, however, feel it is not up to Broadway standards.

They saw the whole show, however, in contrast with Max Gordon, another visiting fireman, who couldn't stick after the first act of 'Waltzes from Vienna,' which he is bringing to Radio City. Gordon, although he walked out on the piece himself, still thinks it's good and plans to bring it over, which were fixed up in New York, are unchanged.

Disadvantages of language and sloppy French production methods are adduced as explanations of the unfavorable effect of local musicals on American producers who see them after having heard lots of good about them. Figured that if Selwyn and Franklin had done like Gordon and walked out on the show, project of bringing their show over might still be alive.

Sues Geo. S. Kaufman For Not Rewriting 'Eldorado,' a Flop

George S. Kaufman is being sued in a peculiar action. Isadore Polisuk is the complainant. He seeks the recovery of $15,000 because having 50% of 'Eldorado,' which Sam H. Harris tried out two years ago, show never coming to Broadway, Polisuk contends that Kaufman had agreed to rewrite the drama and that had he done so, the show might have clicked. But Kaufman didn't, so Polisuk want 's dough, he says.

Polisuk was interested in the script, originally called 'Hot Pan,' and based on the gold rush of 1849. Kaufman and Laurence Stallings collaborated on the drama, retitling it 'Eldorado.' How much time the authors devoted to revision is not stated, although they worked on it some.

Kaufman declares that Polisuk only invested $11,000 in the production and gives it as his opinion that the additional four G's asked for in the suit is 'proably for drinks.' He also suggests that Harris secure a writ to restrain further rewriting of 'Eldorado,' so that no more money be used in attempting to put it on the boards again.

Tokyo Audience Climbs on Stage to Give Marcus Show Hurrah Finale

By BURTON CRANE

Tokyo, April 21.

foreign community of Japan is as mad as a turpentined

Hands-across-the-sea stuff is being liberally oh-yeahed. Preparations for 88th anniversary of Commodore Per 's arrival on these shores is proceeding apace, with an obbligato Bronx.

of which is the deportation of the A. B. Marcus Show.

Every was brought to bear on the Home Min- nge the order, but no go.

Marcus revue broke every gate record the country had ever known.

Last day the show played to a few more than 10,000 persons in a 2,952-seat house, giving only two perform , vening finale is historic. The curtain could not g down. Some of those on the runway were dragged off, hoisted on shoulders and paraded in jerks up the jammed aisles. Stagehands swarmed on the stage, shaking hands with every member of the company. Audience got the fever and the engagement ended with the audience coming up over the foot lights to shake hands, trying to express in broken English just how sorry they were.

Technical aspects of the deportation are: Acts playing Japan must give evidence that they will not become public charges. With big companies, this means that theatres must post guarantees. Naturally, no theatre likes to guarantee for more time than it has booked. The Nippon Gekijo accordingly guaranteed only one month, from Feb. 23 to Mar. 28 and, when the engagement was extended to Apr. 15, got an extension merely for that period.

Meanwhile, the Shochiku organization decided that it would book the revue for Nagoya (two weeks) and Osaka (four weeks) and undertook to get a further visa extension. But the officials refused to extend, declaring that more than one extension would be illegal.

Marcus had planned to open at the Grand, Shanghai, on June 1. Now must take a smaller theatre, the Strand, from Apr. 26. Sailed yesterday, with several thousand well-wishers at the boat.

Play Is Reviewed, Panned and Jerked Prior to Opening

Budapest, April 26.

First time in history a play was taken off after the dress rehearsal to which dramatic critics only were invited, because they rejected it so unanimously that manager didn't care to risk the premiere.

This was 'Report,' comedy by Alexander Hegedus, well known but little esteemed author, who has had a dozen plays produced and a score of books published here and abroad. Play has also been published in book form previously.

Mistake seems to lie at the door of National theatre management. Tried to pull the play with the pretense of sudden illness of leading man, but the stunt didn't work. All the papers printed the official communique, adding that Uray, the leading man, never felt better in his life.

Scandal is about the last drop for the National theatre. B. o. reports are as low as figures can make them. To save some of the prestige, Government Commissary Volnovich, now in charge of the management, is producing a cycle of Shakespearean revivals at popular prices, but it may be a bit late.

Molly Picon's 'Girl'

Los Angeles, May 7.

he Circus Girl,' Yiddish musical, will be presented at the Biltmore June 1 by Molly Picon, coming here from the east under management of Relkin & Weintraub. Actress will play three nights and two mats at the Biltmore, possibly doing one or two other plays during her short stay here.

Coast bookings include stands in Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. Lee Parvin is handling local advance.

Press Agent Wants U. S. to Bar French Co.'s Chi Fair Date

Paris, April 28.

James E. Witteried has protested to Washington against the admission to the United States of Jacques Charles' troupe scheduled to sail from France late in May to play the Pabst Blue Ribbon Casino at the Chicago Fair. Claims that the acts are not outstanding and therefore are not entitled to admission in competition to American artists.

Witteried is rep here for Francis Mangan, who was succeeded by Jacques Charles as stage show producer at the local Paramount. He has done a certain amount of agenting on his own, but is best known as a press agent.

Witteried claims many of the girls in the Charles Troupe are not even French, and they would not be a credit to France nor the United States.

4 New Musicals Open in Budapest And Lo!—All Are Doing Business

Budapest, April 26.

new musicals in one week, three of them better than average, are big order for a city of this size, but they opened. Two of them are making big profits and the other two paying their way.

'Wild Flower,' book by Erno Anday and music by Eisemann, with Marika Roekk in the lead and a good cast, is playing to capacity at the Andrassy-uti theatre. Has to do with a woman-hater who suddenly finds himself father of a grown-up and charming daughter. She marries off her father to the girl he has not allowed himself to care for and, incidentally, gets herself married, too. Plenty of fun in the dialog and in the score. Production and play both belong to th better type.

'Love Me, Darling,' at the Fovarosi theatre, is another Anday book but is scored by Komjathy. Hannah Honthy in the lead i the big attraction. About a big boss who does not allow his employees to marry, on principle. Therefore loving young couple has to live together without benefit of clergy. After a misunderstanding, which nearly sends heroine into the arms of the boss, sh makes him see reason and give up his rule, so that true lovers may be married and elderly boss, the better for a little heartache, gives them a salary raise. Regulation operetta, with pride wounded to the quick in the second act, jealousy, re enge and the rest of it, and mistak cleared up in the third. Sound plot, sound score, far too little fun, but much popular appeal. Seemingly this is still a type of operetta that draws audiences here.

Irene Biller Back

'In Parliament,' at the Magyar, book by Vadnay, music by Fred Markush, is the vehicle for the return of Irene Biller to her home stage. Most popular soubrette here about ten years ago, Irene Biller apparently lost some of her appeal, married an American non-pro, migrated to the States, tried her hand at pictures in lesser parts, divorced and returned to the Budapest stage. She is much improved in looks and acting and was well received in this burlesque musical, which differs favorably from the other two in that it has plenty of laughs and a very bright, light, clever score. Pity that humor is largely local. Good comedy cast does its best, but audiences seem to prefer the sentimental brand of musical, the Vienna type, to this, which is more Frenchy in style.

'Playing with Fire,' book by Uray, score by Szlatinay, at the Royal Orpheum, with Emmy Kosary in the lead, doesn't come anywhere near the other three.

Reason for this sudden sprouting out of musicals—Kalman's 'Devil Horseman,' nearly ready to open at Kiraly theatre, making a fifth—is that agricultural fair, industries fair and other events bring many provincial visitors to town. It is to their tastes that producers are trying to cater.

Agents vs. Moss

the subpoenas, which Goodman and Goldblatt declared were illegally issued by Moss.

Goodman accompanied the agents to Moss' office and after first telling the commissioner that he was not in his legal rights in summoning the reps for questioning, added that the agents would not talk, anyhow, as per his advice. Finally he allowed the agents to answer a couple of questions as to their business relations with acts, the only information Moss getting being a reiteration of the counsel's contention that as clients were personal managers, giving acts unusual and unique service, and therefore not within the province of the Employment Agency Law.

Won't Show Up

After these brief interviews were over Goodman and Goldblatt made it plain to Commissioner Moss that further subpoenas to the RKO, Loew and Indie agents they represent would be disregarded. From Friday afternoon on the subpoenas agents received were turned over to Goodman or Goldblatt, with the lawyers calling Commissioner Moss to tell him that the agents would not show up.

An unprecedented compromise offered by Moss to Goodman and Goldblatt was laughed off by the counsel. This came after the lawyers brought up a point in the Employment Agency Law at variance with Moss' drive to license the agents, i. e., on how it would be possible for the agents, if licensed, to collect their commissions from acts when the law stipulates a maximum fee of 5% that can be extracted from an employee (act), with 5% already being deducted by the licensed booking offices. When the lawyers pointed out that the law would not allow the acts to pay a double commission, Commissioner Moss declared that if the agents would accede to the licensing he would shut his eyes to this point and the agents could extract as much of the acts' salaries as they could collect.

During the past week Commissioner Moss made numerous statements in the press anent 'chiseling' agents. He topped it all on Monday (7) when he enlisted the Broadway Association in his drive against the type nts who with offices in their hats, book stag shows.

Inspectors Erred

In a statement to VARIETY Commissioner Moss pointed out that his inspectors erred in starting at 57th street and working down towards 42d with their subpoenas. By doing this they got the 'big shot agents first,' Moss said, 'When what I wanted at the start was the small 'fry.'

When asked about the claim of the agents' lawyers that the word 'agent' is nothing more than a trade term as applied to the majority of the reps in the show business, Moss again stated that there aren't any more personal managers and that all reps as they are today are agents that procure work for acts the same as any Sixth avenue employment agency procures work for a cook.

'When I have questioned all the agents and classified them,' Moss said, 'I shall issue summonses either to one or two, or maybe all of them at once.'

A summons from Moss to an agent would mean an arraignment in Magistrate's Court on a misdemeanor charge. The magistrate hearing the case, or cases, can either throw the case out of court or hold it over for General Sessions. A conviction on a charge of operating without an employment agency license carries a maximum fine of $500 or six months in jail, or both. The first case will probably be a test affair and penalties will be waived.

150 Plasters

Commissioner Moss claimed that up until Saturday afternoon his inspectors had handed out more than 150 subpoenas in the theatrical district. A check on the agents represented by Goodman and Goldblatt, however, revealed that only 16 received the orders to appear before Moss, with but 12 actually putting in an appearance. The four who didn't journey to the License Department were those who got the papers Saturday and Monday, being Alex Gerber, Phil Bloom, Al Grossman and Sam Sheppard.

Twelve agents who saw Commissioner Moss Friday were Ike Cooper, Larry Puck, Charles Yates, Alec Hanlon, Jack Mandell, Myer North, Eddie Halson, Lou Bush, Billie Goldie, Jack Davies, Maurice Golden and Al Friedman. Maurice Rose, president of the RKO Agents' Association, also made the trip, but was not subpoenaed.

Moss claims there are more than 400 theatrical agents that must be licensed. At the rate of $25 yearly fees each the city would net $10,000. Licensing was supposed to have taken effect May 1, the agents in Moss' point of view operating illegally after that if not licensed.

LIBERTE PROVISOIRE

('Out on Bail')

Paris, April 25.

Four-act comedy by Michel Duran, presented by Benoit-Leon Deutsch and Jacques Albert at the Saint Georges, Paris.

Madeleine	Madeleine Lambert
Janine	Nilda Duoless
Benoite	Gabriel Fontan
Gerard	Pierre Blanchar
Barnaud	Maulo
Ducroux	Carette
Faugaret	Rene Worms
Hulin	Henry Dreyfus
Sergeant	George Clarins
Detective	A. Beart

Good entertainment. Light and very slightly sophisticated love story based on an old stage situation—a fugitive takes refuge in a woman's flat and she falls in love with him—but the changes handled cleverly, so that there are no dull moments.

Gerard, the fugitive, is a real character, and Pierre Blanchar, of the films, makes a good job of acting him. He's not a crook but a deserter from the army and a communist. His arrival in Madeleine's apartment in the first act is handled with great skill. At first by force of circumstances and later through love Madeleine finds herself giving up her lover, Hulin, for Gerard, and finally Barnaud, rich business man who has long been paying court to her, surprises her secret and enables Gerard to escape, exacting as his price marriage with Madeleine.

Play ends on Gerard's departure, who no indication of whether Madeleine will get away from Barnaud and reach him.

Dialog and characterization are extremely good—real and entertaining throughout without being super-clever or forced. Drama is not intense, but there are moments of good suspense.

Doesn't depend too much on local situations nor gags, and should be easily adaptable. A cinch for Broadway. Stern.

Revue in 15 scenes by Herbert Farjeon; music by Ord Hamilton; dances by Buddy Bradley; directed by Romney Brent; production supervised and presented by J. A. and R. J. Tomson at the Palace theatre, April 24. Stars include: Polly Luce, Gina Malo, Florence Desmond, Nelson Keys, Greta Nissen, and Diamond Brothers.

Florence Desmond and Nelson Keys are probably the greatest mimics of theatrical celebrities living—certainly the greatest in England. With both in the cast it was inevitable there would be some splendid impersonations.

Miss Desmond tied the show in a huge knot with her imitation of Mae West. Keys was not so fortunate and, besides, his work has become too familiar. As usual he attempts too much, resulting in the remainder of the cast being accorded limited opportunities. For instance, that clever little artist, Gina Malo, is only allotted two or three appearances.

A surprise is the artistic and graceful dancing of Greta Nissen, who is known over here only for her film work in the silent days.

Diamond Brothers split their act in two, using part for the first act and the remainder in the second. Both times they did exceptionally well.

All the cast is competent—mostly very much so. Production is neat, chorus work good, and scenery and costuming attractive.

Whole thing, however, is too long. Jolo.

DARK HORIZON

London, April 28.

Play in three acts by Lesley Storm, presented by Alec Rea at Daly's, April 20. Production by Campbell Gullan.

Peg Taylor	Miss Margaret Webster
George Taylor	Mr. Ernest Jay
Doris Taylor	Iss Kathleen Weston
Daphne Bennett	Miss Patricia Burke
Carl Wilton	Mr. George Thorpe
Ian Hammond	Mr. James Ragian
Maude Bennett	Miss Marda Vanne
Hugh Bennett	Mr. Eric Berry
Joan Cobham	Miss Ann Todd
Dick Hammond	Mr. Lester Matthews
Jessica Lane	Iss Elizabeth Montagu
Ronald Lane	Mr. Ireland Wood
Ruth Serle	Miss Vera Pollakoff

This is the first play from the pen of a name woman novelist. It is certain not to be the last for in it she gives such promise that any substantial West End management would now hasten to read another play of hers.

Nevertheless, 'Dark Horizon' is entirely too episodic and, as such, becomes irritating. Series of 10 scenes are in rapid succession. Show the apartments of a large apartment house, with its respective occupants, from the janitor's quarters in the basement to four or five other flats in the house.

First the janitor is shown, and his wife and child, who are saving, planning to buy a poultry farm and retire to the country. Next a scientist, who has just completed three years' research work culminating in something even more up-to-date than twilight sleep; then a family consisting of a mother, son and daughter. The mother, a widow, hopes the scientist will offer to marry her. Instead, he proposes to the daughter and is accepted. Rapid switch to another flat and one is confronted with the proposition of a newspaperman and a young girl in love. She had already accepted the journalist's brother, who is returning from the East after three years' absence.

And so on, and so on.

Irritating part of it is that directly one becomes interested in the life problem of any of these people, one is promptly switched off to another set of characters.

Suddenly (for the ordinary theatre-goer) one is faced with the situation of London being bombed by an unnamed European country without war having been declared on England, and its effect upon the occupants of the apartment house. Then becomes apparent the play is a strong piece of anti-war propaganda.

Very well played and intelligently produced. Well worth consideration for America. Jolo.

CZECHOSLOVIA NIXES ANTI HITLER PLAY

Prague, April 26.

Czechoslovak theatre censor has forbidden a performance in the New German theatre of Ferdinand Bruckner's anti-Nazi 'Races,' and has also asked for the text of the drama for further examination.

Present action of the official authorities is in line with the recent earnest desire of Czechoslovakia not to offend Germany, owing to the still important trade relations existing between the two countries. Also due in part to the influential German-speaking population in the Czechoslovak Republic.

A similar stand as on the 'Races' question was recently revealed when through the influence of the Czechoslovak foreign office, caricatures of Hitler, Goering and of other Nazi leaders, after a protest of the German minister to Czechoslovakia, were removed from an international caricature exhibition now being held in Prague.

Mid-Summer Temps., No Fresh Hits, Daylite Saving Help Scuttle Legits

udden summer came roadway late last week, temperature topping 86 degrees Saturday for an early May record, but that, with but few exceptions, was not the reason why grosses declined all along the line. Daylight saving, which generally reacts against the theatre for the first week or two, more than counteracted the benefit to legits credited to the five-day week.

Ticket agencies, which were particularly socked, had a different slant on the drop in sales. They contend that Broadway has had but one real hit since the first of the year, 'Dodsworth' being the sole standout, and they have nothing to offer regular customers who seek fresh attractions.

Dullness of the stock market is another alibi, and the fact remains that no show in town drew actual capacity last week. That takes in 'As Thousands Cheer' and 'Dodsworth,' although the former looks sure to last the summer and the advance sale extends into August.

Publication of 'Men in White' as the probable Pulitzer prize play also disclosing the claim that the advisory committee had selected 'Mary of Scotland' and that the awards body at Columbia University named 'Men' regardless, was favorable for both. Winner bucked the downward tide, gross going up $3,000 to $13,000, while 'Mary' held its own at $20,000.

'Jig Saw,' which debuted at the Barrymore last week, drew fair notices and may go through June. Two additional premieres flivved, 'Picnic' being yanked after the second performance at the National, while 'Love Kills' was kidded at the Forrest and should have stopped. Four new shows enter this week two being touted favorably.

Closing this week; 'The Pursuit of Happiness,' Avon; 'Big Hearted Herbert,' Biltmore; 'All the King's Horses,' Imperial, and 'Yellow Jack,' Beck. Due in next week: 'Come What May,' Plymouth, and 'Invitation to a Murder,' Masque, in addition to the revivals of 'Pinafore,' Majestic, and 'The Desert Song,' St. James.

Estimates for Last Week

'Ah, Wilderness,' Guild (32d week) (CD-914-$3.30). Will run as long as profitable with summer holdover likely; slightly affected last week at $9,000.

'All the King's Horses,' Imperial (15th week) (M-1,468-$3.30). Final week; socked in last week's sluffing; moderately successful; goes to Grand, Chicago.

'Are You Decent?' Ambassador (4th week) (C-1,166-$3.30). Low cost comedy with cut rate support; approximately $3,000, which gets it by.

'As Thousands Cheer,' Music Box (32d week) (R-1,000-$4.40). Affected for first time since opening; about $1,500 under capacity, takings being $25,000; however, tickets selling into August.

'Big Hearted Herbert,' Biltmore (18th week) (C-991-$2.75). Final week; fairly good run at moderate grosses; around $5,000 mark.

'Dodsworth,' Shubert (11th week) (CD-1,387-$3.30). Not affected as much as some others and sold out most performances; $22,500, which is slightly under capacity.

'Every Thursday,' Royale (1st week) (C-900-$2.75). Presented by Wee & Leventhal; written by Doty Herbert; has been playing rotary stock; opens Thursday (10).

'Follies,' Winter Garden (19th week) (R-1,483-$4.40). Should be summer draw if sticking; business fairly strong; last week estimated around $22,000.

'I Myself,' Mansfield (1st week) (C-1,097-$2.75). Presented by Malcolm L. Pearson and Donald E. Baruch; written by Adelyn Bushnell; opens Wednesday (9).

'Jig Saw,' Barrymore (2d week) (C-1,096-$3.30). Drew fair notices and indications are for moderate money engagement beyond Guild subscription period; about $11,000 first week.

'Love Kills,' Forrest (2d week) (CD-1,057-$2.75). Drew severe panning; after opening night takings estimated less than $50 nightly.

'Mary of Scotland,' Alvin (24th week) (D-1,387-$3.30). Mention in Pulitzer prize rumpus attracted attention; helped maintain pace at around $20,000; final four weeks.

'Men in White,' Broadhurst (33d week) (D-1,118-$2.75). Advance news of Pulitzer prize award jumped attendance in face of slump; around $13,000 last week.

'Moor Born,' Playhouse (6th week) (D-896-$3.30). Doing fair trade but not figured as summer stayer; estimated around $7,000 last week.

'New Faces,' Fulton (9th week) (R-900-$3.30). Claimed to have held its own last week, with the gross quoted at $8,500; intimate revue indefinite.

'No More Ladies,' Morosco (16th week) (C-916-$2.75). Slightly underestimated; average pace around $11,000, with about $1,000 less last week.

'Picnic,' National. Opened Wednesday (2) and closed following night.

'Pursuit of Happiness,' Avon (21st week) (C-830-$2.75). Final week; moderate money comedy made neat profit from engagement and picture rights; show goes to London.

'Roberta,' New Amsterdam (25th week) (M-1,717-$3.30). Approximated $20,000 last week; turned some profit, although figure is lowest since show climbed towards capacity in second month.

'Sailor Beware,' Lyceum (32d week) (C-923-$3.30). Figuring on sticking through June, with visitors to the fleet the potential draw; about $8,000 last week.

'She Loves Me Not,' 48th St. (29th week) (C-1,413-$3.30). Leading laugh show eased again with the field, but with gross around $14,000 made profit.

'The Milky Way,' Cort (1st week) (C-1,059-$2.75). Presented by Sidney Harmon and James Ullman; written by Lynn Root and Harry Clork; opens tonight (8).

'The Shining Hour,' Booth (13th week) (D-708-$3.30). Not definite after this month; British drama moderately successful; last week's gross about $8,000.

'The Wind and the Rain,' Ritz (15th week) (C-918-$2.75). Light comedy from London, too, made grade, but to milder takings; figured around $4,000 last week.

'These Two,' Miller (1st week) (C-944-$3.30). Presented by Casey and Liddie; written by Lionel Hale; opened Monday (7).

'Tobacco Road,' 48th St. (23d week) (D-969-$3.30). Off slightly, but with takings better than $8,500 neat profit turned; will hold over if lead (Henry Hull) sticks.

'Yellow Jack,' Martin Beck (10th week) (D-1,214-$3.30). Final week again announced; business estimated around $8,000.

Other Attractions

'Bitter Sweet,' 44th Street; revival; opened Monday.

ONLY ONE SHOW IN PHILLY, $9,000

Philadelphia, May 7.

Only one legit house is open here now. The Erlanger, which has been slipping of late, is dark this week on the promise of reopening Monday with a return engagement of 'Biography' (third time in Philly) and the Forrest, closed last week, won't relight until Thursday (10) because of a three-day postponement of the 'Only Girl' revival.

All of which leaves only the Broad doing business today, tomorrow and Wednesday. Show is 'The Second Man,' with Bert Lytell, and it is doing exceptionally well. In fact, the Broad has been maintaining a very even and excellent average of trade under its cut-rate and 40% pass-tax system. Last week's $9,000 looked mighty sweet all around.

Shuberts are putting considerable store by the 'Only Girl' revival. This Herbert operetta hasn't been revived since its original presentation in 1916 and the present cast—Robert Halliday and Bettina Hall starring—looks interesting. Local engagement is advertised as 'presented by Lawrence Shubert Lawrence,' who is the Shubert head here. Same $1.50 top used for 'My Maryland' and 'The Moon Rises' will be maintained. First of these clicked and second flopped.

Engagement will probably be for two and a half weeks, with 'Bitter Sweet' to follow and a promise of 'The Student Prince' and 'The Vagabond King,' later.

'I, Myself,' try-out by a new firm, and not one of the Wee & Leventhal series, got nice notices at the Erlanger last week, but didn't do a great deal of trade. Figured around $4,500, or a little better.

Chestnut is apparently getting keys and camphor balls for rest of the season, with the general belief existing that the Erlanger will follow suit within a few weeks. First intention was to keep this house (also possessed of a cooling system) open into the summer and close the Broad, but now it looks as if the latter will keep going the longer of the two.

'Big Hearted Herbert,' originally scheduled for the Erlanger, is now dated for the Broad on May 21. It will follow 'The Wind and the Rain,' which will have a single week's stay and then may (and may not) move to the Erlanger.

Estimates for Last Week

'I, Myself' (Erlanger, one week only). Not a Wee & Leventhal booking. Biz bum, with $4,500 reported. House dark this week.

'The Second Man' (Broad, 1st week). Fine notices and good trade. Almost $9,000. Stays this week and then 'Wind and the Rain' and 'Big Hearted Herbert.'

'Herbert' Looks Set for Chi Season On $4,000 Opener; 'Affections' 2½G

$4,300 FOR COOKS ON 'HOUR'; MAY GO TO CHI

Baltimore, May 7.

Charles Emerson Cook Players squeezed a good $4,300 out of Keith Winter's 'The Shining Hour' at 85c. top at Ford's last week.

This week, Flo Reed mounts the rostrum to guest-star in 'Thoroughbred.' Miss Reed ranged the same opus over the foots for same outfit up at the Auditorium last January. Boumi Shriners are contribing partial sponsorship for second session.

Next week Miss Reed lingers under the Cook guidon to troupe the Laura Hope Crews role in 'Her Master's Voice'; Harry Ellerbe went trip opposite in the part originally handled by Roland Young. 'Master's Voice' looks like last production of company at Ford's. Cook has been approached and is dickering with three Chicago legit barns on terms to descend on the windy city with Miss Reed in 'Thoroughbred' to try to make a run of it at $1.50 top.

Rogers $24,000 In S. F., Visiting Stars on for Bows

San Francisco, May 7.

Will Rogers is doing big business at the Curran in 'Ah, Wilderness' and what's more, is reviving something that looks like the good old legit days with plenty of celebs appearing out front and coming on-stage for cross-fire with the Oklahoma bard.

Rogers in 'Wilderness' looks to grab off a very hefty $24,000 for the first of its three weeks at the Curran, where Henry Duffy has tilted the ante to $2.75 from usual $1.65. Those name appearances are getting around, too, especially after Eddie Cantor and Fred Stone showed up and Stone did 10 minutes of songs and gags with the star. O. O. McIntyre, Irvin Cobb and Barbara Hutton Mdivani are expected in this week, and to take a bow, too.

Opening tonight (7) is Olsen and Johnson in 'Take a Chance' at the Columbia, with the comics popular here and expected to do quite well. Their radio commercial has helped them.

Future Plays

'We Dress for Dinner,' farce comedy by Aben Kandel, taken by Sidney Salkow and B. F. Kamsler, who plan early production.

'Saluta' described as an operetta type of revue goes into rehearsal this week, Harry Cort and Charles M. Abramson presenting. Book is by Will Morrissey.

Chicago, May 7.

Legit goes into a short slump, as does the rest of local show business, while awaiting advent of the World's Fair. One show arrived last week and clicked from the start at the Cort. That is 'Big Hearted Herbert,' with Taylor Holmes. Cort theatre has a long record of successes with cut-rate, cheap money shows.

'Herbert' comes in after 15 weeks of 'Curtain Rises,' which never topped $4,000, but made money right along. 'Herbert' looks capable of sticking through the summer.

Same goes for 'Affections, Ltd.,' which doubled its first week's gross during the second week. And the second week gross was $2,600, which means a profit.

'Shining Hour' closes at the Selwyn this week after six weeks of up-and-down business. 'Gypsy Love,' originally slated for the Grand, has been passed up. Instead the house will get 'All the King's Horses' May 15. Also leaving this week is 'Richard of Bordeaux,' which came in for two weeks and stayed four.

Princess has been leased for pictures, which makes it the fifth legit house to go to native in the past year. Princess has been dark as an ace legit spot for years.

Estimates for Last Week

'All the King's Horses,' Grand (M-1,297; $3.30). Opens here on May 15 (Tuesday).

'Affections, Ltd.', Studebaker (C-1,250; $1.50) (4th week). Holding around $2,500 now, which is okay. Horace Sistare, however, still figuring on a new show.

'Richard of Bordeaux,' Erlanger (D-1,318; $2.75) (4th and final week). Came in for a fortnight under the American Theatre Society banner, and is sticking four. In the money right along on a six-day week at $11,000.

'Shining Hour,' Selwyn (D-1,100; $2.20) (6th and final week). Started slowly, built to $8,000 top, and then started sliding fast. Last week down to $4,500. Goes out this week.

'Big Hearted Herbert,' Cort (C-1,100; $1.50) (2d week). Off like a shot from the start on excellent reports and admission price. House is a cinch for a comedy of this type. Hitting to $4,000 on opening session and should stick above $3,000 for a long time, which is on the right side of the books for everybody concerned.

Other Attractions

'Girls in Uniform,' Blackstone. Closed Saturday (4) after long stay to rave notices and word-of-mouth for this Charles K. Freeman non-pro production which brought Shaindel Kalish.

'She Loves Me Not' $6,000

N. Y. Hit Opens Slow in L. A.—Yiddish 'Kolb' $11,000, Best in Town

Los Angeles, May 7.

Grossing virtually as much in its six-day stand here as did the combined three opposition attractions, 'Yoshe Kalb' in Yiddish, with Maurice Schwartz, piled up a substantial profit over its nine performances at the Biltmore. Take bettered $11,000.

Final week of 'Men in White' at El Capitan sagged, although matinees held strong, for around $4,000.

Two newcomers proved disappointing, with 'She Loves Me Not' failing to get started on its initial stanza at the Belasco, and 'Shim Sham Revue' proving a financial disappointment at the Hollywood Music Box, with lack of sufficient funds to properly exploit mostly responsible.

Estimates for Last Week

'Men in White,' El Capitan (8th, final week) (D-1,571-$1.65). Second continuance of the engagement not so forte, largely through retirement from cast of Roger Pryor who had to go back for picture work. At around the $4,000 mark just so-so, with not much profit.

'She Loves Me Not,' Belasco (1st week) (C-1,103-$2.20). Despite its N. Y. success, this comedy of college life has failed to catch on with the locals as attested by a meagre $8,000 opening stanza. Biz is building slowly and management is hoping for three or four weeks.

'Shim Sham Revue,' Music Box (1st week) (R-965-$1.65). Coming in virtually cold, with newspaper advertising dropped two days before the opening, due to lack of ready cash, this high type revue, with an array of outstanding talent, garnered a small $1,500, and future is uncertain.

'Yoshe Kalb,' Biltmore (1st week) (D-1,656-$2.20). Given a lavish production this all-Yiddish play, featuring Maurice Schwartz, drew heavily, with the six nights and three mats well patronized. Take of $11,000 rated exceptional, considering general apathy of legit public to patronizing the stage offerings hereabouts.

Pulitzer Prize Enigma

Discussion in the dailies last week on the Pulitzer prize winners probably set a new high on award arguments. Pulitzer awards have frequently caused considerable discussion pro and con, but never so heavily before the winners were officially proclaimed.

Reason, of course, was the advance publication of the inners last week, although awards were not made definite until last night (7). With the advance publicity came the surprising announcement by the judges of the play award that they had picked 'Mary of Scotland,' but were over-ruled by the Columbia University officials, who picked 'Men in White.' Same thing, it was learned, happened to the novel award, judge's being discarded.

Novel judges picked 'A Watch in the Night,' by Helen C. White, but awards committee over-ruled it to give the prize to 'Lamb in His Bosom,' by Carolyn Miller.

Only other time known that the Pulitzer committee reversed itself was in 1927, when the novel award was given to 'Scarlet Sister Mary,' by Julia Peterkin, because premature newspaper publication of the actual winner 'Victim and Victor,' by John Rathburn Oliver, annoyed the committee so much they changed their minds the night before the selection was made public.

Explanation on the switch from 'Mary of Scotland' to 'Men in White' is dual. First is that the awards committee preferred an American scene to a foreign one, although the Pulitzer will, set no rules on this phase. Same thing may have been true on the novel, 'Lamb in His Bosom,' which is a book about the South, and 'Watch,' laid in thirteenth century Italy.

Another argument given much credence in theatrical circles is that the switch was made because the committee was loath to give the same playwright a prize two years in succession, Stallings, who won last year's prize, having authored 'Mary.'

Next year the Pulitzer Awards committee will try to work out a different manner of publishing names of the winners Columbia accuses the newspapers of breaking faith in disclosing the awards a week in advance.

ichard Smith Bankrupt

Richard R. Smith has filed a statement of insolvency. Smith's action, which is a personal one, follows shortly after that taken by the book firm of Ray Long & Richard Smith, of which he was the head until some months ago. He is at present with the book publishing firm of Stokes in an executive capacity.

Schedules and claims not filed by Smith, but among his creditors is Ray Long. Financial difficulties of Long & Smith began shortly after Long took a sudden leave of absence and went to the South Seas. Long is now on the Coast.

reedy Tag Explained

Publication by King of George Preedy's new novel, 'Queen's Caprice,' has again raised speculation as to the author's identity. In the current Saturday Review of Literature, William Rose Benet says George Preedy is really Marjorie Bowen, even though the English Who's Who lists Preedy.

Fact of the matter is that Marjorie Bowen is as much a pseudonym as George Preedy. Writer, who has used both those names, is actually Gabrielle Margaret Long.

Bang-Tail Literature

Load of printed matter on playing the races threatens as a result of the legalization of betting in New York. Walter Winchell's contract with the N. Y. Daily Mirror expires in the fall and the Broadway columnist is reported asking a 100% salary increase, or $2,000. He is believed contracted at $1,000 a week currently.

Winchell is said to favor settling in Hollywood and writing for the screen.

Sell Air Yarn

Bogart Rogers and Frank Dazey, who sold their original yarn, 'Twenty Hours by Air,' to Paramount recently, have disposed of the fictionized version to Liberty.

D-D's Fast One

Doubleday, Doran took advantage of the interest focused on armaments through the simultaneous publication of books on the subject by two rival houses by republishing in pamphlet form an article on the same theme originally carried in Fortune, entitled 'Arms and the Men.' D-D got it up to sell for a dime. First edition of 20,000 was quickly sold, and a second printing of 25,000 is being rushed through.

The two books on the same subject are 'Merchant of Death,' which Dodd, Mead is publishing, and 'Iron, Blood and Profits,' being issued by Harper.

ratt Clicking

Theodore Pratt is beginning to crack the publishers all around. Has a short story, one of a series, in the July Pictorial Review, and another in the next Esquire. Also has a novel due for simultaneous publication by Dutton in New York and Selwyn & Blount in London. Book is entitled 'Not Without the Wedding.'

Pratt's first novel, 'Spring From Downward,' was on a depression theme, which American publishers feared, but it got quick publication and a nice reception in London.

put of 12 features in Astoria, although this figure is held maximum and nine is reported more likely.

In the Hecht-MacArthur deal Parites claim the company is not contributing toward the budgets and that the 50%, other than that coming from the electric, is either the writers' own money or that of some angel.

Spanish Talkers

Par's own eastern production plans call for Spanish talkers (originals) at Astoria. First of a planned series of six starts Friday (11). Albert Deane, head of Paramount's foreign publicity department, has been named Par production liason on these films.

Just how many additional pictures will be turned out by or for Par at the Astoria film factory isn't indicated now but would probably be decisioned by June 18, when Par holds its annual sales convention.

Hecht and MacArthur start off around May 21 with 'Crime Without Passion' as their first. Claude Rains, who did the top assignment in 'Invisible Man' for Universal, will head the cast.

Pictures will have Arthur Rosson as production manager, Lee Garmes on photography and Slavko Vorkapich assisting on technical matters.

Fox-WC Guilty

ized by suspension of all film product. Complaint had been filed by Pacific National Theatres, which charged that the practice was detrimental to its house in Chula Vista, five miles distant.

Complaint of John T. Rennie against Feldstein & Dietrich over the securing of the lease of the Rialto in Burbank (suburb) after Rennie had operated the house for 10 years, was referred to the Code Authority in New York for decision.

National Military Home at Sawtelle was adjudged violating code by permitting outsiders to attend twice-weekly free screenings given ostensibly for inmates of the home. Institution was ordered to cease the practice and to install a system of policing whereby only inmates in uniform, or bearing cards, were to be admitted.

Other Squawks

Neighboring film house managers had complained that many persons outside the home had been attending the showings, by reason of checking at the door.

Hearing on the Cistrand-Principal and Fox-West Coast Theatres case gave the board members plenty of grief during the week. Original hearing on Tuesday was continued through Thursday and again on Friday.

Simon J. Lazarus, on behalf of Cistrand, charged that because the circuit had overbought film product for Alhambra, his Garfield was threatened with closing because of his inability to obtain major company film.

Circuit's defense was that instead of overbuying in Alhambra, a shortage actually existed and had to be made up by spot bookings of available features.

GTE Reorg

should not be abandoned for $5,000,000. Attorneys for Senator Daniel O. Hastings, the GTE receiver, replied along the line that the claims are hypothetical, that pressing them would drown the reorganized GTE in an ocean of legal complexities and that these same legal steps required would take so long that the hypothetical profit to accrue to GTE creditors would be eaten up in the meantime.

Additionally, they pointed out to the court the cost of this litigation would be nothing that could be taken care of by holding benefit bingo parties.

The All-Continent (Fox) opposition goes back to the financial warfare that got Chase entangled with GTE through heavy loans, many of which were made to GTE either during or in connection with GTE's campaign for control for Fox Films.

Whether All-Continent interests are convinced the GTE creditors would benefit by holding out against Chase on the agreement, or whether the idea is to block a GTE reorganization to keep the roads clear for the successors to the Fox alignment, is plenty problematical here and this matter is not likely to be peeled in the Chancery court.

The angle of the Hastings proposal which provides that Chase would give GTE a one-year option to purchase 325,000 shares of Fox Film A at $15 a share was not cleared up here in any way. It is nevertheless figured that the development of Fox opposition to Hastings' proposal indicates a revival of the Fox-GTE feud and a battle for domination of the field, to be decided as the depression clears up and the springs of speculative money thaw.

Reorganization of GTE under the Hastings plan would find Chase as thoroughly entangled as ever, holding a big block of GTE stock, which it would receive for turning over all its claims and the collateral behind them. Chase also would be putting up the working capital and expenses of reorganization.

Book Reviews

Actor-Author

Ian Hay is generally recognized in the show world as an actor who's appeared on both sides of the ocean. But he's probably more important as a novelist, however, than as a leading man. He's a smooth, thoroughly British tale-spinner, without much depth, but with a facile pen and quick wit.

Hay's newest novel is 'David and Destiny' (Houghton-Mifflin; $2). It won't set any sales records, and won't get much comment in literary circles, being but a light, pleasant little story. To show folks, however, it ought to be highly interesting reading, and probably could be turned into a film.

Story is about a Scottish boy who has music in his heart. Brought up without any education in the streets of London, he finally gets his chance in life by meeting two delightfully mad people who more or less adopt him. He becomes famous as a singer in New York and London, makes lots of money, and goes back to London, and the one girl, to head a snooty orchestral association and write the great musical masterpiece.

Enough screwy things happen, delightfully told, to keep the yar moving.

Miss Nesbit Agai

velyn Nesbit, who has previously written three or four autobiographies, including the one which was abruptly withdrawn from the Hearst newspapers after the first few chapters, has done another. This time it is subtitled 'The Untold Story' with a main title of 'Prodigal Days' (Messner, $2.50).

With an air of engaging intimacy, Miss Nesbit tells her story, but much of doesn't seem to jibe with what old newspaper men recall. It is garbled to throw the sympathy to Stanford White.

However it makes brisk reading and has been nicely ghosted. It should, however, be regarded in the light of fiction.

Another On Mary

ince there seems to be a vogue for historical novels, there may be some demand for 'Queen's Caprice,' by George Preedy (King; $2.50). It's an interesting book, though not a good one, and worth looking over for a better conception of Mary, Queen of Scots.

Obviously written by a woman, despite the author's name on the title sheet.

In some spots she's allowed to be tough and hard, but it's a different viewpoint from the one generally conceived. It's good characterization and a new light on an old subject. If better written it would have been an important book.

Horsy Heroics

Will Jenkins has taken what the reviewers of hoss operas know as the 'number three' plot for his 'Outlaw Sheriff' (King, $2). That's the one in which the hero gets himself a bad reputation in order to ferret out the rustlers.

Still, it makes good light reading, with the old plot material furbished up to gain some novelty and vigorous action. Better told than the run of mill, and appealing to those who like equine episodes.

Not enough of a departure from the norm, however, to make picture material.

Miss Norri ' lay

Every famous author is permitted a certain amount of personal balm every once in a while by publishers. That may explain why Doubleday-Doran published 'Victoria' ($2), lay by Kathleen Norris.

Miss Norris has always felt she wanted to say certain things about Queen Victoria. And she says them in a play which will probably never be produced.

Spinster Detective

Still the parade of good mystery yarns continues. Newest is 'Puzzle of the Silver Persian,' by Stuart Palmer, and a peacherino.

Palmer wrote the 'Penguin Pool Murder,' also a good detective story. Same character, an old spinster school teacher, does the unraveling of the mystery, and does it better than Scotland Yard could.

Miss Niesen's New Dress

That pixie Paramount theatre mike turned playful first show Friday, thought it could tease Gertrude Niesen, get her upset. It knows better now. Miss Niesen just paid it no mind, went right on quite as if its services didn't matter, and sure enough it wasn't many bars ere that mike fell right into line and after a few preliminary blusters there it was, giving its all so that Miss Niesen might give her all, which she did.

Miss Niesen's extraordinary composure, in the face of the mike's prankish defection, was no doubt due to the confidence that comes to a gal when she knows she's well dressed, when she knows she's looking practically swell.

Miss Niesen, who sings fundamental, whose tones start down in her very toes, has a new dress, a fine new dress. It's frosty white, it's simple, it's lady- It clings close to the waist, then flows easily down to the floor, neglecting, as it passes them, Miss Niesen's hips. This is a new trait in Miss Niesen's costuming, an admirable idea. It makes Miss Niesen's convolutions to 'Carioca' quite graceful.

For the record, the dress has a high square neckline marked off with clips that sparkle. Miss Niesen has hit upon a new coiffure too, restraint in large, shiny waves that makes only one concession to the old days—it still tumbles over one cheek, but with a new decorum. And when she shakes her head, it falls right back in line.

Ann Pritchard leads Bob Alton Girls, performing her rousing toe pirouettes in fragile white chiffon shaded to blue—with feathers—at the hem. She's wearing her white feather casque too, a lovely thing because it fits so snugly and is modelled in classic line. The girls dress in transparent white and dance under blue lights, bearing in their arms silver leaves. Sweet. Finale-time they're in yellow satin wrap-around long skirts, bright short blue jackets, red and white plaid ties and belts and caps. Brash. But jaunty. Gay too, very gay.

The Deadly Dame

Properly chilling, is Mary Morris in 'Double Door,' hard and cruel, and yet strangely pathetic, too. Maybe a little too disfiguring a make-up, a make-up that looks too much like just what it is—a make-up. But a fine coiffure, piling its hair in artfully shaped puffs that suggest—no, that bellow—a devil's horns.

A characterization of such consummate villainy that, in less expert hands, it might rant itself into travesty. Miss Morris keeps it on the right side by stressing her lady's taut restraint, by indicating her violence only in her feline springs, as swiftly checked; by the almost strangled tones of her voice, by the ferocity of her authority. Meller stuff that freezes giggles with the dominance of its seething understatement.

Evalyn Venable's voice ill-fits the serenity of her placid glance, her insistent sweetness. It's too tight-throated, it lacks the music implied by her utter virtue, by the lovely sympathetic picture she makes in her turn-of-the-century period costumes. She is appealing to see in her large brimmed hats with their willow plumes, her slender, full-skirted suits, her high, whale-boned guimpes that accentuate the grace of her long neck, but not quite as appealing to listen to. Easily her eyes fill with tears; not so sensitive, her voice. And there's a lot of talk in 'Double Door,' plenty of talk, and so plenty of opportunity in which to wish it had variety and range.

Anne Revere trembles on the verge of hysteria till her big scene, which makes it bigger. Miss Morris' restraint on one hand, Miss Venable's limitedness of scale on the other, serve Miss Revere well. Her abandoment to emotion registers the stronger because Miss Morris won't match her, and Miss Venable can't.

Too, Too Columbi

They say in Hollywood it does a gal good to get away from her own home lot. This week they're looking at Carole Lombard in '20th Century,' then rubbing their eyes, looking again, and still incredulous, murmuring, 'but that can't be Carole Lombard, it can't. Why, this girl is alive!'

Carole Lombard in '20th Century' doesn't even look like Carole Lombard, not until she gets into her white satin one piece pyjamas, and then it comes over you all of a sudden that there's something vaguely familiar about the unabashed expanse of that derriere. That's right, it is Miss Lombard.

She never used to care at Paramount, either. She's always believed in the witchery of white satin, has never been shy about what it brings up about a figure, has always gone upon the assumption that the more you reveal, the more you convince that what you reveal must, ipso facto, be good. Though Columbia has changed her, it could not—maybe it didn't want to hurt her—shake that tenet of her faith.

Miss Lombard is even yet forgetting to drape her negligee so that it cloaks her pretty satin panties and bras—though why she wears the latter garment in dishabille and then so flagrantly discards it when she gets dressed is still another one of those beguiling little puzzles that make lovely femininity so adorable, they say.

But in '20th Century' Miss Lombard has found strength and vitality and good health again. If it had been that kind of a part, she would have found dignity, too. She's exchanged her make-up mask for a human being's face, her either sleekly plastered or violently frizzed coiffures for a comparatively simple hairdress that flatters her by virtue of its height, her yearning to be an exotic—expressed by dead pan, swooping lips and staring eyes—for a costume so frightfully chic she straightway becomes as exotic in it as ever her wildest dreams. It's a black suit with a swagger coat that has a carelessly upstanding turnover collar, front facing, and bell sleeve cuffs of leopard. Her turtle neck sweater and leopard turban make her just too, too, too.

Sixth Ave. Must Be Heaven

The good little, sweet little, precise little Rockettes don't have to wait for reward in heaven; it's theirs this week at the Music Hall. It comes to them in tulip costumes, wise and understanding fashionings of crisp color, dashing line and becoming gaiety, attributes of costuming they always deserve, the clever lassies, even though they never sulk through all those weeks that they don't get them.

Round their slender, yellow taffeta-wrapped bodies, green taffeta tulip leaves entwine; in back they become fanciful swallow-tails that point their willowy grace. Their faces smile out from huge varicolored tulip petals ascending from collars around their necks. When, then, they nod their heads and point their toes, it's a row of bright, flawless flowers swaying in the breeze, flowers with straight-kicking, straight-bending stems. The Rockettes are dazzling when, as this week, they're done right by.

Ballet corps, opening the show as Dresden china tea cups, make way for Kay, Kataya and Kay. Kataya's long straight legs suit her mechanical doll dancing. She makes, too, a dizzily spinning top as her partners whirl her round and round on one toe.

Everything ends happily, with the ballet corps back as red oilcloth Dutch boys and yellow and red Dutch girls, the choral ensemble in blue Dutch lady dresses—the Music Hall's abandoned, for this week's show, its longing to make the choral ensemble showgirls—and the Rockettes as tulips.

The Rockettes arrive on a pretty blue barge; they clamber off it and hie themselves across the stage, because no matter what they are, where they are, the Rockettes always respond to an instinct that draws them out in one long, forward-kicking, applause-evoking line.

Mama Loves Papa

When Lee Ims confesses on the stage of the Palace theatre four times a day this week that Ilomay Bailey is really and truly Mrs. Sims, there is a warm patter of applause because it seems the Palace audience approves of marriage, particularly the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Sims.

He calls her 'mom' and 'my darling,' and she looks at him with adoration when he breaks into his piano flourishes. He thinks she has a glorious range to her voice and she admits laughingly that his piano playing is something.

He, kind of ruggedly awkward, punctuates his friendly little talks with clean masculine swear words, while she, sweet and womanly in light blue lace modestly buttoned with rhinestone buttons up to her throat, and a tidy, back-swept coiffure, listens devoted-wife-like, giving out that he's just a great big boy. It's all very folksy and strengthening to the institution of the American family.

Ames and Arno, with their slapstick rough-louse and hearty antics set the little ones a-laughi , nor are the little ones critical of the girl's right to wear ruffled green leotards.

The little lady of the Cossacks wears a red scarf with her white satin, maribou bound, chiffon sleeved and rhinestone embroidered skating costume. There are leotards in Mattie Hs, but white satin ness jackets nd black lace trousers for the finale; leotards, too, in the Harry Burns act. Only Miss Bailey o this week's Palace bill is really formal and wears a dress all the time.

New Stars

year. The picture name standing changes were about average. The year before ('32-'33) new film stars numbered 16, as against 10 dropouts. This year's 27 ex-stars were considerably more than usual.

Film's 19 Top-Billers

Pictures' 19 new top-billers, by studio, were:

Fox—Spencer Tracy, Lillian Harvey.

RKO-Radio — Francis Lederer, Ginger Rogers.

Universal — Margaret Sullavan, Paul Lukas, Roger Pryor, Boris Karloff, Gloria Stuart.

Warner-FN—Ruby Keeler, Joan Blondell, Bette Davis, Dick Powell.

Metro—Jeanette MacDonald, Herbert Marshall, Myrna Loy.

Paramount—Claudette Colbert, Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields, Charles Laughton.

Columbia—May Robson.

United Artists—Anna Sten (Goldwyn).

Lillian Harvey, Lederer, Margaret Sullavan and Anna Sten starred in their first year in Hollywood. Misses Harvey and Sten were foreign film imports. Lederer is also from abroad, but starred in legit on Broadway before going films over here. Miss Sullavan is a Broadway legit product. Another quick star developed during the year was Dorothea Wieck, brought over by Paramount as a result of the foreign 'Maedschen in Uniform.' But after one picture she was dropped, therefore now rates among the exes. Bing Crosby (Par) is classed as a star by his studio, but prefers to be just featured on the title sheets. Some exhibs also take exception and star him on the marquees.

Twenty-eight losers of star billing in films, some dropping back to featured player ranks, others going idle temporarily and still others leaving pictures altogether. For the first time in many years the names of Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Charlie Chaplin are missing from the major studio contract player lists, although all will probably be back in harness next season. Fairbanks is making a picture in England now and Chaplin starts one in Hollywood shortly.

Notable picture comebacks were staged by seven picture names, probably the outstanding one being that by Al Jolson, who also managed throughout the year to retain his place as a radio star. Others in strong comebacks were Dolores Del Rio, Chester Morris, Edmund Lowe, Alice White, Louise Fazenda, Adolph Menjou.

In radio stardom is gauged by a name's generally accredited national status, which can only be obtained through network broadcasting. Strictly local air favs are not included. Those who appeared to the radio business to have reached national prominence during the year were George M. Cohan, Joe Penner, Fred Waring (orch), Rubinoff, Will Rogers, Jimmy Durante, George Olsen (orch), Ethel Shutta, Lanny Ross.

'Majority of established stars like Eddie Cantor,' Ed Wynn, Bing Crosby, Paul Whiteman, etc., maintained their previously gained national radio ratings during '33-'34, but as for new stars the radio business fell behind the year before when 15 were developed.

Legit Stars

The legit trio gaining star billing during the year for stage performances, and their shows, were: Henry Hull ('Tobacco Road'), Helen Broderick ('As Thousands Cheer'), Mady Christians ('The Divine Drudge').

In pictures about 60 comparatively new faces are, and have been throughout '33-'34, receiving treatment and build-up for possible starring later on. From these probably will spring the new stars of '34-'35. Among them are:

Alison Skipworth, Evelyn Venable, Toby Wing, Elizabeth Young, June Knight, Onslow Stevens, Russ Brown, Henry Armetta, Fred Astaire, Chick Chandler, Pert Kelton, Katherine Alexander, Elizabeth Allan, Mae Clarke, Joan Gale, Betty Furness, Russell Hardie, Ted Healy, Jean Howard, Otto Kruger, Robert Young.

Patricia Ellis, Hal LeRoy, Ruth Donnelly, Margaret Lindsay, Jean Muir, Dorothy Tree, Guy Kibbee, Nick Foran, Victor Jory, Raul Roulien, Rosemary Ames, Alice Faye, 'Pat' Paterson, Shirley Temple, June Vlasek.

Among the Women

By The Skirt

The Best Dressed Woman of the Week:
VENITA GOULD
tate)

State's 'Frenchmen'

Anatole Friedeland's condensed version of '50,000,000 Frenchmen' holds the stage at Loew's State and proves entertainment of unusual worth. Venita Gould heads is organization, looking very trim in all her black and white creations. One white satin gown had full bell sleeves a tailored suit was oddly trimmed with straight feathers. A black net gown had taffeta for the foundation. A cape of bronze sequins shown for a minute.

Esther Lloyd was in purple satin with a hat of cerise. An orchid taffeta was most becoming. Miss Lloyd did the fan dance in white chiffon which was dropped for the dance proper. Dot Shannon, Peggy Alexander and Betty Castle did some clever tap dancing in very becoming costumes.

The large chorus appeared first in black and white, some skirts and some pants in black chiffon with white coats. The girls looked well in raincoats of red, white and blue. In gowns of mauve, green pink and blue with large hats the girls posed behind the soloists. One ruffled outfit of orange ruffles shaded to the faintest pink. A white number was resplendant in feathers and brilliants.

Dorothy Magan, Frances Black and Alice Haley, three girls of unusual dancing ability, did much for this unit. Al Neuman and his two stooges were the comedy relief, and will bear watching.

Not So Successful

'Success at Any Price' at the Rialto doesn't live up to its name, if the Rialto's audience is a judge. With Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is Colleen Moore, and very nicely does this girl do her job.

Miss Moore plays a steno and her office dresses are the same as other picture stenogs. Dark in color with lighter collars and cuffs. Genevieve Tobin does the only dressing in the picture and most of her costumes were overdone. A great many furs were shown and brocades and brilliants, that is what the part called for. One black negligee was good looking with long fringe at the elbows as the only trimming.

rossing Gable's Wimmen

'Manhattan Melodrama' at the Capitol sends Clark Gable to the chair. That's all wrong. Women won't stand for it.

Myrna Loy, as Gabel's gal, is seen first in an ermine coat over a white satin evening gown with much crystal trimming. Several diamond bracelets are on the wrist and the new clip earrings in the ears. A very silvery gown had a double-breasted effect and worn with a silver fox stole. She boards a steamer in a beaver trimmed tweed coat and small felt hat. A long black coat was noticeable for its sable cuffs and muff. The collar was upstanding and lined with a light fabric.

At the races Miss Loy chose a chiffon frock and large straw hat. A moving picture bed had this miss reclining in a net beruffled neglige.

Jack Benny, on the stage, kept the folks amused with his familiar antics. Mary Livingstone wore a stunning gown of French blue crepe made long and clinging. Very odd was a scarf of navy blue covering the shoulders and hanging to a long end down the back.

Chester Hale girls were in green skirts and yellow blouses. Hats, slippers and belts carried the same combination. The second number done by these girls was a credit to the stager. There were eight pedestals across the back of the stage. On each was pe.ched three girls. The first effect was the well known Chinese idol of the many arms. To slow music the girls went through many maneuvers, every movement having a meaning all its own, if you get me.

What the girls wore didn't mean a thing; from the waist up.

Same Faces and Clothes

Saturday, the first warm day of the season, proved disastrous in the theatres. There were but a handful of customers at the Casino Varieties. 'Whirlpool' was the picture, with Jack Holt at his best.

Lila Lee doing a comeback, has grown quite mature. As a girl of the 90's and 20 years later, she wears clothes appropriate to the periods but nothing out of the ordinary. A young blonde miss was a reporter and dressed nicely, as also was a girl who played the adventuress.

The vaudeville part of the show consisted of acts seen all too recently in the other houses. Jeanne Lang was in the same white tailored suit with the white fox collar. Olive Sibley was in blue with red accessories. 'California Revels' did a lot of dancing of the acrobatic type. Three girls in white and orange military suits did some clever tapping. Golden brown velvet and chiffon was the costume of a miss doing the same old contortions. A girl with Arthur Petley was in black satin trimmed with white.

WORLD'S FAIR S. A. ANGLES

PULASKI SOFTENS UP; OKAYS NEUSEL'S WIN

By JACK PULASKI

When Walter Neusel was awarded a win over Tommy Loughran Friday (4) at the Garden, it was understood around the ringside that the German was being built up for matches with the heavyweight topnotchers. It was a fairly well attended card, fans being highly partisan and those opposed to the German on general principles started any number of verbal battles during the match and after the decision was announced.

The two judges disagreed, which put it up to the referee, Arthur Donovan, who promptly the foreigner. Then came the bird. It was a close, but Neusel deserved the decision on his aggressiveness.

More interesting incident which the mob didn't hear about was Max Baer's promise after he took a bow in the ring. Heavyweight challenger passed Jimmy Johnston on the way back to his seat. He stopped for a moment and cracked to the Garden promoter: 'I'm going to knock that big wop right into your lap.' Championship fight with Carnera is dated for June 14 at the Garden. Long Island City (adv.).

The Double O

Loughran was given the double O by observers just to convince themselves about the Miami meeting with Carnera. Impression was that if Loughran is in the same shape as then and Carnera couldn't stow him away, dope in the big scrap favors Baer.

Neusel crowded Loughran for most of the distance. Flaing both hands, he d plenty of missing, but then he also scored enough points to cop. Tommy backed away from the rushing young blond and seemed to spear his points more cleanly.

est sock he exhibited was an inside uppercut, while his long left sometimes stayed off Neusel. Neither man spilled a drop of claret.

If Neusel is on his way up, looks like he has to develop considerably to rate as a real contender. Best thing about the guy seems to be his American manager Jimmy Bronson. 'Garden's show this Friday (11) is supposed to be a featherweight (126 pounds) tournament with the idea of naming a new champ for the title vacated by Kid Chocolate.

was vast in scope, it was narrow in vision; and though it was ambitious in theory, it was unworkable in practice.

'The advantages it offered the artist representatives, in particular, could never justify the disadvantages it threatened to impose on the theatrical profession in general. Worst of all, it threatened to destroy the intimate, privileged and focal position that the artist, representative had succeeded in establishing between the actor, the representative himself and the booking managers—after so many years of careful diplomacy.

'We shall marshal public and professional cooperation to drive out the mugs and chiselers who pretend to be artist representatives but who are, in reality—to put it as politely as possible—gross misrepresentatives and consequently a destructive influence in our profession.'

Loew circuit heads attending, in addition to Mr. Lubin, included Marvin Schenck, Dave Loew, Charlie Moskowitz, Leopold Friedman, Louis K. Sidney and Sidney Piermont. Nate Blumberg, Arthur Willi and Bill Howard were there from RKO, Harry Kalcheim from Paramount, and Steve Trilling from Warners. From the size of the attendance and those present, it was called the finest public tribute to an agent in many years.

MEXICAN DIVORCES

Ruled Illegal by Coast Judge—Affects Many Filmites

Los Angeles, May 7.

Quickie Mexican mail order divorces, long popular with picture celebs, were dealt a death blow by Superior Judge Frank M. Smith when he ruled that such splits are illegal unless at least one of the participants establishes legal residence in that country.

Decision was made in a case of two non-professionals and the attorney for the loser said he would take the case to higher courts to get a ruling to settle the troublesome standing of the reverse Gretna Green actions.

Divorces of Norma Talmadge-Joseph M. Schenck and Katharine Hepburn were obtained in Mexico recently.

Mrs. Sam Maceo Denied Benefit of 50G Bequest

Galveston, May 7.

Although victorious in lower courts in fight for $50,000 share in the estate of Oakley B. Harris, New Orleans sportsman, her former fiance, Mrs. Sam Maceo, of Galveston, formerly Jessie McBride of New Orleans, was denied the right to share when Louisiana Supreme court held the deathbed bequest of this sum which Harris attempted to make to Mrs. Maceo did not constitute a binding testament.

Court held further that if Mrs. Susan Harris, mother of Oakley, wished to comply with her son's request the money would have to be paid out of her individual share of the estate.

World Good Will

now than the U. S. American headquarters, following a careful scrutiny, are certain that today Italy, France, Russia and England have more sound equipment installed in their schools as individual nations than the entire U.S. Throughout this country conservative estimates are that not over 300 schools now have facilities for transmitting 35 mm. sound, while possibly another 600 have 16 mm. projectors.

Advancement of the American situation is hoped to be achieved through Washington, directly tying up with various producers on a wholesale scale. Simultaneously the Government, it is also emphasized, must lend the necessary pressure before important numbers of equipment installations can be realized.

In all of these, as well as other relations with the world, the Hays organization sees itself as the friendly intermediary and the clearing house.

European capitals for first time are now being enlightened on the public relations web which Hays would spin over the globe. This is being presented in the main light of the world accepting better pictures as acknowledged by existent previewing groups on the Coast. Simplified, it means, if accepted, that Europe will suspend its own box-office judgment for the recommendation of American women groups.

The alternative is for foreign countries to set up their own groups and pass upon American features independent of the Hollywood slant.

That the plan which relies upon Hollywood judgment will carry in many countries is expected in American headquarters, if for no other reason than for foreign affiliations of such American organizations as the Federation of Women's Clubs, Catholic Alumnae and Boy Scouts.

Hays' chief lieutenant of public relations in America, Governor Carl Milliken, has been instructed to protract his stay abroad until the story and reactions can be registered in such capitals as Paris and London. Milliken originally was assigned to the Rome educational conference. He is not expected back in New York now until some time in June.

Concessionaires to Try New Twists—Everything from Rose Dancers to Become-Nudist Colonies—Fair's No-Strip Edict

FANLESS SALLYS

Chicago, May 7.

The boys and gals are sitting up late nights trying to figure surefire sex appeal angles for the coming resumption of the World's Fair here this month. They are all particularly anxious to find the 1934 style dancer, to follow Little Egypt of 1893 and Sally Rand of 1933.

They've managed to dig up some neat S. A. angles for the coming Fair. Most of them are keeping their ideas under cover, waiting for the bell.

Flower Show

One fellow has a rose dancer lined up in the hope of getting this over as the sensation of 1934. The gal dances with only a couple of roses.

Three nudist colonies are working. The 'Elysian Nudists,' which have been playing burley theatres around, are angling for a Fair spot and likely to land. These nudists work behind a shadow scrim which gives the public the idea by way of silhouette.

'Sun Worship Village' is establishing a cult which invites the public not only to watch nudists at work and play, but offers them a chance to rip off their own clothes for two-bits. Most nudist colonies soak undrapers $25 for the privilege.

'Streets of Paris,' taking the Fair officials at their word that no stripping or fan dancing will be permitted, has thought of a new angle. Going to hold a regular style show each afternoon, but not only will the girls model in dresses, but also in negligee.

With Mirrors

'Paris' also has figured a way to get around the ban on peep shows. Instead of having direct shots of strippers, the 'Paris' exhibit has decided on 'illusion shows,' which simply means that the public will get a load of the girls by way of mirrors. This is the old gag used for years by honky-tonk burley joints on South State street.

Loop Hounds

There are many showmen who believe that the Fair will be more strict on sex appeal this year due to the increase of sponsored concessions for commercial exhibits. And they feel that for this reason show business will be in the loop rather than within the Fair grounds.

For this reason all available theatres in the loop are being gobbled up for the summer season. Ideas for bigger and better girl shows are in the making. The Auditorium has been taken over by Andy Rebori, impressario, who made 'the Streets of Paris' last year, and the house will be converted into a nite club of the Casino de Paree style under the tag of Cascades. Show will have femmes in tableaux, diving and bathing beauts. Illinois and Great Northern theatres are now being negotiated for as nite clubs where tableaux and fan dancing will be the features.

Apollo, in the heart of the loop, is practically set for the importation of the Folies Bergere from Paris with the house to be run on the Parisian plan.

Ain't No Drinkin'

ucts—muscatel, port, sherry, etc.—and blast 88c specials and sometimes as low as two bottles for $1 (formerly 'worth $1.09,' says the parenthetic notation).

Getting Conservative

The discriminating wine and likker consumer has become very conservative. For one thing common sense counsels buying only what one needs for a limited period. In the past they'd stock up for months because of the price. Now, with a likker retail store on every corner—that is, those that haven't folded, and many licenses have already been permited to lapse—there's no urgency for that.

For one thing, booze will come down with the successive months. It's got to. Too many squawks from the start at the tariffs—some comparable to bootleggers' rates—and what's more, the longer the wait the better the wet goods quality. Beer has proved that. First, now the beer is really good, because the necessary six months or so of brewing time has elapsed. Similarly the booze thing.

The niteries now realize that booze is no longer an attraction. They must give them something else—or else. In the past two or three years the evolution brought about the swank drinking restaurants to offset the then fading novelty of free 'n' easy, catch-as-catch-can drinking. Hence those Josef Urban rooms. The smart surroundings made it possible to still get $1 a drink.

But no more of that. No couverts; no $1-a-drink tariffs, but more genuine basic appeal must be the standard of things if the nite spots are to draw.

As a result certain spots have become cataloged as to trade. Seemingly there's an element that likes Eddie Davis' raw songs and the al fresco atmosphere of Leon and Eddie's, so that gets trade. On the other hand, John Perona's El Morocco, like the '21,' with its air of accentuated exclusivity eased off for some reason, and the Tony's types have come back. Still, Peppy's Chapeau Rouge and Place Piqualle get $2 couvert and $10-12 a quart for champagne from a cetrain element which, if it can't afford to go abroad for its Paree and Marseilles atmosphere, has it brought to them via the architecture of these rooms and the smart entertainment.

They Want Plenty

An idea of how much the masses want for their money may best be gauged by the elaborate shows the Casino de Paree, Hollywood, Paradise, etc., give with their $1.50-$2 table d'hotes. There seems to be enough good biz for the first two, with the Paradise staging a comeback via Morton Downey as the star. Palais Royal is folding for the summer and Ben Marden concentrating on his Riviera roadhouse at Englewood, N. J.

New York's roadhouse season and the hotel roofs figure to be good. Hotels all are primed to repeat their bull post-repeal market, as a further denter to the niteries.

The shifting of the vogue for the hotels further attests to the vacillation of those stepper-outs who like to o.o. the highlights or discover new rooms, and then forget about 'em. The mugg trade, as soon as it hears of the Madison or the Park Lane or any of the top vogue hotel cocktaileries are getting a play, follows suit. That's the beginning of the end for them. The 'right people' find a new hotel; that becomes a vogue and the same thing happens all over again.

So far as their drinking proclivities are concerned, there's no more of that concentrated elbow-bending as before. A couple of cocktails and a lot of dallying about.

For the thirst-parlors it may be a break in some respects in that the protection worry and the lowered cost of merchandise and operation permits for a more equitable margin of profit, even if the turnover and the gross isn't as large.

This is attested to by the sundry little spots that throw in a cocktail with a $1 dinner; some even add a glass of beer or some 'red ink.'

On the whole, the show or 'the dance music, along with some basic atmospheric appeal, must pull 'em—not just the booze. Even Childs sells it, so that's not the novelty any more. Furthermore, they're not buying drinks in lunch rooms like they did at the beginning—people are becoming very discriminating on how to properly mix a drink.

Between this epicurean development and the desire to be more conservative, temperance is paradoxically finally reaching a semi-WCTU stage (although by no means as bone-dry as the Comstocklans would have it) through repeal of prohibition.

I, MYSELF

success, however, are strictly limited because of the theme.

'I, Myself', concerns itself with a husband and father in a small New England city who is completely 'down on his luck'. He realizes that his wife and children are complaining of their pinched circumstances but can see no way out since both his legal practice (to which he is intensely devoted) and his insurance business on the side are at the lowest possible ebb.

Overhearing a conversation between his wife and another man, avowedly in love with her, William Trent decides to take his own life. When, however, another financial unfortunate comes to him with a hard-luck story about needing money to go to Reading, Pa., to the bedside of his dying wife, Trent decides on another plan. He has a $25,000 insurance policy and in order to make that good, for his wife's comfort, he makes a contract with Simpson (the down-and-out) by which the latter, for the sum of $140, is to kill him.

Plan goes through, but the results are not what Bill Trent had hoped for. In his efforts to prevent the death looking like a suicide, Trent has over-reached himself, and his wife is suspected of murder. Everything points to her guilt and the coils of justice begin to tighten about her neck.

Trent, in ghostly form, is present to see his plans miscarry. He sees the trouble into which he has plunged his wife and also the near-tragedy confronting his daughter, who has compromised herself with a man who has no intention of marrying her.

Spirit of the dead man gives phantom advice to those he loves, but it is finally the word of the actual killer (who reads of the case in the paper, having fulfilled his wish to be present at his dying wife's bedside) that saves Mrs. Trent. Daughter's trouble is also settled, and finally Bill Trent is free to enjoy the immortality which he so desired—a lawyer's post before the Heavenly bar of justice.

First act concerns the Trents' financial troubles, Bill's discovery of his wife's affections for the other man, the pact with the down-and-outer, Bill's death and, finally, the coming of a supernatural messenger in the person of Walter Baldwin, an old pal of Bill's, who committed suicide after finding himself a coward in the World War. Baldwin, clad in khaki, has found that this Hereafter, for him, is to be one long succession of wars—he is the coward who must die a thousand deaths and it is he who tells Bill what he may expect in the world to come.

These two, in ghostly communion, are present on the stage during most of the last two acts. Act II shows Trent's funeral, which he himself observes, and it is theatrically quite effective.

In fact, the whole play, thanks perhaps more to direction and acting than to the writing, is tense and impressive. It has to be superlatively well done; otherwise laughter would be bound to greet some of the tensest scenes which try to harness up realism and the supernatural.

Future of plays like 'I, Myself,' is always hard to predict. This one has several parallels to 'The Return of Peter Grimm' and suggestions of 'Outward Bound' and 'The Well Remembered Voice' of Barrie. Charles Trowbridge, save for one over-acted scene, is admirable as Bill Trent, and nice performances are turned in by Regina Wallace, as the wife, Dan O'Brien as Baldwin, Eleanor Wilcox as the daughter of Harry M. Cooke as the down-and-outer.

Tom Adrian Cracraft has designed a very adequate single set.

'I, Myself,' deserves attention and regard for its sincerity, its splendid direction and its many theatrically effective scenes. Its eventual success is problematical. Waters.

when 'Races' looked sour out of town it was discarded. Because of the organization's obligations to subscribers 'Jig Saw' was rushed into rehearsal. It was originally slated for next season.

Play was supposed to be somewhat rowdy but it impressed as only mildly so, what with the manner of casting and performance. Scene is that of Claire Burnell's penthouse atop an apartment building—in Central Park South. Claire, on her way to 40, and inclined to be giddy when young men are around, has been divorced for 15 years. Del Marsh of Baltimore, who is married but doesn't work much at it, has been Claire's admirer all that time. Of course, they scrap, but his main trouble about Claire—other than out-waiting other guys with whom she flirts, is the small amount of booze on hand when he comes to town—although he claims to send plenty to the place.

Del arrives on the day that Claire's daughter, Julie, returns from a French convent. Claire doesn't welcome his visit but the girl, who knows him as 'Uncle Del,' is quite aware of their relations.

What interests Julie, however, is the presence of Nate Gifford, a wastrel who knows his way about and whom she met in a Parisian cafe. At the moment Claire is enamoured of Nate and there develops a contest over him between mother and daughter. Julie decides she's in love and determinedly plans to marry him. Nate has no idea of entering the matrimonial state. He argues with the kid, telling her he doesn't want to spoil her life.

Julie rather calmly foils all contentions, declaring she will coach and inspire him into becoming a noted author; Nate has dabbled in magazine articles. With Julie triumphant, Claire turns to Del; she has been waiting to hear him say he loves her. That he finally does—'if you want to believe that stuff.'

Balance of the play's characters constitute a guzzling, lolling crew, addicted to booze, bridge and conversation. Too much dialog, it seems.

Ernest Truex as Del, and Spring Byington as Claire, are the featured players. Eliot Cabot is Nate, an irresolute chap who is 'made' by Gertrude Flynn, who plays Julie with strength. Some of the cast is on the stage too much and that goes for Cora Witherspoon, who plays Letty. Charles Richman has an easy assignment but more work than Helen Westley, whose presence isn't necessary at all. Looked just like a job, too, for Shepperd Strudwick.

'Jig Saw' has dialog which at times is smartly worded, but it did not impress as parring with the season's hit comedies. Ibee.

Austin Bevans (Al Finkel) and his band moved into the Midnight Frolic, Omaha, with a 10-piece band and a complete new floor show, replacing the colored outfit of Tommie Douglas.

HERK MAY GET BURLY CODE SPOT

Washington, May 7.

H. Herk, president of the National Burlesque Association (managers), representing the majority of burly operators of the country, arrived here today to confer with NRA officials on the industry's code.

Understood one result the meeting will be Herk's appointment as executive secretary and chairman of a burlesque code authority. Choice of Herk for the post by the managers and actors is said to have been okayed by the government.

Actors' group (BAA) will have membership on the code authority.

GAYETY, MPLS.

Minneapolis, May 4.

It was strange at this stock burlesque house to hear heavy applause outbursts greet other than the strippers. But this actually happened a number of times at the matinee performance of 'Peaches' Browning and her 'Peacherinos,' with Daddy's ex-frau as guest star. Apparently, even burlesque patrons can be made to relish something else besides the undraped form, and possess an appreciation for real entertainment.

Of course the strip numbers still rated first in audience approval, but perhaps the enthusiastic acceptance of the more refined displays holds out promise for burlesque.

The opus provided by Harry Hirsch differs from what they were wont to have before at this stock burlesque house in the talent's superior quality, more elaborate scenery and costuming and some freshness in material. Hirsch has shaped a show more along revue lines, although, of course, necessarily considerably less pretentious than the Broadway variety or some of the bigger vaudeville displays. While far from attaining a moral plane that would make it suitable Sunday school entertainment, the higher-class talent and investiture at least drag the proceedings considerably above the former dregs.

A personable adagio dancing couple brings real class into the show. Then there's other capable principals in Nonn Martin, Gretlyn Gest, Raymond King and Margie Bartell, who display real ability in their vocal and terp efforts. The comedy end is, perhaps, the weakest, but Jack Fuller, a heavyweight who goes the limit in dialogue and business, and several other comedians manage to capture laughs, almost entirely by resort to dirt.

Senorita Conchita is a dusky, voluptuous Spanish dancer who wriggles and disrobes. A chorus of 18 girls is not so long on looks, but dances fairly well. Posing and Oriental numbers are along conventional lines.

As for 'Peaches,' nobody ever had it softer. Her sole appearance occurs at the tag end and is limited to a couple of minutes, the time consumed in singing two short songs. The impression that she creates is that of a fairly good looking blonde without much personality or talent. Her plain blue gown lacked flash. For her contribution she received $500 and two round trip tickets from Chicago.

But the size of the audience on a warm afternoon indicated that she was a draw and, after all, the customers probably came just for a look.

Darrow Report

gressional warfare and demands for revision of both codes and recovery statute are expected to follow closely on revelation of Darrow's opinions.

Review Board Dissolving

Dissolution of review board within few weeks was expected at the White House after Chairman Darrow informed the President there is no reason why current hearings can't be wound up, supplemental report drafted, and members check out by end of the month.

Resignation of John F. Inclair, former professor and writer on political and economic matters, was anticipated. Split in review outfit was admitted the middle of the week when Darrow revealed Colleague, who has refused to participate in hearings since mid-April, had stubbornly refused to sign. Separate communication reported to contain criticism of Darrow procedure and report was submitted along with majority opinion.

Scrap over procedure and policies, reported in VARIETY several weeks ago, finally was taken to the White House last week when Darrow and Sinclair had secret discussion with the President. Enmity between members was so intense that the two reviewers made the trip to executive offices alone and faced each other across Presidential desk.

Lone friend of NRA and industry, Sinclair had kicked vigorously against one-sided, high-handed and ill-advised tactics allegedly employed by board in weighing charges against codes. Contended that board should engage expert technical advisors and make own inquiries; also that intensive examination should be made of only one code rather than surface-scratching probe of several dozen.

Report bristles with demands for drastic action to stamp out big business domination of code-preparation and code-administration. Calls for dusting off shelved anti-trust laws and stringent requirements to prevent use of codes to achieve monopolistic objectives.

Report Red Hot

Although entire report described as red hot, sharpest portions reputedly relate to film code and Rosy. Specific changes are urged, particularly in clauses setting up and defining scope of code authority, membership and power of clearance-and-zoning and grievance boards, banned and permitted trade practices and preferential treatment for circuit exhibs. Says modification is necessary to give small exhibs a fair break and respect rights and investment of indies.

Rosy maintained appearance of nonchalance even after document went to White House, but is reported to be considerably agitated. Speculation centers about how he can defend himself and nullify charges. Attack on the NRA executive resulted principally from his denunciation of board at first session and his complaint that none of his files were requested.

Reports that Charles Edward Russell, formerly prominent Socialist political aspirant and writer, had participated actively in shaping the report—which were indignantly denied some weeks back—were confirmed last week when Russell appeared openly as a Darrow advisor. First report, in which Socialist doctrines were emphasized, was revised after mysterious White House conferences and confabs between Darrow and Senator Nye of North Dakota, chief critic of Gen. Johnson and moving spirit in board formation. Darrow continues to deny he has consulted about every step with Nye, despite having been seen at solon's office.

What Will Happen?

Just what will happen is matter of widespread conjecture. President to some extent disarmed and then equipped with forceful ammunition the recovery critics in Congress by deciding to reveal findings. Report is admittedly an Administration hot potato, which will do Gen. Johnson no good whether it is kept secret or opened to daylight. Nye, meanwhile, is primed to sound off as soon as document is published, and will loose oratorical blasts if nothing is heard from Darrow recommendations. Senator Borah, crusader for anti-trust policies, will join him in an assault.

Revision of code unquestionably will be opposed by Rosenblatt, if he sticks on the job, but Congressional and public pressure, it is expected, may force either Gen. Johnson or the President to demand a showdown on charges. Possibility of new investigation on grounds of complaint seems slight, though Rosy probably will demand more impartial consideration.

Admission that board fold-up is coming caused speculation about possibility that NRA is about to be scrapped or seriously revamped.

Gen. Johnson's statement that a new propaganda campaign is necessary to revive waning public interest and change of former attitude combine to inspire reports organization may be swallowed soon by either Trade Commission or Commerce Department.

There is no question that Johnson's new willingness to compromise, as well as abandonment of his belligerent stand, has come from conviction that old tactics no longer could bring results. Reluctance to ask Congress to extend unused licensing powers, which expire June 16, is based on fear of what Senators and Representatives might do if legislative opportunity is offered.

Code Endorsed

19, after which non-payers will be declared in default and subject to penalties. Most prompt to submit their checks are the small theatres, the payments to date coming from 3,500 houses in all.

Some questions in various parts of the theatre field are arising over the C. method of assessment. Adjustments will be made in some cases, it was stated by codists, who pointed out that differences at the most would not amount to more than a few dollars yearly.

Any impression in the business that picture code costs are high draws C. A. fire these days. Some of the codists have found that it's costing the trucking code authority $1,000,000 a year to operate its code and the hotels $800,000 as compared to the $360,000 of pictures, one of the largest industries.

Before the week is over the C. A. will start work on a job which is described as virtually entailing the remaking of Hollywood, codistically. A lengthy report of the work of S. R. Kent and John C. Flinn will furnish the working basis.

As the set-up now exists Washington is literally the Eagle representative of employees, and all squawks are pouring into it over the wires. Relieving the administration of this burden is one of the major points in the coast reformation program.

Before this work is over there is a strong likelihood, according to especially well informed codists, that Divisional Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt will have to return to Hollywood and spend th greater part of three months there aiding in the disentanglement.

Anent the coast is the five-year contract form, drafted by the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences, which expires next February. Between now and then the C. A. and the coast's 5-5 committee must prepare a substitute.

Baltimore, May 7.

lick Shows, now a Maryland corporation-owned outfit, first carney to blaze way this season through this territory. Opened here, and will linger a month on local scene, pitching in each of the four corners of the city. Will then trek northward into mid-Pennsylvania.

Outfit on rails, utilizing 20 steel 72-foot flatcars. No new gear or features this year, and show continues carrying 10-people colored burlesk retinue as adjunct to the standard girly-girly exhibit. For local stands, a jitney ground admish is being exacted. Glick is using the 'under auspices' gag, Fourth Ward Democratic club.

GUMPERTZ GROOMS GIRL TO REPLACE BEATTY

Clyde Beatty and his wild animal act will not be with the Ringling show next season when it plays the Madison Square Garden. Differences of opinion are said to have arisen between Sam Gumpertz and Beatty.

Gumpertz has already approached Dorothy Herbert, horsewoman with the show, on trying her hand with tigers and lions next year. Intention is to get a bunch of 45 cats for her as the big attraction for the 1935 season.

Beatty for the past several years has played his wild animal act at the Garden with the Ringling outfit, rejoining the Hagenbeck-Wallace show as this season. Latter circus also owned by Ringlings.

CIRCUS CLOWN KILLED WHEN HE MISSES PAD

Boston, May 7.

Eugene De Koe, 37, died at City hospital Sunday after a mishap at Boston Garden Friday that fractured his spine at the . He was 'Kaso,' acrobatic clown, and featured in the 'leap' act of the Ringling circus.

In his running dive from a springboard, over a group of elephants, the clown ordinarily turned a triple somersault. At Friday show, in sight of 18,000, mostly kiddies, De Koe turned twice and on the third swing of his body struck the Garden floor on his head.

One of the first to his side was his wife, Irene, who has a part in the Living Pictures feature of the circus. Last Tuesday they observed their 16th wedding anniversary. Rushed to the hospital, De Koe was operated on by Dr. Donald Munroe, who saved the life of hockey's 'Ace' Bailey by a delicate brain operation last winter.

De Koe was in the business 25 years as clown and had played to millions of children. He was with the big show for the past 17 years. He was a native of Belgium, and his home address was given as at 226 West 50th street, New York city.

BARNETT BROS. CIRCUS

Alliance, O., May 2.

Enlarged to almost double its former size, presenting its program in three instead of two rings, a small fortune invested in new acts, trucks and equipment, Barnett Bros. circus, now ranking with the best of the mud shows is rounding out the first month of its annual tour which started April 6, in York, S. C.

Outfit this season would hardly be recognized as the show that has toured this country and Canada for the past ten years and despite rain and unseasonably cold weather the first three weeks on the road the trick is playing to excellent business through the eastern Ohio industrial centers. Show is headed west into Pennsylvania, probably as far as Altoona, Pa., then turns around and heads for more Ohio territory. R. W. Rogers, part owner and general manager, that the nut this season, on account of the enlarging will aggregate $1,300 daily as against $600 last season. There are 220 people with the show, excluding the advance, which numbers more than a dozen, moving with nine trucks.

Harry Carey, western film star joined two weeks ago and dominates the concert. Unlike other film stars with circuses, Carey makes no pretense of being a circus performer, but merely acts as m.c. for his congress of wild west people who do fancy riding, roping and shooting.

Big show program is being presented beneath a full 100-foot top, with three 40's, menagerie with few cages and bulls and horses is a 75 with 3 30's, while sideshow is 60 with 3 20's. All canvass was new last August. Outfit is moving on 60 units, trucks semi trailers and private cars, exclusive of advance and including ten new trucks recently purchased.

Better than 4,000 can be crowded into the big top seats, against 3,000 last season. Blues are 12 high at each end, as compared to nine high last season, with star backs flanking one side and grand stand chairs on the opposite side. Entire outfit presents neat appearances and looks like railroad show on the lot. Sideshow is strong, with 110-foot banner line, and in charge of Leon Bennett, new to the management of the kid show. Parade is daily feature, only half dozen cages and two three wagons, lineup made up mostly of mounted riders. Big show program runs smooth as in mid-season, now down to one hour and 30 minutes, under direction of Tommy Burns. Excellent band, under direction veteran Ira Haynes. General admission 50c, chairs 50c, star backs 25, and 25, sideshow 15. 25 last season.

Programs opens with the customary entry, with three gals atop elephants, all the bulls, mounted riders, ponies, dogs and entire performing personnel on foot. Show gets off to fast start with leaps, about 12 taking part but George Hudder, best of the lot who closes with double over three bulls. First Carey announcement now via p. a. system new this year. Carey dashes around track with hat in hand and gets big ovation.

All rings offer single bulls worked by Misses Rogers and Betty Leonard and Burnsr Flo McIntosh does foot slide; double traps, Lakes, La Vines and Krebs; the latter in center. Ray Howze puts eight liberty horses through smooth routine (new this season). Swinging ladders above all rings by Misses White, Rogers and McKee; Ed Raymond and clown band, gets lots of laughs and is well done; Rogers Sisters, wire act assisted by Georgie Lakes, elegantly costumed, excellent routine. Clowns again; burlesque boxing bout; Second entry, Harry Carey, who presents entire company of ten cowboys and cowgirls; Lavines high perch (center), closing with Lakes doing single perch in each end ring; Clown walk-around; Johnny White's leaping greyhounds, comedy acrobat clowns in all rings with Verne Coriell doing table fall in center ring; Rogers Sisters, riding act, with Howard Bryant, handling the comedy, beautiful costumes; Iron jaw, Misses White, Lake and Lavine; Coriell Family, acrobats, one of best turns on program. Two More Motor Outfits in Ohio Beating R.R. Shows to Territory

May

The mad scramble for major industrial centers of motorized abated half a dozen of the major truck shows trying to outwit one another for choice territory. During the entire month of May the Buckeye state will be the mecca of a half dozen motorized shows which have made a bee line for this territory, due to the fact that industrial operations are at the highest peak in almost a decade.

Newest entries into opposition circus fight are Sam Dill-Tom Mix show, which has made a remarkable dash out of the west to get into the industrial centers, and Russell Bros., a show new to this territory but known in the west. Both come into the state next week to remain two weeks or longer.

Late April saw the fight confined largely to the upper Ohio valley, where Barnett Bros. and Downie Bros. were battling for the pay towns, but Barnett out of the south in a hurry, picked up the choice spots fully ten days ahead of the Charles Sparks' owned show, preceding it up the valley, a week ahead. Barnett was first in at Wheeling, W. Va., Washington, Pa., Steubenville and East Liverpool, O. Sparks plays Wheeling May 8, then Holidays Cove across the river from Steubenville, which was played by Barnett April 28. Barnett had East Liverpool to itself April 30, while Sparks continued east picking up his regular towns in the Pittsburgh district next week. East Liverpool was the parting of the ways for the two opposition fighting units. Barnett turning west to make Canton ten days ahead of all opposition, with Alliance, Youngstown, Warren for the same week before invading western Pennsylvania.

The Sam Dill show spent little time in Indiana and this week invades Ohio, stepping across it in a hurry to get into eastern Ohio spots. Canton has been contracted for Friday, May 11, with the advance watching the Barnett show movements daily and protecting their billing.

Russell Bros., with R. M. Harvey in the advance, is picking up many Ohio towns, and is contracted at Massillon May 19, and Canton May 21, only ten days behind the Dill show, but so far has remained out of the early month billing and newspaper fight.

With so much motorized show activity, it is not likely that the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus will attempt to play eastern Ohio much before June, although in former years many of the stands were played early in May, to permit the show to get into the east ahead of the truck shows which generally concentrate on the industrial towns in this section until after June 1.

Injunction Halts Tree-Top Baseball Eavesdropping in Southern Towns

Birmingham, May 14.

Tree-top broadcasting of home baseball games is up a tree in two southern cities, Birmingham and Little Rock. Last week a temporary injunction was granted the Birmingham Baseball Association against WSGN peeping over the fence at Rickwood and calling the plays. A similar injunction is pending in Little Rock.

Steve Cisler, manager of WSGN, leased a plot of land across the railroad tracks from the local park and had the lease recorded for legal reasons. He then built a little house 45 feet up in the air in a tree on his property. Three men succeeded in calling one game but the next day's broadcast was interrupted by legal proceedings.

Broadcasting of home games by stations is prohibited by the Southern League, one of the strongest minor leagues in baseball.

Cisler said he would not have attempted to broadcast these home games had the station not been discriminated against in selecting an outlet to broadcast road games. WBRC with Bull Conner announcing has broadcast these games for several years. The time is bought by a local furniture store.

In one of New York's public school kindergarten classes the teacher asked a four-year-old lad what month comes after May?

Answer: 'West.'

ALL-COLORED GRAND OP FOR N. Y.

Colored grand opera at $1 top is slated for June debut in New York, either at Mecca Temple in Manhattan or the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. Peter Creatore, son of the bandmaster, is impresario.

Creatore has all the prominent Negro singers lined up. 'Emperor Jones' with Jules Bledsoe in the title role will tee off the summer opera venture. Abbie Mitchell, soprano; Todd Duncan, barytone; Carl Diton and Alexander Gatewood, are among the more prominent race singers slated for roles.

Negro novelty called 'Kykunkor,' which opened at the Unity, a little theatre on East 23d street, last week, is slated to be moved to Broadway. Performance, which is a combination of African tribal customs and native ballet, attracted attention following a rave notice in a New York daily, and late last week the show, attended by uptown intelligentsia, was a turnaway. House has less than 200 seats. First priced at 35c the 'top' was lifted to 50c after the premiere.

First offer from Broadway failed to click because the show's sponsors asked for $2,500 weekly as a guarantee for the company. There are 22 persons in the show. All the men are from Africa and cannot speak English, with the exception of Asadata Dafora, teacher and lecturer. Female contingent is said to have been recruited from Harlem.

'Native African Opera' is the billing. There is some story continuity, scene being that of a village where young girls, approximately 12 years of age, are trained for marriage. Dafora is said to be an authority on primitive African art and is known abroad as a lecturer on that subject. He also has similarly appeared in schools over here. He also sometimes uses the name of Horton and hails from Sierre Leone, according to the program.

'Kykunkor' is interpreted to mean 'witch woman.'

Gov't Skeptical on Shoestring Summer Stocks—And Probing

U. S. Department of Justice is reported investigating summer stock promoters. Government's look over, from account, is not aimed at established stock companies but the numerous shoestring outfits.

Shoestringers are understood, through complaints, to be charging hopeful amateurs $200 for the privilege of participating in the summer shows in converted stables, country churches, etc. In return they are promised small bits in the shows, plus $5 a week, room and board. Report is that some troupes don't even pay back the weekly $5, but permit the actors to keep the proceeds from any tickets they're able to sell.

Government investigation is believed on a basis of interstate transportation of actors and also as to any mail fraud angles.

roadway jinx which pursues all radio names on theatre dates has yet to be shaken off. It was generally expected that the bugaboo's perfect record would be shattered by Joe Penner at Loew's State recently, but the house lost money on the deal, adding one more to the Broadway jinx's consecutive kayo record.

Air turns that mop up out of town have had their troubles on the big street. Some have made pretty good showings on first Broadway engagements, only to brodie on return trips, but none established any marks for other acts to shoot at. At best they caused above normal grosses, but usually the cost was excessive as against the increase in gross.

LANDI LANDS WRONG FOOT

Washington, May 14.

Whether Elissa Landi can evade a penalty for alleged violation of customs laws by paying $350 in settlement of a claim remained undecided today as Treasury officials awaited further reports from the Coast concerning her importation of a group of left-foot shoes and gloves.

Accused of having brought in single shoes as samples and later of having obtained the mates by similar ingenuity, Miss Landi offered to compromise by paying $350 which was agreeable to Los Angeles officials. Higher-ups here insisted that the matter be probed further with the possibility that legal action will be instituted if Customs Bureau bosses feel the case is too flagrant to be dropped quietly.

Hearn's F&M Show, Professionally Handled, May Start Store Circuit

Slogan under the display read, 'An ideal gift for Mother.'

'CLEAN' CONEY SEES TOUGH SUMMER

Coney Island is set for the toughest and cleanest season of its career. Showmen there do not know what to expect, but figure they've got a hard fight on their hands. On order of License Commissioner Paul Moss, all ballyhoo is out, shows within shows have been done away with, prices must be clearly stated in front of all shows, and gambling devices will disappear.

Luna Park, biggest concession in Coney for years, will not open. It's in the hands of receivers who have decided not to bother. The Luna Park sky ride and swimming pool will operate as separate concessions.

Fusion administration has ordered strict covering up on the Island, with the concessionaires having promised police they'll carry through on orders. What the amusement park will be without ballyhoo and without being permitted to charge more than one admission for any concession is puzzling them.

Plenty of open space available for stands and stores, with a lot of the boys leary of investing much and a goodly number hopping off to Chicago and points west.

IT'S BACK!

Watch Your Kisser—Here Comes That Swi

The swinging door coming back!

Following the new bill passed by the New York Legislature and signed by Gov. Lehman, permitting absorption of grog of any grade at bars, some of the nervier spots in the Times Square area have put in the doors that cut the semi-circle.

It's the nearest approach to the atmosphere of another day. But gone forever, it is deemed, are the fronts that made saloons look like saloons.

First time that a department store show was booked and handled by regular show people was last week, when Hearn's, 14th street, booked an all-colored unit through Fanchon & Marco. Thus department store vaudeville, oft talked about in and outside the trade, has become a fact. Unit headed by Adelaide Hall was in for a full week which began Monday (7) and closed Saturday (12).

Department store idea may grow, Fanchon & Marco is in contact, through other stores, for follow-ups and a department store circuit of vaude by show people handlers looks in the making.

In addition to Miss Hall, the unit at Hearn's carried an 8-piece band, Leon Johnson's Mississippi Merrimakers; El Brown, male impersonator; 3 Tan Tappers and 5 Clouds of Joy. Also a line of 6 girls.

Hearn's, in taking the unit, is understood to have paid a regular flat fee. That's same as theatres, except that Hearn's offered the show free to customers.

When caught the oblong shaped room where the performance was held was filled beyond capacity. Maybe around 400 people watching the show, including about 100 standees, mostly women and kids.

Understood that the s.r.o. thing was evident the entire week.

Hearn's advertised it daily and even billed the talent in ads, thus giving the experiment a real try-out. Show played twice daily, at 11:30 and at 3:30.

On Thursday (10) two additional players were added. Unbilled, but looked like a couple of white lads.

SEMI-PRO NEWS SHOTS FOR NEWSREEL THEATRE

Figuring that he can beat the newsreels at their own game, Francis Carter Wood, Jr., son of a prominent New York surgeon who has a financial interest in the present operation of the Embassy theatre on Broadway, is organizing several Columbia University alumni to go out in the field on their own and bring some real scoops to the Emb screen.

While at Columbia young Wood became acquainted with the camera. He is convinced that he can take 1,000 feet of negative and bring back one of the most complete coverages of any football game. From his own experiences professional reel editors who send a couple of crews to the field and let them shoot up 5,000 feet of raw stock are out of their heads.

Right now Wood spends all of his time in the theatre, politely button-holing many of the attendees for first person reactions as to the show.

H'wood's Overhead Too Big a Fixed Charge to Warrant Prod. in East

As long as the industry has its present big investment in Hollywood the vast majority of its product will have to be produced in the west, if for no other reason than that there is a standing overhead which must be met. Film leaders who are among the pioneers in the eastern movement but who have definitely abandoned it, point out that whatever saving is realized by producing a picture or so in New York reflects itself in additional burdens on the other features made in Hollywood.

In the long run, eastern ventures merely add to Hollywood costs so that when the books are balanced there is little or no saving.

Availability of talent as an argument for the east is circumvented by the current Hollywood policy of traveling legit names; allowing them to remain on Broadway during the theatre season and migrate to the coast when the stage is generally slack.

Several companies which last year gave the east a decided break are now completely soured.

The best break the east can expect during '34-35 are shorts and an occasion feature. Most signal exception is the Paramount-Hecht-MacArthur deal, predicated on an Erpi obligation, and Spanish originals also by Par.

CROSBY IN MIDDLE OF SALES QUARREL

Hollywood, May 14.

Indications that Paramount is using its players on theatres which cannot get together with the sales department, has come to light as a result of a buying quarrel between the company and the Golden State circuit, operating in towns and cities in central California, chiefly around San Francisco.

Burnup has put Bing Crosby squarely in the middle between the disgruntled circuit operators and Paramount.

A short time ago Crosby signed letters that were sent into a territory serviced by Golden Gate to the effect that if the patrons wished to see his new film, 'We're Not Dressing,' they could catch it in an adjoining town at a theatre operated by a rival of Golden State.

In a letter from the circuit to Crosby the crooner was asked for an explanation, charging him with unethical procedure.

Circuit states that it operates 60 theatres and has used every picture made by Crosby until 'Dressing,' which, it claims, it was unable to get from Paramount due to a disagreement over play dates and price.

U's Stall-Action Order to Protect Laugh Spill-Over

Universal City, May 14.

Heeding requests from fans, Carl Laemmle, Jr. issued a bulletin to Universal producers and directors to use stalling bits of action in pictures following laugh lines. Laemmle stated in the notice that audiences complained they couldn't hear the ensuing dialog following some laff speech.

The producer pointed out that stage plays picturized with members of their stage casts have this pause, because players have developed bits of action to tide over the laugh moments.

Charles Mintz Adds Six Colortoons for Columbia

Hollywood, May 14.

Charles Mintz has added a series of six color cartoons to his new season's output through Columbia. Announcement was made here following quick plane trip to New York by Jimmy Bronis, assistant to Mintz, last week. New program will also have 13 Krazy Kats and 13 Scrappies.

Continuity for the first of the color cartoons, 'The Shoemaker and the Elves,' is being readied by Art Davis. Sextet will require a year for completion. With Mintz following Walt Disney into tints, indications are that all the motion picture cartoon producers will be using color within the next few months. Mintz's attitude is that education of the public taste and increased demand for animations in color will be well worth while from the financial standpoint, even if loss should be sustained at first.

STUDIOS SET UP OWN TALENT DIRECTORIES

Hollywood, May 14.

double move to eliminate the commercial casting directories and to have at their finger tips a classification of all talent in Hollywood available for films, the major studios' casting directors are compiling three distinct personnel directories which will list more than 6,200 players.

System of getting out printed 'blue books' was evolved at the weekly casting meetings at the Hays office at which the directories were compiled from the names in the Call Bureau, plus suggestions from the private lists of the several studios. Every name was reviewed by the casters.

First of the lists is out. It contains names of 1,500 supporting players, most often used. A second listing of around 4,700 names is to be published within the next two weeks and this will be followed by a third, containing the photographs of most of those cataloged.

First directory contains 55 different classifications, with names of each class occupying at least a page. While, heretofore, the groups were divided only in around a dozen different classifications, the new listing breaks up these groups into separate units.

The cataloging is in addition to the classification of extras being undertaken by the extra committee of the code.

Hollywood Agent Showdown Due As Regards NRA or State Control

Hollywood, May 14.

Adoption of regulations for coast , now in process of preparation, by the Code Agency Committee, is heading the question of agent control for a showdown on priority between the NRA body and the State Labor Commission.

While the matter of relative authority is expected to be adjusted amicably and with mutual satisfaction, the bare fact of dual supervision, with the probabilities of overlap, will inevitably present chances for those jurisdictional wrangles which have featured every procedure of film code compliance boards thus far.

Considerable number of agents who are disgruntled with what they feel is excessive authority of the State Labor Commission under its new licensing and contractual rules are preparing to nullify, if possible, or modify at least, the California State power.

Chief squawk of the motion picture player reps against more stringent State regulations now in effect is against the compulsory arbitration clause which requires all controversies between agents and artists to be submitted to the commission prior to any court action. This clause, protestants feel, ties their hands in prosecuting attachment actions to recover defaulted commissions, although this point is still admittedly in the debatable category, pending some legal precedent. Beefing agents have tried every recourse to get the State to modify this requirement, short of actual court tests, but the Labor Commission is adamant.

State holds that without such compulsion to bring controversies before it as the licensing body its policing powers would be nil. Keystone to the whole new regulatory structure, the Labor Commissioner holds, is the power to revoke licenses for infractions of those equitable relations between agents and clients which heretofore resulted in court wrangles and were the very element which inspired the new regulatory setup.

In an effort to set at rest the concern many agents have, regarding the filing of court attachments against artist salaries to enforce tardy commissions, Attorney Charles F. Lowy of the Labor Commission has conceded that the California law gives that provisional right, despite the arbitration mandate.

The Civil Code, Lowy points out, provides that California courts may stay proceedings, including final action on attachments, presumably, when suit is brought which is referable, under the State Employment Agency Act, to arbitration. But Lowy doesn't commit himself as to whether such actions can be successfully maintained.

The Labor Bureau, according to Lowy, is not disposed to regard mere disputes between agents and artists over commissions as controversies necessarily coming under the arbitration provision. If they are clear violations of contract, without involving violations of law or agency regulation, these matters would still go to the courts for direct verdict.

Although 'The Dangerous Wife' title is zestful, the dialog, Eddy avers, is such that it could be transposed completely to the screen without a change.

Eddy, as a trade paper reporter, has for his main beat the Hays headquarters. This is his first brain child.

Charges incompatibility.

Cantor, Re-elected Prez of Screen Guild, Terms Academy a 'Company Union'; Deprecates Strike Idea

Hollywood, May 14.

'The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is a company union which must be destroyed.'

This charge was hurled Sunday night (13) by Eddie Cantor, president of the Screen Actors' Guild, at the annual Guild meeting and election at the El Capitan. He said, 'The Academy's one purpose is an attempt to create an apparent division in the ranks of actors to prevent anything being accomplished for actors.'

He also attacked the Academy's supplemental contract for artists, claiming it was granted by an Academy committee without being submitted to the organization's membership for approval. The supplemental contract, he declared, was part of a subterfuge by producers to lower artists' compensation.

Cantor declared that the Guild proposed to proceed in attempts to negotiate a fair minimum basic agreement for artists with producers. He stated that machinery for collective bargaining of such an agreement is provided for in the 5-5 committee of the motion picture code. If that committee is not put in operation shortly, he declared, the Guild will invoke other collective bargaining provisions of code, forcing such negotiations and looking toward a minimum basic contract.

iscounts Strike Threats

Cantor discounted any strike threats, but said: 'Only stupidity, obstinacy and other unreasonable actions by producers against their employees could ever create the sentiment for a strike.'

Cantor's speech topped the announcement of election of officers, with he himself re-elected president. Vice-prexies are Robert Montgomery, Ann Harding and James Cagney. Kenneth Thompson remains as secretary; Lucille Gleason, treasurer; Richard Tucker, assistant secretary, and Jean Hersholt, assistant treasurer.

Twenty-three members of the board of directors elected include George Arliss, Mary Astor, Arthur Byron, James Cagney, Berton Churchill, Dudley Digges, Leon Errol, G. Henry Gordon, Jean Hersholt, Miriam Hopkins, Boris Karloff, Jeanette MacDonald, Noel Madison, Ralph Morgan, Allan Mowbray, Edward G. Spread of Triple-Featuring in L. A. And N. Y. C. Forces Major Co.'s to Enlist Copyright Law Protection

Industry problems, considered 'evils' by some, which the code fails to solve, may be handled during 1934-' through the medium of the copyright law and the exhibitor contract. Major companies currently are discussing their powers in this direction and considering the effectiveness of such in turnishing a whip against multi-features and low admission policies, independent of the NRA.

The code is regarded by some of the NRA students as being porous, so far as enforcement under certain circumstances go, an amazing extent.

For instance, spokesmen for major companies hold, if exhibitors in an area all indulge in tactics considered unfair competition under the code and no complaint is lodged with the local grievance board, the violation can continue unflaggingly.

Again, it is pointed out, were it within the code's power to call a halt to multi-featuring, such order from the NRA would have a mandatory effect and eliminate all such practices without qualification. While, if producers can utilize their copyright privileges, it may be proven possible to designate in new rental contracts features which must appear singly and others which may have twin or triplet playing rights.

Legal minds in major ranks contend that the copyright law gives distributors the right to issue a limited license to a certain type of theatre licensee, specifying when and how long a picture may be shown. They see, therefore, no reason why the law should not be interpreted to place the programing and sales dictation to the public rights in the hands of the makers, as well.

Forced To Acti

Why producers have not sought refuge in copyright protection before is attributed by major spokesmen to a general unwillingness to act until forced to do so.

In the meantime, however, matters on the surface would show an unevenness and inconsistency in action. Taken as a whole, an-

PAR INTERESTED IN BUYING UP N.E. CLAIMS

Paramount trustees are interested in buying up claims against Par New England theatres and will ask authorization to go ahead and dicker on Thursday (17), when a special creditors meeting for this and other purposes has been scheduled. While any direct purchase by the Par trustees of claims against Olympia Theatres, Inc. and Olympia Operating Co., main theatre subsidiaries in New England, does not constitute reorganization, it helps to pave the way.

Supposition is that the Par trustees may be able to make better deals than could be made by the receivers of the two Olympia companies, on which reorganization work is well under way.

Trustees also are looking for approval to go ahead on bond reorganization plans for the Goldstein Bros. circuit, wholly owned subsidiary of Olympia Theatres, Inc., but itself not in bankruptcy. Through participation by an old but inactive Par subsidiary, Lares Theatre Corp., the trustees may propose a new bond issue as an adjustment of a mortgage that is in default.

Goldstein circuit includes 11 theatres in Holyoke, Northampton, Ware, Westfield, Palmer, Pittsfield, Chicopee, Greenfield and Springfield, all in Massachusetts.

Creditor approval will aso be sought to make payments on property of the Seneca Holding Co., which takes in the Criterion, Loew's New York and property, mostly stores and restaurants, adjoining it which was taken over by Par when it planned a theatre on the site. Proposal is to pay $9,000 for taxes on 44th street pieces of property and to advance up to $2,400 on a mortgage on one parcel, also in 44th street.

'Murder Vanities' Makes Par's 4th Into Riv, N. Y.

The fourth picture to which the N. Y. Rivoli is entitled under this year's deal to select four from among all Paramount delivers, will be 'Murder at the Vanities,' to follow 'Sorrel and Son' (UA), next in.

Par figured the Riv would take away Mae West's 'I'm No Angel' and, it is reported, was planning to swing this one onto next season's (1934-'35) lineup to avoid its selection. West picture is now scheduled for June showing at the N. Y. Par.

FOX MET REORG. LOOKS LIKE A 100% PAYOFF

Looks like a 100% payoff for bondholders of the Fox Met-ropolitan theatres in the reorganization of this group, according to advance Wall Street accounts. Something like $13,000,000 in bonds outstanding on the circuit, which comprises around 100 theatres in Greater New York and upstate, as operated by Skouras and the Randforce Corp. Fox Film definitely will figure in the future setup of Fox Met.

Looks like an exchange of bonds will be made through a new company on a face-for-face value. This reorganization plan is calculated to be before the Federal Court in New York for its okay within a couple of weeks. Under the proposed reorganization, operation of the circuit, now in receivership, will continue under the present operators, George Skouras and the Randforce Corp.

Samuel Rinzler and Harry Frisch comprise ownership of Randforce and their operation embraces the Fox Met spots in and around Brooklyn and Long Island. Skouras is principally upstate New York and certain Jersey spots, besides some houses in New York city. Both Skouras and Randforce, under the new plan, continue to operate their respective theatres for 15 years on an owner-operator basis.

Fox Met group is stated to have around $1,500,000 in cash through operations by Randforce and Skouras. Randforce group handles around 40 of the Fox Met houses. Exactly when the foreclosure takes place to start the permanent rehabilitation of Fox Met is up to the courts after the proposed reorganization plan is okayed.

Fox Film's interest will be additional to a film franchise interest, it is certain. This additional interest comes through Fox Theatres, original holding theatre company of the Fox setup.

Foreclosure a technical procedure under the receivership laws whereby the assets of the old company are acquired by a new company to be formed for the purpose.

FUTURE COOPER STATUS TO BE DECIDED

Hollywood, May 14.

Today (Monday) Merian C. Cooper will decide his future relationship with Radio Pictures. Friday he returned from Honolulu after a lengthy stay for his health. Saturday he went into a huddle with J. R. McDonough and B. B. Kahane, at their request, on the question of his continuance under the contract signed last February, a clause in which permitted him a certain leeway in which to make up his mind just what he wishes to do. McDonough now seeks a definite yes or no answer. Cooper asked for a further delay to study the problem, promising to return a definite answer.

Under the contract he has three choices: he can either return to full charge of production, devote his time to a limited number of special productions, or retire from the lot.

Known here that should he elect to remain, home office is anxious to receive definite assurance that the condition of his health will permit him to devote more time to his production activities.

Seven Cooper special productions were slated to be sold on the 1934-35 Radio program. Of these, a trio in technicolor for Vanderbilt-Whitney Pioneer Pictures, also produced by Cooper.

Producer has been wading through story material while on vacation and sick leave from the studio. Only picture definitely set was 'Last Days of Pompeii,' in technicolor for Pioneer.

CONSOL. CUTS COAST STAFF

Hollywood, May 14.

Cutting down to skeleton staff in both its Hollywood plants, Consolidated laboratory handed all employees not under the NRA drastic salary reductions last week.

Starting May 21 the Seward street and Santa Monica boulevard plants here will handle only daily prints, while all release printing is to be done by the eastern lab of Consolidated. Only small staffs will be needed to handle this work.

Since losing Universal's business, Consolidated has only Radio and United Artists among the major studios. UA is quiet now and Radio's work can't keep the big plants active. 'Born to Be Bad' (UA) will be the last feature to have release printing done here.

Rather than accept the big pay slash handed him, Jack Guerin, manager of the Santa Monica plant and with Con for 12 years, resigned and will affiliate himself with International Cinema, Inc., and Regan-Day Co., in developing a new synchronizing process for use in foreign versions. Leon De Beaulieu, in charge of the mechanical department, and Ollie Stark, film timer, are others who resigned. Stark has gone with Universal.

Pay cuts were ordered by Herbert J. Yates and the executive board in New York. Two plants until recently employed 90 people.

Reports of new labs opening in Hollywood are still current. There are three groups said to be preparing or looking over the local field with idea of building processing plants.

An Empty Grouch

A good deal of grousing within the picture business lately against the film critics of the dailies, in and out of New York, and it ill befits those who are registering the complaints. It doesn't jibe because what the squawkers are squawking about is something for which they have only themselves to blame.

The principal holler seems to be against the star rating system. It reaches a crescendo every time a film company thinks it has a good film which draws anything less than three stars from those reviewers using this system. If the particular daily gives the picture two stars and it enjoys a fine box office week, the wail of the film frails is doubly loud. One company recently drew less than three stars for a feature which enjoyed an excellent Manhattan week and played prolonged runs outside of Gotham. That was three or four months ago and the firm is still complaining.

No one built the star rating system into this deemed Frankenstein but the picture companies themselves. If not the film publicity department then the theatre end, and very often both. Any time a flicker is given four, or three and a half stars the publicity lads blast it in the ads and make it scream from the marquee. All of which they're entitled to do, being their business and their judgment. But the point is that if they endorse the system by capitalizing on the favorable ratings, then they cannot justify themselves for squawking when no more than two, or stars tag their celluloid children.

Inasmuch as the publicity departments have done so much to make the public 'star' conscious on film reviews, it ill befits them to cry and moan when the critics go into reverse. The situation is similar to the cliques which pan the columnists behind their backs but fall all over and cater to them when face to face. It's understandable and easily described as 'very human', but it leaves a bad taste and the complainers in a poor light. It is not restricted to New York. It's the same on the Coast and in between those two points.

Another current tangent on film criticism is the recent tendency of some of the dailies to swing to the theory of giving but straight news reports on pictures instead of reviews. This idea is merely to mention the cast and give a synopsis of the story. In the throes of their anguish some film attaches have endorsed this thought whole-heartedly and hope it will become universal. Which is fine for the bad pictures, but what about the good ones? The endorsement from the film side is pretty short sighted.

Through its boxscores on the critics, both film and legit, VARIETY has found over a period of years that under normal conditions reviewers can help or hurt but can't make or break. That is to say, a set of bad reviews will not smother a good show or picture and a good press won't pulmotor a bad film or play into a hit. Under present conditions, however, where it seems the public in most cities waits to hear which is the best picture in town and goes to that one as their single splurge of the week, it is logical to suppose that a salvo of pannings can come pretty close to dealing a death blow to an attraction. Yet, in the case of pictures, it is an open question that in waiting to hear what's good, to which do they give the most credence—the published criticism or word-of-mouth?

In any case, the argument is against the plain news report as to its value for the theatres. Its single assertive quality is that it spares the poor feature a blasting. Should the picture men want that practice put into effect because they think the really bad pictures overshadow the good ones, then there's no picture business. It's not often that a picture comes through minus some commendable attribute and it would be better for the theatres to take the gamble on the critics rather than play it safe and know they're going to draw a blank in the press.

If the film men are of the opinion that in general they're the victims of mediocre reviewing that's something else again, but it still doesn't balance the benefits of the straight news report as against the review. Good notices help a picture to get a start. After that it's up to the picture. But if merely the story is printed, how long will the public bother to read it?

The critic is primarily a guide and his ability need be no more than a temporary concern of the picture men. The average reader only wants to know whether an attraction is worth the admission and the time. So if the critic keeps sending his readers to bad pictures and keeps them away from good ones, it's only a question of time, and that short, before they quit paying any attention to him.

There's a solution which would about cover the whole thing, particularly the star rating question. Some, probably most of the picture men, know it but they can't resist those four star ratings. And until they do their complaints on the subject neither carry weight nor do they digest very well.

Par Legal Battery Moves In to Clear Decks for Reorg

Stepping out to tackle litigation intensively with possibility of clearing the decks for reorganization at an early date, a large battery of litigation battlers moved into Paramount yesterday (Monday). They're from the downtown law office of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine and supplement the large group already present.

Battalion of attorneys who will concentrate on litigation is headed by S. S. Isseks and among others includes C. C. MacLean, Jr., Rupert Warren, Joseph Howard and George T. Washington.

In addition to going into trenches to fight current claims against Par, plus others that will get into the courts, the litigation troops have many other suits to contend with, which are on file, and which may drag on for a long time.

Two such suits the trustees themselves are bringing, one against Par directors to recover $12,000,000 on stock repurchases, another against 12 banks to set aside preferences under a $13,000,000 film-hocking proposition. Additionally, the two Sam Zirn actions, one in the State Court of Appeals, other in the U. S. Supreme court, must be contended with.

23 ANTI-CENSOR REASONS

Elaborate Setup to Speed Par's Reorg; Vanderlip Comm. Anticipates A Substantial Recovery on Claims

Important banking interests led by Kuhn, Loeb are now ready to take a firm hand in Paramount on reorganization. A reorganization plan may take definite shape in about four weeks, at which time it is expected a pretty clear picture of Paramount's condition, with assets and liabilities computed can be obtained.

Bondholders' committee, headed by Frank A. Vanderlip, is said to be of the opinion that data thus far collected warrants the belief that the assets and earnings will probably be adequate to afford a substantial recovery on all provable claims. Ig question is just how many claims will have to be satisfied and under what terms.

While Kuhn, Loeb projected itself definitely into the Par reorganization during the past week, the firm has been determinedly working on the Par matter for some time. At the Kuhn, Loeb offices it was said that Sir William Wiseman has been working on preliminaries toward a Par reorganization plan 'night and day for months.'

Dr. Klein's Survey

At the same time it was indicated that Dr. Julius Klein, former assistant secretary of commerce, has been working independently gathering data in behalf of Kuhn, Loeb and bondholders. Dr. Klein is one of the members of the Vanderlip bondholders' committee, from which Sir William Wiseman has resigned because he thought it would be 'inconsistent for him to be associated with a single group of creditors.' He resigned March 29, it is revealed.

Prior to mailing a printed letter to bondholder creditors on the stationery of the Paramount protective bondholder committee, conferences were held between various creditor committees and Kuhn, Loeb was designated to head reorganization plans. Counsel for the bondholders' protective group state that all creditor committees will collaborate with Kuhn, Loeb, but that so far the stockholders' propective committee, headed by Duncan A. Holmes, has not come into the picture.

This is the committee with which much of the outstanding Par stock has been deposited in an effort to force recognition on a reorganiza-

KUHN, LOEB'S 2 PAR REORG. IDEAS

Downtown opinion looks for Kuhn, Loeb to consider one of two plans for reorganization of Paramount. One is an exchange of old bonds for new, plus certain new preferred and common share issues, or a straight exchange of bonds and other creditors' claims on a stock basis only.

The last named is similar to that under which Fox Film was reorganized. The old bonds of Fox were given an exchange value for so many shares of new Fox Film stock. This way Fox was left without any bonded indebtedness and it's no secret that a similar plan has been under consideration for Par by the Kuhn-Loeb committee.

AWAIT CATHOLIC VERDICT ON PICTURES

Cincinnati, May 14.

A verdict which will carry with it an immediate indictment of American filmdom, or a treaty based on definite assurances from the industry, will be reached here tomorrow (Tuesday) by the Roman Catholic church. Bishops from all over the country are in convention here on the film issue.

While Catholic forces sporadically are taking individual action in the film clean-up movement, plus the Knights of Columbus joining hands in some instances with various parishes, the final word will come from here and this meeting.

Leading up to the conclave, but without mentioning it, various Catholic publications are describing in detail the birth of the Hays moral codes. Will Hays, individually, is not being attacked in such general writings. One of the latest of the articles, being broadcast, asking 'Why does this system fail?' continues:

'We are assured that the failure is not due to Mr. Hays or to his assistants. Neither is it due to any deliberate wish to encourage immorality or to exploit it. What happens is that the different companies help one another's play through the censorship by habitually permitting a lower standard than that to which they have given their solemn adherence. It is the opinion of those who are well acquainted with the situation that the producers are quite incapable of understanding why their judgment is criticized. Hollywood's moral standards are not those of decent society and Hollywood does not realize the fact.

'Hollywood will respond to public opinion which is strongly expressed. The fact that the industry is compactly organized makes the task easier. To destroy Hollywood would be to multiply the number of centers of production. To introduce legislation against block and blind booking would give objectors a thousand heads to cut off instead of one. If public opinion has not been completely poisoned it can solve the difficulty. If, as it supposes, Hollywood has the public with it, the situation is much worse than we believe.'

Archbishop Michael Curley, Catholic prelate over Archdiocese of Baltimore (inclusive of Maryland and Washington), has fired initial blast hereabouts against smut in films. In an article in the Catholic weekly, Baltimore Review, His Excellency asked members of the church in his domain to join the concerted drive of the National Catholic Action Guild to boycott flicks presenting 'obscenities.'

Hays' Refutations for Federal Control of Motion Pictures Applies Not Only to Patman Bill

$8,000,000 ADDED COST

The Hays office is confident it has established a bulwark in Washington which should successfully repulse for all time governmental movements, inspired or otherwise, to put filmdom under out-and-out federal regulation, or national censorship.

While the lengthy memorandum which it has just filed is directed specifically against the Patman bill, the writing is conceded to cover every possible phase of attack which might be made by future instigators of picture control in Washington.

The compilation of statistics and opinions is undoubtedly the most exhaustive formulated since the inception of the Hays Organization. Member-company executive heads and the entire Haysian personnel

RKO-WB OUTPUT DEAL; FOX PIX TO LOEW'S

RKO and Warner Bros. are carrying on negotiations which, it is expected, will put the Warner film product into the RKO theatres, and away from Loew's, for the 1934-35 season. Loew, it is understood, will get the Fox output, which RKO has had for several years.

Warner pictures went into the Loew houses on a circuit booking deal last season for the first time. Previously the WB product had gone to Paramount-Publix.

RKO-WB circuit deal, from accounts, will give the former the first run rights wherever Warners has no theatre.

Darrow's Report Attacking All Codes, Incl. Pix, Brings Rumbles Of 100% Temporizing of Entire NRA

Washington, May 14.

Caught between two dent Roosevelt last week resorted to ancient censorship tactics to tone down the scathing Clarence Darrow report and then changed face after Congressional criticism had broken loose.

Although he had days ago is intention of making the entire report available for publication, the President changed hi mind, giving as excuse the fact that the blistering findings are too detailed and complicated for easy digestion. Using typical Government method, he turned the document over to Attorney General Cummings, Recovery Administrator Johnson, and Trade Commish Chairman Ferguson for preparation of a digest, study of complaints and criticism and statements of reaction to Darrow's sharp demands for code revision.

Shrieks of denunciation from Republican ranks made the Chief Executive backtrack and Friday (11) announcement was made that digest, comments and full text will see daylight some time this week. President derided 'fool' stories about why document was hushed but declined to admit he was changing his position in agreeing to reveal entire report.

Document was turned over to Divisional Administrator Sol A. Ros-

LONDON MONEY HOT ON U.S. PIX STOCKS

London, May 14.

There is a sudden spurt in American industrial investments here, with special attention being paid to film shares. Biggest spurt has been in Fox Films. Feeling here is American industries are out of the red.

Balfour, Boardman & Co., which has purchased 200,000 of Fox shares at $15 from Chase National Bank, has a more intimate knowledge of the Fox company than appears on the surface. Balfour and Boardman are both directors of Gaumont-British, a company closely connected with Fox. Their knowledge of films is also extensive, as a company with which both are closely affiliated — the Anglo-Scottish Amalgamated Corp., Ltd., which specializes in loaning monies to film companies here against negative costs.

Understood shares purchased by Balfour, Boardman cost the Chase Bank around $18.50, while it is understood from inside sources in the 'City' that they have already disposed of them at $1 profit, thus netting $200,000 in a quick deal. They also hold an option on a further 200,000 shares, which must be picked up by Aug. 14, in lots of 10,000. These shares are to cost them $4 more per share than the previous lot.

RKO RECEIVERS' NEXT REPORT DUE MAY 20

Next RKO receivers' report will not be filed until around May 20, from the present outlook. Matter hinges on auditors making their certified accounts ready. The next report will reflect certain adjustments in the profit and loss statements of RKO and its subsids as has been variously announced through RCA and RKO.

Official announcement by RKO shows the B. F. Keith Corp. and subsids to have experienced a net loss of $580,387.32 for the year ending Dec. 31, 1933. Figure comes after a large write-off totaling around $2,000,000, from an income that reached above $9,000,000 gross. In 1932 the same group netted $209,782.

It is expected that the receivers' report filed through Irving Trust will show certain improvements as made but there will be by way of the new auditing system which has been invoked through RKO. The receivers' report, while being a consolidated account for 1933, will show, according to present indications, that in 1934 the pro rata expense of the subsids has been shaved.

Report will come before J. R. McDonough returns from the Coast. The RKO exec will be back in New York around the first of June, because of approaching company sales conventions slated for the middle of that month in New York. Additionally his presence is known to be required at the same office to clear up certain unfinished business in connection with KAO theatres.

Nature of this business has not been made known, but stated to be linked with certain prospective changes to which the Mike Meehan faction is looking forward.

Six Weeks of Too Much Crimson for N.Y. and B'klyn Pars on Stage Names

Changes the Paramount stage production department, turning out shows for the New York and Brooklyn Pars, is reported on the way after six weeks of disturbing grosses with high salaried stage names. Order to trim down at the home office follows a trail of red left by the two theatres.

Understanding that Boris Morros will drop Clark Robinson, brought in about six weeks ago and make Danny Dare sole producer. Harry Kalchiem will not be disturbed.

The recent name bookings have not brought such disheartening results out of town, but at the N. Y. and Brooklyn Pars the slap has been consistent and heavy.

At the Times Square deluxer the loss has averaged over $10,000 a week for about six weeks. At the Brooklyn spot the dip into red has not been so consistently deep, but it's been deep enough.

Roxy and Gang were booked originally by Paramount at $10,000, of which $5,000 was net for S. L. Rothafel alone. Attraction made a profit the opening week at the Met, Boston, but came into the N. Y. Par and that week the net loss equalled the gross, about $20,000. Rothafel has since taken a cut.

The New York Par also lost $15,000 on Gloria Swanson, booked in at $7,500, and she then was cancelled out of Brooklyn. The Jessel-Merman week cost the Broadway house around $12,000.

Last week, with Milton Berle in New York and Ethel Merman in Brooklyn both spots were too crimson again.

Brooklyn broke even on Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, and George Raft's personals were in the black for both theatres.

The Brooklyn Par closes for the summer May 17.

Advertising budget on the N. Y. Par is to be trimmed considerably and the Paramount magazine, including program, is to be eliminated.

Believe It or Not, See More Theatre Building as 50% of Film Spots Deemed Outmoded

Practically 50% of the U. S. film theatres are emerging from the depression so hopelessly maimed as to be currently headed for the wreckers as soon as the industry can obtain financing for their replacement. Another batch is chalked up as in immediate need of remodeling and new equipment. Only 3,750 theatres out of the 15,000 which are expected to be in operation by June are classified as really fit and able to meet public needs and demands.

At a minimum, $30,000,000 will have to be put into new boxoffices, not to mention repair work on others, before 1934 is over. It is also figured by general theatre men with a perspective taking in the entire business that this amount will erect approximately 300 theatres of the neighborhood order.

Fully 100 of these new theatres are now under construction throughout the country and, the chart approximates, about 1,000 are in the renovations class. At the same time surveys are being completed almost weekly for furtherance of the industry's box office recovery movement.

Ills

Theatre renovation cannot be financed out of the box office, despite its steady improvement, as reported in detail in another story. The b.o. rise, however, is making it easier for theatre men to get bank and mortgage loans. Yet banks are still regarded as too chilly in their attitude to show business to permit more than the above plans, which are described as but a comparatively small percentage of the rebuilding which the business will sooner or later have to accomplish.

The physical status of big first runs is now looked upon as virtually unchanged by the depression. Most of the palaces were constructed within the last 15 years and, at the most, all that is regarded for some of them is a bit of re-decorating.

The great bulk of theatres in the neighborhood category are regarded as the most seriously hit. Shifting populations during the depression have inflated many towns where formerly an antiquated makeshift theatre sufficed. It is in such towns and neighborhoods where building during the new theatre era will be most intense.

Neighborhood theatres of the 1934-35 order are being planned, according to the general picture, to have architectural appearances and conveniences of a miniature Radio City Music Hall. Air conditioning, soft lighting and comfortable seats are to replace the ornate gilt and gingerbread of yesteryear.

While no large theatres are included in building plans, the bulk of smaller house replacements will represent an individual average cost of $100,000, according to spokesmen.

F&M STEPPING OUT OF ROXY OPERATION

Fanchon & Marco may withdraw from the operation of the Roxy theatre, N. Y., by June 15. That's outside of the fact that the house is being angled for by other interests. Looks to be a matter of policy with the likelihood that whether the theatre goes under new financial control or otherwise, F. & M. figures to step out of that picture.

There has been little progress made by the downtown people towards closing any new deal for the spot, with S. L. Rothafel (Roxy) or any other group.

On June 15, Receiver Howard S. Cullman makes his report to Federal Judge Caffey, together with recommendations. If no new financial deal is made for the spot within the next two weeks, Cullman will be asked to continue as receiver indefinitely. Under such conditions the receivership would last for at least another six months and maybe a year, if necessary.

Stepping out of the Roxy, F&M would thus be left at liberty to concentrate its efforts on its own owned properties. Inside looks to be that F&M in leaving the Roxy will walk into some other available Broadway houses under its own flag. This may be in two or three directions, with the RKO Center and the Casino, on Seventh avenue, mentioned.

Skeleton Film Boards to Remain In 8 Major Distribution Centers

Chicago, May 14.

Despite formation of Code Authority boards throughout the country, it is finally set that film Boards of Trade will remain in existence. Feeling among distributors is that some meetings and organization are necessary to insure sufficient avenues for the exchanging of ideas and the working out of problems which do not come under the code jurisdiction.

However, the Film Boards will likely remain in skeletonized form with the number of boards cut to eight, situated in the eight most important distribution centers of the country.

C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays office was in town last week and considered the Film Board of Trade problem from the field. Original intention to do away with offices and hold meetings in some exchange has been abandoned. Instead the Film Board will continue with regular offices distinctly separated from any particular exchange. Also will appoint new secretaries where former secs have moved over to the Code Authority desk.

Pettijohn returned to New York to settle upon a new budget scale for the eight Film Boards to remain. Average budget in the past has been around $350 per month for the office and staff. Eight Film Boards likely to remain are Chicago, New York, Boston, Minneapolis, Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh.

Will Hays is slated to preside over a major meeting this week at which pros and cons of the already partially defunct Film Boards of Trade will be argued. From this a verdict will be reached which will decide whether some six secretaries, who were not absorbed by the NRA grievance and oning units, will be continued on the industry's private payroll.

There is a strong feeling in various major parts that the film board girls should be kept active in the business for several reasons.

The first of these is that no one right now can prophecy the life of the code or what turn it will take during the next six months; that the secretaries therefore should be regarded as reservists to be ready to return to action upon the first sign of such a need.

MARTY MULLIN LOOKS TO BE 6TH PAR ADVISOR

Early conference will be held to select the sixth and final member of the Paramount advisory theatre council, purpose of which is to form a contact between partners and the home office on field operations, policy, etc. Selection will be in the New England territory and advance dope is that sixth member will be Martin J. Mullin, charge of New England operations with Sam Pinanski, receiver there.

During the past week Barney Balaban, with John as an alternate, was chosen for the Chicago territory. Previously chosen advisory council members among Par partners were E. V. Richards, Karl Hoblitzelle, N. L. Nathanson and A. H. Blank.

CALIF. INDIES WOULD BAN DUAL PIX

Los Angeles, May 14.

Concerted drive has been launched by independent exhibs here to bring about elimination of double feature programs starting Aug. 15. Exhibs are being circularized with cards which they are asked to sign, and which call upon distributors to furnish film only for single bills effective on the date specified.

Hoped-for co-operation on the part of Fox-West Coast theatres received a jolt a few days ago when circuit execs refused to consent to joining any dual ban movement until assured that the response by indies would be 100%.

CLEARANCE ON K.C. PAR, LOEW HOUSES CUT DOWN

Kansas City, May 14.

A decision just handed down by the local film code Zoning Board greatly affects Loew's Midland and Paramount's Newman as to the protection they will have against the subsequent run houses for pictures. Under the decision the clearance for Midland is cut from 28 days to 14 and that of the Newman from 28 days to seven. The Mainstreet's clearance is left the same as the house has been enjoying, 28 days.

The board's action was the outcome of a protest made by a number of the subsequent run managers a couple of weeks ago. It is reported that the protesting managers do not really care anything about the length of clearance but are fighting the first run theatres on account of the 25c. price now in force at both the Midland and Newman.

It is pointed out that the above claim is true by the board's decision which did not change the clearance time of the Mainstreet, which is still charging 40c. for the lower floor seats at night, and that the Newman was penalized more than the Midland on account of that house selling a double bill for 25c.

Loew house has filed an appeal with the board.

Portland, Ore., May 14.

An order to return discharged operators to their jobs at the wage scale provided by the film code has been issued in a telegram to the management of the Pantages theatre here from Sol Rosenblatt in Washington.

Operators and stage hands, employed some weeks ago when the theatre was opened, asserted they were discharged and others hired at a wage scale below the provisions in the picture code. They took their grievance before the local compliance board and the regional labor board and were upheld, according to G. G. Speck, business representative of the motion picture operators. He declared the theatre refused to acknowledge the rulings and so the appeal was carried to Washington, D. C.

Following display of some stability, market sold off heavily shortly after noon (Monday) and definitely penetrated 90-91 level of Dow-Jones industrial averages. Short covering near close brought some semblance of rally but this failed to hold. However, it brought many leaders up from new 1934 low levels recorded today.

U. S. Steel made new low at 39¾, where it was off more than two points; and othe. leaders slipped badly. Allied Chemical was down 8½ points at one time, while canning company issues also drooped badly, some losing 4 points. Radio Preferred B sold down to 30¾, but managed to wind up at 32⅝. Loew's dipped to 28¾, where it was off nearly 8 points from year's high. It finished at 30¾. Many other amusement issues fell off with remainder of market but came back strongly in last half hour to cut down losses and in some cases actually show small gains.

With stock market prices tumbling most of the week, amusement group joined procession and slipped off badly to lowest levels since early March. Two big sell-off days, Monday and Thursday, saw stocks slipping to new lows for year and definitely penetrating 98-100 level for Dow-Jones Industrial averages, early in week and later on. Industrial averages closed on Saturday near bottom at 92.22, where it was off 5.98 points from previous Saturday. In fact, averages reached 91.23 during day, the low point for whole week.

Amusement group as a whole did not do as badly as many other groups. This was due in large extent to strong action of Radio pfd. B, often pointed out here as being well held. This preferred issue soared to a new high at 35⅝ on Friday, when remainder of market was acting sour. It closed Friday with a net gain of ⅝ on heavy volume, being among real leaders on big board. Radio B finished week at 33¾ for net gain of 3¾ points, and was only amu.smen company stock to show a net gain for the week.

The amusement group averages slipped off 0.968 from previous Saturday, and group as whole dropped to 18⅝ level during week. Warner Bros. common acted worse than other leaders of group, slumping 1¾ points net and closing near bottom of 5¼. Fox Class A followed general trend of other amusements, while Loew's fared much the same as other active higher priced issues which recently have been making new highs. It never got much above last week's close. At one time it sold at 28⅝ (Saturday), and closed at 29⅛, where it was off 3⅛ points net.

Radio B went contrary to trend of others in amusement group, though it felt selling wave Monday, when it dropped down to 28⅛. However, vigorous buying of this stock for three successive days starting Wednesday shot it up nearly a point over its previous 1934 high. Action of this issue attracted attention naturally, since it was bucking current most of time compared with remainder of market.

Summer's Anticipati

Most reasonable explanation of market's trend towards new low levels for year is that stocks simply are reflecting anticipated and usually experienced let-up in business during summer months. Certainly business in next two or three months is not expected to give any excuse for boosting stock prices, and many traders are of opinion that price levels of April were not a true reflection of their ultimate worth. Typical of this attitude is way in which steel company issues have been knocked down. Of course, hearings in Congress on stock market control bill have not promoted any bullish sentiment, but

Film Code Machinery Under Way; C. A. Urges Speed for All Plaints

The huge industry machinery, within which rests the fate of the Eagle in filmdom, has met preliminary tests handily. Over the week-end the Code Authority had ample time to learn that its upholding of the Milwaukee grievance board ruling for an independent against a major, in the Saxe vs. Ashley (WB) action, is bearing testimony from all sides.

First of all, NRA aides conceded Monday (14) the Code Authority is now being taken very seriously. Even in parts where it was looked upon skeptically as a Hays-dominated body the Milwaukee verdict, which took just 15 minutes to reach, has automatically put it in a di ent light.

Also, the general morale of the boards in the field has mounted accordingly. Lieutenants of the C.A. can no longer regard their work as unimportant, something which will be slashed and revised.

Thirdly, an inpouring checks for code dues over the weekend speaks for itself as to the changed viewpoint of exhibitors throughout the country.

Codists themselves, encouraged by the one decision, would now build filmdom's Eagle to the point where it would be a model for accuracy and speedy justice for all other industries.

Instead of letting cases die, orders went out Monday to whisk through appeals with all possible rapidity. Simultaneously secretaries are being enlightened so that boards may avoid technical errors which would incur tardiness. At Code Authority headquarters today (Tuesday) all secretaries on the eastern seaboard, some 10 of them, are meeting in class session for further instruction as to proper procedure in the handling of involved cases.

The job of enlightening the industry as a whole will be necessarily slower, and largely through adjustments of the various problems as they come before lower boards and the higher body.

The C.A. is discouraging all repetitious appeals, and headquarters expects that before summer is well underway many of the cases will be disposed of in the lower Eagle courts. This was stressed at the first session of the C.A. as a tribunal last Friday, and also by the fact that the next bi case, involving the Skouras-West Coast, is not set for hearing in New York until June. No appeals of any importance are on the C.A.'s trial docket at the moment.

Expressing themselves a satisfied that distribution and exhibition can now work out their own problems, codists, Monday, revealed that the method in which Hollywood will be handled has been agreed upon, and sanctioned by Divisional Administrator Rosenblatt. While details will not be publicly disclosed until later this week and after formal ratification by Washington, it is reported officially that men like George Creel and others will have little or no hand in Coast operations and that all will come directly under Major J. O. Donovan, who in turn will be immediately responsible to the main body in New York.

Indie Operators in Pitt. Sector Get Upped Wages

Pittsburgh, May 14.

Wages operators in indie houses throughout Allegheny county were raised over week-end by Morris Legendre, assistant deputy administrator for the .lm code. Setting a minimum of $1 an hour, pay was boosted from an average of 60c to 80c up to the new figure, in some cases as high as $1.25 hourly.

Legendre, sitting as an impartial arbitrator, set scales varying with the seating capacity, admission charge, run of pictures and financial condition of neighborhoods in which houses are located. Some of the operators will now receive $1, some $1.06¼, others $1.12½, $1.19 and $1.25 for 40-hour week. These rates were set for theatres with capacities of from 500 to 800.

Larger houses in Pittsburgh were not affected by hearings since they're already paying union scale, which is also code wage. Legendre arbitrated 78 complaints in all. Charles T. Douds, labor compliance officer, and W. J. Bahmer, film field adjuster, sat with him at hearings. Latter is former dramatic editor of Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

FWC WANTS 90 DAY FRISCO CLEARANCE

San Francisco, May 14.

A gory clearance war between chain and indie theatres, with much blood likely to be spilled, is in prospect for the next month or more, as result of the first two meetings of the zoning and clearance board of the Code Authority.

Since the Blue Eagle first started, indie theatre men of these parts have been talking about a concerted attempt to break down the Frisco clearance, which amounts to 56 days for first run houses. But Arch M. Bowles, northern California district chief of Fox-West Coast, beat the indies to the punch by filing a complaint with the board, asking that the present 56-day protection on the downtown Loew's Warfield be extended to 90 days. The Warfield at 65c for the cream of the pictures, is the town's highest priced house.

Bowles presented his complaint at the first meeting held last Monday (7) and it came up for action the following meeting (9). But the indies, including Bob McNeill and Gene Emmick of Golden State, the Nassers, the Levins and the Naifys, all represented by Attorney L. S. Hamm, presented a petition to postpone hearing the F-WC complaint until the indies could not only gather enough material to combat the clearance shaving attempt, but also to file cross-complaints in behalf of some 48 theatres, and directed against the Warfield, the RKO Golden Gate, and all other downtown first run houses and all distributors. The board voted to put over the hearing for one week and it comes up Wednesday (16) when the fireworks are expected to pop.

McNeill, stormy petrel of the indies, is said to favor a clearance of as low as 14 days, while Hamm and others of the more conservative wing, it is reported, favor a more moderate protection of about 30 days. A compromise request of 21 or 25 days may be presented at the next meeting when the board plunges into the case that will decide the entire Frisco z. and c. situation, and may take a month or more before it is ironed out.

ALL ANXIOUS TO TILT B.O. SCALES

Ratio of Grosses Is Up, but Problem Is to Get the Admissions Up in Proportion

LOWEST SINCE SOUND

U. S. film grosses for the first quarter of '34 are 5% higher than for the last quarter of '33, which was 20% higher than the third quarter of this year. Business for the summer, b. o. experts figure, should be 20% higher than the hot period in '33. Yet, major circles are not only worried over a restoration of admissions but are admittedly confounded as to what medium or influence can be brought to bear to convince theatre men that ticket costs must be increased before real advantages of any upturn can be realized.

Admission prices throughout the country are currently at their lowest since the inception of sound. Neighborhoods all over the country, except in the towns where no competition prevails, have slipped from 50c perch to an average 15-20-25 classification.

Some keys are not over 25c top as for example Kansas City all of which is two-bits downtown and 100% double features besides.

20% Upping Would Be O. K.

If theatre prices could be boosted 20%, less than half of what the decline represents, the industry would be on the road to all-round stability, solons hold.

In all of the thought given the national situation by theatre students no consideration is being turned to, or any hope expressed for a complete and simultaneous elevation in ticket prices.

Admissions will have to return to normalcy territorially. In other words, theatre overseers declare, exhibitors in a highly competitive area will have to be in accord and have some understanding that none will undersell the other once a new basis for ticket costs is reached.

Ten cent admissions currently are only a drop in the competition bucket which is blamed for keeping prices at an all-time bottom. Cut-rate night shows, bargain balconies and bargain matinees, not forgetting double features, are listed as importantly suppressing to upping admission scales.

Little or no relief in all these respects can be expected from the NRA, theatre strategists declare. The Eagle may enable the industry to make it a bit more difficult for cut-throat exhibs to get product, but that is about all they say.

Roxy, Reade, Casino, Skourases Involved In N. Y. Grievances

Blood was drawn at the first session of the N. Y. Grievance Board when Howard S. Cullman, federal receiver of the Roxy theatre, N. Y., reputedly wrote Washington that he didn't believe the members were intelligent enough to handle his cases, or a letter to that effect.

Skourases are coming in for a lot of NRA activity. In addition to the Port Chester case which comes up again today (15) after serving as the board's opener and postponer last week, the Skourases are involved in a couple of Long Island battles.

Walter Reade and Cullman are scheduled to meet again in today's preliminaries. The Roxy charges Reade with giving out passes. Cullman vs. the Casino, its across-the-street neighbor, is another including the Roxy. Cullman claims the Casino violated the advertising fair practice understanding by giving a recent feature two more newspaper stars than it rated.

NRA Boycott

Akron, O., May 14.

Local 127 of the Building Service Employees International Union is picketing Loew's Akron. Seven ushers who were discharged in January and ordered reinstated by the Regional Compliance board have not yet been taken back.

R. C. Rechel, secretary of the union, says he has lined up the backing of the local Central Trades and Labor Council in boycotting the theatre, and that he is also writing to central labor bodies throughout the country asking them to join the boycotting of Loew's theatres.

FILM OVER-BUY AGAIN LAID TO FOX-WC

Los Angeles, May 14.

After a week's rest, necessitated by reason of absence of complaints before it, film grievance board reconvenes tomorrow (Tuesday) to pass judgment on two cases filed during the past seven days. Fox West Coast Theatres, for the second time in three weeks, is made defendant in charges of film overbuy, new complaint having been filed by Lou Bard, on behalf of the Colorado in Pasadena.

This case, along with a complaint of Harry Popkin against three Main street grind houses, which he accuses of violating the code of fair practices by reducing admissions to 5c, will be heard by the board.

Zoning-clearance board continues to meet two or three times weekly, in drafting the groundwork on which it will set up zoning and clearances for the Southern California exchange territory. Indications are it will be three weeks before the board completes its preliminary work.

FRISCO WILL WORK OUT ITS OWN ZONING ACHES

San Francisco, May 14.

Zoning and clearance board of this area's Code Authority has decided that it will work out its own clearance problems without taking a leaf from the book of any other American city or town. Board voted thus at a meeting last week, when the touchy Frisco clearance problem came up for the first time and developed into a potential fracas between chain and indie operators.

Board of six was split on the question of studying other cities' clearance setups, with George Naify, indie theatre owner and member of the board, offering a motion to that effect. He was supported in the vote by H. V. Harvey, also an indie owner, and Floyd St. John, indie exchangeman. Morgan Walsh, acting chairman and indie theatre man; Arch Bowles, F-WC divisional chief, and Groves C. Parsons, Metro exchange manager, voted against the move to get all possible info from other cities, claiming their problems had nothing to do with the Frisco situation because of differences in price, population, topography and other elements. W. W. Chapin, magazine publisher and impartial member, cast the deciding vote, downing the motion.

Chicago, May 14.

It already appears that the New York appeal board on code questions will have to hold its meetings in Madison Square Garden. First case decided by the local grievance board is already set for an appeal to the higher authority in New York, and indications are that all other cases will be taken to New York by the losing side in each case.

Grievance board's first decision was handed down last week in the dismissal of a case against Paramount exchange by the Annetta theatre. Theatre claimed that the local Par exchange had refused to send product or okay a contract that had previously been okayed by the Par home office. Grievance board decided for Paramount on the stand that the theatre had no such contract to show as evidence.

Next case set also involves the Annetta theatre which is complaining against the Schoenstadt circuit on claims of overbuying. This case was originally postponed by the grievance board when the Schoenstadt attorney claimed that the board had no authority to decide in this matter since the case involved an action which occurred previous to Dec. 7, 1933, the day that the motion picture code was put into effect. Grievance board has consulted with headquarters, however, and has decided to go ahead with the case.

SMALL EXHIBS PROTEST C.A. EXPENSE

San Francisco, May 14.

A resolution protesting the high cost to small out-of-town theatres of the present administration expense in connection with the Code Authority has been passed by the Independent Theatre Owners of Northern California and forwarded to N. Y. headquarters.

According to L. S. Hamm, attorney for the group, the present allocation of expenses is grossly unfair since some of the small houses out in the sticks pay nearly as much as the more important city theatres.

Hamm cited one instance, an 800-seat theatre some 300 miles up the country, which pays $24 per year to support the code boards, as compared a vastly more important and profitable Frisco house which pays only $30 per annum.

STUDIOS AND EXTRAS SPLIT VERDICTS 50-50

Hollywood, May 14.

Compliance and Grievance Committee of the Code Extra Committee heard around 25 complaints and passed on all but a few at its meeting Wednesday (9). Studios got the nod in approximately half the cases, extras getting a decision the other half.

Chief among the type of complaints were from extras who had spoken lines as remarks from a crowd in a recent big set, and who figured they were entitled to $25 per day, the minimum for players speaking lines. Committee decided against them.

Mabel E. Kinney, chairman of the Extra Committee, is in Sacramento on political business until end of this week.

Heat Socks L. A., Buck in Person And 'Cargo' Sweet 11G, State's 'Men White' Headed for OK $15,500

Angeles, May 14.

Terrific heat dealt a terrible blow to the box office, which has had a down-beat throb for the past couple of months and had practically all houses set down to a short and unanticipated take for the current stanza. Only downtown exceptions that had anything near anticipated figures are the State with 'Men in White' knocking off better than $2,500 on its opening day, and RKO with 'White Cargo' and Frank Buck on a personal, starting off at $1,800 clip. In Hollywood, the Pantages got a new breath of life with 'Tomorrow's Children,' the Bryan Foy sterilization picture, heavily exploited.

Chinese for sixth week of 'Rothschild' skids with the picture set to go another three weeks, a record run for the house in past few years.

Paramount was way off with 'Thirty-Day Princess,' which was figured, on account of draw names to click fairly well.

United Artists, which has been dark for a week, reopens Tuesday (15) with 'Murder at the Vanities' for a two-week minimum stay.

Estimates for This Week

Chinese (Grauman) (2,028; 55-$1.65)—'The House of Rothschild' (20th Century) and stage show (6th week). Heat took wallop at the take windows, with windup around $12,000 for the stanza. Last week was just an even $16,000, due to heat sloughing off take at end of week.

Downtown (WB) (1,800; 25-35-40-55)—'A Very Honorable Guy' (FN) (2d week). Second stanza is tough going for this one, and it will not hit over $5,300. Last week, '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) was weaker at end than figured and brought home an even $9,700.

Hollywood (WB) (2,756; 25-35-40-55)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) (2d week). Will get about $8,000, oke. Last week, this pic came through with a nice profit at $11,300.

Los Angeles (Wm. Fox) (2,800; 15-25)—'Guilty' (Col) and 'The Loud Speaker' (Mono) split. Trade sloughed below bad preceding week to $3,000. Last week 'Love Birds' (U) and 'The Quitter' (Chesterfield) had difficult time reaching $3,200.

Orpheum (Bdwy) (2,270; 25-35-40)—'Heat Lightning' (WB) and 'The Crime of Helen Stanley' (Col) split, and vaudeville. With rather weak screen fare not so hotsy-totsy at $3,900.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-40)—'Tomorrow's Children' (Bryan Foy). It was the exploitation that caused a marked jump in trade, trebling regular take for opening day for house and will come through with around $5,000. Last week 'Black Cat' and 'Cheaters' (Liberty). Just too bad at $1,600.

Paramount (Partmar) (3,595; 30-40-55)—'Thirty-Day Princess' (Par) and stage show. Off to rather poor start and looks as though $12,000 will be the answer. Last week 'Double Door' (Par). Even Ted Lewis on return date could not help much, as the final returns of $14,600 indicate.

RKO(2,950; 25-35-40) — 'Wild Cargo' (Radio). Off to a great start and looks as though $11,000 will be the answer for the first week of Frank Buck in person and his picture. Last week 'Where Sinners Meet' (RKO). Didn't have a chance to get them in, with receipts just hitting $3,400.

State (Loew-Fox) (2,024; 30-40-55)—'Men in White' (MG). Swell exploitation campaign did miracles for opening, which had over $2,500 on first day and looks headed for fine $15,500. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Toward end of eight-day sojourn skidded off a lot and tuned off with $11,000.

GEN. SERVICE SHIFTS

Hollywood, May 14.

Three former Harold Lloyd Corp. technical men step into departmental spots at General Service Studios in a shift of personnel under S. E. Howkins, studio manager who recently came out from Eastern Service Studios.

William McDonald, former technical director for Lloyd, is construction superintendent; Oscar Wright, from the Lloyd auditing department, becomes studio superintendent, and Cecil Bardwell heads the electrical dept.

New men were named before J. M. Ridge hopped off for ERPI offices in New York several days ago. Keith Glennon is officiating executive in Ridge's absence for three or four weeks.

GABLE PIC WITH LUPE PERSONAL 24G, BALTO.

Baltimore, May 14.

Plenty prospective patrons passing up pix to pursue pastoral pastime, but that's an anticipated seasonal occurrence and for exhibs it merely betokens approaching summer and they're accepting fact with stoic shrugs.

Delightful mercury level over weekend plus swarm of Preakness visitors helped houses, since, especially, none in loop have turned on the coolers. Last three days last session biz brodied at every spot due to humidity; news spread quickly that theatres were hot, houses and plenty folk spurned 'em and hunted recreash in the hillsides.

Capital coin copper is 'Manhattan Melodrama,' concurrently drafting 'em in droves at 2-a-day, pop-priced Valencia and at vaudfilm Century. Latter has Lupe Velez personaling and a decided boon to biz. Customers were standing first three nights and Sat. mat. Helpful fact, also, is that pic plucked best press notices of any flick in town.

Stanley is having sprightliest session since 'Wonder Bar' with 'We're Not Dressing.'

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew-UA) (3,000; 25-35-40-55-66) — 'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and Lupe Velez topping vaude layout. Gable indubitably the biggest male b. o. buster, hereabouts, on market today. And the two other names embraced in flick are to be reckoned with also. Lupe means Whoopee in fans' estimation, and her act is eminently pleasing 'em. Looks to snag monumental $24,000, mighty as any figure during year. Last week 'Viva Villa' (MG) very good $17,500.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,500; 25-35-40-55-65) — 'Sisters Under Skin' (Col) and 'Broadway to Rio' unit on rostrum. Just fair fan fodder both flesh and shadow angles, and consequently house stunted to just mild $12,700. Last week '20th Century' (Col) and Georgie Price heading acts, nice $14,500.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,500; 25-30-35-40-50)—'Black Cat' (U). Chill comedy-or ribbed by critx, but Karloff-Lugosi combo is an inveigling invite to group which makes grist of grislioness—large enough coterie to swell take to jolly $5,000. Last week, in six day, 'Tell the World' (U), oke $3,700.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 25-30-35-40-50)—'Now I'll Tell' (Fox) opens this morning (14). Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) got a slashing $5,700 on first seven days, then next three experienced slump due to impressive new product unveilings at other palaces; was especially drained by 'Not Dressing' at Stanley. However, 10-day total, $7,000, highly satisfactory.

Stanley (WB) (3,450; 15-25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Crosby the customer cinch and house rides to nice $13,500. Last week 'Good Dame' (Par) wasn't at the b. o. and floundered, $8,200.

Valencia (Loew-UA) (1,000; 35-40-55) — 'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG). Two-a-day, new policy grooving splendidly; attracting carloads of class and carriage trade. On strength of week-end attendance and future reservations, hefty $4,300 boded. Last week 'Rothschild' (UA) cached about $4,000, over expectations, and fine.

ARLISS, 'SWEETHEARTS' BUFF'S SWEETEST B.O.

Buffalo, May 14.

Boxoffices showing steady returns for current period. 'Sweethearts' and 'Rothschild' look like especially strong features, the latter getting particularly good opening.

Last week was see-saw. 'Melodrama' at Buffalo showed to fine takings, but figures were up and down at other houses.

Estimates For This Week

Buffalo (Shea) (3,600; 30-40-55)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) and 'Continental Revue'. Both ends of this program under the wire equally and should top $17,500. Last week 'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and 'New Revue' up from expectations with picture running strong and well liked, $18,500.

Hipp (Shea) (2,400; 25-40)—'Rothschild' (UA). Plenty of advance chatter; looks like $10,000 to start. Last week 'Stand Up, Cheer' (Fox), slowed up toward end of period; almost $8,000.

Century (3,400; 25)—'Deluge' (Radio) and 'Believed in You' (Fox). Nice business and holding well; headed for about $6,000. Last week 'Journal of Crime' (WB) and 'You're Telling Me' (Par). Dual program came in for good returns, over $6,000.

Lafayette (Ind) (3,400; 25)—'9th Guest' (Col) and 'Beggars in Ermine' (Mono). Takings up from last week and may go $6,500. Last week 'Crosby Case' (U) and 'In the Money' (Inv), dropped back and barely reached $5,000.

'SADIE' $12,000 MAKES CINCY HAPPY

Cincinnati, May 14.

Combined biz of downtown pic palaces for first half indicates current take will register a nice climb over last week, when first wave of warm weather and two holdover first-runs caused b.o. wilting. 'Sadie McKee' is the receipts' sweetheart, with 'Stand Up and Cheer' and '20 Million Sweethearts' neck-and-necking for place money. 'Sadie' and 'Sweethearts' are both likely to be held for another week. Miss of the present lineup is 'Witching Hour,' which has the Lyric jittery.

'Beyond Bengal,' indie adventure jungle film, is in for second week at the legit Shubert, which reopened for it. Harry Schenck personaled for first nine days, prior to hopping off for N. Y. opening.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (RKO) (2,000; 35-44) — 'Sadie McKee' (MG). Joan Crawford is the leading lure for $12,000, very good and lotsa bucks for this house. Last week, 'Rothschild' (UA), extended first showing, $6,000, satisfactory, following a Wham $18,500 in first week at the Albee.

Albee (RKO) (3,300; 35-44)—'20th Century' (Col). John Barrymore fetching farce fans for $9,000, nice. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox), $10,500, good.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 35-44) — 'Finishing School' (Radio). Extra ads an aid for a comfy $7,000. Last week, 'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG), $9,000, fair.

Keith's (Libson) (1,500; 30-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) hotsy totsy $10,000 for nine days. Last week, 'A Modern Hero' (WB), yanked after fifth day because of a sad $2,000, smallest biz here in years.

Lyric (RKO) (1,394; 35-44) — 'Witching Hour' (Par). Spooky $2,000; theatre's most dismal take for a long spell. Last week, 'Viva Villa' (MG), transferred first run, $5,000, okay, after a romping $10,000 in first week at the Palace.

Grand (RKO) (1,025; 25-35)—'I'll Tell the World' (U) and vaude. Tracy pic fans joining ranks for $4,000, a winner. Last week, 'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox) and vode, $3,000.

Family (RKO) (1,000; 15-25) — 'Whirlpool' (Col) and 'Crime of Helen Stanley' (Col), split. Around average, $1,600. Last week' The Lineup' (Col) and 'Social Register' (Col), divided, $1,400.

Strand (Ind) (1,200; 15-20-25-30) —'Cross Streets' and vaude, $1,400, red. Last week, 'Twin Husbands' and vaude at 25c-35c scale, $1,500.

Loop Grosses in Pre-Fair Slump; 'Manhattan' Best $34,000, 'Villa' 11G; Palace Slides on 'School,' $13,500

Chicago, May

Business is weaker than usual in the loop. Chicago public is evidently too busy preparing for the Fair rush to patronize theatres.

Loop is readying for the Fair by various means. B. & K. is about set to open the Garrick as a film stand at 40c. Will probably play pictures out of the two-run houses, United Artists and McVicker's, while the Roosevelt will continue to use hold-overs from the Chicago and first-runs too weak for ace spots.

State-Lake has reinstated its former price of 35c. top and lowering in the admish switches from 'B' pictures back to 'C's. If the Fair business warrants, however, it may continue evening price at 40c. On the other hand, the B. & K. group is talking of raising the Oriental scale of admission to a 50c. top. House is in a tough spot on account of overhead and has difficulty, too, in playing to enough people at 40c. top to make a real gross. State-Lake is in a position to break at $10,000-$11,000, while the Oriental needs $16,000-$17,000 to get over the cost line.

'Manhattan Melodrama' is the big rumble in the loop this week and is upping the ace Chicago some $10,000 to a nifty figure of $34,000, the neatest gross mark the house has clipped in some time. Gloria Swanson on the rostrum is helping the good work along. House is getting an exceptional femme play since it's about the only real spot for matrons this week. 'Viva Villa' is apparently strictly a man's flicker which is holding the gross of the McVicker's down to $11,000 currently.

'Rothschild' will stick three and a half weeks at the United Artists, making excellent money. 'Sadie McKee' will replace, while 'Change of Heart' will follow at McVicker's.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,940; 35-55-75)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and Gloria Swanson on stage. Show is a winner from the bell. Clark Gable is the outstanding male star in Chicago at present, due to three sock pictures in a row, 'Dancing Lady,' 'It Happened One Night' and 'Men in White.' House is headed for $34,000, in the money by a safe margin. Not terrific business according to past records, but in these times the house is plenty thankful. It'll take lots of Fair mobs to bring back those 50's and 60's to the gross figures. Last week was a brutal disappointer in 'Twenty Million Sweethearts' (WB) and Roxy gang on the stage at a $25,800 gross.

McVickers (B&K) (3,284; 25-35-65)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Lack of romantic angles holding down the possible mark here and house will have to be satisfied with $11,000, just fair. B.&K. has decided to hold on to the house for the Fair's duration and has paid off until Nov. 1. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) finished a one-session stand to a flabby $9,800.

Oriental (B.&K.) (3,200; 25-35-40)—'Show Off' (MG) and vaude. Duncan Sisters and Will Mahoney headlining. Overhead is up somewhat this week. Maybe $12,000, not much better than it has been the past few weeks. Last week was pitiful with 'Lazy River' (MG) at $10,200.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 35-55-83)—'Finishing School' (Radio) and 'Sweet and Low' unit. Picture getting good notices but show was previously here under another title, though several new headliners have been added. House stays under at $13,500. Last week '20th Century' (Col) and Winchell at $7,000 marched along to best gross house has seen in some time at $17,200.

Roosevelt (B.&K.) (1,500; 25-35-45)—'Ninth Guest' (Col). Not for this house or shopping matrons. Hardly better than $5,000 expected. Last week 'Mystery of Mr. X' (MG) had a fair stay at $7,100.

State-Lake (Jones) (2,700; 25-35-40)—'I Believed in You' (Fox) and vaude. House has felt the general weakening of the loop situation recently. Still managing to make money, however, on low overhead. This week on the right side at $10,000. Last week 'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U) was a bit disappointing, after excellent opening, when the gross slipped to $10,200. House is going back to Sunday openings and a 35c top.

United Artists (B.&K.-UA) (1,700; 35-45-65)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (3rd week). Will stick 25 days, excellent run for the city at this time. In the coin right along, taking fine $16,100 for second week and sticking above $10,000 for the current session. 'Sadie McKee' (MG) will replace on May 19.

'M.M.' $13,000 'CENTURY' $12,000, LEAD NEWARK

Newark, May 14.

They're not saying it out loud, but it looks as though the season is about over. When the weather becomes of paramount importance and a great Sunday like this one spells comparative ruin, that tells the story. With three big films on tap, none will do what it would have in April and results are likely to be erratic.

Heading off should be 'Manhattan Melodrama' at Loew's with $13,000 or so. 'Twentieth Century' at Proctor's should cross $12,000, while the Branford with '20 Million Sweethearts', though not so strong on opening, is expected to build to over $11,000. With the Broad and Empire closed, competition is cut a little, but the Shubert stays open with Walter Hampden (legit).

Despite the week-end heat, grosses last week were uniformly better than estimated as they came right back with cooler weather.

Estimates for This Week

Branford (WB) (2,966; 15-65)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) with no vode, easily the most profitable show in town if it gets the $11,000 expected. Last week 'Glamour' (U) and 'Modern Hero' (WB) fair enough with $8,000.

Capitol (WB) (1,200; 15-25-35-50) —'Gambling Lady' (WB) and 'You're Telling Me' (Par). This house can't shake off its hoodoo this season and will hardly beat $4,000. Last week 'Riptide' (MG) and 'Melody in Spring' (Par) $3,800.

Little (Franklin) (299; 35-50)—'Kreutzer Emden' (Kinematrade) and 'Die Verkaufte Braut' (Kinematrade). Nothing hoped for here, maybe $400. Last week 'Ja Treu ist die Soldatenliebe' (Kinematrade) and 'Traum von Schoenbrun' (General) same figure.

Loew's State (2,780; 15-75)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and vode. Nice opening despite weather and should make or better $13,000. Last week 'Looking for Trouble' (UA) and 'Hollywood Music Box Revue' weak at $10,000.

Paramount-Newark (Adams-Par) (2,248; 15-99)—'Double Door' (Par) and vode. Too many melos in a row. Bad at $8,000. Last week 'Witching Hour' (Par) and 'Sweet and Lowdown' sad at $7,500.

Proctor's (RKO) (2,300; 25-35-40-55-60-75-85) — 'Twentieth Century' (Col) and vode. Getting a good break and should tilt $12,000. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) okay at $12,500.

Terminal (Skouras) (1,900; 15-25-40)—'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox) and 'Crime of Helen Stanley' (Col), with 'Voice in the Night' (Col) and 'Twin Husbands' (Fox) split. Nothing here to push over $4,000, if it gets there. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col) and 'Finishing School' (Radio) with 'Backstage Mystery' (Capitol) and 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) okay at $4,000.

Men Give 'Viva Villa' $7,800

Indianapolis Begins to Taper—'20 Million Sweethearts' Liked, $8,500

Indianapolis, May 14.

Business beginning to taper off slowly in downtown spots with the approach of summer. 'Viva Villa' is more than holding its own, however, at Loew's Palace with an indicated take of $7,800. This is very good and would have been even better if the women had turned out in anything like the numbers the men did. 'Twenty Million Sweethearts' is the only other box office bet in town this week. It's showing to returns that are okay at the Circle where it opened two days early to replace 'We're Not Dressing,' which slipped badly in its second week. The nine-day run should garner $8,500.

Estimates for This Week

Apollo (Fourth Ave.) (1,100; 20-25-40)—'Now I'll Tell' (Fox). Nobody much listening at $2,700, droopy. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) was not up to what it should have been with $4,000 rung up.

Circle (Katz-Feld) (2,600; 25-40) —'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN). Dick Powell is local fav and is in for nine days to a plenty good gross of $8,500. Replaced 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), two days early, which did only $2,000 in its five-day holdover after a strong first week.

Indiana (Katz-Feld) (1,100; 20-25-40)—'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'As Earth Turns' (WB) on twin bill. Not so hot at $2,800. Rumors out that house is to close soon. Last week, 'Massacre' (FN), and 'Crime Doctor' (Radio) on dual was brutal at $2,200.

Lyric (Olson) (2,000; 20-25-40)—'Merry Wives of Reno' (WB), and vaude. Off considerably this week. Won't reach more than $5,400, which means no gain this week. Last week, 'Honorable Guy' (FN), and 'Secrets of Harem' unit on stage did well at $6,700.

Palace (Loew's) (2,800; 25-40)—'Viva Villa' (MG). House going along swiftly in recent weeks. Beery pulling all the males in town to hit a figure of $7,800, very good. Last week, 'House of Rothschild' (20th Cent.) did excellent biz to wind up with $9,500.

London Patchy; 'Wonderbar' Strong 10G, 'Riptide' Sock 3-Week $90,000, Cantor Sweet 25G, 'Bottoms' Weak

London, May

With daylight saving in progress and the approach of real summer weather some West-End picture theatres are hitting bad patches. It takes a real good picture to drag them in.

Most of the houses are squawking, but there are a few exceptions. Lucky ones provided with good product for the end of the year are the Leicester Square, (U.A.) Empire (M-G), and Tivoli, (G-B).

Approximate Grosses

On basis of $5 to the pound.

Capitol—'Bottoms Up,' (Fox). In for one week to around $6,000. 'Coming Out Party,' (Fox) replaced for a week's stanza and 'Wild Boy,' (G-B) will follow. House is one of those needing super picture to attract customers.

Carlton—'Wonder Bar' (WB) (4th and final week). Will average around $10,000 per week, nice. 'Scarlet Empress' (Par) scheduled to replace.

Empire—'Riptide,' (M-G) (3d wk.) Three weeks' run is a rarity for this biggest seater in the West-End. Average gross for three weeks around $30,000, very good money. 'Viva Villa' now current, and expected to stay a fortnight.

Leicester Square—'Roman Scandals' (U.A.) (4th wk.) Still grabbing big coin. Started at $5,000 per day, near capacity, but is now doing around $3,500 a day, and more at week-ends. Scheduled for eight, but likely to stay 10 weeks. 'It's A Cop' (B. & D.) follows 'Scandals' for fortnight, followed by 'Moulin Rouge,' with 'Looking For Trouble' replacing.

Marble Arch—'Lady of The Boulevards' ('Nana') (U.A.) Just finished one week here to $5,500, after playing the Tivoli for a month at $15,000 weekly average. 'Catherine The Great' (London) returns here for another run try, having already played here a month following two months' at the Tivoli.

New Gallery—'Man of Aran' (G-B). One of those freak pictures which happened to tickle the fancy of the press, getting one of the best boosts in years. Business is big, with first week expected to touch around $15,000. Getting big Catholic trade. Expected to stay four weeks, then going to the Marble Arch for a second West-End pre-release.

Plaza—'Son of Kong' (Radio) and 'You're Telling Me' (Par.). One week to around $14,000, not warranting a holdover. House is having trouble getting enough of its own (Par) product, with Radio getting a break. 'Man of Two Worlds,' (Radio) now current, and expected to stay two weeks on account of popularity of Francis Lederer here.

Regal—'Return of Bulldog Drummond' (B.I.P.). Stayed one week with management claiming $15,000 take. Reason for not holding over is commitment to Warner's to release 'Fashions of 1934'. 'Drummond, transfers to the Rialto.

Rialto — 'On Secret Service' (B.I.P.). Here for one week after a fortnight at the Regal, and grossed $3,500, which is fair for this small house. Theatre, under B.I.P. banner, is being used for second run B.I.P. product. 'Return of Bulldog Drummond' now in, and likely to stay a fortnight.

Tivoli—'It Happened One Night' (Col.) Doing splendidly, with opening week's grosses expected to touch $20,000. Picture in for one month less one day, and being replaced by 'House of Rothschild,' expected to stick eight weeks, or longer. 'Rothschild' will be followed by 'Evergreen' (G-B), which is considered good for a month, and then 'Jew Suss' (G-B), of which at least an eight weeks' run is expected.

Curzon—'Morgenrot' (Ufa). Doing around $4,000 a week, which is unprofitable. This is the newest West-End luxury theatre, seating around 500, showing foreign language pictures, and having plenty of headache getting product. Picture more or less given the go-by because of German origin. Lingering for lack of a replacer. 'Sonnenstrahl,' Viennese musical, was originally scheduled to follow, but turned down as not good enough.

'RED CAT' NEXT 20TH

Hollywood, May 14.

20th Century is adapting 'The Red Cat' for films and picture will start in fall shortly after the play opens. A. H. Woods is producing the play in conjunction with 20th.

Bess Meredyth is writing the film script.

Tacoma Grosses

Tacoma, May 14.

Duals and reduced prices still the rule here, with boxoffice holding okay considering it's only 15 cents until 6 p. m. at the ace first runs downtown.

Estimates for This Week

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,400; 15-25)—'Fashions of 1934' (FN) and 'Death Takes a Holiday' (Par) put on same program for big dual. Will obtain around $3,000, a disappointment. Last week 'Bolero' (Par) and 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) dual got $3,400, nice.

Roxy (J-vH) (1,300; 15-25)—'George White Scandals' (Fox) and 'Once to Every Woman' (Col) seems headed for $3,300, good. Last week 'Tarzan and Mate' (MGM) and P'oor Rich' (U) dual, got plenty of people and $3,100.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (650; 15-25)—'Gambling Lady' (WB) and 'His Double Life' (Par) dual, first four days; 'Cradle Song' (Par) and 'Sing and Like It' (Radio) three days, for $1,600. Last week 'Forgotten Men' (Jewel) and 'Search for Beauty' (Par) dual, split with 'Good Dame' (Par) and 'Crime Doctor' (Radio) dual, fair, $1,700.

$20,000 TO 'VILLA' TOPS ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, May 14.

It's pretty much the same story this week as for the past several—where the programs are attractive, biz is good; where they are not, it isn't.

Even with one house less—the St. Louis, Fanchon and Marco operated, has gone dark again—there seems to be too many, and so some of them, perforce, continue to take it on the chin.

Lead once more is being taken by Loew's State, where Pancho Villa is holding forth. Profit there will be plenty this week but failure of women fans to derive any great amount of enjoyment from film may prevent a second week.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Skouras) (3,000; 25-35-55)—'Catherine the Great' (UA) and 'House of Mystery' (Monogram). Around $12,000, fair. Last week 'Glamour' (U), about same figure.

Fox (F & M) (5,000; 25-35-55)—'Where Sinners Meet' (Radio) and 'Now I'll Tell' (Fox). Poor at $10,000. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox), grabbed $12,000.

State (Loews) (3,000; 25-35-55)—'Viva Villa!' (MG). Big $20,000. Last week 'Rothschild' (UA) in second week obtained sporty $14,000.

Missouri (Skouras) (3,500; 25-40)—'Uncertain Lady' (U) and 'Manhattan Love Song' (Radio). Poor $6,000. Last week 'I'll Tell the World' (U) and 'Witching Hour' (Par), also around $6,000.

Shubert (Warners) (2,000; 25-40)—'Registered Nurse' (WB) and 'Harold Teen' (WB). Nice $11,000. Last week 'Twenty Million Sweethearts, (WB), but $9,000 in holdover session.

Par B'klyn Swan Song 25G; '20 Century' OK 15G

rooklyn, May 14.

This is the last week for the Paramount and it'll be the best here in a long time, maybe $25,000. Par is offering for its swan song, 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and stage show featuring Milton Berle and Isa Kremer.

Fox is now on a week to week basis. House has 'Whirlpool' and Madge Bellamy on stage.

The disappearance of the Paramount won't help the other downtown deluxers, judging by sudden influx of competition from the Academy of Music with flickers and the old Werba's Brooklyn offering 'Hitler's Reign of Terror.'

Coney Island had a couple of hundred thousand people on the boardwalk Sunday. They spent little, but saw plenty. Steeplechase is readying 'The Flying Turns,' two bits ride, and on Surf avenue there is also something new called 'The Rocket Ship,' educational illusion show, with cyclorama of the World's Fair.

Estimates for This Week

Paramount (Par) (4,000; 25-35-50-65)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and stage show, featuring Milton Berle and Isa Kremer. Lively enough bill and $25,000 chance great. Last week, 'Double Door' (Par) $8,600, brutal.

Fox (Conco) (4,000; 25-35-50) — 'Whirlpool' (Col) and stage show, with Madge Bellamy heading bill. Nothing to rave about, but oke, $12,500. Last week, 'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox) did $10,500.

Albee (RKO) (3,500; 25-35-50)—'20th Century' (Col) and vaude. Pic got good notices; mebbe $15,000, which is satisfactory. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Radio), $17,000, oke.

Loew's Metropolitan (Loew) (3,000; 25-35-50) — 'Laughing Boy' (MG) and vaude, featuring N.T.G. Paradise revue, with Ted Claire. Unexciting week at $13,000. Last week, 'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG), $18,000, oke.

Strand (WB) (2,000; 25-35-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN) (2nd week). All right $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

'SADIE' OKE 21G, FRISCO STRONG

San Francisco, May 14.

Continuing its parade of gross smashers the Warfield this week is again at the top of the town with Joan Crawford in 'Sadie McKee,' while the rest of Frisco is doing a bit better than on last few weeks. Better crop of shows around the burg is drawing.

Orpheum has a chance to get over the hump with the combination of Frankenstein and Dracula in 'Black Cat,' a cinch to draw horror fans. Ted Lewis' return week is another cinch for more dollars after the good week on his previous engagement.

Warners has heavily exploited '20 Million Sweethearts' at United Artists, instead of the usual Fox-West Coast house. Pic was previewed for all radio people in town, WB had that special neon radio car in town and an all-round smash bang campaign counted upon to draw 'em in.

Paramount's 'Trumpet Blows' and 'Now I'll Tell,' the Rothstein pic, is at a mild pace and the take will be under expectations.

John Barrymore doesn't appeal much to the Golden Gate customers but '20th Century' is doing okay at that house which, after another week, goes doubles with stage shows at 40c.

Fourth week of 'Rothschild' still okay at the Geary, while Fox is dualing 'I Hate Women' and 'Monte Carlo Nights' along with stage show. 'Viva Villa,' after smashing some of the Warfield's best records, is across the street at the St. Francis and holding up well.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Leo) (5,000; 25-35—'I Hate Women' and 'Monte Carlo Nights,' split, with vaude and free parking. Buck Jones and 50-piece Ranger band in person Sat. and Sun. oke for the kids and helping to $8,200. Last week saw $7,500 on 'Quitter' (Ches) and 'Cheater' (Lib), split, with vaude.

Geary (Lurie) (1,800; 50-75-$1-$1.65) — 'Rothschild' (UA) (4th week). Arliss still a draw and $5,000 is good enough after $6,500 on week previous.

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,844; 25-35-40)—'20th Century' (Col) with stage show. Barrymore not much draw here but pic well liked and quite good at $12,000. Last week, 'I'll Tell the World' (U) with Lee Tracy, $10,000.

Orpheum (F&M) (2,400; 25-35-55) —'Black Cat' (U) and stage show, with Ted Lewis returning after a good week last month. Lugosi and Karloff in the pic, plus Lewis, are a trio of good draws, and big $15,000 likely. Kate Smith was surprisingly weak last week, getting poor $10,000, although she built as the week went along. 'Half a Sinner' (U) was the pic.

Paramount (FWC) (2,400; 25-35-40) — 'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Now I'll Tell' (Fox), split. Spotty $11,000, Raft proving a light draw. 'Such Women' (Fox) and 'Smarty' (WB), split, drew about $12,000 last week.

St. Francis (FWC) (1,500; 25-35-40)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Extended from a smash week at the Warfield and holding its own at $8,500. Joe E. Brown a definite brody last week in 'Very Honorable Guy' (WB), split with 'Witching Hour' (Fox), getting but $4,500.

United Artists (1,200; 25-35-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Heavily exploited, and Powell, Ginger Rogers and Ted FioRito's band are local draws. Getting $10,000. 'Sorrel and Son' (UA) very poor last week at $4,000.

Warfield (FWC) (2,700; 35-45-65)—'Sadie McKee' (MG) with stage show. Crawford a sock, and $21,000 is big money. Last week, 'Viva Villa' set the top for this year with slightly more than $27,000.

B'way Houses Slip, but 'Glamour,' Roxy, and 'Crime Doctor,' Rialto, Standout at $20,000 and $14,000

Weather is better for theatregoing than a week ago, when a premature hot week-end came along, but the majority of the Broadway film box offices are in the doldrums suffering from weakness of attractions. These include a few holdovers that don't seem to have the required strength,

Music Hall was worrying a little after Thursday and Friday, on its experiment with grand oper , the tabloidized 'Madama Butterfly,' plus the Gaynor-Farrell picture, 'Change of Heart,' but a pickup makes $70,000 possible currently. Outside of the Hall, the little Rialto is doing the best with 'Crime Doctor.' This house expects an easy $14,000 and will hold over. 'Hollywood Party,' another that Metro isn't saving for the Capitol, has been booked by the Rialto to follow. Old Roxy appears next best with 'Glamour,' which may touch $20,000.

Paramount improves considerably over last week's brutal $14,200, just $200 over the low of a couple of years ago. But at a looked for $25,000 this week on 'Thirty-Day Princess,' and Phil Harris orchestra on stage, house is not too happy. Capitol's holdover of 'Manhattan Melodrama' looks like $30,000, fair. Third week of '20 Million Sweethearts' at Strand will be only around $12,000, while the same week for 'We're Not Dressing,' Rivoli, isn't expected to beat $11,000.

"He Was Her Man' marches into the Strand tomorrow night (Wednesday), while 'Murder at the Vanities' opens at the Rivoli Saturday morning (19).

After going nowhere under its combination picture and vaude policy, Casino yesterday (Mon.) went dual and is dropping vaude, this Friday (18).

Run of 'Rothschild' will continue indefinitely, although the business has started to drop a little.

Estimates For This Week

Astor (1,012; $1.10-$1.65-$2)—'Rothschild' (UA) (9th week). Dropping off a little but at $17,500 last week still okay. First five days of this week (ninth) $14,700.

Capitol (5,400; 35-75-85-$1.10)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) (2nd week) and stage show. After a fine first week of $50,500 looks like around $30,000, fair.

Casino (2,100; 25-35-55)—'In Love With Life' (Inv) and vaude. Combination policy, with features from sluff market on first run, not taking and house went to duals yesterday (14). Drops vaude Friday (18). This week under $5,000, bad. Last week, a little better, $7,000, on 'Whirlpool' (Col).

Mayfair (2,200; 35-55-65)—'Cheaters' (Hollywood). Came in Thursday (10) after only three days on a holdover week of 'Hitler' at badly disappointing draft of under $1,500. Present incumbent may create a new low, $2,500.

Palace (1,700; 35-50-66-75)—'20th Century' (Col) and vaude. Probably under $11,000, weak. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) hurdled $12,000.

Paramount (3,664; 35-55-75-99)—'30-Day Princess' (Par) and stage show. Indicated $25,000 much better than the slough $14,200 previous week on 'Double Door' (Par). But still light.

Radio City Music Hall (6,945; 40-60-85-99-$1.65)—'Change of Heart (Fox) and 'Madame Butterfly,' operatic tab, on stage. May see $70,000; if so, okay. Last week '20th Century' (Col) $75,000, nice with tough weather break.

Rialto (2,000; 40-55-75-85)—'Crime Doctor' (Radio). Will holdover on strength of suggested $14,000. Last week 'Success at Any Price' (Radio) failed to get anywhere, $7,700.

Rivoli (2,200; 40-55-75-85)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) (3rd week) Slipped a little last week to $19,400 and this week (third) probably not more than $11,000. 'Murder at Vanities' (Par) comes in Saturday morning (19). This is the last of the four pictures house can pick from Par program this year.

RKO Center (3,525; 25-40) — 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox), four days, and 'Wharf Angel' (Par), three days. No life over here, probably not more than $6,000. Last week 'This Man Is Mine' (Radio) and 'Trumpet Blews' (Par), also $6,000

Roxy (6,200; 25-35-55-65) — 'Glamour' (U) and stage show. Straining to hit $20,000, compares well with what other pictures are doing his week. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col) $18,500.

Strand (2,900; 35-55-75-85)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) (3rd week). Will wind up third week tomorrow (Wednesday) at around $12,000, all right. Second week $17,100. 'He Was Her Man' (WB) as successor.

State (2,300; 35-55-75)—'Tarzan (MG) and vaude. House may hit moderate $17,000 currently. Last week 'Gambling Lady' (WB) around $15,000.

N. O. IN GOOD SHAPE

$10,000 for 'Sweethearts' and 'Manhattan' $12,000

New Orleans, May 14.

One of those jimdandy weeks, with most of the houses getting fulsome share. Leading the parade is 'Manhattan Melodrama.' Since 'Men in White' was around it looks as if Gable not missed a dame.

Estimates for This Week

Saenger (3,568; 40) — '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Coming in for general acclaim, with $10,000 evident. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) not so cheerful at $8,000.

Loew's State (3,218; 40)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG). Gable, Powell and Loy surefire, with mighty fine $12,000. Last week, 'Viva Villa.' (MG) ditto.

Orpheum (2,400; 35)—'20th Century' (Col). Local display of the Barrymore histrionism is getting $6,000. Last week, 'Upper World' (WB), same.

Tudor (700; 30)—'You're Telling Me' (Par). Opened kinda slow and it looks only $1,800. Last week, 'Son of Kong' (Radio), grabbed $2,500.

St. Charles (2,200; 25)—'Glamour' (U). More Ferberish than feverish to the fans and $2,200 is apparent. Last week, 'Son You Gave Me' (Indie) bettered $2,000.

DUST STORMS KO'D MANY B.O.'S

Another form bad theatre weather in the nature of a dust storm that was blown more than 1,500 miles across the country from the Montana region came along last week to wreak unestimated but serious damage to box offices. Dust hurricane cut a wide swath across the middle west, extending as far south as Tennessee and over New Jersey and lower New York state. Its northern boundary cut into Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The dust cloud was so heavy in some portions that theatres, along with other businesses, suffered heavily, including such large keys as Minneapolis, Omaha, Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Kansas City and Cincinnati. In some spots the sky was so overcast with dust particles during the day that it was almost as dark as night, blinding pedestrians and motorists. In the country conditions were even worse and most people remained at home until the phenomenon had passed.

Midwest and northwest has been suffering from lack of rainfall and sweltering heat with crops in serious trouble. Theatre men do not like this since in agricultural regions business depends importantly on the farmer.

Gable Means More to 'Men in White' in B'ham Than Pulitzer Prize

irmingham, May 14.

Gable as the lead in 'Men in White' an asset, but the Pulitzer prize won't mean so much here.

Guy Lombardo and his band will be here Saturday night (19) for a concert at the Temple, now dark, and a dance at the Auditorium. With the top $1.65 this event is going to hurt grosses at the picture houses this week.

Estimates for This Week.

Alabama (Wilby) (2,800; 30-35-40)—'Men in White' (MG). Around $7,300, a very good prospect. Last week 'Scandals' (Fox) $6,200.

Ritz (Wilby) (1,600; 30)—'Cat and Fiddle' (MG). Another musical and they seem to be washed up, $2,700. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) $3,000.

Empire (BTAC) (1,100; 25)—'Twentieth Century' (Col). A pretty good week $3,200. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col), $3,400.

Strand (Wilby) (800; 25)—'Show Off' (MG). Light at $900. Last week 'Hold That Girl' (Fox) $1,100.

All's Well in Boston

Weather Helps 'Century' to Swell $16,000—'Manhattan' Sock $18,000

, May 14.

West and East may never meet, but prairie terrain has sent over its dust clouds, and this taste of their own drought curse comes like a blessing in disguise to local show biz. For the dust-fogs put an immediate chill in the atmosphere, and biz perked up amazingly for the new week-end. Its back had broken five days before, lamentably giving grosses tailspin sizes. Now everybody's cheerio again.

Only house to carry on big all week was Loew's State, where 'Viva Villa!' vastly topped expectations and gave house a total second only to 'Riptide's' initial week. All other spots suffered until the weather chilled.

Esti for This Week

Keith's (RKO) (4,000; 25-35-40)—'Twentieth Century' (Col). Swung in on a premiere late Friday (11) to capacity house, and had so many laughs noise drowned out lots of the fun. With lucky weather breaks should easily go to $16,000, swell. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) opened bing-bang, over the mountain tiptop, but tumble came suddenly, as elsewhere, finishing at $12,000, under.

Boston (RKO) (4,000; 25-35-40)—'Keep 'Em Rolling' (Radio) and 'Where Sinners Meet' (Radio). Out to make money apparently in expected $11,500. Last week 'No Greater Glory' (Col) and 'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col) had some velvet in the 10 grands.

Orpheum (Loew) ($3,000; 30-40-50)—'Sorrell & Son' (UA) and vaude. Film no help a-tall, and mighty lucky if it pans $9,500, n.s.g. Last week 'Tarzan' (MG) and vaude, cracked down to $9,000, poor for this spot.

State (Loew) (3,000; 30-40-50)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG). House is again the town's leader. Looks socko on a cinch $18,000. Last week spot held the Abou Adhem niche with 'Viva Villa!' several grands above calculations, culling $17,500, gorgeous.

Met (M&P) (4,330; 30-50-65)—'Thirty-Day Princess' (Par) and 'Up Pops the King,' stage show. Biz shot upward this weekend after a sudden dive earlier in week, and doubtful if program will get necessary word of mouth to hold the good pace; $21,000 if and when will be fortunate. Last week spot offered the season's tragedy; had 'Twenty Million Sweethearts' (FN) and stage show, and film had them shouting its virtues as a rare comedy with the right amount of music. Then, on Monday, folks fled the rialto for baseball or what-not, and three capacity days were followed by doldrums. Result, $24,500, nice, but far short of just deserts.

Paramount (M&P) (1,800; 35-45-55)—'Registered Nurse' (FN) and 'All Men Are Enemies' (Fox). Looks set for $7,500, nice. Last week 'Merry Wives of Reno' (WB) and 'Double Door' (Par) were off at $6,000.

'Manhattan Melodrama,' $12,500, Fair for K. C.

Kansas City, May 14.

Last week Sally Rand, back to the scenes of her childhood and school days, proved a most gracious star and spent most of her time off the stage in making personal appearances at club, social and institutional dinners and meetings as well as at stores which gave her sweet tie-up advertising. Just a question but what she gave herself away as the business was not as great as expected.

'You're Telling Me' and 'A Modern Hero' are what the Newman's patrons can see for twenty-five cents at any time, and business is fair. Paramount's other house, the little 800 seat Royal, which has surprised the 'wise ones' for the past several months, fell down last week with 'House of Rothschild,' played immediately after the Midland run, and opening without announcement, and folded for the season. The week was the hottest of the year with the mercury hitting around 95, and the house has no cooling system.

Estimates for This Week

Mainstreet (RKO) (3,200; 25-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (FN) and 'No Greater Glory' (Col). They go for Dick Powell here and when lined up with all the other familiar names, a nice week's business is expected. Looks like around $6,000. Last week 'Journal of a Crime' (FN) and the Sally Rand unit. Home town girl played up heavily and critics gave her nice reviews. Hit around $11,000.

Midland (Loew) (4,000; 25)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG). Around $12,500. Last week 'Viva Villa' (MG) got $16,500, big.

Newman (Par) (1,800; 25)—'You're Telling Me' (Par) and 'Modern Hero' (WB). Lots of show for a quarter and the customers are expecting it. Friday opening not so hot but Saturday and Sunday showed improvement and it is expected to hit near $4,500. Last week 'Melody in Spring' (Par) and 'The Women in His Life' (MG) and to be satisfied with $4,000.

Tower (Rewot) (2,400; 25)—'Whirlpool' (Col) and stage show. Opened nicely and will get around $3,500. Last week 'Success at Any Price' (Radio) and stage show about same sum.

Uptown (Fox) (2,040; 25-40)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) second week and going nicely. Probably around $3,000, after $5,000 on the first week.

Portland Can't Kick; Ellington Unit $8,000, Arliss Breaks Record

Portland, Ore., May 14.

More competition on main stem this week than for some time, with battle for biz centered around United Artists, Paramount and Music Box.

House records for all time for a similar period have toppled at Parker's United Artists with the showing of 'House of Rothschild' (UA). Pic is on its fourth week.

Duke Ellington and his orchestra with an all-Negro unit on the stage share the bill at the Music Box. It is expected he will do the drawing. Plenty money spent on Paramount's 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox). Looks like a winner for that house.

Seigfreid's players at the American go into their second week of 'Murder at the Crossroads.' Large attendance keeps up.

Jantzen's Beach is taking lots of week-end money from the theatres —this will keep up during the summer.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (2,000; 25-40)—'Sadie McKee' (MG). Expected to do much better than average, at $6,000. Last week 'Come on Marines' (Par) and 'Countess of Monte Cristo' (U) combo, was let down in pace but got by for a fair $4,200.

United Artists (Parker) (1,000; 25-55)—'Rothschild' (UA) (4th week). Continues to do large biz. So far has toppled all records for house. Nice $4,000. Last week, same pic did what was indicated, $4,300.

Paramount (F-WC) (3,000; 25-40)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and 'Double Door' (Par) dual, looks like a winner, started off at a good gait and might click for $5,000. Last week 'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Whirlpool' (Col) double, gathered $3,300 into b.o.

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,400; 25-35)—'Melody in Spring' (Par) and Duke Ellington on the stage. Will be the big noise of the burg, though Ellington will do the drawing. Maybe $8,000. Last week 'Wild Cargo' (Radio) had splendid exploitation and got steady play. Held for eight days to big $4,700.

Oriental (Hamrick) (2,500; 25)—'It Happened One Night' (Col). Had only one week showing downtown and should do a good $3,000. Last week 'Nana' (UA) proved not so hot as was indicated at $1,900.

Warners Sends Another In Ptsbg. to Duals

Pittsburgh, May 14.

Price-cutting from 50 to 40c having failed, WB is sending its 2,000-seat Warner, downtown, to double feature policy starting Thursday (17).

Duals looked upon as last resort here. Warners going strong for twin bills here. Recently sent Enright, 4,000-seater in East Liberty, to that policy with second-runs.

Flock of WB's nabe houses also double featuring regularly. Warner is one of circuit's two downtown houses. Other is Stanley, playing 'A' product at 50c top.

JO LOVETT AT METRO

Hollywood, May 14.

Josephine Lovett is at Metro to collaborate with Lawrence Eyre on 'Naughty Marietta.'

Miss Lovett just completed 'She Was a Lady' at Fox in collaboration with Ainsworth Morgan for Helen Twelvetrees.

4 LEFT IN DETROIT'S BATTLE OF THE B. O.'S

Detroit, May 14.

With two first run houses folding in the past week the other four are jockeying for position and the lead changes almost weekly and not for long. The Fox has Walter Winchell on stage with 'Sisters Under the Skin' on the screen and indifferent. The Michigan is playing 'Tarzan' with a stage show as the opposition while the United Artists is using 'Rothschild' for a second week. The Fisher gets 'Men in White' for a third week showing after two good weeks at the downtown United Artists.

Last week the UA was way out in front all alone with 'Rothschild' at $28,000, and the Michigan second but not pressing with 'We're Not Dressing' and Gloria Swanson in person for $24,000.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Inde) (5,100; 15-25-35-40-55)—'Sisters Under Skin' (Fox) and Walter Winchell on stage. An indifferent $22,000 indicated. Last week '20th Century' (Col) and stage bad $17,000.

Michigan (Par) (4,045; 15-25-35-40-55)—'Tarzan' (MG) and stage show. Around $20,000, okay. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and Swanson personal, $24,000.

United Artists (Par) (2,018; 15-25-35-40)—'Rothschild' (WB) (2nd week). Look for $13,000, over average. Last week set the town's pace with a very big $28,000.

Fisher (Par) (2,750; 15-25-35-40)—'Men in White' (MG). Maybe $3,000, mild. Last week '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) in second week, fair $4,000.

Omaha's Heat a B.O. Bugaboo, but Olsen, Shutta a Big $15,000

Omaha, May 14.

Heat has become the bugaboo already with dust a close second. Town is in the midst of the hottest May weather on record, merc passing 96 and continually hovering around 90. No rain in six weeks. All taking its toll at the box offices. Sudden heat spell called for some hurry-up work on the cooling plants, but all houses have them in operation except the Brandeis whose cooler is in the process of installation though fans are in action.

First stage show in two months comes in at the Orpheum with George Olsen and Ethel Shutta the attractions. Given a break on the weather, house should see $15,000, the very best.

Attractions at all other houses par or better, but competition and heat will exert unwanted pressure. 'We're Not Dressing' at the Paramount leads the straight film houses.

Last week heat responsible for a let down at all houses, especially the Brandeis, where its cooling system was sorely missed. Arliss at the Par held his ground, the most gratifying of the lot.

Estimates for This Week

Orpheum (Blank) (2,976; 25-35-55)—'You're Telling Me' (Par), and George Olsen and band and Ethel Shutta on the stage. First stage show in two months, a first date for this unit in this town, and a raised top along with extra shows should bring around $15,000, grand money and not too hard to get. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) dualled with 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox); average week and would have done better except for the heat; $6,000, fair enough.

Paramount (Blank) (2,765; 25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Long string of shorts makes bill not hard to sell; should top average, $6,500, good. Last week, 'Rothschild' (UA) the best Arliss week this town has seen in some time, but suffered slightly from heat, too; $6,250, pleasing.

World (Blank) (2,100; 25-35)—'As the Earth Turns' (WB) and 'Smoky' (Col). Continues the house on an average take, $4,000. Last week, 'Dark Hazzard' (FN), and 'She Made Her Bed' (Par) took it along with the rest, $3,800, okay considering.

Brandeis (Singer) (1,200; 20-25-35)—'20th Century' (Col), and 'Sisters Under the Skin.' Double feature looks to a good week; $4,700, okay. Last week, '20 Million Sweethearts' (FN) and 'Very Honorable Guy' (FN) ran eight days but would have done better under favorable outdoor conditions; however, $5,300 good.

HARRY OLIVER AT LESSER'S

Hollywood, May 14.

Harry Oliver, art director on Harold Lloyd's just completed 'Cat's Paw,' has been signed for a similar spot by Sol Lesser as part of the production staff Lesser is gathering for 'Peck's Bad Boy.'

'Boy' gets under way as soon as Jackie Cooper finishes in 'Treasure Island 'at Metro when juve star comes to Lesser on loanout arrangement. 'Island' still has several weeks to go.

Stage Shows Dominate Seattle

Pearce Gang Plus 'Melody' $12,500—Unit on Top of Regular Bill, $9,000

Daniels-Lyon Aid Raft to Strong 20G; Wash. Otherwise So-So

Washington, May 14.

oys are again learning that in the long run it's word-of-mouth that really matters. Palace gave 'Rothschild' first big premiere of season and flooded papers with publicity, which, plus co-operation of critics, resulted in one of biggest sendoffs ever accorded a pic here. First week was big but not up to record. Second week, now in progress, is building consistenly and bids to top all records for holdovers.

Nice weather is hurting all around, with only the best being able to stand up under it. Example is 'Sisters Under the Skin,' which will probably be yanked by Keith's, but might have held out except for lure of highways and byways.

Estimates for This Week

Earle (WB) (2,424; 25-35-40-60)—'Melody in Spring' (Par) and vaude. No name vaude making house depend entirely on pic. Lanny Ross getting air fans, but won't better $13,500. Last week 'Upperworld' (WB) took light $12,500.

Fox (Loew) (3,434; 25-35-60)—'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and vaude. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon on stage are big draw. Pic pulling Raft fans and that's all. Looks like o.k. $20,000. Last week 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and Wons-Cook-George Hall radio unit o. k. with $19,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,830; 25-35-60)—'Sisters Under Skin' (Col). Combo of title and Landi, who can't stand alone here, is pretty terrible. May be yanked before turning in eggplike $4,000. Last week 'Twentieth Century' (Col) clicked with critics and sophisticates, but the muggs were split as to whether it was swell or sorta silly. Week got o. k. $9,500, however.

Rialto (U) (1,853; 25-35-40-50)—'Black Cat' (U). Horror stuff is this spot's one sure-fire type. Karloff-Lugosi combo should get nice $6,000. Last week 'Uncertain Lady' (U) got by with satisfactory $3,000, considering opposition.

Met (WB) (1,583; 25-40)—'20 Million Sweethearts' (WB). Back on main stem after big week at Earle. Looks o.k. $3,800. Last week 'Flying Down to Rio' (RKO) revival took in fair $3,000.

Columbia (Loew) (1,263; 25-40)—'Tarzan' (MG). Repeat after two good weeks at Palace headed for satisfactory $3,800. Last week 'Coming Out Party' (Fox) took light $2,800.

Triple Features

nouncements of major companies would indicate they were preparing to battle multi-feature policies by producing more features and fewer shorts. And from the standpoint of admissions, it also appears on the surface they are carrying out a policy of fighting fire with fire.

Strategists of the business, however, are disregarding the obvious. From a deep undercurrent of sentiment gathered from secret meetings, etc., they look for just the opposite to happen before the year is out.

With all of the ballyhoo directed against double features, through propagandic channels of the MPTOA and the Hays office, the fact remains, and is privately conceded, that not only double but triple featuring is on the leap.

Even since grievance boards have started to function, three-for-oners have multiplied until now 45 such policies have been counted in Los Angeles; and whole competitive neighborhoods in Greater New York are getting the habit of changing three features three times a week at the rate of 468 pictures per theatre per year.

The triples are admitted catching up with dualism so rapidly that multi-features is the better term to describe theatres using more than one feature at a show.

One entire neighborhood in the Bronx is now not only tripling in over six theatres, but is also playing the premium or give-away angle heavily at a dime admish. The only way in which this can be stopped is by majority vote of the theatres in that territory, and as yet no request for the ballot has been filed with the N. Y. grievance board.

Seattle, May 14.

ival stage revues the two Evergreen houses and stage units coming up at Hamrick's Music Hall about every third week, makes it look like a flesh comeback in this burg. Al Pearce and gang are at Fifth Avenue theatre for third time within a year, and expected to go places. Jay C. Flippen, 'World's Fair Follies,' at Paramount, making the stage show there of double length, as the regular Bert Levy six-act bill, in front of Buffano band, is also on.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (1,000; 25)—'Smarty' (FN) and 'The Crosby Case' (U) dual. Looks like $2,800. Last week 'The Crime Doctor' (RKO) and 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U) got good $3,100.

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,800; 15-25)—'Caroline' (Fox) and 'I've Got Your Number' (WB) dual, with Janet Gaynor getting the adv. breaks. Around $3,5000. Last week 'Queen Christina' (MGM) and 'Dark Hazard' (FN), dual, got $4,100.

Fifth Avenue (Evergreen) (2,400; 25-40)—'Melody in Spring' (Par), and Al Pearce and gang. Reason for expected $12,500 is the radio stage attraction. Last week 'We're Not Dressing' (Par), held steady for okay $7,000.

Liberty (J-vH) (1,900; 15-25)—'9th Guest' (Col) and 'Speed Wings' (Col) dual. Back to reg menu. Around $3,800. Last week 'It Happened One Night' (Col), eight days for windup of 11 weeks, good $3,900.

Music Box (Hamrick) (950; 25-55)—'Looking for Trouble' (UA). Around $4,500 for 10-day run. Last week 'Catherine the Great' (UA) after 7 days, dipped badly for slow $1,800, in five days, when it was pulled off.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,300; 25-40)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (2nd week). Headed for $7,000. Last week, same film, big at $11,700, holding oke.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,106; 25-35)—'Wharf Angel' (Par). Double stage show, J. C. Flippen 'World's Fair Follies' in addition to regular six-act presentation and Buffano band, long show and plenty of value, expected to get $9,000. Last week 'Laughing Boy' (MGM) and stage show dropped some, $5,700, slow.

Heat-Dust Getting Into Eyes of Lincoln's B.O.'s

Lincoln, May 14.

Heat waves and dust storms make the weather around here unfit for anything, and those houses like the Orph, Lincoln and Colonial with inadequate cooling systems have begun to feel the denting. It's a half month now until the college closes up for the summer exodus, which will be another slump at the b. o.

George Monroe's State opened last Monday with a groan and when the doors shut that night, the house went dark, closing a highly interesting chapter on the local street where a young lad was able to come in with less than 500 seats and 8-house chain opposition three years ago and worry the latter plenty as long as he could get pictures. Playing celluloid garbage all through 1934, it's just the 'old dark house' now, although there are several deals whispered.

Estimates For This Week

Capitol (Livingston) (850); 10-15)—'Laughing Boy' (MG) and 'Half a Sinner' (U), dualled. Latter pic was given an audience approval preview a week ago and was a pleaser. Livingston should do $1,200 on the combination, okay. Last week, 'Sweetheart Sigma Chi' (Mono) and 'Uncertain Lady' (U) slimmers after a fair opening, $850.

Colonial (LTC) (750; 10-15)—'Man of Two Worlds' (RKO). Average $800. Last week 'All Quiet' (U) and 'Come on Marines' (Par), split, did $850.

Lincoln (LTC) (1,600; 10-15-25)—'Palooka' (MG), Durante farce expected to get $2,500 in this spot, nice. Last week 'Mr. X' (MG), very well, $2,600.

Orpheum (LTC) (1,200; 10-15-25-40)—'Ill Tell the World' (U) and 'Witching Hour' (U) with Blue Ridge Mountaineers unit on boards, split. Looks oke for $2,300. Last week 'Modern Hero' (WB) and 'Finishing School' (RKO) with Marie Purl's unit, split, cracked an even $2,000, all right. First half very weak.

Stuart (LTC) (1,900; 10-25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Won't exactly be tall timber, but a bill paying $2,700 expected. Last week 'Rotschild' (WB) sent the gross to a two-month high of $3,400.

George Jessel, 'You're Telling Me' $21,000 at Earle, Philadelphia

Philadelphia, May 14.

If last week's batch of pictures in the downtown sector couldn't get much biz with rave notices and advance reps to hold them, this week's array can hardly be expected to accomplish much. Musicals and light farces are the predominant fare, the companies evidently figuring the silly or hammock season is here although the end of last week was plenty cold.

'Rothschild' still looks as good as anything in town and should get around $11,000 in its third week at the Aldine. Management had intimated from the start that this Arliss picture would be held at the Aldine for six weeks even if it had to be forced.

Two disappointments were 'Viva Villa' at the Boyd and 'Tarzan and His Mate' at the Stanley. Both got fine notices.

Estimates for is Week

Aldine (1,300; 40-50-65)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). In third week ought to get a substantial $11,000. Still big. Last week, $16,000.

Arcadia (600; 25-40-50)—'Such Women are Dangerous' (Fox). House now running some Fox second runs. This one figures for around $1,900. Last week 'The Show Off' (MG), $1,700. Disappointing.

Boyd (2,400; 40-50-65)—'Sadie McKee' (MG). Crawford film should do $15,000. Last week 'Viva Villa' (MG) went only $14,000 in eight days.

Earle (2,000; 40-55-65)—'You're Telling Me' (Par) and vaude. George Jessel Revue headlines. Looks pretty good for this house, and $21,000 should be reached. Last week 'Upper World' (WB) and vaude. No names on bill. Only $13,500. Weakest in some time.

Fox (3,000; 30-40-60)—'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and stage show. Quite a ballyhoo and good notices but Friday and Saturday trade not big. Should get $17,000 but chances for holding over not very bright. Last week 'Now I'll Tell' (Fox) and stage show. Pretty fair $18,000.

Karlton (1,000; 30-40-50)—'Laughing Boy' (MG). Poor start, $2,700 indicated. Last week, 'Let's Be Ritzy' (U). Ordinary $3,000.

Stanley (3,700; 40-55-65)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Another musical. Should do a fairly good $12,000 or $13,000. Last week 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG). Very much under expectations, $11,500.

Stanton (1,700; 30-40-55)—'Merry Wives of Reno' (WB). Opened last night with midnight show. Last week 'I'll Tell the World' (U). A so-so $5,700.

Ho-Hum Week in Prov.; 'Manhattan' Fair $9,000, 'Dressing' So-So $5,500

Providence, May 14.

Calibre of screen and stage entertainment is mediocre, and just now there seems to be no indication that the box office totals are going to be ducky this week. Weather is sort of freakish, and exhibitors blame most of their troubles to the rise and fall in temperatures. Grosses have been exceedingly poor for the last few weeks and no one on the main stem is looking for any immediate relief.

This stanza is pretty well a washout, judging from the start. There's no real standout: Stage shows are keeping Loew's State and Fay's a trifle ahead of the other stands, but the lead is nothing to brag about.

Estimates for This Week

Fay's (2,000; 15-25-40) 'Such Women Are Dangerous' (Fox) and 'Casino Follies' tab. Bill is fairly good, considering opposish, but the takings not so hot. Started off well but slide anticipated if hot weather sets in before the week is over. Present outlook indicates house will break $6,000; so-so. Last week 'Registered Nurse' (WB) and 'Vanities' on stage started off with plenty of pep but took a nosedive later in the week, gross sagging to $8,900.

Loew's State (3,200; 15-25-40)—'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) and vaudeville. Stage show not so forte but doing its bit. Plenty of biz downstairs but many empty seats in the balcony. House will be lucky to get $9,000, fair. Last week 'Viva Villa' (MG) was a surprise when it failed to come anywhere near anticipated gross, sliding to a fair $10,500, fault largely the hot spell.

ajestic (2,200; 15-25-40)—'Journal of a Crime' (WB) and 'Half A Sinner'. Bill getting comments but not takers; if gross reaches $5,000 house will be happy. Last week 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and 'Crosby Case' (U) dived to $3,300 when the thermometer soared.

Paramount (2,200; 15-25-40)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'City Limits' (Mono). Looks like a fairly good start but the finish is what is worrying the house just now; maybe $5,500 if the breaks hold up; not bad, but not so good. Last week 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and 'Wharf Angel' (Par) got plenty of comment, but nobody came through with the coin; flopped to $3,000.

RKO Albee (2,000; 15-25-40)—'Finishing School' (Radio) and 'Whirlpool' (Col). Ill appears to be well liked from all sides, and ballyhoo oke too. If this one doesn't hit around $5,500 it won't be the fault of the house. Last week '20th Century' (Col.) and 'Sisters Under the Skin' (Col.) got plenty of raves from the cricks, but was just a wee bit too highbrow; garhered $4,200, mostly because of nice start.

RKO Victory (1,600; 10-15-25)—'The Man Trailer' (Col.) and 'The Crime of Helen Stanley' (Col.). Around $1,200 for the split week. Last week 'Strawberry Roan' and 'Two Alone' oke at $1,100 on split week, too.

LOEW, MONT'L GOES DUALS, MAYBE $7,500

Montreal, May 14.

Legit makes its last throw of season at His Majesty's currently with 'There's Always Juliet' which won't affect the main stems much. Loew's off the vaude standard and running two pix at 50c top, down 15c, puts all four first-run houses at level prices and added feature basis. Anniversary week at Palace means big ballyhoo and tie-ups and may lift house to the top but there is strong opposish by Capitol.

Palace has 'Bottoms Up' and 'You're Telling Me' and looks like $8,500. Capitol runs 'We're Not Dressing' and 'Double Door' with some uncertainty how Bing Crosby will take in this town; $8,000 seems fair estimate. Loew's starts first week of double features, 'Trumpet Blows' and 'Love Birds.' Princess has third week holdover of 'Rothschild' and 'Chance at Heaven' and has fair outlook for $7,500.

Nabies are holding up well, on poor outdoor sports weather.

Estimates for This Week

His Majesty's (CT) (1,600; 50-$1.50) 'There's Always Juliet' (legit). Dependent largely on weather, may gross $4,500. Last week dark.

Palace (FP) (2,700; 50) 'Bottoms Up' (Fox) and 'You're Telling Me' (Par). Big ballyhoo on anniversary week may gross $8,500. Last week 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox) topped town at $10,500.

Capitol (FP) (2,700; 50) 'We're Not Dressing' (Par) and 'Double Door' (Par). May or may not be hit, guess is for $8,000. Last week holdover of 'Riptide' (MG) and 'Hold That Girl' (Fox), $8,000.

Loew's (FP) (3,200; 50) 'Trumpet Blows' (Par) and 'Love Birds' (U). Vaude out means sure drop and gross will likely be around $7,500. Last week 'Madame Spy' (U) and Blackstone grossed $10,000.

Princess (CT) (1,900; 50) 'Rothschild' (UA) (3d week) and 'Chance at Heaven' (Radio). Looks $7,500 since house is holding up well after second week at $8,500.

Cinema de Paris (France-Film) (600; 50) 'Les Thenardier'. Third week, $1,000 after $1,200 last week.

O'DELL, HALPERIN SHIFT

C. N. O'Dell, resigning from Fox, returned to Paramount yesterday (Monday) in charge of publicity at the Astoria, L. I., studio. Succeeded at Fox by Jeanette Sauer.

O'Dell came into the business with Par three years from 15 years of Washington newspaper and political experience, last as managing editor of Washington Herald.

Morris Halperin is leaving Fox to join United Artists home office publicity. He succeeds Bernard Simon with UA-20th Century.

PAR BUYS YARN DUO

Hollywood, May 14.

Paramount closed this week for two new stories by local authors.

Studio bought 'Goddess' from Paul Hervey Fox, and 'Outraged,' by Beulah Marie Dix and Bertram Millhauser.

Police Trailer

Beacon theatre, New York, has been carrying special trailer asking citizens living in the neighborhood to report to police if they can contribute any evidence to help solve the murder of a detective slain at Broadway and 73rd street.

Trailer is signed by the police of the 68th street station, who seek witnesses to the crime.

PTSBG'S FARE NSH; ARLISS, CROSBY BEST

Pittsburgh, May 14.

Set-up this week none too promising and no accounting for it either. Siege of cool weather was expected to boost takings all over downtown, but looked for lift failed to materialize.

Best of week's prospects is 'We're Not Dressing' at Penn, where Crosby should turn on enough b.o. draft to attract $11,000, anyway. That isn't outstanding by any means, but it's okay considering town's desultory showing of late. Stanley will have tough sledding with 'Gambling Lady.' Stanwyck never much of a drew here and with a weak sister to contend with, there's trouble ahead even to attract $7,000.

Everything considered, opening of 'Rothschild' at Davis promising. House didn't know it was getting picture until last minute, couldn't advertise until morning of opening because Penn was playing it until then, so getaway under such circumstances wasn't bad. Looks like $5,500 and since that betters an even break, there's a chance that it may hold over.

'Double Door' got a good opening at Warner, but fell in half second day and unlikely to get more than $4,200, while 'Sorrel and Son' at Fulton isn't expected to make much of a dent. Maybe $4,800, mild. Pitt intends to stick it out as long as house covers the nut, which it seems to have been doing consistently of late, but first real hot spell in spot sans any sort of cooling spell will probably turn the trick. This week, with 'King's Scandals' on stage and 'Three on a Honeymoon,' house should stick in the running at $6,600.

Estimates for This Week

Davis (WB) (1,700; 25-35-50)—'Rothschild' (UA). Booked in here at last minute right on heels of film's profitable week at Penn. No advance plugging possible and everything considered, getaway quite promising. Should build, too, and $5,500 looks like a cinch. If it hits beyond that, will probably hold over.

Fulton (Shea-Hyde) (1,750; 15-25-40)—'Sorrell and Son' (UA). Nice notices for this one but doesn't seem to have what it takes. Lack of femme interest may be the answer. Anyway, looks like mild $4,800, if that. Last week, 'Mr. X' (MG) about the same.

Penn (Loew-UA) (3,300; 25-35-50)—'We're Not Dressing' (Par). Town's best bet for week and while $11,000 isn't anything to write home about, it's all right with business conditions in the burg as bad as they ever were. Last week, 'Rothschild' (UA) wound up strong at $18,000, building at the finish.

Pitt (Shafer) (1,600; 25-40)—'Three on a Honeymoon' (Fox), and 'King's Scandals' unit. Pretty good bargain all way round and should perk up things here a bit after couple of fairly dull weeks. Looks like $6,600, which isn't so bad. Last week, 'Stolen Sweets' (indie), and 'Spic and Span Revuette' about $6,250.

Regent (WB) (900; 25-35)—'Modern Hero' (FN), and '9th Guest' (Col). Weak dual booking and unlikely to work up even a slight sweat among members of house staff. About $1,350, if that. Last week, 'Once to Every Woman' (Col), and 'Goodbye, Love' (Radio), around $1,450.

Stanley (WB) (3,600; 25-35-50)—'Gambling Lady' (WB). Uneventful session in prospect. Stanwyck has consistently meant nothing locally at b. o. and with weak sister to contend with here, situation is pretty depressive. Maybe $7,000, but it's extremely doubtful. Last week, '20 Million Sweethearts' (WB) in seven days just so-so at $10,500.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 25-40)—'Double Door' (Par). Last of singles for this house, site switching to a double feature policy Thursday (17). Grim meller unlikely to prove very exciting and will be lucky to gather $4,200. Last week, 'I'll Tell World' (U) fell away to $4,000 after excellent start.

Despite Storm and Crop Shortage, Roxy and 'Men in White' Socko Mpls. $21,000; 'Rothschild' May Do 3 Wks.

Minneapolis, May

Despite pessimism engendered by the growing certainty of a general crop failure throughout this territory, dirt and wind storms, prolonged drouth, unseasonable cold, increasing unemployment and slipping business generally, Roxy and His Gang, in conjunction with 'Men in White,' bids fair to give the 4,200-seat Minnesota theatre currently the largest gross enjoyed by any local showhouse since 1929. Total is almost certain to reach $21,000 and maybe more. That's a tremendous figure for this town, where $7,000 to $10,000 has been top takings for many outstanding pictures during the past several years.

While the Minnesota is bagging a boom-time gross of $20,000 or better, the Century, just reopened, will do around $14,000 simultaneously with House of Rothschild,' making something like $34,000 or over for two loop houses, so it becomes apparent again that superlative entertainment always can overcome most adverse handicaps created by outside conditions.

Roxy's showing is aided by the fact that Rothafel is a former resident of Stillwater, a nearby town, and once held forth as an impresario here prior to attaining New York fame.

At any other time, perhaps, 'Twentieth Century,' at the Orpheum, would be a socko attraction. But right now it's up against too stiff opposition and will do well to pass the $5,500 mark, which, however, isn't half bad, all things considered. Critics have been saying all sorts of nice things about this picture.

Strange booking is 'Tarzan and His Mate' into the Lyric a few weeks after it did a terrible flop at the Minnesota, giving the 4,200-seater a new low. Moreover, for this one engagement the Lyric's usual 25c. top has been boosted to 40c., same scale as the Minnesota's. Publix feels that public stayed away from the Minnesota because it confused this 'Tarzan' film with others. Judging by opening day results, the jungle film at advanced prices will give the 1,300-seat Lyric a normal seven days of around $3,000, or nearly as much as it got at the 4,200-seat Minnesota.

State is dying a painful death with 'The Witching Hour,' which shows no drawing power whatsoever and is pushed further into the discard by its tough opposition.

Terrible wind and dirt storms played hob with business last week.

Estimates For This Week

Minnesota (Publix) (4,200; 25-35-55)—'Men in White' (MG) and Roxy's Gang on stage. Both picture and stage show are magnets and, in combination, mean a real socko week. First stage show at this house since reopening, theatre formerly used stage shows in conjunction with films regularly. Splendidly exploited by Manager Harold Kaplan and that helps. Customers very well pleased and favorable word-of-mouth comment. Around $21,000 indicated, immense. Last week, 'Gambling Lady' (WB), $4,000. Very good.

Century (Publix) (1,600; 25-35-40)—'House of Rothschild' (UA). Wowing 'em, as expected, and looks set for a run of at least three weeks. Reopened house in mid-week after a year's darkness and hold-outs are the rule. Critics and customers raving. Should reach very big $14,000.

Orpheum (Singer) (2,890; 25-35-40)—'Twentieth Century' (Col) Highly praised picture, but, perhaps, not the box-office card anticipated, although stiff opposition is a great handicap, taking attention and trade away. May finish to fairly good $5,500. Last week, '20 Million Sweethearts' (FN), $7,500 for eight days, good.

State (Publix) (2,200; 25-35-40)—'Witching Hour' (Par). No cast names or title to mean a thing here and public is passing it up almost en masse. Will be lucky to reach $2,500. Last week, 'You're Telling Me' (Par) and George Olsen's band on stage, $9,000, disappointing and much less than fine stage show merited. Hurt by hot weather and dirt storms.

World (Steffes) (350; 25-35-50-75)—'Beloved' (U). Pleasing musical, but minus strong box-office appeal. Maybe $1,500, fair. Sixth and last week of 'Henry VIII' (UA) was $1,800, good. Engagement a big money maker.

Uptown (Publix) (1,200; 25-35)—'Rip Tide' (MG). Around $2,500 indicated. Pretty good. Last week, 'Bolero' (Par), $2,000, fair.

Lyri (Publix) (1,300; 25-35-40) 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG). Return loop showing after flop at de luxe Minnesota recently. This 'pop' house more suited for this type of film. Manager Bob LeFevre did great selling job, too, front of house attracting throngs. May reach around $3,000, which is normal for house at 25c scale. Last week, 'Come On Marines' (Par), $2,000, light.

Grand (Publix) (1,200; 15-25)—'Laughing Boy' (MG) and 'Poor Rich' (U), split first runs. Around $1,000 indicated, light. Last week, 'David Harum' (Fox), second loop run got $1,500, pretty good.

Aster (Publix) (900; 15-25)—'It Happened One Night' (Col), third loop run, and 'Emperor Jones' (UA), second run, split. About $1,000, okay. Last week, 'Carolina' (Fox) and 'Hips, Hips, Hooray' (RKO), second runs, and 'I Believed in You' (Fox), first run, split, $900, fair.

'YOU'RE TELLING ME' $5,000 IN DENVER

Denver, May 14.

Rain kept folks away from theatres Saturday night while cold weather Sunday without rain drove them in with three having holdouts sometime during day. 'House of Rothschild' holdout at Aladdin on third week but no chance for fourth week. First film to stay three weeks in city in years and only second at Aladdin since opening.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Huffman) (1,500; 25-35-50)—'House of Rothschild' (UA) (3d, final week). Steady patronage. Third week will gather very acceptable $4,000. Last week film got $6,000. A picture of this type and, especially with Arliss as star is a natural for this ritzy de luxer. Film is the second film to last three weeks at this house, the other being 'Gold-diggers of Broadway.' 'Rothschild' is the first film to last three weeks anyplace in Denver in seven years.

Denham (Hellborn) (1,500; 25-40) 'You're Telling Me' (Par). Around $5,000. Last week, 'The Witching Hour' (Par) let the house down under par with $4,000. Picture started good but dropped off. Night crowds only fair with mats better. Theatres here due to opening of Elitch amusement park for the summer.

Denver (Huffman) (2,500; 25-35-50)—'Viva Villa' (MG). Likely to realize $9,000, good. Last week, 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) didn't give anybody that feeling and finished with close to $5,500.

Orpheum (Huffman) (2,600; 25-35-55)—'Such Women Are Dangerous' (Fox) and stage show. Headed for $9,500. Last week, 'A Very Honorable Guy' (FN), with Blossom Seeley on the stage, did a nice business considering the competition of wonderful weather and opening of Elitch park. Closed with $7,600. Started weak but built slightly toward end.

New Haven Coasting

New Haven, May 14.

Business just coasting all around this week. 'Rothschild' a holdover, shifted from Poli's to College. First week nice, but holdover having a struggle to reach an ordinary figure.

Last week's flock of free Music Week events put a dent in film grosses.

Estimates for Thi Week

Paramount (Publix) (2,348; 35-50)—'Double Door' (Par) and 'Private Scandal' (Par). Recent run of legit 'Door' at pop prices won't help this one any. Mediocre $5,000 in view. Last week only slightly better around $5,300 for 'Witching Hour' (Par) and 'Stolen Sweets' (Ches).

Poli's (Poli) (3,040; 35-50) — 'Stand Up and Cheer' (Fox) and 'Lazy River' (MG). Heavy newspaper campaign on 'Cheer' but 'River' getting all the favorable comment. Better than average around $9,000. Last week, 'Rothschild' (UA). Turned 'em over fast on five shows daily for heavy $14,400.

Roger Sherman (WB) (2,200; 35-50)—'Modern Hero' (WB) and 'Merry Wives of Reno' (WB). Word-of-mouth on 'Reno' should help this to oke $5,000. Last week, 'Registered Nurse' (WB) and 'Keep 'Em Rolling' (RKO). Petered out to low $4,100.

College (Poli) 1,565; 35-50) — 'Rothschild' (UA). Not too good, with a tough battle to pull $4,000 after moving from Poli's. Last week, 'Palooka' (UA) and 'Murder in Trinidad' (Fox). Heavy campaign and personal appearance of Ham Fisher for opening drew good $4,600.

Reich Propaganda Office Takes Over All Legit and Opera Business

, May

After laying hands on the former Municipal Opera house in Berlin-Charlottenburg the Reichs Propaganda Office has taken steps to control compietely all show matters in the Reich. According to a circular letter issued by State Commissioner Hinkel the Reich has assumed control of all Prussian theatres.

At the same time Dr. Goebbels assembled leading personalities of Berlin theatre life, including Otto Laubinger, Dr. Schloesser, Heinz Hilpert, Walter Bruegmann and Count Solms, to discuss matters of the next Berlin theatre season. At this meeting Dr. Goebbels announced that besides the Reichs Opera and the Theatre of the People (the former Grosse Schauspielhaus) the Reich had taken charge of the Deutsche theatre—the theatre inseparably connected with the era of Max Reinhardt—and the Volksbuehne, under Hilpert's management probably Berlin's best legit house today.

Nevertheless General Goering, as Prussian premier, has by no means renounced his own share in Prussian theatre matters and has bestowed upon 15 prominent members of the Prussian state theatres titles of 'state actor' or 'chamber singer,' the latter title being a requisite of olden times.

Actors and actresses concerned are: Gustav Gruendgens, Werner Krauss, Friedrich Kayssler, Lothar Muethel, Maria Koppenhoefer, and Emmi Sonnemann. Opera singers are: Heinrich Schlusnus, Rudolf Eockelmann, Jaro Prohaska, Helge Roswaenge, Marcell Wittrisch, Maria Mueller, Margarete Klose, Kaete Heidersbach and Frieda Leider.

These appointments include long-term contracts with the state theatres and also a 'fee of honor,' which is to be paid at Christmas each year.

Comedie Francaise Actors Happy; Paid $400 for the Year

Paris, May 5.

Average member of the Comedie Francaise, holder of a douzieme, or a twelfth of a share, in that co-operative society, will be paid $400 this year for the season's work on France's ace stage, board of directors decided Tuesday (1). This is considered handsome, and is a boost over last year, despite a bad season.

They all give elocution lessons on the side, and lots of them make good money in films, so the salary's really not as terrible as it seems.

WREEDE RECOVERING FROM SUICIDE TRY

Vienna, May 5.

Fritz Wreede, head of Felix Bloch Erben, German publishing house and one of the leading European play agents, is recovering nicely in a private sanitarium here after his suicide attempt two weeks ago. He will rest a couple of weeks and then go back to his Berlin business office.

Wreede's suicide attempt was a surprise to his friends and is explained by a series of fits of depression in the past few months due to general conditions in Germany. Although of Jewish origin, Wreede is a Czechoslovakian citizen and so not directly annoyed by the Aryan regulations, but things in general worried him. He cut the main arteries on both wrists, but was found by hotel attendants who burst into h' room just in time.

Polish Theatre Shift

Warsaw, April 30.

Talk of enlisting director Schiffmann to control the municipal theatres, as well as his two private concerns here.

McCormack's African Concerts Only Fair B.O.

John McCormack's opening concert here drew a fair house, with the absence of any riot to get to the ticket box. final concert April 11 got the hall fairly full, but nothing like what was expected.

African Consolidated Theatres put over a poor publicity campaign for the Irish singer, no doubt due to inexperience in handling top stars. Tenor carried the full program, with his accompanist, Edwin Schneider, giving one or two piano selections.

Number complaints on the high admission charges may explain something.

Wheeler

Sir Ben's idea is to have an opera company operating in Melbourne during the Centenary celebrations, the knight believing the time is ripe to cash in, with the crowds hungry for this type of entertainment. Fullers will thus make a break into the stronghold of Williamson-Tait, but a little opposition does not worry the Fullers any too much.

FRENCH GOV'T CONTEST FOR LOCAL OPERETTA

Paris, May 5.

French government has decided to run an official competition for the best new operetta, locally written. Prize and rules of contest are yet to be determined.

Anatole de Monzie, former Minister of Education and Fine Arts, says he got the idea when he went to Stavisky's Empire to see 'Deux Sous de Fleurs'—not knowing it was Stavisky's show, of course.

'The book was absurd, the music unpleasant and the whole show impossible,' says de Monzie. 'So I said to myself that there must be, in France, composers and librettists, and I arranged to get together the money for a prize.'

De Monzie has since lost his job as minister, but his idea is still being carried out, and an official decree announcing the contest is soon to be published.

State and city subsidized theatres have been notified, meanwhile, that they are not to accept foreign shows without first asking the permission of the minister or the prefect of the Seine. Former controls state theatres and latter city subsidized houses.

HOBSON SAYS FISCHER IS STILL HIS BOOKER

Paris, May 5.

Clement Hobson, big boss of the Ambassadeurs Restaurant, vigorously denies the story released in America that he has signed with Teddy Ehrenthal to book his place exclusively after the present show, booked by Clifford Fischer, is finished.

Hobson says he has been working with Fischer for more than 20 years, since he put on shows at Hammerstein's in London, and the relationship is continuing. Points out, however, that he has no contract with Fischer or anyone else, and can break off any minute he feels like it.

New York report had it that Hobson had booked up for two years with Ehrenthal, who books the Gaumont Palace and Rex here, to play most of the Foster's talent imported from America. Nothing to this, says Hobson.

Fact seems to be that Ehrenthal has been flirting with Hobson, and the nitery man has been letting Fischer feel the pressure from his competitor just for the good of business in general. Success of present show, supplied by Fischer, would militate against any change, even if one had been contemplated.

MEX. TAX HOLIDAY FOR LEGIT, VAUDE

Mexico City, May 11.

Civic government has thrown the foundering theatre a life line in the form of exemption from all municipal taxes until further notice. Tax-free rights are to be enjoyed by stagers of dramas, comedies, vaude, concerts, operas, operettas and revues.

Municipality explains this action was taken as a means of enabling the struggling theatre to live and meet stiff competition from radio and cinemas. Pictures, radio and all other forms of amusement here continue to pay taxes.

Mexicans Like Films Better'n Bull Fights

Mexico City, May 11.

Residents of the Federal district, Mexico's most populous center, containing 1,229,576 inhabitants and the national capital, are spending more for amusements. Diversion's customers down here prefer cinemas to all other public pastimes, with legit second choice, and bullfighting is not Mexico's prime fun.

These facts are revealed by data compiled by the national statistics bureau covering public amusements that charge admissions in the district last year. Bureau finds that districters spent about $2,500,000 to be amused in 1933.

Dutch Censor Again

The Hague, May 2.

ANOTHER LEGIT TO FIX

Mexico City, May 11.

Over protests of the Mexican actors and allied unions, another old first line theatre here is going cinema. House is the Teatro Iris. It is being wired with WE equipment. ANTI-FOREIGN ACTOR BILL IN AUSTRIA

Vienna, May 2.

New decree has been passed barring foreign directors and artists from working in Austria unless resident in the country at least since January 1, 1923 and in work here since January, 1926.

Presidents of Managers' Union and Artists' Union are sending deputations to the ministry of education to entreat abolition of decree. Argued that 1,500 Austrian stage artists are under contract abroad, and feared the Austrian decree will encourage counter decrees in other countries, which would bring about compulsory return to Austria of the majority, with outlook of increasing unemployment in the profession, rather than decreasing

CHARLES TROUPE OPENS IN CHICAGO MAY 26

Paris, May 14.

While James E. Witterled, local p.a., had lodged a complaint to Washington against the American importation of Jacques Charles' troupe of 55 people, it develops that his squawk was centered on an individual in no wise connected with this venture. The French floor show is being exported by Cliff Fischer, who represents the William Morri agency on the Continent.

Fischer is sending the troupe to the Chicago World's Fair for the Pabst Blue Ribbon Casino.

Chicago, May 14.

Company opens Casino, May 26.

The 15 revivals include ten plays by local playwrights. Five foreign revivals are 'Samson,' by Henri Bernstein; 'Elizabeth, Queen of England,' by Ferdinand Bruckner; 'Hamlet' and 'The Taming of the Shrew,' by Shakespeare, and 'The Sacred Flame,' by Somerset Maugham.

Paris Literary Mob Turns on 'Nana,' But Picture Opens to Good Biz

Paris, May 5.

Terrific fuss being raised by heirs of Emile Zola over local showing of Sam Goldwyn's 'Nana' (UA), which they consider a terrible deformation of Zola's work. Hasn't any relation to it, in fact, they say, and, since there isn't any question of copyright action they threaten to do something diplomatically, though it is not clear just how they could accomplish anything that way. Meanwhile they are taking it out by writing letters to the papers.

Critics were not warm to 'Nana', rgely on the same basis: that it was an unworthy Americanization of a great French work. They admitted the value of Anna Sten and the fineness of the film from a technical viewpoint. In few cases was there an open panning. General feeling, however, was that Americans should let French masterpieces alone.

From commercial standpoint, however, result remains to be seen. First few days' business at the Lord Byron, United Artists showcase, was capacity, and it may be that the publicity will do the picture good and that people who are interested in films as such, regardless of literary controversy, will come to see it. Personal triumph for Anna Sten with the French, who are susceptible to her kind, is lso considered likely.

United Artists' local crowd also is inclined to suspect that even if Paris does not warm up to the picture it will be good in the provinces, where the literary idea is not so important. Some resemblance is seen between this and Metro's 'Mata Hari', which was panned as a distortion of the real story of the spy and then did the biggest gross of any American picture in France.

Boys with good hindsight are suggesting that UA. should have brought the pic out in France under another title, to avoid offending susceptibilities and comparisons with a work the French love. Answer to this is that the publicity value of 'Nana' as a title would thus be lost.

Present local reaction to Sten personally is that she is a great screen personality. She has been known for some years as a Continental star, however, and there is some criticism to the effect that Hollywood overtrained her and tried too hard to make her a new Dietrich.

GERMAN FILM BANK'S PROFIT ON 1ST YEAR

Berlin, May 2.

Profit and loss account for 1933 shows slight gain.

Board was reelected. State secretary Dr. Posse will quit, being overburdened with work. Dr. B. Mulert, Fritz Bertram, head of the exhibs; and Dr. Walther Plugge, film-chamber councillor, will join.

Dr. Scheuermann, president of the film-chamber, was reelected chairman of the board with state secretary Walther Punk and Ludwig Klitzsch as deputies.

Baer's Consolation B.O.

The Hague, May 5.

Metro's German sock on 'Prize Fighter and the Lady' has turned into a boon, at least so far as Holland is concerned. Picture went into the Cine Royal here, publicized as being the picture German censors had barred because the star, Max Baer, was a Jew.

Had immediate favorable effect at the b.o.

G-T, U-A FINISH ANZAC DEAL, WB PENDS

Sydney,

arrangements have been completed between United Artists and General Theatres for the whole output of the Silly Symphony and Mickey Mouse cartoons together with ten ace U. A. films. Pictures are 'The Masquerader', 'Gallant Lady', 'Moulin Rouge', 'Broadway Through a Keyhole', 'Blood Money', 'Beneath the Sea', 'Perfect Understanding', 'Emperor Jones', 'Girl From Maxims', and 'Cash'.

Following the arrival of Arthur Kelly, U.A. foreign dep't head, in Australia, G. T. expects to close a deal for the balance of the U.A. product, including 'House of Rothschild', 'Roman Scandals', and 'Henry VIII'. Kelly is due in a few days.

Cecil Marks, g.m. for U.A. here, left for New Zealand to meet Kelly and place the Australian situation before him.

Warners and the G.T. officials cannot get together on the question of suitable terms. A deal has been pending for some time but has not reached the clinching stage as yet.

Charles Munro, codirector of G.T., is understood to be prepared to make a buy at once, providing a price can be agreed upon. Another difficulty is said to be the rejection clause rights. G.T. and Warners have had many battles in the past over contracts.

Meantime, Warners will release in all of the indie spots around Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane. Nabe screenings come into operation in May, when, presumably, the G.T. contract expires. Quoted around town that Warners will drop $4,000 weekly by remaining out of the big chain theatres.

Radio's Preopening Hoopla for Hepburn

Paris, May 5.

Radio is giving 'Little Women' a fancy sendoff this week. Press luncheon at Rouzier's Perigord restaurant, on the Place Saint Michel, one of the big eat houses of the town, is being followed by a charity gala opening later at the Edouard VII.

French newspaper boys liked the film, and F. Cromelynck, author of couple of legit successes at the St. Georges theatre, got up at the lunch and raved about its being a perfectly balanced work of art, with the implication that the French industry couldn't touch it, which is quite an admission for a local boy. Film is being released in English, with titles by Suzanne Chantel-Grace, editor of Cinemonde, who also titled 'Back Street.'

'Iceberg' O.K. in Paris

Paris, May 5.

Universal's break on 'S.O.S. Iceberg' here did not turn out as badly as was feared at first.

New showcase, Club d'Artois, which took the picture and then closed to put in new projection equipment, reopened, and since then pic has been running to good houses.

Embassy, Sydney, Ready

Sydney, April 20.

G. T. will open its new Sydney theatre, Embassy, the second week in May. Built on the site of the old Tivoli, theatre will be an intimate one and will operate on a British policy.

Embassy is located within a few yards of Fuller's Mayfair, also solely British.

HUNGARY FILMS 65% AMERICAN

Budapest, May 5.

American filmdom's progress in Europe last year due to the decrease of German progress is nowhere indicated as strongly as in Hungary. During 1933 the American pictures occupied 65% of Hungary's screens. Two years ago, on the other hand, German films were used 90% of the time with America splitting the remaining 10% of the time with the rest of the world.

There is no open opposition to Germany pictures here, but there is a silent boycott on the present product which is effective. Also what little strength the Germans held in spite of the political situation they are losing by lack of upstanding new product.

Valentino's Shadow On Negri's Portrait, So Everybody Sues

Paris, May 5.

Suit of Beltran y Masses, Spanish painter, against Pola Negri, untried since 1931, is to come up soon in a local court. Dauber wants $5,000 fees for doing Pola's portrait, and she counters with a request for 100,000 francs (nearly $7,000 now) damages because he allegedly injured her reputation by painting the shadow of Rudolph Valentino in the background of the portrait.

Artist tells how he met Miss Negri in Hollywood with Valentino, to whom she was then reported to be engaged. He said he'd like to do her portrait, but the actress did not pose for him until two years later, when she came to Paris.

His story is that the price agreed upon for the painting was $5,000. Miss Negri offered to settle for $1,000, adding that she did so only to be nice, as she had not ordered the picture and only posed to please the artist.

She then gave as a real reason for disliking the picture the shadow of Valentino, and brought her counter suit.

Metro Mulls Producing Abroad; London and Paris Both Possibilities

India Speaks

Calcutta, April 21.

Considerable merriment and resentment here on 'Son of India' (Metro) because of the technical discrepancies in the film and which the localites resent. In one shot, for instance, heroine appears in a polo outfit with bare sleeves in the midst of an Indian jungle scene, which is considered here as highly ludicrous.

Similarly Novarro's costume is called here as lacking knowledge of Indian dress.

1 UP FOR PARIS EXHIBS; BREAK FOR U. S.

Paris, May 5.

American film interests fighting the proposed embargo, decreased quota, dubbing tax and tariff proposals aimed against imported pictures by the French producers are deriving a certain amount of comfort from the defeat on another front of the Chambre Syndicale, leading body in the anti-foreign movement.

Chambre got into a row with the exhibitors' association over the standard film renting contract, which the exhibs considered unfair, but which the producers tried to impose arbitrarily. Exhibs put up a stiff fight and have finally won out.

Mediation commission will be appointed to thrash out difficulties and work up a new contract form, and in the meantime the article of the present contract most objectionable to the exhibs is being dropped.

This means a blow to the prestige of the Chambre. Although Americans are represented in that body, and Henri Klarsfeld of Paramount was one of the delegates of the producers in the confabs with the distributors, the Chambre is in general considered hostile.

Further encouraging feature is that a shortage of usable films is being felt and boulevard houses which never hitherto played anything but French talkers are being forced into English versions.

Metro is flirting with the idea of going into film production abroad and will probably come to a definite decision late this week. If going through with it, it will be the first time for Metro, this company having steered away from European filming despite all the other companies' varied, and mostly frustrated attempts.

Laudy Lawrence, M-G's European chief, arrives in New York today (Tuesday). Understood to be simply a vacation and his annual h.o. look-see, but he will nevertheless be called in to add his views to the filming idea. Sam Eckman, Jr. company's boss in England is also in New York and Arthur Loew, head of the entire foreign service, just returned from a European survey several days ago.

Pretty certain that M-G will make a couple of pictures on its own in England. It has, in the past, been buying quota films there from independents but now believes it will be better off manufacturing its own. That's as a result of the successful experience United Artists has been having there via its affiliated companies, British Dominion and London Films.

What is being mulled now is whether or not company should go in for the new tangent full steam ahead or not. Believed likely th it will be decided to produce in Paris as well as London, although the Paris thing may await a more favorable exchange situation.

SEVERAL BIG YANK CLICKS IN SYDNEY

Sydney, April 20.

Fairly wet Lenten gave managements nice grosses and trade continues along the upgrade.

'I Was a Spy' (G-B) will stop after three months. 'Little Women' (Radio) is a smash hit and will continue. 'I'm No Angel' (Par) hits its sixth week and is still strong.

'Alice' (Par) and 'Duck Soup' (Par) securing good returns and are all set. 'Red Wagon' goes into a fourth week to very nice biz. 'Thark' and 'Hindle Wakes' enter their second month with no signs of quitting.

'Queen Christina' (M-G) is getting out the Garbo fans and will do well. 'Only Yesterday' (U) has given the Liberty a nice kickoff and looks set for a long run. Joe McCurdy broke into the Lyric with 'Damaged Lives' (Col) and pic is in its third week.

Weekly trade has remained remarkably good with 'After Tonight' (Radio), 'Rafter Romance' (Fox), 'Ever Since Eve' and 'Hell and High Water.'

Sir Ben Fuller Into Production End, If Anzac Quota Law Is Passed

Melbourne, April 20.

Sir Ben Fuller will go in for picture production if the government brings in a quota protecting Australians. Knight says that arrangements have been made with F. W. Thring, Efftee, Melbourne, to lease the studio and equipment for purpose of making screen versions of several musicals.

Sir Ben has been financially interested in one or two locally-made talkers, and is now believed to be smitten with the solo production bug. F. W. Thring stated some time ago that he was through with pix making in Australia, unless the government offered some protection to the local man.

If the quota goes through, and Fullers come into the production field, Thring may again return to pic making or else enter into an agreement with the Fullers to carry on. Thring at present is definitely interested only in legit and will carry on in this field.

Stuart Doyle's company, Cinesound, will be the main opposition to the Fullers, although Fullers will locate principally in Melbourne.

Believed here that should the government shoot a quota bill through many production units will quickly come into being and production work will advance considerably in Australia.

Right now, picture making is on a pretty strong footing but with added protection from the government it is expected that film companies will be floated overnight in all States of the Commonwealth. It is this mushroom growth that is feared by one or two big leaders of the producing game in this country. They say that untold harm will result from the rush by every Tom, Dick and Harry to break into the picture field.

Feared, also, that the public may be exploited financially by a percentage of go-getters who have not had any experience in the making of moving pictures, and that some of the proposed companies will quickly go to the wall, with stockholders left to hold an empty bag.

On the other hand, it is predicted that the government will protect the public fr the influence of go-getters, and will introduce the quota system solely for the protection of those recognized companies already in operation in Australia.

Stuart F. Doyle, Cinesound, has stuck out all along against a quota. Doyle feels that Australian pictures should be strong enough to take their place with the rest of the world, and a quota should only be imposed when it could definitely be shown that the Australian producers are unable to release product although it measures up to fair average entertainment.

Mex. Cinema Union Holds Up 'Thunder'

Mexico City, May 11.

Exhibition of 'Thunder Over Mexico' and debut of Teatro Principal, America's oldest playhouse, as a cinema, were held up indefinitely as result of a boycott against the picture by the Mexican Cinematographic Employees Union, which objects to Hollywood editing of the film.

Theatre management and the union are still deadlocked.

30-DAY PRINCESS

Paramount release of a B. P. Schulberg production starring Sylvia Sidney; Cary Grant, featured. Directed by Marion Gering. Novel by Clarence Budington Kelland; screen play, Preston Sturges and Frank Partos; adaptation, Sam Hellman and Edwin Justus Mayer; camera, Leon Shamroy. At Paramount, N. Y., week May 11. Running time, 74 mins.

Nancy Lane ..... Sylvia Sidney
Perry Butterina ..... Sylvia Sidney
Porter Madison, 3d ..... Cary Grant
Richard Gresham ..... Edward Arnold
King Anatol ..... Henry Stephenson
Count Nicholaus ..... Vince Barnett
Baron ..... Edgar Norton
Managing Editor ..... Robert McWade
Spottswood ..... George Baxter

Neat little picture. Combination inderella and Zenda theme against contemporaneous American setting, replete with big business, bond flotations, enterprising metropolitan newspaper publishers, etc. It's a combo that's usually sure-fire and repeats again here.

Even in the infrequent lapses where stark realism gives way just a bit to the musical comedy hokum of the basic premise, the merger of talents—histrionic, scriptic and directorial—are sufficiently canny to make the auditor want to slight the lapses and believe it throughout. It's just one of those yarns.

The star, Sylvia Sidney, plays the dual stellar role most convincingly. The coincidence of the striking resemblance to a visiting princess from some tiny Tyrolean principality is one of those situations of fact and fiction which Edwin Arnold, as the big banker, convincingly plants through the medium of stating—as he looks out into the great city—that somewheres among those 8,000,000 people there must be another who looks sufficiently like the crown princess to impersonate her.

The subterfuge is necessitated by an attack of mumps which would have halted the 'good will' tour of the foreign royalty contingent. Thus a very badly broke bit actress, Nancy Lane, finds herself the titular '30-Day Princess.' (The month's lapse is necessary until the real royal highness gets over her indisposition of a swollen royal physog.)

It is thus that the pseudo-princess meets the crusading young publisher and so the romance runs its pleasant course.

Against this situation are sundry sidelights, including Vince Barnett's swell hoke; a comedy situation with an $18,000 set of rare crystal glasses; a too enterprising reporter on Grant's paper who is wise to the phoney princess, etc.

Casting is tiptop. Miss Sidney is thoroughly convincing in the dual role. As a general thing these assignments border at one stage or another on the silly; here she's impressive as the fraud and even more so when the denouement eventuates as it necessarily must in order to preserve the lily-white romance. Cary Grant sustains his manly end equally as well.

The 74 mins. are not too long, careful scripting, montage and cutting combining to turn out a compact little picture which will entertain generally. The Sidney-Grant marquee pull should get 'em and once in they'll enjoy it. At the Par opening night the finale was heartily salvoed, not a usual occurrence at this Broadway deluxer. Abel.

GLAMOUR

(WITH SONGS)

Universal production and release. Features Paul Lukas and Constance Cummings. Directed by William Wyler. From story by Edna Ferber; screen play, Doris Anderson, Continuity, Gladys Unger. Musical numbers, Walter Donaldson, David Kaitzkin, Howard Jackson, Harry Akst. Camera, George Robinson. At Mayfair, N. Y., week May 11. Running time, 75 Mins.

Victor Banki ..... Paul Lukas
Linda Payne ..... Constance Cummings
Lorenzo Valenti ..... Phillip Reed
Ibsen ..... Joseph Cawthorn
Nana ..... Doris Lloyd
Stevie ..... David Dickinson
Amy ..... Peggy Campbell
Dobbs ..... Olaf Hytten
Secretary ..... Alice Lake
Grassle ..... Lita Chevret
Forsyth ..... Lyman Williams
Jimmy ..... Phil Tead
Monsieur Paul ..... Luis Alberni
Renee ..... Yola d'Avril
Miss Lang ..... Grace Hale
Pritchard ..... Wilson Benge
Millie ..... Louise Beavers

Several things combine to make this picture a pretty safe b.o. bet, although it probably will just miss getting into the important class. For really big grosses it lacks the very things its title implies—glamour. It's not glamorous, but just a good woman's picture with a story that's pretty much along usual and unoriginal lines.

Film was adapted from a short story by Edna Ferber, but the adapters let it run away from and with them plenty. They improvised so much, that after cutting 15 minutes from the picture between its Hollywood preview and its New York showing, it becomes a pretty mediocre yarn. It has splendid direction, exceptional acting, fine camera work and a surprise element in a hit song.

Miss Ferber's short story was one day in an actress' life, a famous star so busy and occupied that she doesn't even get a chance to see her baby. That's just a sequence in the film, lots of padding having been placed fore and aft. It emerges as a yarn of an ambitious, but dumb, chorine who thinks she can be a famous star. She hounds a songwriter into giving her a buildup, talks him into marrying her and even gets a baby. That last, is because she has read in a book that actresses never are really great until they become mothers. It works with her. She gets her baby and becomes an overnight sensational star. Then she falls in love with a handsome young singer, leaves hubby to go with him, is happy with him until he starts cheating and goes back. Her original hubby is by now shot and almost hopelessly lost, but they get together anyway, and all is well.

Constance Cummings departs from her past work for the part of the girl and emerges as capable emotional actress. Her hair dressing is all wrong and it takes her quite a while to get into her stride, but when she does she bowls everything over. Paul Lukas as the husband is a natural, the part being pianola for him. Especially in the big renunciation scene with its 'good-bye,' little girl' business.

Picture uncovers a newcomer, Philip Reed, who has a sweet voice and a good physique. Doesn't seem to know too much about acting, but probably won't have to. The girls will probably go for him. In supporting parts Joseph Cawthorn is splendid as a theatrical manager, and Bobby Watson gets his usual laughs as a nance dance director.

Three songs are used and several musical compositions in addition for background purposes. Of the songs, 'Heaven on Earth' is the best, and looks headed for wide circulation. Kauf.

LE GRAND JEU

('The Full Deck')
(FRENCH MADE)

Paris, May 2.

Films de France production and Pathe release. Directed by Jacques Feyder; story, continuity and dialog by Feyder and Charles Spaak; music, H. Eisler; camera, Harry Stradling and Maurice Forster; assistant directors, Marcel Carne and Charles Barrois. Featuring Marie Bell, Pierre Richard-Willm, Georges Pitoeff, Francoise Rosay, Charles Vanel and Camille Bert. Running time, 120 mins. At Marignan Pal, Paris.

Florence ..... Marie Bell
Pierre Martel ..... Pierre Richard-Willm
Nicolas ..... Georges Pitoeff
Colonel ..... Camille Bert
Captain ..... Pierre de Guingand
Bernard Martel ..... Andre Dubosc
Gustin ..... Pierre Larquey
Aziani ..... Nestor Ariani
Fenoux ..... Florencie
Daubrile ..... Line Clevers
Aichouch ..... Olga Velbria
Blanche ..... rancoise Rosay
Clement ..... Charles Vanel

At last a good French film, and about the Foreign Legion, at that. Jacques Feyder, whose big rep is still largely based on his silent 'Atlantis,' shows in this one that he remains one of the few Frenchmen who can put together a picture of good quality, with a broad b.o. pull, good for all kinds of customers.

Subject is the French Foreign Legion, which has a grand romantic appeal but which has been tried before with much less success. Beauty of this pic is that Feyder does not let the atmosphere run away from him. It's about the Legion, all right, but it is not just a series of color shots of desperate heroes dying of heat and thirst. Emphasis is on the story, not on the color, yet Feyder's tale is essentially one of the Legion, so the atmosphere comes in right where it should, with full effect, and the yarn remains first of all a drama with genuine and compelling human interest.

Pierre, who is crazy about Florence and is keeping her in great luxury, has to duck from France because he's caught in financial monkey-business—a subject of current interest in France now. His obvious out is with the exiles of all the nations of the world in the Legion. His enlistment is shown in a few short sequences of marvelous effect, in which the desperate character of the recruits is put across without ranting or slop.

His buddy in the North African fighting ground is Nicolas, a Russian, admirably played by Pitoeff, who has his own little legit theatre and who here makes his screen debut. Nicolas typifies the Legionnaire who puts his past completely behind him and lives only as a soldier, courting death.

Love story goes on when Pierre meets Irma, a prostitute following the Legion, who he thinks is really Florence, after an amnesia attack. He gets new life from her, and when his hitch is up and he has inherited some money he prepares to go back to France with her, when the real Florence shows up as he is about to take the boat. He then finds that without Irma it is no soap, and he goes back and dies a hero's death.

Richard-Willm, not yet an enormous b. o. name, shows qualities of real stardom—good looking, well built and capable of emotional acting. Marie Bell, of the Comedie Francaise and one of the femme mainstays of French films, does what is expected of her, and Francoise Rosay, who in legit almost succeeded in pulling Steve Passeur's 'Black Beast' out of the fire, gets a big hand as a hardboiled mamma running a joint in the desert.

But most of all, the film shows what Feyder can do, and that he is big time. If there's any public in America with a good knowledge of French and an appetite for solid stuff from over here, this film is for it. Stern.

Miniature Reviews

'30-Day Princess' (Par). Sylvia Sidney and Cary Grant very effective in a Cinderella-Zenda motivation which expert production and trouping makes both believable and highly entertaining.

'Glamour' (U). Unoriginal story, but beautiful direction, splendid acting and fine production ought to make it a good b.o. number, with special pull from the femmes.

'The Crime Doctor' (Radio). Good in every department, with mounting suspense.

'Change of Heart' (Fox). Gaynor-Farrell team in a slow-moving romantic item, supported by James Dunn and Ginger Rogers. Misses.

'The Last Round-Up' (Par). Exceptionally well made and actionful western with a Zane Grey motif.

'Laughing Boy' (Metro). Touchy theme and plot around an Indian prosty consorting with whites, before and after marriage, and below par as entertainment. Lupe Velez and Ramon Novaro.

'Drums o' Voodoo' (International). All-colored feature, limited to race engagements and not even promising for that small field.

'Cheaters.' (Liberty.) Not for the big time and dubious lower down. Short on story, but has some good playing.

'West of Divide' (Mono). Nothing in story to indicate title, but doesn't matter. Cowboy stuff fit for twin bills.

THE CRIME DOCTOR

Radio production and release. Directed by John Robertson. Ismael Zangwill story, adapted by Jane Murfin. At Rialto, N. Y., week May 9. Running time, 75 mins.

Dan Gifford ..... Otto Kruger
Andra ..... Karen Morley
Eric Anderson ..... Nils Asther
Blanche Flynn ..... Judith Wood
Fraser ..... William Frawley
District Attorney ..... Donald Crisp
Martin Crowder ..... Martin Conroy
Kemp ..... Farrell MacDonald
Blodgett ..... Fred Kelsey
Walters ..... G. Pat Collins

This holds together considerably better than the average picture based on 'the perfect crime.' It is excellently cast, well directed and mounted. The smoothness of these qualities enables it to gloss over a few glaring incredibilities and to sustain a continuously rising suspense. It is strong enough for some of the less important weekly change metropolitan theatres.

In its present length 'Crime' has an epilog. This lets all that was built up in the audience mind down with a crude bang. In fact to many that the epilog may smear the illusion of the entire picture and may hurt. Exhibitors, can use their own judgment as to a black-out.

Right down the line, players do a thorough job, Otto Kruger, as the criminologist who utilizes his own knowledge for vengeance, especially.

For the analytical the conviction of Anderson as the lover of the crime doctor's wife, is too Hollywoodian. Perfect as the story would have the framing of Anderson, played almost gullibly by Nils Asther, it is apparent that the director did not press witnesses to disclose the mystery woman for fear that the entire thematic structure would be badly shaken.

The reaction of the doctor, upon discovering he has failed to regain his wife's esteem after railroading her lover, is logical. His suicide, after submitting a sealed confession to his confederates who believed they had the right man, is a natural for a strong fade-out.

Waly.

CHANGE OF HEART

Fox production and release. Stars Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell; James Dunn and Ginger Rogers, featured. Directed by John G. Blystone. Based on novel by Kathleen Norris; adaptation by Sonya Levien and James Gleason. At Music Hall, N. Y., week May 10. Running time, 76 mins.

Catherine Furness ..... Janet Gaynor
Chris Thring ..... Charles Farrell
Mack McGowan ..... James Dunn
Madge Rountree ..... Ginger Rogers
Harriet Hawkins ..... Beryl Mercer
Dr. Kreutzmann ..... Gustav Von Seyffertitz
Shirley ..... Shirley Temple
Greta Hallstrom ..... Irene Franklin

The Gaynor-Farrell team is in a long shot this time. Its chances of giving the onlookers a thrill is no more remote than its chances to cash in at the ticket windows.

'Change of Heart' also boasts a supporting team in James Dunn and Ginger Rogers, but they, too, are on the backs of a nag that never quite gets started. What makes the picture the more irksome is the fact that it suggests a lot of possibilities at the start and later on but never seizes upon them, turning out to be a tame little romantic ode to struggling youth.

At no point is there any real dramatic conflict, gripping situations or highlights that make for strong entertainment, by way of laughs or otherwise.

Fault lies, firstly, in the fact that the story possesses no important substance. Secondly, production added nothing except performances by a quartet of players who had little to shoot for. Realizing this and other drawbacks that must have been evident from perusal of the script, John G. Blystone, the director, obviously attempted to make up for everything by injecting a sugary note of sweetness throughout. Occasionally it is too much.

Picture runs 76 minutes and most of the time causes that tired feeling. There is so much detail of an unimportant character overlooked by the cutter that it isn't any wonder a view of the whole production seems like twice an hour and 16 minutes.

Story is one of the simplest in thematic background and plot construction. It deals with four young persons just graduated from college who go to New York together to look for jobs and happiness. They get their romantic inclinations a little crossed, but in the end the Gaynor-Farrell team marries, Dunn has become a crooner, and Miss Rogers is living on inherited dough. There's nothing else to it but the detail that pads out.

Lines put out to fish in laughs haul up little. Included are Dunn's wisecracks. Char.

THE LAST ROUND-UP

Paramount production and release. An adaptation of Zane Grey's 'Border Legion,' by Jack Cunningham. Directed by Henry Hathway. At Criterion, N. Y., on 25c grind. Running time, 60 mins.

Jim Cleve ..... Randolph Scott
Joan Randall ..... Barbara Fritchie
Jack Kells ..... Monte Blue
Sam Gulden ..... Fred Kohler
Buster McGee ..... Fuzzy Knight
Judge Savin ..... Richard Carle
Charley Benson ..... Barton MacLane
Sheriff ..... harles B. Middleton
Shrimp ..... Frank Rice
Rush ..... Dick Rush
Old Man Tracy ..... 'Buck' Connors

Had this been released when the song of the same title was at the peak of its tuneful appeal, the name alone would have meant something at the box-office. Today the original Grey sales line, 'Border Legion,' would mean just as much, if not more, to that percentage of the populace to which 'Round-Up' is now wearying.

Though well produced and manned, picture is still a western, not sufficiently big or original to stand up for a week's run in the average key house, and yet impressive enough to establish itself high up on the quality rung of hard riding screen material.

Although Randolph Scott is billed above him, Monte Blue captures the most attention. Blue handles the gang leader role with a certain finesse not often denoted in players more accustomed to such parts.

When they are not shooting up towns or being hunted down, the wayward legion impresses as being a happy lot wiling away carefree lives. No matter how many times they are routed the boys always appear with full traveling kit and enough sufficient to erect log cabins and what-nots as though they had access to a mail-order catalog.

Paramount lined up many of the better known western faces for bits as well as important parts. Fred Kohler is in his usual 'very bad' man place, while Fuzzy Knight, as the disbarred lawyer, mugs through comedy, along with a prolonged death scene during which the theme song is repeated. Barbara Fritchie furnishes the feminine slant, which is the main excuse for Scott remaining in the action after his rescue by Blue. Waly.

LAUGHING BOY

Metro production and release. Stars Ramon Novarro; Lupe Velez featured. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Based on novel by Oliver LaFarge. Adaptation, John Colton and John Lee Mahin. Musical score, Herbert Stothart. Film editor, Blanche Sewell. At Met, Brooklyn, week May 11. Running time, 75 mins.

Laughing Boy ..... Ramon Novarro
Slim Girl ..... Lupe Velez
Hartshorne ..... William Farnum
Father ..... Chief Thunderbird
Mother ..... Catalina Rambula
Wounded Face ..... Tall Man's Boy
Singer ..... F. Augustine Armenta
Squaw's Son ..... Deer Spring
Red Man ..... Pellicana

This is the story, screened by Metro, which the New York censor board found objectionable. Scissoring committee didn't like the theme to begin with, but was more insistent about certain plot situations. Whether or not the censors were right or wrong in their opinions, 'Laughing Boy' is below average entertainment despite the handsome production and care it has received.

Story is from an Oliver LaFarge book which won the Pulitzer prize for the best novel in 1929, and was purchased from Universal by Metro. 'Laughing Boy' no doubt read better than the screen results show.

For one thing, the simulation of Indian accents, notably by Ramon Novarro, leaves something to be desired. Most of the time the star sounds like Maurice Chevalier. At other times his tongue goes a little Harry Burnsish. Lupe Velez, besides stealing the picture in other ways, runs far ahead of Novarro on handling the dialog.

Thematic basis of 'Boy' is a redskin girl who swings the handbag near the railroad tracks away from her people and continues to do this on the sly after marrying a young Indian who has capitulated to her paleface habits one night on a mountain top after getting stewed.

Story thus mixes races, something the screen has generally shied from. Add to that the fact that the girl plays a white man lover against her husband, and vice versa.

In numerous instances, including those in the house maintained by the redskin girl near the tracks and out in the wide open spaces where she speaks a night with her husband-to-be, the film apparently is cut. Picture originally contained a sequence where the girl spends the night out on the mountain with young Laughing Boy. That is now missing.

Picture ends on hero's discovery of the sin nest of his wife. His arrow of hate aimed to the white man, reaches the wife's instead and she dies in the moisture of the tears from both.

An Indian type love song runs through the picture. A reprise figures for the fade with Laughing Boy standing over the grave of his wife.

Exteriors interesting, together with McCoy Indians as atmosphere, some of whom speak flawless English. Char.

PRINCESS CHARMING

(BRITISH MADE)

Gainsborough production released through Gaumont-British. Directed by Maurice Elvey. In cast: Evelyn Laye, Yvonne Arnaud, George Graves, Gordon Harker, Max Miller. Running time 77 mins. Previewed Prince Edward theatre, London, April 25.

More and more British producers are aiming at the Hollywood standard of production but, generally speaking, they are not yet reaching it. 'Princess Charming' is another intelligent effort in that direction, and this excellent production, in good taste, is still just below the peak of excellence for which Hollywood is noted.

Even if Britain attains

Except for the last sequence this is mostly a series of short and long scenic shots without much scenery. Alois Havrille, credited narrator, speaks clearly and covers more ground in an historical way than the camera imparts. That only indicates how far fetched as amusement fare this subject is. Closeup shots of certain wall facades of the old Alhambra palace of the Moorish kings, of cattle on the plains, girl sewing lacework and all without recollection of any specific locale being named to identify where the films exactly were taken. Just another travelog.

The only sound sequence is where Spanish women types dance uninterestingly and singing is heard against a castenet and guitar background. Pretty chunky, those women dancers. Shan.

Two full reels for Jim Barton's drunk and a fragment of his dance; which is about 12 minutes too long. Rest is filled in with a fair adagio, indifferent step dance and a very indifferent singer.

Roof cabaret with Barton permitted to intrude with a souse. Annoys a couple at the next table and finally goes into his dance. Poor production which Barton cannot save with the material given him. Just a filler.

MUSIC HALL, N. Y.

Puccini's opera, 'Madame Butterfly,' reduced to 70 minutes and played in three acts, is the stage show here this week. Otherwise there is nothing on the show but the picture, 'Change of Heart' (Fox), house having discarded all extras such as the newsreel in order to put on the operatic tabloidization.

If it appears 'Butterfly' proves a welcome change and finds sufficient supporters, the Hall will from time to time abridge other standard operas which lend themselves to presentation here. Going over many of the better known works in the operatic field, it is felt over here that a half dozen or more could be done.

Opera in a picture house is a daring experiment as done here this week, if nothing else. For one thing, patronage which likely would be attracted to a Gaynor-Farrell picture such as 'Change of Heart,' the kind that has the shop girl in mind, may not care much for opera. And vice versa. Those who may stream in here to see 'Butterfly' are unlikely to want much, if anything, of 'Change of Heart.'

Thus a question of booking involves itself. If in trying to get two diverse classes of business, with the picture lining out as bait for one group, opera for the other, will not keep too many on both sides of the fence away?

Business Thursday night was not heavy, but throughout the audience the opera lovers were discernible. Knowing their op and where to applaud, frequently they sshed others who started giving the palm at the wrong points. Getting this class into the house through opera may get them into the habit of coming at other times. From that point of view the idea occasionally would do no harm.

Hall's production of 'Butterfly' is beautiful, though it may have been a little shorter than 70 minutes and still retain enough of the highlights and story to suffice. Before the show goes on Leonard Liebling, music critic, explains the plot, wise in view of the fact that so many picture patrons know little or nothing about opera. But he is on six minutes. Stirring music of 'Butterfly' should appeal to all, including non-opera fans, while the famous duet ending Act I also stirs.

Anne Roselle sings Butterfly, while the male lead is Myron Duncan. Closing act in which Butterfly learns her American husband has a wife of his own in the States, and she commits suicide a minute before he gets to her, proves rather touching, with Miss Roselle very capably handling the main singing role. Duncan's voice rise to the occasion nobly, but frequently he is very theatrical.

Others include Edwina Eustis, Alfredo Gondolfi, Jan Marlo, George Meyer, Davis Tulin and Dora Rinehart.

On change of scene from Act I to Act II, girls in Japanese fan dance movements cross the stage in 'one,' revolving stage than taking the house from an exterior to an interior before the audience's eyes. First act includes the most atmosphere, with friends, relations, servants and others filling up the stage for the marriage scene.

Lighting excellent and Erno Rappe's arrangement of the 'Butterfly' score fits the condensation.

Effective with this show, the house advertizing goes simplicity in an effort to get away from theatricalism. Includes the current trailer announcing the stage show, which in composition, background and type is along class lines and has much smartness. Char.

PALACE, N. Y.

With Columbia's 'Twentieth Century' in the film spot it's a two-way good show this week and the congregation gathered for the first Friday night performance filled most of the seats and spilled over into the boxes. Looks like business for a change.

Long Tack Sam is the topper and he sells his show like a pitchman vending hair straightener in a southern town on a Saturday night. Doesn't do much himself, bar the opening Ching Ling Foo production stuff, but he sticks around and sells the rest for all it's worth and that's not a little, for there is some horizontal bar work that is something to talk about in these days when stick actors are mostly with the circuses and hibernate in the winter. There are also a couple of handstands out of the ordinary. The dancing daughter does the 'Can-can' for a solid plunk of applause and the other collects what's always given anyone who does the back bend and fiddles at the same time. About three-fourths of the act is just ordinary stuff, or would be if the Sam didn't push it over. It's nice example of showmanly building all the way through, with nothing left on long enough even to tire, filling 22 minutes with plenty of what it takes.

For once the Palace does not open with acrobats. First relish is Allen and Kent, not forgetting the parents, the latter collecting most of the applause. Getting, so that hoofers unfortunate enough not to carry elders are just out of luck. The boy and girl do a good routine of the modern day ankle-breaking stuff, but there's a certain class to the parental struts that still gets them over, and it's not alone their age. Off to a big hand that pointed up the running applause, and got the audience in the habit.

Paul Gerrits carried on from there with his slick skate sliding. They were for him and his tricks in a large and audible fashion. Stuart and Lash, m. c. the show, but didn't bother much.

Violet Carlson had a little trouble making contact in spite of her Broadway popularity, and was not a real slug until she worked down to the dance which closes. That was all she needed to get next week, but the nicer points of her singing, in which she uses a well trained voice chiefly for comedy effects, did not seem to be appreciated.

Stuart and Lash, with a stingy canter for Barbara O'Neal were next to shut. Over nicely with the opening stuff, but making their big collection on the Mills Brothers imitation, though it's getting a bit old. It still gets over, so what? Act was hurt a little by using the glass and water gag between other turns, but it's so stale it might very well be dropped. They surely ought to be able to think up a better one.

Helps not a little that the bill blends nicely this week.

In addition to the feature the only film is Pathe News. Not counting the overture, show runs 69 minutes, with Dave Mordecai getting time to play a selection all the way through, which ought to be a novel sensation for him. Usually they clip him to a couple of minutes. Chic.

CHICAGO

Chicago, May 11.

Backed by a typical spread through the Hearst papers on a Clark Gable picture, 'Manhattan Melodrama' (MG) plus Gloria Swanson on the stage, the Chicago is spelling box-office once more. According to the standards of recent months the house started off to terrific biz, though its pace at the opening would have been called only average business two or three years ago.. Miss Swanson comes in particularly well-plugged, stories having been running wild through out the dailies for the past two weeks.

That Swanson has a box-office angle was demonstrated at the Friday first show when the femmes started rushing to front seats as soon as the flicker flashed 'the end.' They wanted a close-up of the Swanson beauty secret, also a closer view of the Swanson gown. And the gown drew applause and mention in the show itself.

Miss Swanson's turn is separated by the newsreel from the stage show proper and brings the vaude portion of the performance to the close. She's on 'just ahead of the picture,' which is 1934's next-to-closing. Is doing the courtroom act.

Regular show continues with the big production revival which B. & K. has feautured for the past four weeks. With a picture like the current flick house can afford to give the customers plenty of flash and lots of production for sock. To the customers who came in for 'Melodrama' it's okay stuff.

Show is labelled 'Old Vienna' and in many respects is old home week. Particularly it's welcome-back week for Joe Griffin, who for years went with the lease. He's here this week warbling in four spots in the presentation. They recognized Griffin when he made his entrance. He still fits into a Chicago presentation on rep and pipes.

Also on the stage was Hans Muenzer, who came up from the trench this week to fiddle for the matrons who for years now have been sighing over his fiddle-playing. Fitted into a sequence about romantic Vienna, he was a natural, particularly in his Heidelberg uniform.

Outstanding in the show were the Hudning Wonders. These girls have reached the apex of novel and startling dance specialty work, especially on the control and acrobatic routines. They do many bits, all top-notch and inimitable. Arranged, costumed and orchestrated in exceptional manner, this act has the right to play any theatre and will keep them out of their seats every time. This usually conservative house went into bravos for the act.

Two other two-acts were spotted in the show. For comedy there was Mac and LaVelle with their drunk knock-about turn. In the usual manner of great falls intermixed with genuine acrobatic stuff, but an act that's entertaining. Maurine and Norva are a ballroom dance team who lack grace, finesse and a routine. They appeared to a disadvantage here.

Fred Evans dancers (line) as usual remained at their high level. Evans has worked out an excellent 'Merry Widow' sequence for this week's show, though it ran somewhat overlength in a performance already loaded with dancing.

Cherniavsky didn't have an overture all to himself, but his direction of the band during the 'Vienna' presentation was a standout. Gold.

PARAMOUNT, N. Y.

The sundry theorems about new faces and where's the new talent coming from; the complaints against the too frequent repeats of stage names and acts around Broadway, and all the other theories anent the shortcoming of vaudevilles are forcibly sustained by the current show at the Broadway Par. It's a Q.E.D. in the reverse manner. For it's a corking stage presentation, intriguing principally because little of it's been around.

Freshness of talent is such a rarity around the Broadway deluxers that it imbues any stage presentation with an additional aura of glamour and novelty.

That four of the acts are noticed under New Acts is something extraordinary in itself. That doesn't count the Four Betty Boop Girls who are a sort of freak throw-together to capitalize on the Helen Kane legal imbroglio. Nor does it include Freddie (Pansy) Sanborn, alumnus of the old-time Jack McLallen nonsense, who has been around and recently returned from London. Sanborn is one of those interrupting clowns, who, when he finally gets to his comedy xylophoning, has built himself up into a good-humored key spot and more than adequately sustains expectations by his individual talents.

The Boopers are the current subfeatures to Phil Harris and his orchestra. Why Helen Kane wasn't booked with the Nos. 1-2-3-4 road companies of the boopery clan is a natural the Par overlooked. While Miss Kane lost the legal decision in her $250,000 damage suit against the Par-Max Fleischer cartoon series, it might have been an ingenious way for both litigants—victor and vanquished—to capitalize on an expensive prosecution and defense. Par might have in a measure compensated its booping antagonist for her costly prosecution and at the same time cashed in on its own defense costs.

Then again perhaps Par had the right idea, for after seeing how involved four boopers can get, maybe Miss Kane would have showed 'em up so badly that the audience would have awarded her the decision. As it is, Mae Questel, the current ghost-voice for Fleischer's cartoon character, and her three predecessors, Bonnie Poe, Margie Hines and Little Ann Little boop the audience into unconsh, so it's just as well.

Stage setting is country-clubbish with the band on stage and the regular orchestra trench metamorphosed into a nite-clubby ringside with the 16 girls and eight boys at small tables. The femme lines comes on the rostrum for a 'Beat of My Heart' number and okay, while the vocalizing male octet groups in the pit.

The verbal pathway from stage to the trench, where another mike is stationed, is good showmanship to get across both personalities of Phil Harris and Leah Ray. Each is reviewed under New Acts. They are a joint combo on the air and at the Palais Royal nitery (recently closed), which was Harris' last cabaret engagement in New York. Al Bernie, another nite club recruit (he's Rudy Vallee's protegee at the Hollywood restaurant, N. Y.) is under New Acts, as are Georgie Tapps (formerly with a company), and Moore and Revel.

Show is bullish on comedy, usually a rare quality, but here almost a bit too abundant. It's also overbalanced on running time, as it's only five minutes gross, and with it, it's also too long on the take-off stuff. After the Bernie youngster gets through milking the ether name roster with his 'impressions,' the Mae Questel attempts at ZaSu Pitts-Mae West fall decidedly flat.

Show in toto runs three hours, which is overboard, but subject to considerable judicious pruning, especially by slicing some of Bernie's stuff which, while good, can outwear its welcome if not curbed.

Newsreel and trailers supplement the feature celluloid, '30-Day Princess' (Par), okay flicker. Abel.

STATE, N. Y.

With 'Tarzan and His Mate' (MG) on the screen, State evidently figured it an opportunity to shave its stage budget to the point where it hurt. Nothing happens on this five-acter until the night-cap turn, which almost makes up for all the shoddiness up front.

In the 25 minutes the Phil Spitalny all-girl band is on the stage there is sufficient entertainment to satiate the most discriminating clientele the State gets, and the State's audiences are notoriously as cold as the Palace crowd is sympathetic. This is a turn to be conjured with; a novelty, a potential attraction, and perhaps one of the best combinations of its kind on the variety boards today.

Twenty-one girls make up the actual instrumental end, but 27 sit on the bandstand. Remaining girls are split up as two vocal soloists, both excellent; a good harmony trio, and a corking blonde acro buck-and-winger. Added to this is the above-average music for a femme outfit and the eccentric batonning of Spitalny, whose showmanship in front of a band has been proven before with male aggregations.

One notable feature of the act is the comparative lack of brass, but eight pieces being included. Remainder are strings, with seven violinists predominating. As a unit and in solo and combination bits the band scored all the way, with a legitimate encore called for but not delivered at the evening show Friday.

As for the rest of the layout, little can be said in its favor. Gautier's Toy Shop is a cute opener, but the four trick ponies and five dogs are meant mainly for kids, something the State rarely draws. With 'Tarzan' on the screen, though, the usual precedent may be upset.

Hal Young, deucing tenor, is noisy to say the least, his fine appearance being the main thing in his favor. Following him is a neat little dance flash headed by Davy Jones and Peggy Lee, which bogs down only when Jones attempts comedy. When dancing, either by himself or with Miss Lee, he clicks. So does the featured team, Dean and Joyce, in their two routines. A girl pianist makes up the rest of this turn.

A dance spot act hardly ready for graduation to the next-to-closing frame is holding down the chief comedy spot. Mells, Kirk and Howard, the former of the Mills, Kirk and Martin act, mildly pleased the audience with their knockabout, and mild comedy attempts, but this was largely due to the complete absence of laughs until their entrance. They present little that is original.

Show in its entirety runs 64 minutes. Biz opening night was hardly good, the balmy weather undoubtedly acting like a small-pox sign on the box-office.

NEWSREELS

(EMBASSY, N. Y.)

Reels have an abundance of fresh fruit currently, judging from the selections made by newsreel theatres.

Hitler is back, despite all the talk that reels had decided to keep him on the shelf. He's shown at a distance, however, with what are presumably May Day mobs on all sides. Paramount got through some carefully edited scenes of Paris rioting, close-upping one bloody nose, while Universal was on hand when a student fell during a shooting in Havana.

Newsreels can stir up a hornet's nest among nations easier than newspapers. This is illustrated in the debt situation. Senator Johnson follows up Chamberlain's black boast for England with a strong denunciation of escaping the red by ignoring obligations. There was a glint in Chamberlain's eye and a vigorous shaking of Johnson's fist which only the screen could convey. Next week someone may be willing to assume a war pose for any of the reels.

Although Pathe calls it a special, its coverage of the Kentucky Derby was more a close-up of the N. Y. colonels than the race. Jack Alicoate made a nice screen debut and Jack Connelly, Pathe squire, and nearest the camera, looked a little nervous. By the time the crew got to the horses they were at the far end of the field. It impressed as though some lone camera perched 'way back in the grandstand followed the trotters.

Insul, entering jail, was caught by Pathe. Seemed as though the warden had let the boys make lighting arrangements hours in advance. The deposed magnate had nothing to say.

While U staged one on the army turning back mail deliveries to private airlines, Pathe turned the subject over to its chart man who did his usually good job in showing that while the country is heavily lined with other routes, only 3% of the population has risked air rides to date.

Hearst promised some action when it showed a real news subject, that of Italy's King and the lawmakers. But it quickly sagged, leaping back to the vault for some more of that ancient gun brand about Australia, Japanese dancers —even Niagara Falls.

If the newspapers didn't make it clear why Helen Kane lost her booper education the reels did. They lined up five other booping girls, and they booped out a chorus of Kanes.

Entertaining study of an airplane pacing a cruiser was afforded by Par. This reel covered it from both perspectives.

U got views of the Balkan coal mine disaster, less gruesome than ordinarily, but leaning toward the graphic side of reactions of families immediately after they had identified their dead.

Two New York fires also got out camera crews. Other subjects: West Point, Staten Island plane landing, Baer-Carnera signatures, Columbia-Yale race, Woodin funeral, William Jennings Bryan unveiling, army planes, young Reynolds as tobacco king, rough wrestling out west. Waly.

LONDON PALLADIUM

London, May 1.

Management seemingly is ignoring that old bugaboo—the barring clause — otherwise Kenneth and George Western could never have been on the bill. Team has played London Pavilion, Garrick and Victoria Palace, all opposition, so often it did not look as though they would ever be allowed to play this nice house. Four Essedras are another act taken out of the 'bar.' It's only a fortnight since they played the Alhambra.

Getting headline honors is Gregory Ratoff. Submitted to the management a few weeks ago, he was turned down; management claiming never having heard of him. With shortage of headliners looks like bookers have studied Ratoff's activities, since they list eight films he has played in the last 18 months. Ratoff is doing the George White's 'Scandal' sketch, with two local supports, the high pressure salesman who peddles everything, from insurance to bromo-seltzer. Support is weak, but film star gets over on his personality. His dialect is also very funny. At $1,250, Ratoff is the cheapest headliner here in years.

Supporting bill has several repeats and Gene Dennis as a holdover. Four Essedras, Continental acrobats, are excellent openers, with the women doing most of the work. Best bit is ladder on pedestal with wire attached, one end of wire held by teeth of one man, with the other two performing some difficult balancing feats atop the ladder.

Dick Henderson, with some new gags, a couple of new songs, and for a finish a burlesque of 'Tip-toe Through the Tulips.'

Wilson, Keppel and Betty, panelled in for the Alhambra but grabbed by General Theatres which has options on them, are still a laugh hit. Betty is doing a new version of a cooch dance that is pleasing, while the boys have added plenty of new stuff.

Hutch, another doing a quick return, indulges in semi-sob ballad singing with a sincerity that gets them.

Gene Dennis, in her second week, is bringing a new clientele to this house with a goodly sprinkling of women. As a whole, house is interested in the offering. Miss Dennis might study her 'mike' delivery, which sounds a little metallic. Otherwise she seems sufficiently realistic to inspire confidence and controversy. Goes on tour for 30 weeks.

Falls, Reading and Boyce, with Falls replaced by a local gal due to diphtheria, seemed to have been fortunate in getting replacement. Gal does very intricate Russian steps on her toes, which helps.

Kenneth and George Western, couple of boys who are popular in London niteries, were one of the biggest clicks of the evening. Boys have that silly ass personality which is always an asset. Write their own songs, pretty blue but clever lyrically, and put over a number 100%. Looks like they will be frequenters here, with danger of being overplayed.

Ted Ray, wisecracking and playing violin, is always surefire here. Has about the best gags of any single around, and seems to have the best pick of what's being unloaded on Broadway.

Closing is Debroy Somers and band. Somers has about the best personality of English band leaders. Indulges mostly in semi-straight numbers. Feature number is 'Hungarian Rhapsody.' Was on too late to show his real worth, with several departures to his music. Bad policy to close with a band here. Considering weather and many repeats, business, which was about 90% capacity, very good.

ROXY

Only four acts wound into the current Fanchon & Marco show at the Roxy, but all good and nicely assembled into a pleasant hour's entertainment, even if somewhat padded.

Probably most important separate item on the show is Del Campo, radio singer who can go places on the stage. He's one of the few etherites to come up who doesn't seem to be worried by footlights or audiences. Settled right down to work, sang and danced as though he'd never heard of a mike.

Campo's numbers were none too wisely chosen. He did three, only one of which suited him. He's Latin, with romantic appearance and appeal, but with plenty of accent. 'Carioca' is right down his alley. But 'Boulevard of Broken Dreams' is another story, even with the splendid backing and production buildup the theatre gives him for the number.

Show starts calmly enough with the line of girls and The Six Candreva Brothers marching on. Girls are more prop than anything else, the sextet starting right on blowing their horns. They're expert trumpeters and get over some interesting effects, especially with the 'Lucia' sextet.

Nash and Fately, comedy dance team, have an easy time following. Big boy and short girl romped

What "CONVENTION CITY" did for me and me and me and me

CONVENTION CITY: One of the best comedies we ever played. Seldom a comedy gives general satisfaction, but this one did in a big way. People laughed at this that had not grinned in years. And it gave 100 per cent satisfaction. Played Jan. 28.—Bert Silver, Silver Family Theatre, Greenville, Mich. Town and country patronage.

CONVENTION CITY: A comedy knockout. Fast and furious from start to finish. Just one continuous laugh. Wish we could get more like this one. You can bet on Warner Brothers this year.—Fred M. Elkin, Carolina Theatre, Lexington, N. C. General patronage.

CONVENTION CITY: Excellent entertainment for both young and old. A wonderful program picture that will appeal to all and should go over good in the small towns as well as in the large ones. Plenty of stars in this one and it is sure to please everyone who sees it. Played Jan. 22-23.—J. J. Medford, Orpheum Theatre, Oxford, N. C. General patronage.

Babies Again

One of the best spring and early summer stunts is the baby contest by slide. Some years ago a Brooklyn manager put one on and had trouble getting it off again. His photographic co-operator talked him into two prolongations because he was making so much business out of the stunt.

Under this set-up mothers took their children to the theatre for entry, and received cards entitling them to a sitting for the child at a nearby photographer's. From this the camera mugg made up a slide. He also sent proofs to the mother, at a moderately priced dozen and half-dozen rate, though the card expressly stated that purchase of prints was not obligatory.

Sets of 10 slides were shown each half week, with the winner of each run eligible for the finals, which ran week. Winner received a baby carriage and other articles promoted from the merchants, and the contest ran three months; which was entirely too long, though the interest held up.

Votes were on one for each nickel basis, to take care of the sliding scale of admissions, and the vote ran surprisingly high. Mothers who complained that the photographer did not do their children justice were permitted to enter slides made by other studios, but at their own expense. Only three mothers took advantage of the offer, but it made the house and the photog clear of charges of favoritism.

Heavy on 'Cargo'

'Wild Cargo' (RKO), opened at the Music Box with more ballyhoo than house manager has given any pic in several months. Exploitation and publicity was started three weeks in advance and the burg was Frank Buck conscious and ready to go at the gun.

Tie-up was made with Collier's representative whereby dodgers were distributed announcing the articles running in the magazine and coming film. Another tie-up with Camel cigarets, explaining reason for Buck's lack of nerves. Placards were on display at all cigar stores. Two thousand tracing sheets were distributed to school kids, with prizes for the best picture of Buck and Tiger. Colorful pennants were worn by all theatre employees for two weeks advertising the pic. A six-sheet bulletin was given to people on downtown streets by newsboys on opening day. Their cry of 'EXTRA—Wild Cargo arrived in town' left no doubt with anyone within mile what it was all about. A series of articles written by Buck was run in a local sheet.

The climax was a pet parade. Every kid who had a pet was on hand, and Noah's Ark must have been tame compared with the conglomeration nature displayed.

'Wild Cargo' Zoo

Los Angeles.

One of heaviest exploitation campaigns put on here for a picture in years was that staged by Jack Gross, with the help of Ken McGaffey, for RKO's 'Wild Cargo.'

Three days before pic opened Gross has his femme crew of usherettes on the downtown streets, attired in extra short white panties, distributing 40,000 pieces of gum secured through a tieup with Beechnut.

First portable daylight projector was installed in the outer lobby, equipped with an automatic operation device whereby a 250-foot trailer with sound was run continuously, and projected on a glass screen over the main entrance.

Lobby was transformed into a miniature zoo, with several specimens of tigers and lions procured from the local Zoological Gardens. Three thousand store tieups were made in conjunction with Camel cigarettes, and dozens of other exploitation stunts were worked.

Out in Seattle

Seattle.

Photos of Larry Ross (prints) handed to all outgoing customers at Fifth Avenue as advance bally for 'Melody in Spring' (Par) and Al Pearce gang in person, used as extra advertising.

Fans handled deftly by the usherettes at the Paramount used to bally for Jay C. Flippen, week prior. When fans opened reading thereon called attention to the Flippen show, Morrie Nimmer thinking this one out, for some nice attention-getting.

Shorts on Preview

Art Abelson at the World theatre has worked out a plan which he hopes will waylay that strange interlude of slack attendance between five and seven around the dinner hour. Theatre has instituted an hour for weekly trade screenings of the latest short subjects, and is making strong play in the ads that the public is invited. House is blaring 6 p. m. Mondays as the time when all the trade reviewers and exhibs must see the shorts, and the public might as well get in on this treat for the regular admission price.

At the first showing last Monday the screenings included six shorts, and plan is to take a full hour of screenings. At least has the trade talking, but whether or not the public wants to add an hour to an already three-hour long program remains to be seen. It's Abelson's problem as to how to work out the schedule for the increased program, but begins to look there aren't enough hours in a day what with two features, news, trailers, and now another hour of shorts.

Cold Money

Getting out a stage money throwaway for a money title, a manager had the inspiration to offer tickets for sale for $500, which meant 50 of the spurious bills. It was his thought that the youngsters would ask the adults for their bills and so create word-of-mouth advertising for the pictures. It was a good thought from some angles, but the manager did not know kids as well as he should.

As soon as the idea was spotted the boys followed the distributors around and extracted the bills from letter boxes before the intended recipients had even seen them. Other, and larger, boys held up the distributors and took their entire supply away. In an issue of 5,000 bills not more than a quarter fell into adult hands. As an exploitation idea it was a loss.

The same thing holds good with most attractive advertising. The children follow the distributors and pick them up before they fall into the proper hands. Even where they had no redeemable value they are gathered in.

Only the other afternoon a couple of children were spotted in one of the suburban streets with about 200 blotters apiece. These had been slipped partly under doorways and extracted by the kids before they could have any effect. Other children had smaller quantities. They took them home and probably most of them eventually were thrown out as cluttering the house.

Novelty advertising should be distributed with extreme care, and this goes double for anything possessing a redeemable value.

Fixed Up

Manager who works in with the school teachers pulled a niftie after he caught VARIETY's recent West-Durante version of 'Romeo and Juliet.' He hustled over to the English teacher and offered three ticket prizes to the best version of Hamlet's soliloquy as any picture comedian would do it. Class has until the end of the month, but they're laughing already. Manager plans to get a local boy to deliver the top prize winner as part of the show when the tickets are awarded.

Not to boom any particular show, but he feels that it is more important to keep his house in the limelight than any two-day attraction, and he shapes his gags, as far as possible, to run for the theatre rather than the show. Lasts longer and seems to do more good.

Recently he connected the art class for the best completed picture of the Venus of Milo, with arms, with originality of pose the criterion. Had a sample picture of the actual statue on display and the sketches had to conform to that exact pose.

Manual training was given a chance at cash prizes for the most original bird house recently, and there are frequent contests for compositions.

Keeps him in solid with the school, and at the same time gets the theatre into the home, since it's all home-work.

Real Tie-Up

Baltimore.

Herb Morgan, Loew's pub pusher, slipped the ad man of a large loop department store an idea and promoted a show window as result. Had store bedeck the window with flashy array of spring ties, braces, socks, etc., whole representing an eye-compelling maze of gaudy hues. In background, solid-brown ties were pinned together, spelling 'Viva Villa' against a white sheet. Down front in window, small placard proclaimed, 'A man can also have color right here in staid ol' Baltimore.'

Same window-dressing idea can be worked out nicely for many flicks, but a red-hot one currently sizzling down the pike is 'We're Not Dressing' (Par). With beach season approaching, stores are featuring displays of swim-suits and other informal garb that would tie-in aptly with picture's tag.

For '20th Cent'

Cincinnati.

Novel four-way pix plug worked by RKO and Keith's (Libson) with Times-Star on 'What the 20th Century Girl Should Be' contest, with $50 in cash prizes, split $20, $10s and $5s. Contestants to write 250-word essays on conception of make-up of 20th century gal. Money supplied by theatres. Paper devotes two quarter-page spreads and four days of three-column news breaks, with art. One yarn had John Barrymore selecting Carol Lombard and telling why. Another quoted Walter Connolly choosing Ginger Rogers. Roscoe Karns tabbed as for Joan Crawford, and Edgar Kennedy for Francis Dee. Besides '20th Century Girl,' there were blurbs for 'Finishing School,' 'Sadie McKee' and '20 Million Sweethearts,' all showing at same time. Idea by Wes Kaufman, Columbia exploiteer; E. V. Dinerman, RKO p.a., and Lew Heck, promotional man for Times-Star.

Kennedy Sold It

Montgomery.

Dick Kennedy, southern manager for Wilby chain, came back to his home town this week, and put over White's 'Scandals.' Tieups with street car company; two newspapers, department stores and billboard advertising.

Down Under

Sydney.

To get a break with 'Alice in Wonderland,' Charles Munro, co-head of G. T., plugged hard for kiddie trade over Lenten and secured great results.

Special 'Alice' parties were thrown daily with 'goodies' given to all kids attending. Theatre forced to open each day at 8:30 a. m. for the first show. Original costumes used in the production were paraded to the delight of the youngsters.

Par's If-Money Tieup

Paramount publicity has tied in to the Order of Veiled Prophets, which has 150 'grottoes' in as many cities, with memberships composed entirely of Masons, though not in itself masonic.

Each Grotto desiring can select a representative to be entered at Atlantic City during the session of the Supreme Council. The winner, who will be selected for ability to entertain as well as looks, will be crowned 'America's Personality Girl of 1934,' but Paramount does not promise she'll be given a job.

Hint for Theatre

Ames, Ia.

The piece de resistance of the annual Veishea program of Iowa State college, a bathing beauty contest, is taboo, college heads having no objection, however, to the naming, and crowning of an 'aquatic queen.'

So it's on the slate, designation alone being out. The parade will lose some of its shapeliness though, for the contestants will do a splash and strut their stuff in the H2O as a part of a swimming circus. Contestants limited to sororities and dorm girls.

Works the Busses

Exhib with a house drawing from a number of smaller spots is arranging to tap the territory with the school buses during the summer.

Of these operate under contract and are not owned by the school boards, so the operators are free take such outside contracts as may interfere with the collection and delivery of the kids.

Idea is to split the week so that each three-day bill will be fed from each section. On Monday towns to the north will be tapped. They'll come up from the south on Tuesday and the smaller east and west towns drawn from on Wednesday. Last half of the week the schedule is repeated except that the east-west towns also come on Friday instead of Saturday.

Bus drivers will sell tickets at a 10c increase, with a dime cut from the theatre, which will give the operator 20c for fare. Some towns have been working this all the year around with good results, the buses being idle after 5 o'clock, by which time all the children have been returned to their homes. Figured it brings in people who do not own cars, or whose cars are in demand by other members of the family, and it's worth the price concession to get them in.

In one town last year, during the cold weather, the drivers were given checks good for a cup of coffee at a restaurant near the theatre. This was a free service, the restaurant figuring that if they came in for coffee after the cold ride into town, they might want a snack before starting home. Bus allowed for an hour in town after the show.

Surprise Flash

For the opening of 'Viva Villa' for New York, Metro used cloth for the front, mostly yellow letters on red. Effective, but rather cheap-looking, but it doubly enhanced the value of the permanent front when that was disclosed.

The idea might be adapted to advance for some big feature, putting up a handsome, painted announcement and covering it with a plain cloth announcement that the curtain hides the most important film announcement of the season, which will be unveiled on a stated date. It will make for interest, and the unveiling of the announcement can be made the occasion of a ceremony, with the mayor or some other official doing the honors to the accompaniment of a band, or at least, a band record through the loudspeaker.

It might be even more effective if the announcement is placed in some store window; particularly if the theatre is not located in the center of things. It should work as strongly as the undated poster, and that's been a standard occasional for years.

Another good gag would be to use a less ornate display and cover it with white newsprint, with the announcement that it will be disclosed in a few days. Long before that the curious will have ripped the paper, making the display more attention-compelling than had it merely been placed in the lobby without ceremony. To get the best result it should be well toward the front and where the doorman will not deter the curious.

June Walks

Mayday parties are so frequently rained out that the June Walk is superseding it in many northern spots, but whichever it is, it's a honey for a house catering to the family trade.

It's just another name for a picnic, with the kid club, if there is one, skipping a meeting, while the members are taken to a park or into the country, with the mothers going along to supervise. Ice cream can generally be promoted and either other light refreshments can be provided or the children told to bring their own lunch boxes. There must be ample provision of clean drinking water, cooled, but not too cold, and a program of races and other sports and games is laid out. The general idea is to give the youngsters a thoroughly good time as a goodwill gainer for the theatre.

Frequently in the larger towns the co-operation of the playground director can be obtained for program making and possibly supervision. Unless the club is a large one, it would be well to include other children in the party.

Trick stunts are better than straight sports. A three-legged race will be more diverting than a straight dash, and they'll enjoy egg, potato and similar races, ball games between the girls and boys, with a soft ball in use when the girls are in the field; wheelbarrow races and similar events.

Depression has cut the number of these parties in late years. Now is a good time to revive them.

Comprehensive Reorg. Plan All Set for Par-FWC Theatre Pool

The road is paved for a comprehensive reorganization plan between Paramount, Fox Film and Fox-West Coast in connection with Pacific Slope Theatres leased by Par to Fox in 1930 and subsequently, in 1932, the subject of a dispute between both. Fox disclaimed all liability in connection with the original 1930 agreement, alleging breaches by Par and since then many hours and considerable money has been spent trying to straighten out the situation.

Believing that a new agreement, which in its printed form is over an inch thick, will be satisfactory to all concerned, the Par trustees have set May 21 as the date on which approval of courts and creditors will be sought. No opposition is anticipated. The new agreement includes many provisions of a retroactive nature in connection with new leases, rental deals, Paramount film franchises and other arrangements.

Involved are seven former Publix Coast theatres. The houses and the rents under the original Par-Fox leasing deal of Dec. 10, 1930, are Paramount, $217,743; California, $159,051; St. Francis, $30,121—all in San Francisco—Paramount, Oakland, which was in course of construction then; Paramount, $97,891, and Rialto, $39,727—both in Portland; and the Paramount, Seattle, $120,854. Original leases were for 20 years, excepting in Portland, where they expire Aug. 13, 1934.

In the Oakland deal, the house on completion was to be deemed under sublease to Fox under identical terms and conditions of an underlying lease, Fox to make reimbursements to Par for costs in connection with leasing and to deliver one-year notes to cover, with options for another year.

Rent was paid on the two Portland houses up to Sept. 30, 1932; on the other five up to Nov. 30, that year. On expenses to Par in connection with leasing, construction and equipment of the Par, Oakland, computed by Par at $433,796, plus interest of $4,953, Fox disputed the correctness of the audit, and the trouble began. When Par went into receivership in January, 1933, Fox disclaimed all liability under the agreement covering total of the seven theatres, claiming Par broke the contract by non-execution of subleases and by transferring production and distribution to separate subsidiaries in November, 1932.

The Par equity receivers, insisting Fox was obligated, in March, 1933, made an agreement that all net income from the theatres under lease to Fox be paid the receivers. Since then various negotiations have gone forward toward a settlement of controversies arising out of the original deal.

Subject to Approval

The plan that's now finally ready for adoption has to be approved by the Par creditors as well as by the F-WC trustees and that chain's bankruptcy creditors.

On the three San Francisco houses, Fox is to pay $114,299 as back rent from Dec. 1, 1932, to Feb. 28, 1933, while for the period from March 1, 1933, to April 30 that year, rental is to be adjusted on a basis of net income of theatres, aggregating $50,000.

New leasing arrangements are retroactive to then, with Fox as lessee of all three for a period of 10 years.

Rent on the Par, San Francisco, is to be $87,500 a year except during the period from July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1941, when rental will vary between $105,000 and $112,750. This permits a substantial breathing spell on rent for Fox for a couple years.

Rent on the California, S. F., is to be $35,000 to Sept. 1, 1935, and $42,500 thereafter, while on the St. Francis it will be $75,000 a year without variation.

New film franchise for Par product includes most of the downtown S. F. houses of F-WC and runs for 10 years from May 1, 1933. The bonds on the Paramount, S. F., have been readjusted under the plan, and reorganization of the issue on the California is under way.

A provision of the plan so far as Frisco is concerned is that for each year to June 30, 1943, F-WC is to pay Par an amount equal to 37½% of the aggregate net each year from operation of F-WC theatres in the downtown area, including houses Par has nothing to do with. It is planned to organize a new company to take over the operation of these houses. If loss occurs any year it is to be recouped out of future earnings.

On the Par, Oakland, the proposed compromise of various controversies includes withdrawal of two claims by the landlord, aggregating $2,200,000, and transfer by Fox of all rights, title and interest in equipment and furnishings to Par. Then Par enters into an agreement with Solano Theatre Corp., Ltd., subsidiary of F-WC, and transfers its rights in equipment, etc., to this company for $390,000 in notes up to 1941.

Par Film Franchises

Par franchises on film here is for 15 years under the plan, while the new lease is for 15 years at an annual rental of $70,000, with an option to F-WC to renew for five years.

On the Paramount, Portland, the new rental deal is for $55,000 a year up to October, 1943. Two landlord and mortgage claims, each for $53,000, in connection with the Par, Portland, will be withdrawn and the new deal made up through a new corporation, Paraport Theatre Leasing Corp., 75% of the stock of which will be owned by F-WC, balance by Paramount. Paraport also is to own all the capital stock of Portland Amusement Co., lessee of the Liberty there.

Plan includes a Par picture franchise for 10 years in both Portland and Seattle. Rialto in Portland does not figure, since it has been repossessed by the landlord, but under the plan Fox is to pay $35,030 as back rent on the Portland duo and Seattle singleton.

A claim against the Par, Seattle, for rent, taxes, insurance, amounting to $88,456 and against Par, will be released under a tentative agreement with the trustee of the bond issue, nature of which is not detailed. What the new rent deal on Seattle will be isn't indicated.

On closing of the agreement covering the reorganization plan, Fox is to pay Par $17,500 to apply against unpaid film rentals, with final adjustment of total account to be made by 60 days later.

Other provisions include that F-WC will be released from Par claims filed against it when F-WC went into bankruptcy; that all disputes will be arbitrated; distribution of Par pictures will be limited on opposition against Fox in immediate zones; that in the event of a breach of warranties and covenants, Fox indemnifies Par against any loss and that Fox agrees to renew notes of Famous Players Canadian aggregating $693,000.

Trustees of Par will ask authorization to pay Lawrence Stern & Co., Chicago banking house, $15,000, for representing the Par trustees on negotiations with committee representing bondholders of Granada Realty Co., Frisco, resulting in an adjustment of the issue and on negotiations leading up to the new Oakland arrangements.

CIRCUITS JOIN GIVEAWAY RUSH

Illinois Exhibs in Meet to Settle Premiums—Indies in Panic as Circuits Threaten Bigger and Better Gratis Nights—South Bend Has Doubles at 10c Besides Free Dishes

MERCHANTS SORE

Chicago, May 14.

Getting nowhere but getting plenty excited, the Illinois exhibitors last week spent a hectic afternoon fighting over the premium problem which is developing into a panic throughout the midwest. Congress hotel meeting place boomed with pro and con arguments on the matter with no vote being taken on the majority feeling on the matter. It will likely be left to the grievance board for this territory to decide whether or not to allow premiums.

But the problem gets bigger each day as more and more houses join the parade to give-aways.

This bugaboo is stalking film row and keeping exhibitors awake at night. Starting slowly in a couple of isolated spots the premium give-away thing has developed into a major worry with the circuits now threatening to go into the give-away policy on a big scale.

Under the code the question of premiums is left to the individual distribution territories. As set down in the code rules the question of premiums must be settled by general vote either way. Premiums must be okayed or killed by a 75% majority of each of the two branches, independent and circuit.

Give-aways are covering practically the entire field in this territory and range from raffles to presents for everybody. Dishes are popular with the exhibitors, also table-ware of all kinds. What particularly intrigues the exhibs on these items is that it can be built up into a run with the women coming back each week to get another article to build to a set.

Besides there's a flock of kid appeal stuff from candy to athletic goods on Saturday afternoons. The men don't figure as many tests have demonstrated that men won't come to a theatre just to get a free article.

Kitchen Items

Strong at present are two kitchen items, the electric refrigerator and the range. The auto giveaway which was so powerful two years ago had died off though with the increased pressure locally there are signs of a reviving interest in that stunt.

Exhibs for the most part are against the giveaway thing as strictly non-showbusiness. The smart exhibitor can't see where giving away a china cup and saucer is show business. Not only that but the exhibs are finding that they are making a flood of enemies among the regular merchants of their neighborhoods who are howling that the theatres are stepping on their toes by giving away to the public free articles which the merchants must sell.

South Bend, Ind., is a particularly hot spot for such business ethics. In that town the exhibs are double featuring, cut-rating and chopping admissions to 10c besides throwing in a set of dishes or some table linen for each femme admission. Some attempts have been made to straighten out this situation but nothing lasting has come out of the numerous meetings which have been held.

Exchanges are sitting tight and staying out of the picture on the claim that their only concern is the double feature or 10c admish; that if the exhib wants to add to his overhead it's his own worry. In many theatres where the pictures are costing $10 and $12,50 the exhib is giving away merchandise to the amount of $40 and $50 nightly, with each item costing from 7-15c apiece. This angle is making many exchanges sit up and take a slant at the situation and some are beginning to state that a portion of that extra overhead should go to pictures.

Expect General Admish Reduction In Midwest on New Zoning Setup

Chicago, May 14.

Wholesale reduction in admission prices throughout the midwest is imminent. Break is scheduled to occur as soon as the Code Authority publishes the new zoning setup for this territory.

Zoning board this exchange center has thrice postponed the publication of the final zoning setup, the postponements having been due to various instances. The final postponement came at the request of Balaban & Katz, which asked that the meeting scheduled for last Friday (11) be switched to today (Monday) on the grounds that it needed the extra week-end to prepare its zoning proposals for the Chicago territory.

It is understood that the B. & K. proposals will carry a request for sweeping reductions in admissions throughout the release schedule, with the possible exception of the loop district. Feeling about the loop is that the prices can stay up at the present levels during the Fair rush.

However, rest of the releases, particularly those immediately following the loop runs, those named A-week, B-week and C-week plus the eight weeks of general release, it is reported that B. & K. will propose a 10c chop right along the line. This would bring the A-week top price from 50c to 40c, B-week from 40c to 30c, and so on down the line.

It is the aim of these ace nabe houses, whether circuit or otherwise, to cut admissions without forfeiting priority in the release schedule and protection over the subsequent run theatres.

Meeting today (Monday) is under the chairmanship of Henry Herbel, Universal manager and Film Board of Trade president, and with Judge Hugo Friend sitting in as the outside member. Judge Friend's inability to appear caused the postponement of the meeting scheduled for last Thursday (10). Following the publication of the general zoning system as set up by the zoning board all interested parties may appear before the board with objections or changes, if any.

Md. Nixes 'Blonde'

Baltimore, May 14.

Maryland censor board has put the finger on 'Unknown Blonde,' indie flicker, prohibiting the pic 100%.

Gold Medal Film Co. appealed the ruling Friday (11), securing signed order from Chief Judge Dennis of City Court directing the board to answer the appeal before May 19, and set the case for hearing on May 22, at which time the jurist will review 'Blonde' at the Board's projection quarters and render a final decision.

DOWNTOWN BROOKLYN IN TOUGH SHAPE

Downtown Brooklyn is taking the meanest licking of its life. Business apathy has become so bad that now the RKO Albee may drop vaude for the summer, while the Warner Strand is going into double features, with every house, including Loew's Metropolitan, fearful. Albee has put up a two weeks' notice as protection in case it wants to close or change policy sudden.

Paramount darkens Thursday (17), but the Fox, which also posted notice to close that date, is going to try to amble along on a week-to-week basis. Like the others, not expecting any miracles just now, the Fox could give up whenever it wanted to on a week's notice.

Should the RKO Albee drop its stage shows or shutter for the first time since built, this would give the Met an even more open field. House has the Metro product and plays five acts of vaude on a full week.

Hard hit for some time now, the Strand cut its scale to a 40c top a couple of weeks ago, but finding that isn't turning the trick, goes to a dual policy for the first time in its history Friday (18).

Closing of the Par will make Par product available to the Albee, plus what RKO now has tied up for Brooklyn, including Columbia and Universal.

Strand will change weekly instead of going to a split under duals. Scale remains at 40c., cut from 50c.

H'WOOD UNIONS FAVOR CANAVAN AS IA PREZ

Hollywood, May 14.

Pronounced movement to back William F. Canavan for presidency of the IATSE in opposition to William C. Elliott at the Louisville convention election during the first week in June is developing here among the Local 37 membership as a result of the studio strike fiasco.

Lew C. G. Blix, business agent of Local 37, will go to the Louisville session as accredited delegate. Likely also that James E. Shaw, outstanding critic of the present IATSE administration's policy, will also attend to scatter fireworks from Hollywood.

Coast Alternates

Hollywood, May 14.

Producers' association has chosen its slate of alternates for the Agency code committee, which awaits ratification of Divisional Administrator Rosenblatt before becoming effective.

Recommended for the alternate berths are Louis B. Mayer, Harry Cohn, Joseph Schenck and Carl Laemmle, Jr., from the majors, and Nat Levine, representing the indies.

At the same session the producers re-elected Fred Beetson president of Central Casting Corp, E. H. Allen first v.-p. and treasurer, and Carl Laemmle, Jr., second v.-p.

Allen's berth combines the vice-presidency formerly held by William Frazer and treasury spot filled by Sol Wurtzel. Irving Thalberg was the former second v.-p.
